So, the very next time you feel sluggish, take only a candy Cascaret. Delightful to the taste, sweet and acceptable to any stomach, and just as efficient as the powerful purges that fairly paralyze the peristaltic walls of one's intestines. The only habit you'll get from Cascarets is the one of going weeks and months without ANY help of the kind. And when you do invoke their aid again, the same small dose suffices. Any doctor can tell you about cascara; and any druggist has the candy Cascarets.

The GREATER HUDSON

and Motordom calls for LARGEST HUDSON output of all time

Already in response to the public's demand, production of the Greater Hudson has been increased, and then increased again—by far the largest schedule Hudson ever found necessary.

In their own words, by their marked and recorded ballots, motorists by tens of thousands are telling us the Greater Hudson is truly the greatest of all time.

Voting in every Hudson salesroom in the country, these enthusiastic multitudes have piled up the most convincing endorsement in Hudson history. Perhaps even more important, they have bought these beautiful new Hudsons in such numbers that we must make thousands more of them to insure prompt delivery.

Every experience and suggestion of the world's largest 6-cylinder ownership is incorporated in the 64 improvements of the Greater Hudson.

As co-authors of these creations the 1,000,000 Super-Six owners are naturally first to want to see, inspect and drive them. It is particularly interesting to observe their special satisfaction in the numerous body improvements. In comment, these important developments in body design and appointment, fully-equal the more dramatic qualities of the more than 80-mile-an-hour performance.

They definitely set Hudson apart from like-priced cars, just as Hudson performance stands alone among all cars.

Come, see and drive the Greater Hudson. We believe one ride will make it the car of your choice.

TO RESTRAIN FED. RESERVE CREDIT FOR SPECULATION

Announcement Made by the Board in Advance of Its Publication in the Organization's Monthly Bulletin—Warning Given That the Growth of Speculative Credit Had Already Strained Conditions, Causing an Advance of 1 to 1½ Per Cent. in the Cost of Commercial Credit—Action Taken Because a Continuation of the Conditions May Be Expected to Have a Detrimental Effect on Business.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—The federal reserve board declared today that use of federal reserve credit for speculation, directly or indirectly, must be restrained. The announcement was made in a statement issued by the board in advance of its publication in the organization's monthly bulletin.

The board said that it neither assumed the right nor had the disposition to set itself up as an arbiter of security speculation or values but that it was its business to see that the federal reserve banks functioned as effectively as conditions would permit.

The board called attention to the growth of speculative credit in the last year, in which time loans to brokers and dealers by New York federal reserve member banks have increased from $3,816,000,000 to $5,559,000,000 and said that the growing volume of speculation already had strained credit conditions causing an advance of 1 to 1 1-2 per cent in the cost of commercial credit.

"The matter is one that concerns every section of the country and every business interest," the statement said, "as an aggravation of these conditions may be expected to have detrimental effects on business and may impair its future."

Resources of the federal reserve system, the statement declared, was ample to meet the country's commercial need for credit provided they were competently administered and protected from uses not contemplated by the federal reserve act.

The board said that when it found conditions were arising which obstructed federal reserve banks in the effective discharge of their function, it was its duty to inquire into them and to take such measures as might be deemed suitable and effective in the circumstances to correct them. In the immediate situation, the statement said, that this meant the restraint of the use, either directly or indirectly, of federal reserve credit facilities in the aid of the growth of speculative credit.

The loans to brokers and dealers by New York federal reserve member banks reached a new high record Jan. 23, when they totalled $5,443,000,000, an increase of nearly $50,000,000 over the preceding week. This record was again shattered when an increase last week of $116,000,000 sent the loans to another high record.

The statement of the board reads:

Statement of the Board

"The United States has during the last six years experienced a most remarkable run of economic activity and productivity. The production, distribution and consumption of goods have been in unprecedented volume. The economic system of the country has functioned efficiently and smoothly. Among the factors which have contributed to this result, an important place must be assigned to the operation of our credit and notably to the steadying influence and moderating policies of the federal reserve system.

"During the last year or more, however, the functioning of the federal reserve system has encountered interference by reason of the excessive amount of the country's credit absorbed in speculative security loans. The credit situation since the opening of the New Year indicates that some of the factors which occasioned untoward developments during the year 1928 are still at work. The volume of speculative credit is still growing.

"Coming at a time when the country has lost some $500,000,000 of gold, the effect of the great and growing volume of speculative credit has already produced some strain, which has reflected itself in advances of from 1 to 1 1-2 per cent in the cost of credit for commercial users. The matter is one that concerns every section of the country and every business interest, as an aggravation of these conditions may be expected to have detrimental effects on business and may impair its future.

"The federal reserve board neither assumes the right nor has any disposition to set itself up as an arbiter of security speculation or values. It is, however, its business to see to it that the federal reserve banks function as effectively as conditions will permit.

"When it finds that conditions are arising which obstruct federal reserve banks in the effective discharge of their function of so managing the credit facilities of the federal reserve system as to accommodate commerce and business, it is its duty to inquire into them and to take such measures as may be deemed suitable and effective in the circumstances to correct them; which, in the immediate situation, means to restrain the use, either directly or indirectly of federal reserve credit facilities in aid of the growth of speculative credit. In this connection, the federal reserve board under date of Feb. 2, addressed a letter to federal reserve banks which contains a fuller statement of its position.

"The firming tendencies of the money market which have been in evidence since the beginning of the year—contrary to the usual trend at this season—make it incumbent upon the federal reserve banks to give constant and close attention to the situation in order that no influence adverse to the trade and industry of the country shall be exercised by the trend of money conditions, beyond what may develop as inevitable.

"The extraordinary absorption of funds in speculative security loans which has characterized the credit movement during the past year or more, in the judgment of the federal reserve board, deserves particular attention lest it become a decisive factor working toward a still further firming of the money rates to the prejudice of the country's commercial interest.

"The resources of the federal reserve system are ample for meeting the growth of the country's commercial needs for credit, provided they are competently administered and protected against seepage into uses not contemplated by the federal reserve act.

"The federal reserve act does not, in the opinion of the federal reserve board, contemplate the use of the resources of the federal reserve banks for the creation or extension of speculative credit. A member bank is not within its reasonable claim for rediscount facilities at its federal reserve bank when it borrows either for the purpose of making speculative loans or for the purpose of maintaining speculative loans.

"The board has no disposition to assume authority to interfere with the loan practices of member banks so long as they do not involve the federal reserve banks. It has, however, a grave responsibility whenever there is evidence that member banks are maintaining speculative security loans with the aid of federal reserve credit. When such is the case the federal reserve bank becomes either a contributing or a sustaining factor in the current volume of speculative security credit. This is not in harmony with the intent of the federal reserve act nor is it conducive to the wholesale operation of the banking and credit system of the country."

George L. Harrison, governor of the federal reserve bank of New York, was in conference with Roy A. Young, governor of the federal reserve board, and members of the board for several hours preceding the issuance of the statement.

ELECTRICAL HEATING SYSTEM FOR HOMES

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 6—(AP)—Samuel D. Smith, San Diego, Calif., today explained an electrical heating system by which he expects to revolutionize the heating of homes and buildings.

One of the Edison pioneers, associate and employe of Thomas A. Edison in 15 Nesmith is conducting final tests of his invention at the Edison laboratories at Menlo park.

The inventor gave the following explanation of the system:

"Dirt, coal and the bothersome running up and down stairs to take care of the furnace are eliminated entirely by the electrical heater, which is, simply a thermostatically controlled electrically heated water boiler.

"To start the hot water in circulation through the radiators it is necessary only to press a button like those used to turn on the electric lights in a room.

"The thermostat is set at whatever temperature is desired, and whenever the temperature rises above it, the heat is automatically turned off.

"The heating of office buildings and hotels can be done by the installation of a heater on each floor, dispensing with immense pipe lines and result in saving space and other economies."

He stated that for two years one of the heaters has performed successfully at the home of Mr. Edison's eldest daughter, Mrs. Marion Edison Oser, at Norwalk, Conn.

TO ISSUE BENCH WARRANT FOR THE ARREST OF RICE

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 6—(AP)—Judge Newell Jennings of the superior court of Bristol, late today, made a statement in which he said he would issue a bench warrant for the arrest of Trenor A. Rice, if the grand jury, to meet in Putnam next Monday, brings in a first degree indictment against the alleged slayer of County Detective William E. Jackson.

If this procedure is carried through Rice, who is now in Brooklyn jail, where he is being held without bail, will not have to be arraigned for the second time in police court here on February 14. When first brought before a judge after his arrest Sunday evening Rice did not plea, his counsel asking for a future date.

Much of the interest prevailed here since the murder and the arrest of Rice, has died away.

SNOWSLIDES DEMORALIZE TRANSPORTATION IN COLORADO

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 6—Snowslides have demoralized transportation in Colorado and isolated the towns, Silverton and Craig. A series of nine huge slides have stopped all traffic between Durango and Silverton. Highways and trains probably will be booked for a week.

Large rotary plows are being used to clear the tracks.

MOB LAW AND TERRORISM PREVAILS IN BOMBAY, INDIA

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 6—(AP)—Mob law still reigned tonight in this great city. The climax of several days of sanguinary religious warfare came early in the evening when troops on two occasions fired on mobs.

But even this measure did not halt the disorders for in another part of the city a mob of 2,000 Hindus stoned to death three of nine Moslems whom they pursued into the vicinity of the Mazadaon police court. The Pathans had taken refuge behind the walls of Hindu premises, but they were hunted out, driven into the streets and stoned.

It was reported that the rage of the Pathans over the manner in which members of their community have been attacked, has taken the form of exacting revenge by damaging Hindu temples. Idols have been smashed in several of the temples.

CAPT. FRIED WELCOMED BY HIS NATIVE STATE

BOSTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Captain George A. Fried of the United States liner, America, was welcomed home by his native state here today.

To the praise of state and city officials and the cheers of crowds in the streets, the commander of the ship which rescued the crew of the Italian freighter Florida, had only this reply: "I have done no more than thousands of other seamen, who have sailed out of New England." All through today's reception, the modesty of a veteran sea captain, more used to action than words, contrasted with the tribute paid him. He rode through the streets to the state house, the city hall, the chamber of commerce building and the common. At all of these places he spoke briefly, not of the rescue but of shipping and New England's maritime traditions.

STANDARD TIME BILL KILLED IN COMMITTEE

HARTFORD, Feb. 6—(AP)—The judiciary committee this afternoon killed the standard time bill of Mr. Diana, New Haven. Both Mr. Diana and Senator Bergin, upper house minority leader, in supporting the bill, were the subject of humorous sallies from Senator Peasley and Mr. Johnson, house chairman. Mr. Diana read editorials from the New Haven Register and the Waterbury Republican favoring the standardization of time so that all clocks would conform at all times. When Senator Bergin said the confusion resulting over the prevalence of daylight saving time in one place and standard time in another, principally as affecting railroad passengers, caused too much calculation and waste of time, Mr. Johnson asked: "Do you think mental activity would hurt anyone?" Mr. Tobin and Miss Maher, New Haven, favored the bill, but Senator Lillibridge, author of the time bill which Mr. Diana would have repealed, opposed it.

Senator Peasley's bill giving teachers and school children who are injured in municipally operated vehicles the right to sue, and collect damages from, the municipalities drew support from Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel and opposition from Education Commissioner Meredith. The committee decided to report favorably on the bill, with changes.

The finance committee voted to report favorably on the bill giving ex-service men the entire tax period in which to ask exemptions up to $1,000, after Tax Commissioner Blodgett had said the bill was in line with an opinion rendered by the attorney-general. Mrs. Russ' bill exempting volunteer firemen from taxation after 21 years of service, was also acted on favorably.

[illegible]indbergh Lands Air Mail At Panama

Yesterday Completed the First Air Mail Delivery From U. S. to Panama.

COLON, Panama, Feb. 6—(AP)—Colo-France field, outside the city, at 4 p. nel Charles A. Lindbergh landed at m. today, completing the first air mail delivery from the United States to the Panama Canal Zone.

A large crowd swarmed over the field when the plane first appeared faintly in the sky. Colonel Lindbergh made a graceful landing, reported that he had encountered excellent weather throughout the flight and delivered six mail sacks containing 350 pounds of letters to the authorities.

He planned to fly tonight to Panama City where he will dine aboard the battleship Texas and sleep aboard the aircraft carrier Saratoga. His program for Friday includes a return flight to France field.

Colonel Lindbergh announced that he would start his return flight to Miami Sunday morning, making the same stops as on the southward flight.

From Monday at 6:08 a. m. until the landing today the Lindbergh special maintained the schedule marked out by the air mail authorities. Leaving Miami he stopped at Havana and remained overnight at Belize, British Honduras.

He left Belize at 9:10 a. m. Tuesday, paused briefly at Tela, Honduras, and landed in Managua, Nicaragua, at 3:45 p. m. Tuesday. He made two stops between Managua and his final destination, one at Punta Arenas and one at David, Panama.

A remarkable feature of Colonel Lindbergh's achievement is that he completed the historical flight exactly on the minute. It had been officially announced that the mail would arrive at 4 p. m. today. It was precisely that moment when the Colonel taxied his plane across the field to a rest.

Twenty-one hundred miles over sea, land and high mountains in three days is the new record for mail deliveries between the United States and Panama, a journey heretofore requiring from twelve to thirteen days.

ITALIAN GOVT. AND VATICAN HAVE REACHED A COMPLETE AGREEMENT

ROME, Feb. 6—(AP)—Pope Pius informed all nuncios, internuncios, and apostolic delegates today that complete agreement had been reached with the Italian government. He convoked the entire diplomatic body accredited to the Holy See Thursday morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of making an official announcement.

The treaty settling the Roman question will be signed on Sunday at the Lateran palace. Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, will represent the pope. Premier Mussolini will sign on behalf of King Victor Emmanuel. The treaty will form the first part of a concordat regulating all future relations between the Holy See and the kingdom of Italy.

The terms of the settlement follow closely the Associated Press forecast. They provide for only a very small rectification of the present boundaries of the Apostolic palace. The pope has refused any enlargement of his territory to include the Villa Doria.

The new papal state will include a plot of ground on the southeastern side of the Vatican as far as the colonade of St. Peter. St. Peter's square and both collonades will be given to the Holy See, but the Italian government will be entrusted with their upkeep. The Vatican has the right to ask that St. Peter's square be closed to the public whenever it so desires.

The official name of the new papal territory will be the "Vatican City" or "The Vatican State." The pope will have the right to erect his own railway station, telegraph, telephone, postal, and wireless stations. He will be privileged to have an aviation field and will enjoy the right to coin money, issue banknotes, print postage stamps, and exercise other official prerogatives.

The treaty provides that all crimes committed on Vatican territory will be judged by the Italian courts according to Italian laws.

In consideration of the pope's renunciation of any important enlargement in his territory the Italian government authorized an increase in the amount of the indemnity paid to the Holy See to 2,000,000,000 lira (about $105,000,000). Half of this amount will be paid immediately in cash or bonds of the Italian government. The other half will be paid in yearly installments plus interest.

TILSON TO EXPEDITE THE CRUISER BILL IN HOUSE

Measure Will be Returned Today to the House as the First Business of the Day—It is Evident That the House is in No Mood to Brook Interference With the Immediate Passage of the Bill—If Opposition Develops Leader Tilson Will Endeavor to Get the Bill Up Under Special Rule.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Carrying only two senate amendments, the cruiser bill is to be returned tomorrow to the house as the first business of the day, with its immediate adoption in prospect.

Under an agreement reached with Speaker Longworth, Chairman Britten of the house naval committee, will submit a motion proposing the unanimous adoption of the senate amendments. Should an objection be made which Chairman Britten believes is doubtful, leaders in the house have prepared to bring in a special rule which will make the action in order without debate.

The house leaders are taking this method of reaching what they hope is final legislative action on the cruiser bill to avoid referring the measure to conference, which might again take it before the senate and result in the bill being caught in a last minute legislative jam.

Further plans to get construction started on the cruisers not later than July 1, are under way in the house. Chairman Britten said that if the house should adopt the amendments and the president sign the bill before the house has completed action on the annual naval supply bill this week, he would offer an amendment to provide $12,475,000 for beginning work on five cruisers and the aircraft carrier.

This would permit $2,000,000 to be spent the first year on each of the five cruisers and the carrier, with $275,000 to be spent at Mare Island, California, Pudget Sound, Washington, and New York navy yards for ship ways, and $200,000 for for the Washington navy yard gun factory.

Britten is confident that the measure will be adopted by the house tomorrow, and that it will be approved by the president. He predicted little, if any, opposition to the Borah and Reed amendment providing for the negotiation of treaties to define the wartime rights of neutrals at sea. He likewise felt there would be no opposition to the other amendment providing for the purchase by the navy from ship yards of materials not manufactured by the navy.

"The cruiser bill will be taken from the speaker's desk and immediately passed as amended by the senate," Britten declared. "No amendments to the bill will be permitted in order to prevent the measure going to conference which would automatically carry it into the senate chamber again where a filibuster might prevent its passage before March 4.

"It is evident that the house is in no mood to brook interference with the immediate passage of the bill. Every indication in the house portends an immediate desire for steel ship construction in the various ship building plants of the country. It is evident that the people back home have given their representatives in congress to understand that steel ships and not paper ones are demanded and needed by the nation.

"It is true that the president has indicated his opposition to the time limit in the bill. It is also true that he has indicated his desire for an immediate appropriation to begin building these ship sin the light of all that has transpired, I do not believe the president will look unfavorably upon the bill."

TILSON TO PUSH CRUISER BILL IN THE HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—The cruiser bill came back to the house today with such slight amendments of the senate that Floor Leader Tilson expects it to pass the house tomorrow. It is expected no opposition will be made to get it before congress, but if such opposition develops Tilson will endeavor to get it up under special rule.

CONTEST OVER M'CARTHY $7,000,000 WILL SETTLED

GREENWICH, Conn., Feb. 6—(AP)—Ten lawyers went into a huddle today and when they came out the contest over the $7,000,000 will of Mrs. Margaret Huntington Smith Gowen McCarthy, granddaughter of John Huntington, Standard Oil magnate, had been settled and the testament was promptly admitted to probate.

The settlement yielded rich returns to Miss Peggy Gowen, Mrs. McCarthy's 18-year-old daughter, and to Western Reserve university, the two parties appearing in opposition to the will with its bequest of residuary wills to Mrs. McCarthy's husband, Dr. James S. McCarthy, of Greenwich.

Miss Gowen, to whom the will had left $200,000, gets 30 1-2 per cent. of the residuary as well as giving her considerable more than a total of $1,000,000. The university, which got nothing by the will although it had benefited in a previous testament by Mrs. McCarthy, receives 14 1-2 per cent. of the residuary, or about $400,000.

Dr. McCarthy retains the remaining 55 per cent., estimated at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

SWEEPING CHANGE DESIRED IN PRESENT WOOL TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Sweeping changes in the present wool tariff and the rules applicable to it at the customs house were proposed to the house ways and means committee today by spokesmen for the American wool growers.

F. J. Hagenbarth, president of the National Wool Growers' association, the first of fifty witnesses to be called at the beginning of a three day hearing on this section of the tariff act, suggested a raise to between 36 and 40 cents a pound in the existing duty of 31 cents on the clean content of high grade wool in the grease.

The higher rate would apply only to finer or clothing wools or those classes known in the trade above 44s. For the grades under 44's, which are coarse wools going into the manufacture of plushes and upholstering, he proposed a duty of 24 cents a pound on clean content. Since all of these grades now come in at 31 cents, the latter rate woud be a reduction of seven cents a pound.

SENATE IGNORES HEFLIN'S TIRADE AGAINST CATHOLICS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—A silent senate listened today while Senator Heflin, of Alabama, vowed that he would carry to the country his fight to prevent the flying of a chaplain's flag above the American emblem on battleships during church services at sea.

His proposal to prevent the hoisting of this flag, which Heflin described as "the Roman cross," above the stars and stripes was rejected by the senate yesterday, 68 to 10, and the senator declared today he would soon introduce a bill to carry out its intent and demand hearings and senate action upon it.

The Alabaman defended the right of the Ku Klux Klan to exist, describing the aims of the organization as "noble" and asserted that the Klan did a good job in the last campaign because "it helped to turn the Raskobs out."

Waving back and forth a tiny American flag which contrasted with the proportions of his huge frame, Senator Heflin shouted that "public men are quaking in their boots" for fear of the influence of the Roman Catholic church. He warned democratic senators who voted against his proposal yesterday that they would have to face the issue in their states.

The speech of the Alabama senator was received in silence. At the end no senator undertook to reply.

LEJUNE TO RETIRE AS HEAD OF "SOLDIERS OF THE SEA"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Major General John A. Leune, who often has been side by side with American marines at the time new pages of history were being written on the battle front, is to retire as commandant of the "soldiers of the seas."

He announced today that on March 5, when his present term as commandant will expire, he proposed to relinquish his post and resume the duties of an officer with troops, probably as the commander of marine corps activities in the Pacific coast area.

The general said that although many of his friends had offered to interest themselves in securing his reappointment as commandant, that he had served eight years in that office and "would retire voluntarily and cheerfully." He has until January, 1931, to serve before retirement from the corps for age.

He declined to comment upon the appointment of his successor.

Secretary Wilbur immediately expressed regret at the termination of General Lejune's service as commandant, and said he owed him a "personal obligation for his excellent advice and fine cooperation in matters pertaining to the marine corps."

NOTHING NEW IN JACKSON CASE; REPORTERS REST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 6—Some dozen newspapermen representing metropolitan papers temporarily laid their pads aside, but within easy reach, today as new developments in the Jackson murder case abated. This sudden halt in the fevered activities of the past several days came as a well earned respite and gave the reporters an opportunity to relax until next Monday when they will definitely go into duty again at the grand jury hearing of the state's evidence against Deputy Sheriff Trenor A. Rice at Putnam. To just what new line of activity the investigators turned their efforts today was not ascertained.

Henry Ford, through his agent, William W. Taylor, of Sudbury, Mass., has purchased another ancient machine in this locality. The most recent purchase as announced today by Mr. Taylor is of an old Greene engine that was in use for many years in the valley mill of the E. A. Tracy company, woolen manufacturers at South Coventry. The plant has been idle for some five years. The engine is very similar to the one secured by Mr. Taylor at the G. J. Kirby plant in Mansfield Hollow a few weeks ago, but is of a later type and has a double eccentric action not found in many engines of this type. It was stated today that the Brown horizontal engine taken from the west mill of the Holland Silk company of this city last June will be used to furnish power for running all of the primitive type of Thomas A. Edison machinery in Mr. Ford's museum at Dearborn, Mich.

The non-support case of Lester Hicks in which his wife, Mrs. Sadie Hicks is complainant, was continued until Saturday, March 2, in police court this morning. Judge Frank H. Foss ordered the continuance upon the agreement of the accused that he would send his wife a weekly allowance of five dollars for her support.

Hicks pleaded not guilty when arraigned by Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher. Mrs. Hicks stated that she is the mother of two children by a previous marriage. The family removed to Manchester last March but he lost his job and has worked but little since. He left her on January 12 and she was compelled to work for a livelihood. Hicks said that he had left his wife to find work in New Haven. He affirmed that his wife threatened him with a revolver in Manchester, Mrs. Hicks denying this charge however. The woman and children have been living on Mansfield avenue here for some time and the expenses of transporting the furniture from Manchester to this city was paid by the town of Windham.

CORONER BILL WILL HOLD INQUEST AFTER JURY HEARING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 6—Coroner Arthur G. Bill said today that it is unlikely that his inquest in the case of W. E. Jackson of Willimantic will be held until after the grand jury has an opportunity to consider such evidence as will be placed before it. The matter is of interest inasmuch as inquests usually precede the calling of the grand jury, and usually precede the calling of the grand jury in special developments in the case today insofar as the coroner would be interested.

A marriage at the parsonage in Goodyear last evening by Rev. Charles A. Downs was that of Miss Marie M. Valencourt and John G. Aubrey, Jr. Both are residents of Goodyear and they are to make their home in that community.

The shrinkage of Killingly's grand list by approximately $250,000, means a loss in revenue from taxes to be collected in April and May. The loss will be, roughly, around $5,000. Though that loss is not a serious one, it is very considerable, men who have the burden of running the town will tell you. It may mean a difference of an additional mill in the tax rate, but that cannot be forecasted at this time and must await the preparation of the budget. The tax rate is to be fixed at the adjourned annual town meeting in March.

The vault installed in the new Brooklyn Savings bank building is equipped with a device for the protection of any person or persons who might accidentally be locked inside its steel walls and facing the possibility of remaining there a considerable time before being released. A circular aperature about an inch in diamater goes through the front of the vault just above the door casing. Ordinarily this aperature is blocked by a steel rod to the inside end of which is attached a control for releasing it. This rod cannot be removed from the outside. The arrangements serves several protective purposes. When opened by anyone locked in, it admits sufficient air to sustain life, allows of easy communication with those on the outside and permits of serving anyone imprisoned with water or liquid food through a rubber tube.

Recent newspaper articles relative to the new and smaller sized paper money to be issued by the government is bringing inquiries to banking institutions for samples, in exchange for other money, of course. None of the new money is to be had in Danielson. It is unlikely, it is said, that any will be until July or about that time.

The many friends of Luther Day, Jr., will be glad to hear of his recovery from a serious illness with pneumonia.

FUNERAL

Roland Guimont

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the funeral of Roland Guimont, 4-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Camille Guimont of the West Side, was held from the home and with a service at St. James' church conducted by Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Harry Bachaud, Eli Boucher, Edmond Fournier and Arthur Bourque. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Property owners here are to have the benefit of lower fire insurance rates, 10 per cent on buildings and 5 per cent on contents. These lower rates will apply on renewals of policy now in force or on new business. In these new and lower rates there is reflected the fine record of freedom from fires that Danielson has made for years and in improvements to reduce fire hazards that have been made during the past few years at the suggestion of insurance companies. Through the course of a year the aggregate saving to policy-holders in premiums paid will amount to a very considerable sum.

At noon today the body of Joseph Fogarty, who died in Hartford, was buried in St. James' cemetery. A high mass of requiem for Mr. Fogarty was sung in St. Agnes' church in Hartford this morning, with Rev. Francis Egan as the celebrant. There were many relatives and friends in attendance. The committal service at the grave was conducted by Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S. The bearers were Mark Burns of West Haven, Thomas Riley of Boston, John C. Burns of Webster, John Henry, John Johnson and Raymond McNally of Providence, all being relatives of the deceased. Martin T. Burns had charge of the local arrangements for the funeral.

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Billa Dermario was held from the home on Main street with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were George DeForest, Lucien Leire, Arthur Bernier, Anthony Cote, Joseph Buissiere and Leo Lasnier. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

While to date Killingly has escaped an item of expense that at times runs to several thousands dollars during a winter season—that of snow removal—there is an unexpectedly heavy expenditure, and has been for some time past, in caring for the poor. Some pitiable cases of want have come to the attention of the selectmen. Lack of employment is chiefly responsible. Care of deserving people who are in such unfortunate circumstances is running the outside poor costs to much higher than normal figures this winter, but it is a situation that must be met. Unfortunately, in addition to the deserving poor there are those not so deserving who are seeking aid. Investigation of all cases imposes a considerable task on the selectmen, but they do investigate and are proceeding with the work of caring for the poor with great care, seeking to be just and endeavoring to avoid being imposed upon.

Attorney E. L. Darbie, an officer of the Masonic Grand lodge of Connecticut, is in Hartford, attending the annual session. Howard Franklin also is in attendance from Danielson.

Overdue personal taxes continue to dribble in, those who are paying now handing over $3, instead of the $2 received from those persons who settled before the expiration of the time limit.

Rev. Ignatius Kost, pastor of St. Joseph's church in Dayville, will leave Thursday for a visit in Havana. He will be absent about two weeks. During his absence the parish will be in charge of Rev. Edward Shelley, M. S., formerly a curate here.

Motor vehicle operators are taking time by the forelock and sending in for new licenses to replace those that expire with the last day of this month. This early application allows them to escape the rush for licenses during the latter part of the month.

It is understood that there are several candidates for appointment as county investigator to succeed the late W. E. Jackson of Willimantic, some of them from this part of the county.

Rev. John R. Pratt, pastor of the Brooklyn Congregational church, remains critically ill.

Numbers of Mardi Gras parties are planned for next Tuesday, the eve of the Lenten season.

A meeting of members of McGregor, W. R. C., was held at their rooms this evening.

It is now assured that there will be no ice shortage in Danielson throughout this year. While more ice is to be cut, enough is already stored to insure against such a shortage as was experienced last year in the late summer and fall, when supplies had to be shipped in here.

Thursday of this week members of the Woman's auxiliary of St. Alban's church are to meet in the parish house; and on Friday afternoon the Ladies' Sewing society is to assemble there.

When members of the Westfield Men's club meet Friday evening Oscar Locke of Hopedale is to be the speaker.

James A. Merritt of Pawtucket was a visitor with friends here today.

Miss Harriet Stewart of Dayville remains seriously ill at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. The business she has conducted in Dayville for years is to be discontinued.

Pussy willows are being brought in from territory within a few miles of Danielson, despite the cold weather that has prevailed for the past fortnight.

The mail receptacle outside the postoffice is proving a convenience, especially during the hours of the night season when the office is closed.

PUTNAM

COUNCIL TABLES MOTION TO ADD TO FIRE DEPT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 6—Alderman Frank Vadnais, democrat, from Ward Three, uncorked a new drive to have two regular firemen stationed at the central fire station in Union square, at the February meeting of the common council, Tuesday evening, only to have his plan nipped in the bud and ordered laid on the table for future discussion. Alderman Vadnais is the only democratic member of the common council directing the affairs of a council committee, and his duties are confined to the management of city property. Within his jurisdiction is the fire station and the fire station was the subject of his debate in the council meeting last evening. Alderman Vadnais charged that the fire station is given little attention in regards to cleanliness, and is never in "shipshape" condition. "Yesterday we had to hire two men to clean rubbish out of the central station, and if we had two permanent firemen there, this would become a part of their work and the station and apparatus would always be in a presentable condition," said Mr. Vadnais in support of his policy. Upon the completion of his address, an array of arguments, none in favor of the suggestion, were fired at the alderman by the balance of the council. The mayor met the proposal with the old argument, "We can't afford it," while others felt little could be accomplished, with but one man on day duty, and another working a night shift. "Motors could be started promptly at the sound of an alarm, and by the time the call men reached the fire house the apparatus would be ready to respond," returned the democratic council leader. "Many of the repair expenses could be eliminated by the constant attention these men would devote to its upkeep, and it would be added protection to the taxpayers," said Mr. Vadnais, in further enlightening the council on the advantages of his proposal. Going further into the matter, Mr. Vadnais explained that the two men would increase the efficiency of the department and would tend to afford a reduction in the insurance rates of the city, which are at present maintained upon a high level.

Fire Chief Thurston was ready to substantiate the alderman's bill, but agreed with Mayor Richards and the council, that the city could ill afford the extra expense of $3,000 yearly, for the cost of the proposition, in the event it should be inaugurated. Alderman Ames moved that the bill be laid upon the table until the next meeting of the council, and his motion was hurriedly carried out.

In continuing the matter of fires, the governing body of the city next turned to a plan of awarding the members of the Hook and Ladder company extra compensation, because of the greater number of fires they are forced to attend, than are the members of the hose companies. The hook and ladder members must respond to all four stroke fire calls, in addition to the box alarms. During the year 1928, they attended 56 calls of this nature, in addition to answering 35 box alarms. Alderman Dean was in favor of a motion to award the extra compensation to these firemen, and the matter was referred to the fire committee to investigate and report at a later meeting.

If the fire committee reports favorably on the plan at the March session, a new bill will be ratified to charge the property owners for the expense the hook and ladder company incurs in extinguishing a chimney fire. "Chimney fires result from carelessness and dirty flues," said Chief Thurston, "and some plan should be adopted to compel the property owners to devote more attention to this matter. In England," said the chief, "if one has a chimney fire in his house the fire chief informs the chief of police and the chief of police immediately summons the property owner into court and he is fined." Whether or not the council would approve of Great Britain's plan of imposing the seriousness of a chimney fire upon the minds of the property owners or not, is not known. A committee was appointed to confer with neighboring municipalities to obtain their methods of treating this subject.

Chief Thurston presented the annual report of the fire department for the year ending Dec. 31, 1928. The damage caused by fire during the past year was $39,410, of which property owners were reimbursed by insurance companies to the extent of $37,692.48, leaving an actual net loss of $1,718.21. The gross loss by fire this year is by far greater than that of any recent year, excepting in 1923, when the Donahue block was leveled to the ground by flames. The loss this year amounted to $5.17 per capita, compared to the loss of 1927, which was $1.44 per capita. Mr. Thurston also compared the loss of 1924, which was but 49 cents per capita. The chief engineer of the department recommended the installation of an additional supply of hydrants and to outline the necessity, he referred to the Kinney block fire of April 28, when hundreds of feet of hose had to be laid in an effort to carry water to the blazing building. The fire also gained considerable headway because of this handicap, according to the chief. Chief Thurston also recommended that the council award extra compensation to the members of the hook and ladder company, for their work in answering the four stroke calls.

The report of the superintendent of the fire alarm system was brief and comprehensive. Supt. Charles A. Thayer reported the system is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, in first class condition. His only recommendation was for the installation of four of the new quick-action alarm boxes, during the forthcoming year.

The only mention given to the water department, Tuesday, was the report of the board of water commissioners. The commission presented one of the most complete and comprehensive statements of condition ever compiled, and it was accepted. The department is now on a flourishing basis. The estimated population drawing water from the city supply is about 7,000, according to the commission. Mayor Richards praised the commissioners for their work to date in the water department and was highly pleased with the detailed statement.

The annual report of the health department was tendered by Officer Peter Gardner, and it showed an increase of communicable diseases existing during the year 1928, over those of the preceding year. The increased amount of sickness present was due to the circumstances which existed throughout the country. The health officer paid tribute to the "Clean-up" week sponsored annually in the spring months by the chamber of commerce, as an aid to freeing the city from the source and breeding of disease. He also recommended that the council take immediate action in appointing a milk inspection commission, which would examine the milk supply monthly. This matter will be considered during the coming month.

The monthly report of the captain of police showed there had been 15 arrests during the month of January, with the total amount of fines and costs netted the city to be $155.75.

Fireman Edward Benoit, upon a motion from Alderman Dean, ratified by the council, was relieved of his position as a driver of the Pumper No. 1, at the Central fire station, and placed in his stead was Fireman John Ryan. This was done because of Fireman Benoit's inability to be present at fires. Fireman Ryan will assume his new duties at once. He will also take up his residence at the Central fire station. The motion received the endorsement of Chief Thurston.

"Old Charley," the oldest employe of the city of Putnam, does not owe the city a cent, and since his successor has taken over his post, the council is going to favor him with a death sentence in recognition of his valuable services rendered the city during the last score of years, in the shafts of the city dump cart. The council recently acquired a new pair of horses. "Jim," who is Charley's pal, and who for the past 15 years has shared his burdens, will in the spring be sold to another master, to do light harness work, but Charley must go. The cost of re-equipping the highway department was announced as being $889.35, including the purchase of the horses.

Clinton S. Andem, Putnam florist, in a letter to the council asked that the city take steps to improve the ghastly condition of Farrows street, one of the most heavily patronized streets in the south end of the city, and yet in the worst condition of all. For many years Mr. Andem has made efforts to have the entire length of Farrows street oiled and graveled, so as to eliminate the eyesore it is, and the danger one driver subjects himself to in traversing it. Mr. Andem has offered the gravel to accomplish the rejuvenation of the street to the city free of charge, an item which would be of considerable expense in the event the city should have to furnish it. Farrows street may suitably be termed a "cowpath" because of its ruts, caused by the freezing of the ground, and is in poor condition. Alderman Migneault, chairman of the highway committee, stated that Mr. Andem was in error when he insinuated that the street is an entire mass of ruts, since a stretch of considerable length is in good condition and this portion happens to be on the frontage of the Andem greenhouses. Yet in view of the statement of the head of the street department, the council can hardly deny the fact that the present condition of the street is one of the greatest highway drawbacks existing and has been so for years, excepting for a short distance at the southernmost end, which received oiling and attention annually.

Judge M. H. Geissler, of the city court and prominent Putnam lawyer, was the speaker at the Putnam Rotary club this noon at the Putnam Inn. The sixth object of Rotary, "International Peace," was the subject of Mr. Geissler's address. The Kellogg peace pact, a document ratified by many of the European, North and South American countries, a few months ago, and an instrument to preserve peace among the nations was the subject discussed and explained by the judge. Mr. Geissler has studied the peace pact as viewed by the foremost European and American statesmen and in conveying his message to the Rotarians, spoke from this angle.

Visitors at today's luncheon were Thomas Hope, Thomas Seaton and Henry Dubuc, of Danielson, and Arthur Kay and Ralph Hubbard of Webster.

At the Second Congregational church Tuesday evening, there will be an illustrated talk on Sea Indians of the Midnight Sun, by L. O. Armstrong. It is sanctioned by the Rotarians and is given partly under their auspices. No charge will be made for admission and a cordial welcome is extended to all to be present.

Of interest to residents of the 28th senatorial district, is the appointment of Walter C. Brown, senator from the 28th, of which Putnam is a part, to the position of industrial investigator, attached to the state department of labor. Mr. Brown will devote his interests to factory labor conditions. His appointment was conferred upon him by Commissioner of the Labor Department Harry E. MacKensie.

George Thompson, another Knight of the Highway, has joined the host of members of this nation-wide organization, now spending the winter months at the county jail in Brooklyn. Thompson entrained for the county institution this morning following his plea of guilty to a charge of intoxication, and the imposition of a 30-day sentence by Judge M. H. Geissler. Thompson was arrested by Patrolman Sponcey of the local police, for the second time within a month. He gave his residence as being in Woonsocket, R. I.

FUNERAL

Deniege Touchette

Funeral services were held this morning at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock, for Deniege Touchette, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Origene Touchette of Powhatton street, who died Monday. A requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

OBITUARY

Louis Benoit

Louis Benoit, father of Judge Henry N. Benoit and Frank Benoit of this city, died at his home in New York city late Tuesday afternoon at the age of 81 years. Mr. Benoit prior to 1927 had made Putnam his residence for many years. The body of the former Putnam resident, it is thought will be escorted to Putnam where burial will take place. Both Judge Benoit and his brother are in New York, they leaving in response to a message received Monday notifying them of the serious condition of their father. They reached his bedside before his death.

The angrier a man becomes the sweeter he grows, Prof. Edward P. Cathcart of Glasgow university told an audienece at Aberdeen. "When a man is angry," Professor Cathcart said, "extra sugar is generated in his body. 'Sweet-tempered' is therefore a misnomer. Sugar must exist in the blood, and it is probably associated with muscle work. When muscles work it is, so far as we know, at the expense of sugar. When people are in a temper, and are roused to the fighting pitch an increased amount of blood sugar is generated to prepare them for the fray."

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles.

Nor does cutting remove the cause. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

JEWETT CITY

VERNON MALBOURNE STRUCK BY CAR EARLY WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 6—Vernon Malbourne, 50, was taken to Backus hospital, Norwich, in the ambulance Wednesday afternoon as the result of an accident. He is employed in Ashland Cotton Co. mill and boards in the home of the Winters family in Griswold. At 6 o'clock Wednesday morning he was standing by the side of the road near the Voluntown-Griswold line, waiting for a machine, in which he rides to Jewett City to work. Joseph Culver, a fireman in the Glasgo Finishing Co. mill, was driving to his work and struck Mr. Malbourne, knocking him against the wall. Culver carried the man to Dr. H. T. Thurber's office in Voluntown, where two bad scalp wounds and one on the nose required several stitches taken. Later Mrs. P. W. Chase, R. N., the Ashland corporation nurse, was summoned and at the man's request, also of Mrs. Winters, he was removed to the hospital, where he can receive proper care, although he is not considered seriously injured.

WITH 6,000 TONS STORED LOCAL ICEMEN ELATED

The borough of Jewett City is breathing easy now, for at 2.21 Wednesday afternoon the last 12-inch cake, weighing over 200 pounds, slid into the last of the five big Dorrville ice houses. The harvest completed today by both Shea Bros. and Elphige Chenette, in the aggregate, is estimated at 6,000 tons. Mr. Chenette has also filled his houses at Blissville and at Stafford Springs. Barring one morning when snow fell for five hours, the weather has been fine for cutting, yet the big cakes are packed in the houses with less labor if the mercury is below freezing.

All the thin ice harvested a year ago had been used in mid-summer last year and the big houses were empty. A check-up on the harvests of other years shows that six years ago the cut was 12 to 14 inches. That year the harvest was in and the houses closed at Christmas. The fields from which the ice had been taken, froze over again 15 inches thick. Since then it has been the problem each year, Will an ice harvest be secured?

A Manchester, N. H., paper received Wednesday, records the death of Mrs. Joseph Fecteau, 61. A son Thomas survives her, residing in Jewett City.

Friends Wednesday were greeting Michael Barnett, son of John Barnett, a lifelong resident of Jewett City. He is from New Haven, a patrolman in the Elm City's police department, one of the finest in the state.

Public Demands 375,000 Jars Vicks Every 24 Hours

In the present epidemic, as in 1918, Vicks VapoRub is proving its usefulness in millions of homes. In spite of vastly increased capacity, it is again necessary to run the laboratories all night long, as the public now demands over 375,000 jars every 24 hours.

A peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestive system. Too much "dosing" especially in the case of children still further disturbs the digestion, and should be avoided except on advice of a physician.

Vicks is especially valuable because it is applied externally and so can be used freely with no risk of upsetting a delicate digestion. It is just rubbed on the throat and chest.

"I sure was right—I lit a Lucky"

"So many people have made a fuss over me because in rowing back to the 'America,' after we had picked up the 'Florida' survivors, I was smoking a Lucky Strike. I can't see why there should be any excitement about this—it was the natural thing for me to do. Before we started out from the 'America' I made sure that my pack of Luckies was with me—I wanted the comfort and pleasure of Luckies no matter what happened. I sure was right. I'll have to admit that after we picked up the 'Florida' crew and started back, my nerves were completely let down. So I did the thing I always do at such times—I lit a Lucky. As long as I live, I'll never get another kick as I did from the sweet old toasted flavor of that Lucky as we were tossing about on the old Atlantic. I'm a hundred percenter when it comes to 'reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.' I lay off the things that would make me flabby and light up a Lucky instead. There's too much action going on in my life to have me moving around with a lot of excess weight which I don't need. There's another thing about Luckies. The toasting process, in removing the impurities, is a blessing to us who follow the sea. It prevents throat irritation which is a constant nuisance to those who are regularly exposed to salt air."

GREATER SUBMARINE SAFETY.

One of the direct developments of the sinking of the S-4 off Provincetown last winter was the concentration of inventors on safety devices for the better protection of crews of such vessels. Out of the many which have been suggested several have been considered worth trying out. These concern the rescue of the trapped men and the raising of the helpless vessel.

When the S-4, following reconstruction, was sent to the bottom of the new harbor at Block Island it was for the purpose of testing the so-called pad-eyes which had been built into it that chains attached to pontoons might be quickly fastened to the underwater boat. These worked successfully. It was possible for the divers to locate them readily and they were adequate to stand the strain that was placed upon them in lifting the sub. Further tests showed the eyes to be sufficient to stand a much greater strain than they were subjected to.

This week, in warmer water off Florida, a test has been made of the devices which permit men on a submarine to leave the vessel and come to the surface of the water. This was accomplished by means of a special door from which the men in the submarine on the bottom of the ocean stepped onto its deck and from there rose to the surface, a distance of 40 feet, through the protection given by what is referred to as a mechanical lung. This device makes it possible for a person to remain in the water 30 minutes by breathing through the lung which resembles to a certain extent a gas mask. Not only did the men come to the surface but they also returned and entered the S-4 while it was resting on the bottom.

This doesn't mean the completion of the tests regarding safety devices but it demonstrates that when submarines are equipped with such devices there will be a highly important contribution to the safety of those who operate such vessels, and it seems probable that had the S-4 been so equipped at the time it was sunk off Cape Cod, all those who were alive would have been able to make their escape. That is the aim of the present tests and it is gratifying that such good results have already been obtained.

AVIATION RECORDS.

Developments in aviation have been so successful that it is not surprising that new records are being established almost every day. Flying is surrounded by better conditions, better engines, better machines to such an extent that it would be unusual if there were not equally successful attacks made upon the records.

In his flights from the Pacific to the Atlantic Captain Frank M. Hawks has lowered the record made by Arthur Goebel. A reduction of 36 minutes between coasts doesn't mean a great deal but when we stop to realize that Captain Hawks was flying through bad weather, rain, fog and snow and doing this at the rate of 150 miles an hour it becomes apparent that it was some accomplishment under those conditions that he was able to equal the Goebel record to say nothing of reducing it.

But the Hawks record, like the Goebel record, will probably be beaten in a short time. We see it being done in regard to endurance tests, in regard to speed and it is inevitable that it should be done on the non-stop flight across the continent. There is a race against time involved that cannot fail to whet the interest and to stir to action those aviators who are skilled and seeking such notoriety.

Such tests of men and machine are undertaken under what must be regarded as offering as great a degree of safety as could be expected. They are made over land so that in case of trouble it would be possible for the flier to bring his plane to earth without losing his life, whereas if it should be a flight over water the chances would be decidedly against him, as has been repeatedly demonstrated by those who have tried to cross the Atlantic.

There's no telling who the aviator will be that will lower the Hawks' record. Goebel is anxious to make a try at it and others will probably be encouraged to attempt to gain such a distinction. It is certain to be accomplished by some one and at no very distant day for aviation is at such a stage today that it is not going to permit records to remain stationary for any great length of time.

RECLAMATION WORK.

Pleas for the reclamation of waste lands have been frequently placed before the federal government and there are times when such action has been urged upon state governments. The purpose has been to improve these useless areas and make them fit for cultivation so that people could live upon them and produce profitable crops.

How fully justified certain of these pleas have been is interestingly presented in a report made by Dr. Ellwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, in which he states that 600,000 people live on the reclamation projects that dot the thousand mile zone of scanty and uncertain rainfall that once separated the humid east from the cities and farms of the Pacific coast. Irrigation operations have been carried on extensively over a period of years with the result that on these projects there are now 685 schools and 385 churches. The crops grown in [illegible] $120,000,000 which is pointed out as almost sufficient to pay off in a single year the entire indebtedness of the projects to the government amounting to $166,000,000.

There cannot be a failure to applaud this reclamation work when it is shown that in a period of 25 years there has developed in one irrigation district a town which paid in railroad freight charges the sum of $900,000 last year where before reclamation work was undertaken there was no other livestock than jack rabbits and coyotes.

This shows that the work was not only justified but that the reclamation bureau should get every possible encouragement to continue its efforts. It can be readily understood that but for such attention what is now a flourishing section would have been the wasteland of the distant past. As it is it has been brought to a condition that makes it possible to compete with other sections and under such conditions there is bound to be interest on the part of individuals in developing its possibilities.

It isn't always irrigation that is required to reclaim territory. Frequently it is the case that there is too much water. But whatever the nature of the land the experiences in reclamation invariably show that what has long been waste can be converted by proper efforts into worthwhile and paying property.

GREAT BRITAIN'S FAULT.

According to the London Chronicle it was the action of the British representatives at Geneva when the question of further limitation of armament was under consideration that was responsible for the cruiser construction that has just been voted in congress.

There is no escaping the fact that had that conference resulted in the placing of new limitations upon the cruisers and other auxiliary war vessels there would have been a different situation internationally. We were in a position where cruiser construction has been temporarily delayed in order to see what the conference would do. When it failed to do anything, and that failure was to a large degree due to the British attitude, it was inevitable that this country would proceed to construct more cruisers to properly protect its many interests scattered throughout the world.

It is to be realized, however, that cruiser construction is being undertaken for defense purposes. We need new vessels to replace those which are obsolete or fast becoming so. We are well within our quota when we set out to build those being authorized. Even British sentiment realizes that we are not encouraging cruiser competition, and yet even though we are not starting or participating in a warship construction race it is perfectly evident that had the British attitude at Geneva been in conformity with the viewpoint of the American representatives there would have been in existence today an understanding which would have changed the situation relative to cruisers and other auxiliary warcraft. It was the hope when the conference was called that it would accomplish that very thing through further limitation. Thus there is ground for the Chronicle's claim.

UNDESIRABLE ALIENS.

Further legislation to facilitate the deportation of aliens who have been found to be undesirable is being sought at this session of congress. Whether there will be time to act upon it in the less than a month remaining for the present congress is a question.

Under this measure aliens who have participated in the white slave trade, those who have had any part in connection with the illicit traffic in narcotics, those aiding other aliens to enter this country unlawfully, those entering against the laws of the country and those twice convicted of offenses carrying a sentence of a year's imprisonment would be subject to deportation upon warrant of the secretary of labor following conviction in a court of record.

The purpose of the bill is apparently to reach a class of residents who are not regarded as good citizens because of the manner in which they are defying the laws of the country, either at the time of entrance or through subsequent acts while enjoying the privileges and opportunities provided here.

Deportations are being accomplished every year under existing law but they involve a long process and much expense. Under the proposed bill new offences with deportation as one of the penalties are set forth in the belief that such protection ought to be afforded the country. It is because of the extensive participation in such offenses on the part of aliens that their removal from the country is advocated.

WHEN GHOSTS MEET GHOST.

"What do you think of a ghost?" began Mr. Queerie.

"Nothing," interrupted Mr. Bobble. "Don't believe in ghosts, not even alongside a graveyard in the dark of the moon."

"What do you think of a ghost?" repeated Mr. Queerie, "setting out to wallop another ghost?"

"Go on," said Mr. Bobble. "I'll bite."

"You remember young Rapson? He's a ghost—".

"The poor young fellow," said Mr. Bobble. "And he looked as strong as a bull."

"He is," said Mr. Queerie. "He's ghost for Beans Bunney, the prizefighter."

"Eh?"

"A ghost," explained Mr. Queerie, "is a person who writes articles which a celebrity publishes under his own name. Bunny gets a lot of publicity out of long words. Rapson excavates the words from Webster and strings them together."

"I see," said Mr. Bobble. "Something like the way Miss Remwood writes the snappy letters you sign your name to."

"The principle's entirely different," said Mr. Queerie, a trifle stiffly. "However, it was a good job for Rapson, and he did himself proud. He always referred to the referee as the arbiter, while the gong was the tocsin and the ring was the gladiatorial arena."

"Migolly!" responded Mr. Bobble.

"Caveman Casey, the challenger," continued Mr. Queerie, "was always mentioned as the troglodyte."

"Sounds libelous," observed Mr. Bobble.

"Troglodyte's just a longer way of saying caveman. Now the challenger," said Mr. Queerie, "thought nothing of ten rounds in the ring, but in a literary way he couldn't go more than two syllables. So the articles 'By Caveman Casey' featured short, rugged, Saxon words like sock, slam, clout and wallop. Also, they frequently referred to the Caveman's belief that he could knock Bunney out of the ring."

"Wouldn't that create ill feeling?" asked Mr. Bobble.

"Dear me, no," said Mr. Queerie; "it was part of the game. Readers expected the Caveman to be tough and Bunney to be bookish. So Rapson hammered out long words and Casey's ghost supplied the shorter and uglier ones."

"Casey had a ghost, too?"

"'Course he did," said Mr. Queerie. "Everything was friendly until one day Rapson wrote something about people getting deafened by Casey's 'noisome tintinnabulation.' Next day the 'By Casey' article accused Bunney of 'tripping over his own sesquipedalianism' in not saying noisy when he meant noisy. Rapson didn't care what was said about his boss, but a criticism of the article was a criticism of himself, and he got mad as a wet hen, especially as he had to look up sesquipedalianism in the dictionary."

"Who wouldn't?" asked Mr. Bobble.

"Means long-wordiness," volunteered Mr. Queerie. "So Rapson went around with the intention of socking Caveman Casey's ghost for a row of polysyllables. In the anteroom of the Caveman's suite of offices a pretty girl looked up from her typewriter. 'Who writes Casey's articles?' demanded Rapson. 'Why do you want to know?' 'I want to sock him one!' answered Rapson, 'he said I tripped over my quadrupedalianism.' 'You mean sesquipedalianism,' said the girl. 'How do you know?' he blazed. 'I wrote it,' she flared back."

"Ah," said Mr. Bobble. "Rapson lost right there!"

"True," affirmed Mr. Queerie. "Rapson was licked from the tocsin. He had no chance of dodging the matrimonial arena. The two ghosts were made one yesterday, with Caveman Casey acting as best man."

"And was he?"

"Beyond a doubt," said Mr. Queerie; "he'd proved it the day before by knocking Bunney out of the ring."—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Giving due credit to an ancient wisecracker, Dr. James M. Doran might well murmur to himself these days that mighty oaks from small acorns grow. He knows. He's the chap whose casual remark to a house sub-committee back in mid-November let loose all this fuss and flurry about prohibition enforcement appropriations.

And in that affair, the most notable aspect of the last session of the seventieth congress, are wrapped up political consequences so far-reaching as to defy complete analysis.

What Dr. Doran, as Uncle Sam's prohibition enforcement commissioner, was telling the sub-committee was that he intended to keep federal enforcement up to the standards of the last three years despite an actual and prospective budget cut of $455,000 available funds.

The slash had been and would be absorbed in the prohibition overhead and not translated into a field force reduction, he said.

Said It Was Close.

"But it is running us mighty close," Doran added.

Representative Hardy of Colorado wanted the "brass tacks" of the situation.

"Will not that be just scratching the surface of this enforcement business?"

"If congress wants to embark in the police business it will take $500,000,000 and a system of United States courts covering the land," Doran replied.

There you are; just one 22-word sentence in 100 close printed pages of Doran testimony. Yet that sentence — half of it, rather, the $500,000,000 half—has played hob in and out of congress. It has shattered not only partisan political lines, but the usual wet and dry batting order "on the hill."

Senate Votes Quickly.

It led the senate to vote without roll call a $300,000,000 enforcement appropriation and the house promptly set to work to rebuke the senate and undo its work.

Returning to the charge, the senate voted two-to-one a $24,000,000 similar item over protest of Secretary Mellon. House members roared indignation at the senate over being twice called upon to act as legislative balance wheel and perhaps incur personal political risks thereby.

In dry circles outside congress there also was friction. Some drys viewed the senate as a Greek bearing gifts. And in it all, what Doran actually had said was almost forgotten. There was little reference to his "police business" phrase or the nation-wide federal court system requirement he coupled with the $300,000,000 figure. Such is prohibition in politics.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Governors From Lebanon

Mr. Editor, Reading today's paper, I came to questions, What do you know about eastern Connecticut? Excuse me but I think there is very little known about it.

Governors of Connecticut, natives of Lebanon, are five in number: Gov. Jonathan Trumbull, from 1769 to 1784; Governor Frederick C. Burrows, in submit-1798 to 1809; Gov. Clark Bissell, from 1847 to 1849; Gov. Joseph Trumbull, from 1849 to 1850; Gov. William A. Buckingham, from 1858 to 1866, Civil war governor. My information came from the book Early Lebanon, an historical address delivered in Lebanon, Conn., on the national centennial, July 4, 1876, by Rev. Orlo D. Hine, pastor of the First Congregational church at that time.

YOUR HEALTH

How Tooth Decay Affects Heart and Kidneys

(By William T. Easton, D. D. S., Akron, Ohio.)

The importance of normal teeth, as a factor in maintaining good health, should be of interest not only to the medical and dental professions but to the layman as well.

Much can be accomplished in the preservation of the teeth by careful brushing, which, if properly done, not only retards decay of the teeth, but also has a beneficial effect upon the gums. To keep the teeth perfectly clean is, no doubt, impossible, but an honest effort can be made and the net results will be in direct proportion to the time expended and the intelligence used in the procedure.

In order to realize more fully the importance of dental care, let us briefly consider what takes place in the progress of decay. A small particle of food debris, infested with decay-producing germs or micro-organisms becomes enveloped as a tiny speck on the enamel of the tooth. The micro-organism in its development produces a concentrated acid, which in turn dissolves the enamel. After the enamel is broken down by the chemical action of the acid, the dentine or softer structure of the tooth is easily destroyed by further action of the bacteria.

In this way the decay continues until the nerve and tissues within the tooth are changed to an infected and putrescent mass, which when carried through the end of the root, will result in an infected area within the bone. The infection is then readily carried by the blood stream to more remote and vital parts of the body resulting in many serious diseases.

The part the teeth play in the cause of disease is interesting for the reason that it has been shown that the same kind of bacteria infecting the bone and tissue at the root ends of non-vital or dead teeth are often found to be harbored by the parts affected. The seriousness of the condition is apparent since we know that the inflamation caused by the micro-organism or its poisons may be followed by tissue change resulting in permanent damage to the organs involved. In rheumatism, irregularities of the heart, lesion of the kidneys, etc., the teeth may be an agent in the cause of these diseases by acting as conduits through which the toxins and bacteria pass into the blood stream, being carried to remote parts of the body and deposited in tissues that invite the activity of the pus-producer by furnishing soil favorable to its continued development.

It is well to remember that conditions of this nature affecting the delicate structures of the joints and muscles, kidneys and heart, are more easily prevented than cured and since it is obvious that diseased teeth play a part in the cause of these afflictions, it behooves us to pause and reflect, and, in so doing, conclude that the old axiom is worthy of consideration—"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

YOUR INCOME TAX

A taxpayer, though unmarried, who supports in his home on or more relatives over whom he exercises family control, is the head of a family and is entitled to the same exemptions allowed a married person, $3,500. Also, he may claim $400 for each person dependent upon him for chief support if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. Such dependent need not be a relative of the taxpayer nor a member of his household. The term "mentally or physically defective" includes not only cripples and those mentally defective, but persons in ill health and the aged. For example, if an unmarried son supports in his home an aged mother, he is entitled to an exemption of $3,500, plus the $400 credit for a dependent, a total of $3,900. If, from choice, the mother lives in another city, the son, although her chief support, would be entitled only to the $3,500 exemption, plus the $400 credit. The mother not living with him, he is not considered the head of a family. The $400 credit does not apply to the wife or husband of a taxpayer, although one may be totally dependent upon the other.

An exemption as the head of the family can be claimed by only one member of a household.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Danny Meadow Mouse Suspects

By Thornton W. Burgess

When everything seems most auspicious
'Tis well to be a bit suspicious.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse and Nanny Meadow Mouse were fat. Yes, sir, they were fat. Nanny insisted that Danny was getting roly poly. Danny indignantly denied it, but there was no denying the fact that his little gray coat was a tight fit. Other little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest might be hungry, but Danny and Nanny had plenty to eat.

To begin with, they had been very industrious all through the fall and they had laid away a supply of food for use when other food could not be obtained. But so far there had been no difficulty in obtaining other food. They liked the snow which covered the Green Meadows. The deeper it was the better they liked it. It put an end to a lot of their worries. You see, they felt very safe down there under the snow. All they had to do was to make little tunnels close to the ground and then they could go and come as they pleased without running the risk of being seen by sharp-eyed enemies.

Then whenever they felt like going up to the surface, all they had to do was to climb some stout weed, making a little hole up the side of it as they climbed. When they reached the surface of the snow, they were where they could get all the weed seeds they wanted. You know, certain weeds keep their seeds all winter, or at least well into the winter. With no snow on the ground, the seeds of these tall weeds are hard for a Meadow Mouse to get. But when the snow is deep, all he has to do is to help himself to those seeds right from the surface of the snow. It was on this account that Danny and Nanny were so fat.

Now, dont get the idea that Danny and Nanny were perfectly safe. None of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows is ever wholy safe. When Danny and Nanny were hidden from the sharp eyes of Reddy Fox and Old Man Coyote, the sharp ears of these two could sometimes hear them down under the snow. Then there would be furious digging on the part of Reddy Fox and Old Many Coyote. So Danny and Nanny had to be sure that there were always little tunnels to dodge aside in and of course when they ventured to the surface of the snow, there was always danger that Roughleg the Hawk by day and Hooty the Owl by night, might see them. But on the whole they were safer and more comfortable than at any other time of year.

It happened that one day Danny climbed up to the surface. He climbed up a big weed and when he reached the surface he was well hidden by that weed. Of course, he was very careful. He just poked enough of his head above the surface for a look around, to be sure that no enemy was watching for him. Then very cautiously he crept out. Now, only a little way from him was a place where Reddy Fox had dug in the snow, trying to catch another Meadow Mouse. Danny looked over at this place and chuckled as he saw that another Meadow Mouse was over in that very place. That meant that Reddy had not caught him and he had returned after Reddy had left.

But even as Danny watched, Roughleg the Hawk shot down and that Meadow Mouse was caught. Danny dodged back out of sight. When he at last ventured to peep out again, Roughleg was back on the lone tree which was his watch tower. Thinking of what had happened, Danny forgot that he had come up to get something to eat. For a long time he watched Roughleg. At last Roughleg flew and once more he swooped down at one of the places Reddy Fox had been digging in the snow. For the first time, Danny began to suspect that Roughleg was working with a plan.

"I do believe," said Danny to himself, "that old Roughleg has discovered that Reddy Fox digs only where there are Meadow Mice, and so he is watching the places where Reddy digs. I must tell Nanny and we'll keep away from those places."

(Copyright, 1929, by T. W. Burgess)

The next story: "Nanny is Wiser Than Danny."

Wrong food causes probably half of the present-day diseases, says Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the United States bureau of home economics.

Insists His New Discovery Opens Up Catarrh Stuffed Nostrils in Three Minutes

Advises All Catarrh Victims to Throw Away Stomach Medicines. End Loathesome Catarrh with Opex and Get Rid of Disgusting Mucus.

Ask Lee & Osgood

Catarrh, one of the most loathesome of diseases, is caused by germs—wicked, vicious, persistent pests that multiply rapidly and by digging into and devouring the tender membrane cause soreness, swelling, inflammation and mucous discharges.

A few years ago, Catarrh was considered incurable, because no one was clever enough to get together a formula that would spread over the membranes of the nasal tract a purifying substance in which catarrh germs could not exist.

But Opex changed all that and now all you have to do to get rid of catarrh is to spray on Opex and send the germs to eternity.

Just note the picture showing how Opex puts catarrh out of business. See the steam-like smoke going in one nostril and out of the other.

When you use Opex you see the healing, purifying vapor as fine as smoke coming thru the nostrils—and it will come thru no matter how stuffed up they are.

That's the way to end catarrh and to lessen those annoying, ringing, buzzing noises in the ears. Many people say it is the only way.

The price of a bottle of Opex that will last two months is $1.00—it is easily worth one hundred dollars to any man or woman who wants clean healthy nostrils free from disgusting mucous.

Opex will end the most stubborn case of catarrh in a few days, because it soothes and heals the sore, inflamed membranes, reduces the swelling and purifies the entire nasal tract.

And remember this—the toughest old head colds are knocked out in a few hours with Opex—it's the magic treatment of science, for with this new discovery you can reach the entire respiratory tract—right down to the bottom of the lungs.

Opex is sold by Lee & Osgood, with the distinct understanding that if you are not satisfied at the end of 30 days your money will be gladly returned. Opex is delightful to use because of its wholesome fragrance. Inhale as you spray if you want to reach the bottom of the lungs—you can also spray that sore throat with purifying Opex.

THAMES VALLEY COUNCIL U. C. T. HOLDS SMOKER AT WAUREGAN HOTEL

Two highly interesting and instructive talks on Teamwork in Business featured the smoker held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel, under the auspices of the trade relations committee of Thames Valley council, No. 309, United Commercial Travelers of America. The speakers were John T. Calloway, of Boston, past counselor of the U. C. T. of A., and also a member of the trade relations committee of the Grand Council of New England, U. C. T. of A., and George E. Hunt of Boston, past supreme counselor of the U. C. T. of A. The smoker was attended by about 200 members and business men of New London county. Everett N. Lyons of New London, member of the grand executive committee, introduced the speakers.

Teamwork in business is another way of talking about co-operation, said Mr. Calloway, the first speaker of the evening. In order to fight the chain stores the independent stores must co-operate. I don't believe that the chain stores will eliminate the independent stores. The independent stores can co-operate in many ways. They can't do it, if they continue to keep their slick tricks. If you think the chain stores are in the price cutting business go to their meetings. They are trying to get away from price cutting.

The chain store man has to be square, declared the speaker. An auditor is sent around to the stores to check up on the cash and stocks. I don't see why the independent stores can't get together. The chain stores have spent thousands of dollars in experimentation work. You can benefit by these experimentations by walking to one of their stores and looking it over. The difference in operating the chain and independent stores is very little. Many of the independent stores are knocking the chain stores about their prices. As a result the customers go down to the chain stores and buy.

The inventory in the chain stores, continued Mr. Calloway, is about 100 per cent. salable goods. There is about 75 per cent. in the independent stores. They have a large quantity, anywhere from 10 to 25 per cent. of goods on the shelves that do not sell. One reason why the owners have such a large amount of dead stock is because they listen to glib tongued salesmen. Be as wise as the chain stores. Buy from reliable houses.

There are two things wrong with the independent store owners. One is their failure to cooperate with other independent stores. The second is unwise buying, concluded the speaker.

Mr. Hunt, the second speaker, in opening his remarks said that he has been a member of the U. C. T. for more than 38 years and wanted to tell the audience something about what it is, why it was conceived and what it is endeavoring to do. He explained how, 40 years ago, eight commercial travelers got together and formed the organization, at Columbus, Ohio. The organization grew steadily and various benefits were created, such as the widow and orphan fund. The organization paid out over $100,000 last year, he said, to widows and orphans of members of the organization.

The organization gives you an accident benefit, said Mr. Hunt, and it gives you a chance to meet with those who have the same problems as you have. We are trying to help our members solve their problems. I want to help the man who has a problem that is bothering him. If you can't get the best out of the business, go to a friend and confide in him. The best fraternal spirit is helping the fellow who is unfortunate and can not help himself.

In speaking of store owners, Mr. Hunt said, If you succeed you've got to know your business. I wonder how many men are failures because they do not consult their banks. There would be fewer failures of merchants if they knew how they stood every year. Take account of your business and stock and go to the bank and confide in them. What does that mean?? It means that we've got to help each other.

We believe in making people better, better men and citizens. Don't get discouraged. If you do, you are doomed. Don't say you can't accomplish a thing. You can.

I believe that we must change our method of living. We are trying to keep up with our neighbors. There are many families in which the lady of the house is spending more than the husband is making. You can never get ahead unless you confide in your partner and believe in those with whom we do business. Give us your troubles, your problems and we will do the best we can.

The speakers were given a rising vote of thanks.

Attractive and appropriate decorations are being arranged by a committee headed by Mr. Walter Campbell as chairman.

The securing of General Malone, as a speaker fulfills part of a new plan adopted by the chamber this year through the recommendations of the meetings' committee of which Ernest O. Rodier was the chairman. Briefly, this plan provided for fewer meetings and more outstanding speakers. The patriotic dinner is the second meeting in the series.

The officers and directors of the chamber have extended invitations to many officials including Gov. John H. Trumbull, Major Gen. Morris B. Payne, Capt. Adolphus Andrews, Major N. Horowitz, Commander E. F. Cutts, Rev. Wm. A. Keefe, Clark Belden, Admiral Carr and the commanding officers of the state pier, Fort Trumbull and Fort Wright.

D. A. R. NAMES DELEGATES TO NAT'L CONGRESS

Delegates and alternates to the congress in Washington, April 15-20 and to the state conference in Windsor, March 19 and 20, were elected at the monthly meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held Wednesday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel, with the regent, Mrs. William H. Dawley, presiding. Gifts of materials and needles for sewing, knitting, etc., were dropped by the members in a box for the detention rooms at Ellis Island. This was done following suggestions by Mrs. Frederick Latimer, state chairman for Ellis Island, at the December meeting.

Following the opening service the monthly reports of the officers and committee chairmen were given. The minutes of the January meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Leslie Brewer, and the report of the treasurer, Mrs. Albert S. Comstock showed that the balance in the current fund totaled $221.81. The total membership was given by the registrar, Mrs. Perkins, as 183. Mrs. Harry Carlson, the historian, announced that she has started to write the history of the chapter for the state historian.

In the report of Mrs. Ernest Jones for the ways and means committee, she said that the net sum realized from the lecture at Slater hall annex last week was $50. Mrs. Frank I. Royce, chairman of the patriotic education committee, reported that a set of slides, with a lecture, will be obtained again this year for the schools and would soon be ready. Announcement was made by Mrs. Burdsall that the "trailer" film on the correct use of the flag had arrived, and will soon be shown in the theatres. One new subscription for this month was reported by Mrs. Roy D. Judd, chairman of the magazine committee.

It was announced by the regent that the resignation of Mrs. George A. Ashbey as chairman on the committee on preservation of historic spots was accepted at the board meeting and that Mrs. Edith Huntington Wilson is to fill out the unexpired term. A letter from the librarian general thanking the chapter for a volume of cemetery records compiled by the chapter was read.

Mrs. Louis Wheeler, chairman of the programme committee, reported that there will be a change in the programme for the March meeting. There is to be a lecture, the subject to be announced later, instead of the play as planned. The members were notified by the regent that the picture of the regent's float in the parade Armistice day a year ago appeared in the last copy of the D. A. R. magazine.

The following recommendations from the board of management was read by the secretary:

That the chapter lend its flag to the city club for their meeting party on the afternoon of Feb. 12th.

That $10 be contributed toward Connecticut's share in the campaign expenses of Mrs. Robart and her ticket.

The following were elected delegates and alternates to the Washington congress and to the conference at Windsor:

National—Delegate, Mrs. Frank I. Royce; alternates, Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup, Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, Mrs. Albert S. Comstock, Mrs. Albert J. Bailey, Miss Ellen Dolbeare, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. Herbert M. Leroy.

State—Delegates, Mrs. Albert J. Sibray, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler; alternates, Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup, Mrs. Frank I. Royce, Mrs. Ernest J. Jones.

The regent and first vice regent are ex-officio, delegate and alternate respectively to both congress and conference.

After a short paper on Patriotism by Mrs. Wheeler and a dance by Miss Lois Latimer, the speaker of the afternoon, Miss Bernice Willey, superintendent of night schools and a member of the chapter, gave an interesting talk on Adult Education. She gave a brief history of migration to America from Europe, from early days to the present time dividing it into three distinct groups: 1—the original group of early Anglo Saxon immigrants; 2. the immigration of the Nordic races from 1820 to 1880 and 3. the influx of people from Russia and southern European countries since 1880. The importance and effect of each group upon the character of the country was pointed out.

The second subject touched upon was illiteracy in our country, especially in the state of Connecticut. In the census of 1920 there were in Connecticut over 67,000 adults who could not even write their names and nearly 200,000 who could not read ordinary street signs. The industrial nature of Connecticut and its close proximity to the ports of entry are responsible for the high per cent. of illiteracy in the state.

The state board of education, its division of adult education, is by means of educating the foreign born, striving to reduce illiteracy in Connecticut.

Factory classes, home classes and evening schools are being partially supported and supervised by the state in forty-nine towns at present. The elimination illiteracy, however, is not the sole aim of these schools. The teaching of English and the preparation of the immigrants to take his place in the civic and political life of his community, state and country are among the other objectives.

The great earnestness, perseverance of the typical night school student was brought out by the citation of many actual cases in the local schools. Samples of pupils' work showing what can be taught in less than seventy-five nights, to people, some of whom have never been to school before were exhibited.

Throughout the state the interest and cooperation of such organizations as the D. A. R. is greatly appreciated by those who are working with these well worth while foreign-born men and women.

Tea was served by a committee of which Mrs. Herbert Gallup was chairman.

Bible Study at Y. M. C. A.

The Bible study class for men met Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. The Scripture discussed was the story of the Prodigal Son in Luke the 15th chapter.

Among the points brought out were the following: The word prodigal means reckless, lavish, wasteful and spendthrift. It was decided that the miser is less useful to society than a spendthrift.

Evidently the mother of this boy was dead; had she been living the boy probably would not have left home. The mother, as a rule has the strongest grip on the children; she brings them into the world; she suffers most for them and generally she loves them most.

This father was much to blame for the son leaving home. He had evidently not maintained parental control as he should have done; he was too easy with his boy. Doubtless the older brothers attitude and spirit in the home life had something to do with the desire of the younger brother to leave home. The money the prodigal boy had increased his temptations; he had the price to pay for fast living.

Abundance of money does not usually contribute to holy living.

The older brother's religion was not of the right sort; he had no heart; he was extremely selfish, and his attitude toward his brothers return home was inexcusable. The prodigal boy was a more desirable friend than was the older brother.

Hartford Girl Wouldn't Eat

"Everybody in the neighborhood was crazy about Jean Frances. She was the happiest, brightest little thing you ever saw," says her mother, Mrs. George Ventres, 36 Capitol Ave., Hartford. "She looked so healthy we thought she'd never have any trouble. But she began to be constipated. It made her fretful, cross and feverish. Her breath got to be terrible and her tongue was nearly always coated. She didn't want to do anything but lie around. She wouldn't eat and was losing weight fast.

"Then a friend recommended California Fig Syrup and I began giving it to Jean Frances. It brightened her up right away. She began to eat heartily and her stomach and bowels started acting perfectly. Soon she commenced gaining weight again and she's been perfectly well, strong and happy ever since."

California Fig Syrup is made from two of Nature's greatest laxatives — ripe California Figs and First Quality Senna Leaves. Children like its rich, fruity taste. It regulates their stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

The genuine, endorsed by physicians for over 30 years, always bears the word "California." All drug stores have it.

PUTNAM RALLIES IN SECOND HALF TO TAKE STONINGTON IN LEAGUE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, February 6—Before one of the largest crowds ever to watch a high school basketball tilt here Putnam High defeated the Stonington basketball outfit 34 to 23 in a spirited second half rally. The crowd of 400 jammed into the gallery in the school saw the locals win their third league game of the season. The game was a colorful hoop tilt in which brilliant basketball was played.

Stonington furnished some stubborn opposition in the first half but wilted under the driving attack of the Putnam forwards. Leo and Cody, in the final 16 minutes of play. Shann, who has been one of the steady performers of the team, came into his own tonight when he caged eight points for his team. Carmen Leo, the highest scoring forward in the league registered 16 points of the evening's score when he ran wild in the second half. Rove of the locals played his first full time game at the guard position and in addition to covering his man he scored three baskets from the center of the court. The all around work of the Noyesmen far outshone the performance of the visitors. Passing cleverly and effectively Cody's mates worked the ball well into the Stonington territory before shooting for scores. The visitors resorted to long shots with Goyette, rangy forward, claiming the spotlight with three from the floor.

The local aggregation worked nip and tuck with the Stonington club during the first half which ended with the score 18 to 16 with Putnam leading.

The victory of the Noyesmen may be credited to the manner in which they devoted their energy to passing the ball, the first exhibition of this branch of the game they have shown this season. Putnam lost no time when it took the floor in the second half, snapping the ball with speed and accuracy they swept through the opposition to account for 18 points. The summary:

ACADEMY LOSES TO COLLEGIATE PREP, 42 TO 18

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 6—Norwich Free Academy was soundly whipped by Collegiate Prep's strong basketball team here today by the score of 42 to 18. Norwich put up a strong battle in the first half, trailing only by 17 to 9 at its conclusion, but in the last two quarters the local boys spurted considerably and outdistanced the visitors.

Beyer, at left forward, was high scorer with ten points but the scoring was quite evenly distributed among the 13 players the home team used. Henschel, playing his first game of the season for the Wildcats, led them in scoring with six points. This was the first sport contest between these schools in many years. Summary:

SANDE MAY RIDE HIS HORSES THIS SEASON

BALTIMORE, Feb. 6—(AP)—Earle Sande, once premier jockey of the American turf, may have the "leg up" on some of his own thoroughbreds during the Maryland racing season this year, following an alteration made by the Maryland racing commission today in the rule governing such cases.

The new jockey rule will allow former riders like Sande, who have become owners to ride their own horses only. Sande, who gave up riding last year because of increased weight, probably will ride in the big stakes when his horses carry 115 pounds and more.

The commission announced that the racing season will open on April 2 and close on November 30 at Bowie. Bowie will race 11 days in the spring, and Havre de Grace and Pimlico each 12 days. The season opens at Bowie.

PA STRIBLING WANTS SOUTHERNER TO REFEREE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6—(AP)—While Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling took training easy today, problems centering around the third man in the ring when they mix it at Flamingo Park Feb. 27, increased as "Pa" Stribling, "Young's" manager, entered a protest against the failure to include a southerner in the list of referees.

Jack Dempsey, the promoter, stepped to the fore and called a conference with Johnny Buckley, manager for the Boston sailor, and Pa for Saturday when the matter of sectional representation will be threshed out.

According to the elder Stribling, the south lacks proper representation in the list of possible third men. Two of the possibilities, he pointed out, are from New York, two from Chicago, one each from Detroit, Cleveland, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Philadelphia, but none whose abode is south of the Mason Dixie line. Incidentally it is understood Dempsey had planned to add the names of two Massachusetts men to the list.

The odds on home sites of the referees are all in Sharkey's favor, Pa told Dempsey in voicing his objections.

Sharkey was scheduled for a training bout at his arena in the Miami Beach Kennel club this afternoon, but after a crowd of admirers and a group of newspaper men, who arrived here this morning, had stood in the offing for some time, word was broadcast that the Boston sailor had forgotten about his training date and was playing golf on a Miami Beach golf course.

Stribling put in some more road work tonight and will continue the plan. The Georgia fighter likes his new plan which calls for the road work at night instead of in the day time. During the day he still is collecting the coat of tan which he sought to procure early in his training period.

Dempsey's request for an injunction to restrain Stribling from flying in an airplane or riding a motorcycle until after the fight was filed today and a hearing was scheduled for tomorrow.

THE PADDY RYAN AND SULLIVAN FIGHT IN 1882

Barney Keenan, veteran pugilist and trainer of Al Koziol, brought us in a copy of the old New York Clipper in which is an account of the John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan fight which took place exactly 47 years ago today. The account of this fight, which was held at Mississippi City, Miss., may seem somewhat strange to the present generation in that in those old days a round ended when a fighter went to the floor either from a blow or from being thrown. Tickets for this bout reached the unheard of price of $10 each and the betting was $100 to $80 on Sullivan. John L., as he entered the ring, went to Ryan's corner and offered to bet $1,000 on himself, which was immediately taken. The attendance at the bout was 2,000. The detailed account follows:

Round 1—After feinting Sullivan, evidently bent on hurrying matters suddenly rushed in and with right and left hammered Ryan unmercifully, the latter being unable to get in an effective return and being sent down by a solid blow under his right ear. Time 10 seconds.

Round 2—Sullivan, the moment he came, renewed the forcing tactics he pursued in the opening round, delivering rights and lefts in rapid succession. Then they clinched, struggled for the fall and Ryan gave Sullivan a clear throw. Time 25 seconds.

Round 3—Sullivan on reaching the scratch immediately sent out his left, catching Ryan square on the nose, breaking it, drawing blood, splitting his lip and knocking him down. Time 3 seconds.

Round 4—Slugging at once began by Sullivan, Ryan offering but feeble resistance. It was all infighting. Sullivan fought Ryan back to his corner and then closed in and threw him. Time 20 seconds.

Round 5—Close and very severe fighting. Ryan closed in clinching and threw Sullivan. Time 30 seconds.

Round 6—Ryan went to earth to escape further punishment. Time 14 seconds.

Round 7—Severe infighting. They clinched. Sullivan putting in some good fibbing work and Ryan being thrown. Time 15 seconds.

Round 8—Rapid desperate milling. Ryan was weak and groggy. Sullivan beat him to his knees, Ryan rose and wrestling was resumed and Sullivan threw Ryan falling on him heavily. Time 15 seconds.

Round 9—Ryan was very weak, seemingly exhausted, while Sullivan was much blown, both staggering and feinting at each other. They clinched, separated, and then Sullivan rallied and struck Ryan heavily in the face, knocking him out of time. Time 50 seconds.

When time was called again Ryan failed to respond, thus ending the mill in favor of Sullivan. Time of fight, 10 minutes and 30 seconds.

DANIELSON PLAYS KNIGHTS OF LITHUANIA FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 6—The Danielson Town team faces stiff opposition Friday night when the fast Knights of Lithuania play a return game in Town hall, Danielson.

The Knights are champions of Farmington Valley league and also of Hartford county, defeating practically all comers by a wide margin. Their reputation as a very fine basketball team extends throughout Connecticut as well as throughout Massachusetts and New York state.

The Knights played in Danielson just one month ago and there is not a person who saw the game who has forgotten about it, as at the end of the 40-minute period both teams were at a deadlock and had to play two five-minute overtime periods, finally coming out victors by one basket in the last minute of play.

Danielson is out to even matters and will put its full strength on the floor, including "Pop" Williams and Galup.

This is bound to be a great game as both teams are evenly matched and both will be very desirous of victory.

AGGIES MEET AMHERST ON ICE AT AMHERST TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Feb. 6—The third game of the season for the Connecticut Aggie hockey team will take place tomorow at Amherst, weather permitting. Due to the poor condition of the ice in the newly constructed rink at Storrs, the Aggie team has not had any real practice sessions since the beginning of the semester. The men have been keeping in shape with indoor exercise daily, but because of the poor ice have not been outdoors.

Moore, one of Coach Dole's most capable substitutes, is now in St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic, with an infected foot. The rest of the team have been shaping up well, and no doubt they will give the Massachusetts aggregation a stiffer battle than in the pre-season game between these two clubs.

AMERICAN LEAGUE UMPS NAMED BY BARNARD

CHICAGO, Feb. 6—(AP)—Eleven of the 12 umpires who officiated in the American league last season, were named today to the 1929 staff of umpires by President E. S. Barnard.

The 12th position will be filled by George Moriarity, who returns to the American league as an umpire after two years as manager of the Detroit Tigers. He replaces Dan Barry of Boston.

Thomas H. Connolly, veteran of the junior league umpires, again heads the list which includes William Dineen, George Hildebrand, Clarence B. Owens, Richard Nallin, Emmett Ormsby, Harry C. Geisel, William McGowan, Roy Van Grafian, William Guthrie, W. M. Campbell and Moriarty.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

The basketball race of the Eastern Connecticut conference was tightened considerably by Windham's victory over Chapman Tech Friday evening. Whereas Tech had threatened to make a runaway affair of the campaign, her position is now threatened seriously by Windham and probably Putnam high. Stonington and the Academy are conceded only an outside chance to finish one-two in the race now. It looks like a stiff battle between them to keep out of last place. N. F. A., champions in baseball, and Stonington, football leaders, are quite below par at the court game.

However, these two tail-enders can cause quite a bit of trouble. Windham, Putnam and Tech must make a clean sweep in their games with this pair in order to stay in the race. Should that occur, then Tech and Windham will finish in a tie, each having lost but one game.

The complete schedule of football games for the Interscholastic Athletic Conference of Eastern Connecticut and Western Rhode Island, has been announced by the secretary of the league, E. S. Taylor of Chapman Tech.

Fifteen games in all are played between the six teams comprising Class A in the conference, they being Westerly, Stonington, Chapman Tech, Bulkeley, Norwich and Windham.

The N. F. A.-Bulkeley game closes the conference schedule.

The schedule follows:

Sat., Sept. 28—Chapman Tech vs. Norwich Free Academy at Norwich.

Sat., Oct. 5—Chapman Tech vs. Windham high at New London.

Fri., Oct. 11—Windham high vs. Westerly high at Willimantic.

Sat., Oct. 12—Bulkeley high vs. Stonington at New London.

Fri., Oct. 18—Bulkeley vs. Westerly high at Westerly.

Sat., Oct. 19—Windham high vs. Stonington high at Stonington.

Fri., Oct. 25—Bulkeley high vs. Windham high at Willimantic.

Fri., Oct. 25—Norwich Free Academy vs. Westerly at Norwich.

Sat., Nov. 2—Chapman Tech vs. Stonington high at Stonington.

Sat., Nov. 2—Windham high vs. Norwich Free Academy at Norwich.

Mon., Nov. 11—Stonington high vs. Westerly high at Westerly.

Sat., Nov. 16—Norwich Free Academy vs. Stonington high at Stonington.

Sat., Nov. 16—Chapman Tech vs. Bulkeley high at New London.

Fri., Nov. 22—Chapman Tech vs. Westerly high at Westerly.

Sat., Nov. 23—Bulkeley high vs. Norwich Free Academy at New London.

The Academy and Chapman Tech meet here tomorrow night in a Conference game, one of the major tilts of the year for the locals.

PUTNAM GRID SQUAD GIVEN BANQUET BY C. OF C.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 6—The spoils of the victors consisted of a six course dinner served to the 22 youths, of Putnam high school, now known as the gridiron champions of Eastren Connecticut, by the Putnam chamber of commerce Tuesday evening in the main dining room of the Putnam inn. The boys four months ago crushed eight of the strongest teams, east of the Connecticut river, and went the entire schedule without defeat, allowing but two teams to cross their goal line. Following is the menu: fruit cocktail, Boston market celery, queen olives, tomato bisque, cape scallops saute, tartar sauce, potatoes, broiled lamb chop, green peas, lettuce and tomato salad, ice cream, cake and coffee.

County Secretary L. E. Hill, of the Windham county Y. M. C. A., led the singing of several well known airs, while the football mentors strained their vocal chords in song instead of "war whoops," current during the fall gridiron season.

At the head of the dining room was one table for the speakers and occupied by the following, Walter N. King, president of the chamber of commerce, Martin B. Robertson, toastmaster, Jack Cronin, chief speaker of the evening, Captain William "Bill" Shann, pilot of the championship eleven, Edwin L. Robinson, principal of the school, Rev. James F. English, president of the Putnam Rotary club and pastor of the Second Congregational church, and Coach L. F. Noyes, who directed the champions to victory.

Mr. King introduced Mr. Robertson, the toastmaster of the evening, who in turn called upon the speakers for a word or two. Each made a short speech, congratulating the victors upon their remarkable feat. Capt. Bill Shann commended his boys for the spirit they displayed during the season, that won for them the coveted title. He also was proud of the honor they bestowed upon him, last spring when elected to lead the local eleven. In closing Capt. Shann presented Coach Noyes a beautiful sliver loving cup, in recognition of his invaluable services rendered the squad.

In accepting Mr. Noyes spoke a few words of the fine cooperation and spirit of sportsmanship shown him while the Putnam high school champions were in the making.

Then came "Jack" Cronin, who attained fame in the football world for his ground-gaining tactics at Boston college two years ago, and added to his already lustrous career on the field this season, when with the members of the Steam Rollers of Providence he came to the pinnacle of professional football. Jack, confined his speech to football, its origin and evolution to its present stage. The pigskin was first punted by the Spartans of old Sparta, later teaching the game to the Romans, who in turn carried the game to Britain. There it was taboo because of its unusual roughness, compared to other sports then in flower. Because of this, it was abandoned, only to be revived again during the reign of Henry VIII, where it was played on a field similar to the modern gridiron. It later found its way into the folds of Rugby, where it was developed to its 20th century form. Football, or better known then as Rugby, was first played in America between two colleges in 1869, when Rutgers and Princeton clashed. In 1873, the growing popularity of the sport led to a rules committee being appointed and from that time on the game was established as football, attaining fame each season. Mr. Cronin gave his talk in a very forceful manner.

The final speaker of the evening was Superintendent of Schools Leon N. Farrin, who is a sports enthusiast and a staunch supporter of the local eleven, who spoke on the value of football.

The banquet drew to a close with Captain Bill Shann and his gang extending a rousing vote of thanks to the local commercial organization, who made possible the dinner.

HAKOAHS DOWN PLAINFIELD PROS IN BRILLIANT BASKETBALL GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 6—The Hakoahs of New York demonstrated how basketball is played in the American basketball league when they handily trimmed the Plainfield Pros 62 to 49 here tonight before a crowd that jammed the Community house. The visitors were as smooth an aggregation of basketball stars as has ever set foot on the Plainfield floor and their work was a revelation to basketball fans in this neck of the woods. For brilliant passwork and accurate shooting the like has never been seen in Plainfield.

With their play being centered around Chizmadia and Topel the Hakoahs took the lead early in the game and held it throughout. Although Plainfield scored heavily they never threatened the fast moving New Yorkers. Nat Holman, world's star basketshooter, was in the game for only about seven minutes due to a strained tendon. Holman only played at the insistent demand of the crowd and his three long shots from mid-floor were accorded plenty of applause.

Kasper, Williams and Bernot starred for the locals accounting for 33 of Plainfield's points. Dissinger and Tisdale also played nice games although not having opportunities to score. Plainfield lost many scoring chances through their hurried play necessitated by the fast work of the opposition.

In the preliminary game the Buddies took over the Stonington Ironmen, 17 to 14, in a rough and tumble game. Joe Eaton and Moore of Stonington were ejected from the game when they came to blows on the floor. The summary:

MAJOR SEAGRAVE ARRIVES WITH THE GOLDEN ARROW

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—Major H. O. D. Segrave, first racer ever to drive an automobile faster than 200 miles an hour, arrived from England on the Majestic today to attempt to regain the world speed record at Daytona Beach, Fla.

With him he brought his new car, known as the Golden Arrow, which has a sight on it like a rifle to help the driver hold to a straight course.

The race against time will be held between March 1 and 15. The present record, established by Ray Keech last April is 207 1-2 miles an hour.

Major Segrave said the nine-mile beach at Daytona where the race will be run is two miles longer than he needs. He said he will need three miles to attain maximum speed. The course on which he will be clocked is one mile long, and it will take him three miles to come to a halt.

The racer had a party of 14 with him, including Capt. J. S. Irving, designer of the Golden Arrow and of the major's former record holder, the Sunbeam, which had an official speed of 203.79 miles an hour. Seven of the 14 were mechanics who will groom the Golden Arrow for its record-seeking flight.

The Golden Arrow is 27 feet, eight inches long with a wheel tread of five feet. It has a 12 cylinder 900 horse power airplane motor. Low gear speed is 81 miles an hour and second speed 160. The tires are guaranteed to last 15 seconds at 240 miles an hour. The fuel is a distillate so refined that it is almost the equivalent of alcohol but with the explosive quality that alcohol lacks. The radiator is packed with cracked ice.

LANDIS INVESTIGATES OUTEN WHO SIGNED WITH TWO CLUBS

DURHAM, N. C., Feb. 6—(AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's high commissioner, today completed his inquiry into the case of "Chick" Outen, husky North Carolina State college outfielder, who signed playing contracts with both the Charlotte club of the South Atlantic league and the New York Yankees. Judge Landis left later for Chicago where the findings of his inquiry will be announced.

While still in college Outen signed with Charlotte and later Johnnie Nee, New York scout, also signed him. Nee was closely examined by Judge Landis to determine whether he knew he was dealing with a player already under contract to another club, and he said he was given to understand that Outen, as a minor when he signed the first agreement and believed this contract not binding.

It was brought out at today's hearing, at which "Chick" Doak, North Carolina State baseball coach, also was questioned, that Outen's age at the time he signed with Charlotte was above 21 and that he received a sum of money from that club and $1,200 in cash from Nee.

Outen, an excellent batter, has been rated for two years as one of the most finished college ball players in the south.

FAST FIELD ENTERED FOR NEWARK GAMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—Some of the world's outstanding track performers including Percy Williams, Canadian sprint sensation, and Edvin Wide, Swedish schoolmaster who holds the outdoor two mile record, feature the programme of the Newark A. C. games at the 113th Regiment armory, Newark, tomorrow night.

On this same smooth board floor with no banked turns Paavo Nurmi ran what was for him a leisurely two miles a week ago being clocked at 9:19 3-5. Wide, who hopes to meet Paavo in the national championship two mile here Feb. 23, will be running almost the same handicap field that opposed the Finn thus offering a chance to compare his form with that of Nurmi.

Racing against Wide off the shortest marks will be F. C. Bayley, New York A. C., who was runner-up to Paavo; Irving Totten, Millrose A. A., who was third; and Russell Payne, former intercollegiate champion at Penn. Handicaps ranging up to 13 yards will be given with Wide at scratch.

Williams, likewise, will be pitted against a handicap field. The 19-year-old Canadian will give leads ranging up to two yardss in a 50-yard event.

A special event announced today by Coach Carl Anderson of the Newark A. C. will present Frank Cuhel, runner-up for the Olympic 400-meter hurdling championship, in an attempt to break the world's record for the 70-yard low hurdles, set at 8 1-5 seconds by Earl Thomson here in 1921.

Another top notcher to be seen in action is Ray Conger, national 1500-meter champion, who will start in a special 1,000-yard invitation event that promises to provide a good share of the fireworks. With Phil Edwards, Jimmy Kennedy, Pinkie Sober, Sam Martin and Harold Cutbill in the field, Conger will have plenty of real competition.

A tight race also is promised in the 500-yard special in which Johnny Gibson, who set a new track record for 600 yards last week, will tackle such opponents as Oliver Proudlock and Herb Robinson, University of Virginia flash.

DUNDEE AND MANAGER ARE SUSPENDED BY PENN.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6—(AP)—Max Waxman, manager of Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, and his entire stable of boxers, including the titleholder, were suspended today for an indefinite period by the Pennsylvania State Athletic commission.

Dundee had been matched to fight Young Ketchell at Elam, Pa., tomorrow night, but after Dundee's recent Hartford bout with Al Mello, Waxman asked for a week's delay. Three days of grace were granted him and it then was announced that the bout would be put on Feb. 14.

Today the commission was informed that it was "impossible for Dundee to meet Ketchell" and that the fight was off indefinitely.

"Off indefinitely," said Commissioner Frank Wiener. "So are Waxman, Dundee and all the rest of the stable. Dundee will fight here before he fights anywhere else in Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois and about 30 other states with which we do business."

Killingly vs. Tourtellotte

Killingly High faces the strong Tourtellotte team at North Grosvenordale tonight. The Tourtellotte quintet has established a good record by beating some of the strongest teams in eastern Connecticut, including Putnam. Killingly hasn't beaten Tourtellotte for two seasons but they will go to North Grosvenordale with a good record, winning ve out of seven games.

Coach Schofield held the last practice before the game and the team looks fit after the Woodstock victory. The probable lineup for Killingly will be as follows: Slowick, rf; Withey, lf; McKeon, c; Young, rg; Waldron, lg.

CAPT. MONAST LOST TO WINDHAM HIGH QUINTET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 6—The Windham high school varsity basketball team is suffering a severe loss in the withdrawal from school of Walter Monast, captain of the team and stellar guard. Coach Thomas A. Callaghan, in announcing today that Captain Monast was definitely leaving the school, the team lost one of the strongest guard players developed at the institution in some years. In making a re-arrangement of the team Coach Callaghan has assigned Luciani and Sroka to the backcourt for the game here Friday night. "Tony" Ferriner, popular sophomore, has been added to the varsity ranks and Lester has returned to the team after a two weeks' absence. In the arrangement for this week's contest against the powerful Bulkeley, Hartford team, Miekle and Mason will be at forward berths, Lamson, center and Luciani and Sroka guards.

BOXING IS BARRED BY SEATTLE MAYOR

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 6—(AP)—Boxing was put under an indefinite ban in Seattle today by Mayor Frank E. Edwards as a direct result of the death here last night of Eddie Cartwright, 32-year-old Portland Negro pugilist.

Cartwright was knocked out during a preliminary fight and died in a dressing room 20 minutes later. Doctors said he died as a result of hitting the canvas.

Boxing in this state is forbidden by state laws. Efforts have been made at every session of the legislature in recent years to obtain a law which would permit six to ten round matches.

Mayor Edwards later amplified his attitude toward professional boxing by declaring "the ban probably will remain in effect until boxing is legalized."

COMMITTEE APPROVES BOXING BILL

STATE CAPITOL, Hartford, Feb. 6—(AP)—The judiciary committee this afternoon, voted to report favorably, with an amendment exempting educational institutions, on the bill giving the state athletic commissioner control over boxing and wrestling.

The amendment was suggested, and offered in writing, at the hearing by State's Attorney Samuel E. Hoyt, of New Haven, president of the Connecticut A. A. U., who said that the athletic commissioner should not have control over such institutions as Yale university, whose authorities should exercise all jurisdiction over athletics of this sort.

Judge Stanley Dunn, New Haven, member of the A. A. U. commission, appeared in support of the bill, saying "no organization but the state should control amateur boxing and athletics."

The bill, introduced by Mr. Johnson, of Manchester, majority leader in the house, adds control over amateurs to the control now exercised over professionals and prohibits those under 18 from participating in boxing and those under 16 from wrestling. Mr. Hoyt declared that the bill would have no effect, in its prohibitive features, if no penalty were attached, but Senator Peasley, chairman of the judiciary committee, when announcing to the Associated Press his committee's action, said nothing would be done about this.

State Athletic Commissioner Donohue favored the bill, as did Mr. Tobin, of Waterbury, house minority leader; Edward Hurley, Hartford promoter; Nathan Podoleff, of the New Haven arena, and Senators Hackett and Goldstein.

Mr. Hoyt declared that the same bill was killed in 1927, because it embraced all amateur boxing and wrestling, and said his organization would oppose it if the amendment were not included. Mr. Lynch, representative from West Haven, said he favored the bill as amended, though he was opposed originally.

TWO AGILE STEEPLEJACKS ON A HAZARDOUS JOB

(Contributed)

Two agile steeple jacks in the employ of a roofing company of Providence performed a hazardous task on a 150 foot flag pole at the Westerly high school, Saturday. The wind was blowing a gale. Part of the large 7 foot eagle had broken off and was dangling in the wind so that it was dangerous to people passing along the street. It was necessary to have this part taken down.

The steeple jacks ascended in a small boatswain chair tied to a 3-8 inch rope and scaled the top, pulled up by a truck with a snatch block at the bottom, something new and novel in rigging and repairing flag poles. It was a difficult and hazardous bit of work.

One of the jacks is Jack Dagle who saw service in the World war in the British flying corps at Argonne, was shell-shocked and has now taken up the work of repairing steeples, chimneys flag poles, etc. Steeple jack Howie Back has scaled many lofty points such as the flag pole and monument at Provincetown, Barnstable and other points.

These two jacks go about their work as if it was ordinary, every-day occurences. They show both skill and daring in the performances of their hazardous tasks.

The work was performed under Master Rigger Bache, one of the oldest men in the country still following this work.

MARKET OPENED STRONG, CLOSED WITH LONG LIST TURNED DOWNWARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—The knowledge that the federal reserve board would issue a statement on the credit situation after the close of the session hung over the stock market like a dark cloud today, casting a deep shadow over a number of favorable news developments.

The market opened with a burst of strength, but it quickly spent itself, and the list turned downward, scores of important issues losing from 3 to a maximum of 18 points in Wright Aero Short covering and a drop in the call money rate to 6 per cent for the first time in a week caused fairly general recoveries of 2 to 6 points from the lowest prices of the day in the final dealings.

The reserve board's statement, which pointed to the new high total of brokers loans and declared flatly that the use of federal reserve credit must be restrained, was even more jarring to speculative confidence than had been expected. The board declared that credit must be liberated to safeguard business.

The day's news included several increased or extra dividends and good trade reports. The Rock Island railroad raised its annual dividend rate from $6 to $7 and the Frisco from $7 to $8, while the Pere Marquette declared a $2 extra. Federal Light and Traction raised its rate from $0 cents to $1.50.

The copper market displayed further buoyancy. Dealers were asking 17 3-4 cents a pound domestic, following upon the 1-4 of a cent increase to 17 1-2 cents this week, and an 18 cent price was predicted for the near future. The iron trade reviews were uniformly confident, Iron Age pointing to the January record in pig iron production, hardening of prices for finished steel products and increasing demands for automobile and railway steel.

Among the unfavorable developments was another increase in crude oil production, and a jump in Sterling Cables duction, and a jump in sterling cables to above the incoming gold point, temporarily, at least, halting the flow of the yellow metal from London. Apprehension was again felt over the Bank of England meeting tomorrow, although advices from London as whether the rediscount rate may be raised were entirely speculative.

Coppers attracted further accumulation in the early trading, several reaching record levels, but reacted with the general list later. American Smelting was depressed by the news that its plan to buy into Chango copper mines of South Africa had met opposition in London and been withdrawn.

U. S. Realty was a conspicuous strong point, selling up 11 points to a new top on announcement of its plan to finance real estate projects entirely through stock. Vanadium, International Business Machine and Emerson-Brantingham issues achieved new high levels. Federal Light and Traction and Rock Island sold up about 3 points on the increased dividends, but the latter reacted.

Wright Aero, which touched 294 yesterday, fell to 280 today and closed at 285. Radio dropped 12 points to 384 and closed at 389. Allis Chalmers, American International, Adams Express, Barnsdall B, Commercial Solvents, Curtiss Aero, General Electric, International Telephone, Johns Manville, National Biscuit and Western Union sold off 4 to 6 points. Bodens dropped about 4 points despite recommendation by the directors of a 2-for-1 splitup.

U. S. Steel sold off about 4 points, but closed only about 2 points down. Motor shares generally sagged, Chrysler, Mack Truck, Packard and Studebaker yielding 2 to 3 points.

The commodity markets were somewhat firmer. Grains encountered some buying in response to higher foreign cables on wheat and reports of big export trade in corn, cotton ruled slightly higher, closing in the gains of 60 to 70 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges generally improved, in response to the gain of about 1-4 a cent in sterling, which carried the cable rate above $4.85. The rise was ascribed to settlements for New York's recent gold purchases in London.

ST. TERESA'S HOSPITAL HAS FINE REPUTATION

There are times in the life of women when exeprt hospital attention is desired. Norwich possesses just this type of a hospital in St. Teresa's Private Maternity hospital at No. 15 Boswell avenue. Conducted for a number of years past by Victoria LeBlanc, this hospital has made a name for itself that has reached far beyond the borders of Norwich.

Hundreds of happy mothers would be only too glad to tell you of the pleasant time they spent there and of how kind and courteous was their treatment. Although St. Teresa's hospital is a private institution the management allows expectant mothers the privilege of securing their own physician. This, coupled with the fact that experienced nursing is given, insures a mother and her child against harm.

In these cold months, when many houses are unfit for the trials of motherhood, St. Teresa's hospital stands as a haven of refuge. Proper ventilation, good food, expert medical attention day and night, and a homelike atmosphere, insures every patient a happy stay there.

Rooms are private and this again insures every patient that homelike atmosphere and a place where loved ones can gather unseen by those without. The hospital also cares for chronic cases and aged people and provides excellent care.

All these things have made St. Teresa's private hospital a popular institution with the mothers of Norwich and vicinity and you too will find it so. Let us talk over your problems with you and thus make your task the lighter and more pleasant.

CALL UP TAFTVILLE WET WASH FOR WASHINGS

Call up the New System Taftville Wet Wash, Phone 3228-2, this morning and tell them you want your washing done by them this week. That will be the end of your worries in that direction, and after one trial you will never go back to Blue Monday. The New System has eliminated Blue Monday from the calendar.

The New System Wet Wash has reduced laundry work to a simplicity. And, doing so, it has placed the price of washings at such a low level, and the work at such a high level, that the wash lady has vanished, and the housewife who has been in the habit of doing her own washing, is joining the ranks of the minority every week.

The New System Wet Wash has a motto of courtesy to its customers and perfection in its work. That's the whole story.

The telephone call with which you place your order to get your laundry is all you have to do. That's what makes it so simple.

Try the New System this week, and make a little side bet with yourself, as to whether you ever do your own washing again after one trial.

WHY NOT ALLOW THUMM'S TO SUPPLY YOUR PARTY NEEDS

Thumm's Delicatessen Store of 40 Franklin street is the proper place for you to buy those things you require for eating and for special parties.

It is always pleasant to know that there is a delicatessen store near your home, but it is more pleasing to know that Thumm's is located in Norwich.

As the time grows rapidly short before the special day when guests are to be entertained something must be figured on lest the housewife desires that terrible shock of running short of something to eat, just at the time when it is needed the most.

Careful planning for wants for parties and special events has always been the policy of Thumm's Delicatessen Store, 40 Franklin street, and our store today abounds in hundreds of things, which, gracing the table on those occasions will make the hearts of all housewives sing with joy.

Our cooked and prepared meats are known everywhere as a delicious treat and no less popular is our home-made mayonnaise. Utmost care is taken in preparing all foods in this store and every patron may rest assured that their purchase has provided them with the best money can buy.

If you are planning a party in the immediate future or if you are planning an outing of any kind let us quote you on prices and show you how to save money on your purchases.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Connecticut College Concert

America has not been slow to appreciate the scholarship, as well as the musical genius of Nikolai Sokoloff, conductor of the Cleveland orchestra, which comes to New London on Feb. 14 for the third concert in the current series offered by Connecticut college. It credits him, too, with a very distinct contribution to education of the American youth and for this he has been accorded due honor.

The first appreciation came when the great conductor was a mere lad, only one year in this country.

The Sokoloff family whose musical traditions go back a century and a half, came to America in 1900, and it was only one year later when the boy, still struggling with the customs and language of a new land, was given an audition by the head of the Yale university School of Music. The dynamic personality of the conductor which is apparent to audiences everywhere today, must have been the motivating force behind that first appearance, but like the philosopher of old, all he needed was a lever and a place to stand, and he could move the world.

His violin was the lever, and Yale granted him standing room. He moved the authorities so deeply that a special scholarship was created for him and the lad of 15 was auspiciously started on his way to fame and leadership.

That was his first scholastic honor. Last June two institutions of learning conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Music: One was Western Reserve university, in his home city, Cleveland. The other was the Capital University Conservatory of Music in Columbus.

Palace Theatre

The last half of the full week's vaudeville policy opens up at the Palace today, with an entirely new bill. The acts for the first half of this week were very well received, and those appearing today indicate some real entertaining vaudeville. The program today starts with a novelty, "Brangk's Wonder Horse," assisted by a lady styled "Belladonna." This is a study in bronze and if there is such a thing as "horse-sense" then this animal has more than its share. Flo Mayo and her big band of girls—all girls—give a good account of themselves in an act that comprises everything from music and songs to acrobatic work. Miss Mayo is direct from the leading houses in New York, and offers a clean, exceptionally clever act. The next headliner is Miss Billie Richmond, who is billed at the "Reason for Elinor Glyn's IT." This lady has been doing the big vaudeville time for several years and it is only through a special arrangement that we are able to see her in Norwich. It is a bit of entertainment none should miss. The other acts are comprised of a specialty number interpreted by Kay and Barr and Sam Liebert & Co. in "Something to Remember." The picture this period is "Power of the Press" and is a rip-roaring newspaper story, showing that the cub reporters earn all the money they get, and sometimes they don't get the girl they love. If you want to see how a newspaper office is run and how the boys gather and print the news, be sure and see this one. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and beautiful Johnny Ralston are the principal characters.

Strand Theatre

"The Naked Truth," a motion picture showing at the Strand theatre this week, is a plain statement of medical facts dressed up in a scenario form for public presentation.

The plot revolves around the theme of sex hygiene and makes a strong appeal for the enlightenment of children through a comparison with the lives of three boys. Two of them are raised in ignorance and one who is taught the blind evils. Many startling incidents take place in the unwinding of the story, among them a wedding scene which is stopped by the doctor.

This picture furnishes good entertainment and at the same time does not bore with its preaching.

A lecture is given by an experienced lecturer, special representative of the Public Welfare Picture Corp., producers of the film. His manner of hard-hitting, straight-from-the-shoulder at some of the vital facts of life is interesting as well as instructive. Following the lectures some special subjects are shown which add much to the educational value of the presentation.

The matinee Friday is for women, while Friday night and Saturday is for men, continuous Saturday from 1 to 11 p. m.

Bread Theatre

In "The Head Man", at the Bread theatre, however, there is a new and even more appealing Charlie Murray. The picture, First National's elaborate production of the delightfully whimsical novel by Harry Leon Wilson, "The Boss of Little Arcady," is by far the best in which the famous comedian has ever appeared.

While it is brimful of every sort of fun, from burlesque to whimsy, it is also a logical, cleverly-evolved and very human picture. Things happen as they do in life, not with that incensequential haphazardness of farce comedy. And Murray, in the featured title role, gets his first chance at pathos, drama and realistic character portrayal.

Capably supporting him are Loretta Young, Lucien Littlefield, Larry Kent, Martha Mattox, Dot Farley, Irving Bacon and other notable players. The story is woven around small town life and politics, with an appealing love tale involving Miss Young.

Sunlight is a destroyer of many kinds of bacteria.

POETRY

The World's War

At Haroun's court it chanced, upon a time,
An Arab poet made this pleasant rhyme:
"The new moon is a horseshoe, wrought of God, Wherewith the Sultan's stallion shall be shod."

On hearing this, the Sultan smiled and gave
The man a gold-piece. "Sing again, O slave!"

Above his lute the happy singer bent,
And turned another gracious compliment.

And, as before, the smiling Sultan gave
The man a sekkah. "Sing again, O slave!"

Again the verse came, fluent as a rill
That wanders, silver-footed, down a hill.

The Sultan, listening, nodded as before,
Still gave the gold and still demanded more.

The nimble fancy that had climbed so high
Grew weary with its climbing by and by;

Strange discords rose; the sense went quite amiss;
The singer's rhymes refused to meet and kiss;

Invention flagged, the lute had got unstrung,
And twice he sang the song already sung.

The Sultan, furious, called a mute and said,
"O Musta, straightaway whip me off his head!"

Poets! not in Arabia alone
Yet get beheaded when your skill is gone.

—Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

My Bulbs

Although I dwell in city gray,
And country scenes seem far away,
What matter!—when each blessed day
My bulbs are coming up!

Long weeks ago with hope so keen
I planted them in bowls of green
With love (some fiber in between)
And put them in the dark.

And now and then I took a peep
To see if they were still asleep,
Or if their promise they would keep
Of waking up some day.

At last in love they answered me,
And O how glad I was to see
From every root upspringing free
A precious bit of green!

With joy I brought them to the light—
Their tender leaves all shining bright,
And now I watch them with delight
Unfolding every day.

Who said in town I had to be
And country scenes I might not see?
The countryside has come to me,
My bulbs are coming up!

—A. M. Bartholomew, in Christian Science Monitor.

When old age came upon the pet cat of a family of Essex, Conn., she helped out her failing sight with a pair of spectacles. The spectacles were put on the cat's eyes at first as a joke. Pussy showed at once that she liked to wear them and then made it a habit. While ranging the back yards of the neighborhood she goes two-eyed, as common cats do. But as soon as she enters the house she goes straight to her mistress and demands the other two eyes.

Conquers Cold to Become a Bride!

A disturbing cough and reddened nose, on the day she should appear to best advantage! How lucky that a certain compound will rout a cold in four or five hours! A simple thing, in pleasant tablet form—but it conquers the cold. Quicker than all the things you hear are good for colds. Far better than "doping."

If you feel a cold coming on, this will end it with the first snuffle. If the cold has settled on you perhaps run into "flu", Pape's Cold Compound will still clear it up if you take several tablets. Druggists ask only 35c for this real relief.

The annual roast pork supper of the Ladies' Guild society of St. Andrews' Episcopal church was held in the guild room of the church with two hundred to enjoy the appetizing menu. Linus Charnetski, one of the endmen, singing, You Can't Blame Me For That, went over big also and he was forced to make several added trips before the fot lights, stopping only when the verses to his song were exhausted. The dancing of little Babe Edwards was well received. A comedy team which appeared often and also made a decisive hit was that of Mrs. Edwin Edwards and Miss Freida Dierman. They put on several skits and drew round after round of laughter. As a whole the minstrels were very good. The opening and closing numbers in which the entire company of home talent participated, was well presented. The songs were well chosen and the jokes plentiful and humorous.

AUTO STRUCK MAN WALKING ON SIDEWALK, FRACTURING HIS NOSE

August Giey, 32, of this city, sustained a fractured nose when he was struck and knocked down by an automobile while walking on the sidewalk on Thames street, shortly after 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. The machine, a Chevrolet coupe, owned by Earl Bashaw of No. 68 Thames street, was parked by the curb when a Ford roadster owned by Joseph Lobe, 18, of Lisbon, ran into it, pushing it up on the sidewalk and against a telephone pole. Mr. Giey happened to be walking past the parked car, when it suddenly climbed over the curb, struck him and knocked him down. The impact of the crash pushed the front end of the car squarely against a telephone pole. Both the parked car and the Ford were headed toward Thames square at the time of the accident. After crashing into the coupe, the roadster came to a stop in the middle of the trolley tracks, having ben put out of commission. The driver of the roadster abandoned the car and disappeared. He ran rapidly away from the roadster towards Thames square.

Shortly after the accident young Lobe reported to the police that his roadster had been taken from where he had parked it near the Yantic Grain Co. building on Cove street. The police investigating discovered that the car reported stolen was the car that hit Mr. Bashaw's auto. Further investigation resulted in Lobe being held as the driver of the roadster, and he was charged with evading responsibility. Lobe denies he was driving the car insisting that it had been taken by someone from the place he had parked it on Cove street.

Mr. Giey was attended by Dr. David Sussler. The abandoned machine was pushed from the trolley tracks to the curb. It was quite badly damaged.

The drivers, with one exception, claimed in court that they were not travelling more than 38 miles per hour. After hearing the testimony, Judge Arthur F. Libby said that while he did not want to discourage the state police in their campaign against speeders, he did not believe that these particular cases warranted a fine.

PLAN TO REOPEN NORTH STONINGTON SILICA MINE

HARTFORD Feb. 6—(AP)—Extension for two years more of the time within which the Silica Railway and Transportation company may organize, offers the only visible prospect of an industrial boom for the town of North Stonington, the legislative committee on railroads, was told this afternoon.

Lantern Hill's silica deposits were near development a decade ago. Mr. Whittlesey told the committee, when the war and the abandonment of the Norwich and Westerly railroad halted the project. Mr. Wheeler secured spur tracks "by paying slightly more than their junk value," and has retained them and the franchise. During the past year, $6,000 has been spent, he said, in relocating parts of the railroad to effect grade crossing changes. The railroad, for which organization is planned as soon as the silica mines are operated, will connect the workings with Fort Point Junction, to tap the New York, New Haven and Hartford lines.

Dr. Meader, as special agent for the state board of education, effected sweeping revisions in Connecticut public schools, revising teacher-preparation requirements and re-writing student-study courses.

$2,000,000,000 SHRINKAGE IN QUOTED VALUE OF STOCKS

Reaction in New York Stock Exchange Caused by the Federal Reserve Board's Ultimatum Restraining Speculative Credit—Blocks of 5,000 to 20,000 Shares Were Dumped Into the Market at the Opening—At Least 50 Issues Closed at Net Declines of $5 to $35 Per Share.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—(AP)—Two billion dollars, or more, in quoted values were wiped out today in a sweeping reaction on the New York Stock exchange caused by the Federal Reserve board's ultimatum that speculative credit must be restrained and by the increase from 4 1-2 to 5 1-2 per cent in the Bank of England's discount rate, checking the flow of gold from London to New York.

Blocks of 5,000 to 20,000 shares were dumped into the market at the opening, with the result that initial declines in the active issues ranged from $3 to $17 a share. A recovery ensued before noon but it failed to hold and the market turned weak again in the last hour, with at least fifty issues closing at net declines of $5 to $35 a share.

Trading started off at a brisk pace, sales in the first two hours running above 2,500,000 shares, but it slowed down later. The day's sales were 8,211,000 shares as contrasted with the record breaking total of nearly 7,000,000 shares on November 23 last.

Governors of the exchange voted today to close the exchange on Saturday to afford relief to the personnel of member houses from the effects of sickness caused by the epidemic of influenza during recent months. Similar action was taken by the New York curb market.

Official announcement also was made today that the proposed 25 per cent increase in membership, adding 275 to the present total of 1100, had been approved.

Federal reserve brokers' loans, the mounting total of which inspired the reserve board's warning, announced after the close of the market, showed an increase of $110,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday, bringing the total to another new high record at $5,669,000,000. This compares with a total of $3,835,000,000 a year ago.

Directors of the New York Federal Reserve bank announced no change in the 5 per cent rediscount rate, which has been in effect since July 13, 1928.

Retention of the 5 per cent federal reserve rediscount rate was regarded by bankers as a desire on the part of federal reserve authorities to await the market's response to the board's warning before taking any further action to restrict credit. Some uneasiness was created, however, by the announcement that directors of the New York bank would hold a special meeting on Monday. The reserve board, in its statement, called attention to the possible detrimental effects on business of a continued rise in money rates.

To date, the building industry has been the chief sufferer through high money, several large projects being held up because of the high cost of financing mortgages in the present money market. Business and trade news generally has continued favorable, and has provided the background for many of the recent advances in stock prices.

The reaction in stock prices today, which was the worst that the market has experienced since the December break, was accompanied by a series of ordinarily bullish trade developments, some of which were not generally known, however, until after the market closed. These included a further advance of 1-4 of a cent a pound in the price of export copper, placing of the new General Motors common stock on a $3 annual basis, declaration of a 100 per cent dividend on the common stock of the Goldman Sachs Trading Corp., which has more than doubled in value since the public offering last December, and the announcement of merger of the General Gas & Electric corporation with the Associated Gas & Electric Co.

Measured by the Associated Press indices, 50 leading industrial stocks showed a net loss today of 7 points, 20 leading railroads dropped 2.6 points and 20 leading public utilities fell back 6.6 points.

The following table illustrates the extent of the decline in some of the popular issues:

	High	Low	Decline
Radio	410	354	35
Johns Manville	242¾	211½	19½
Wright Aero	299	270	13
General Electric	262¾	235½	12½

U S Steel common	192⅜	175½	6⅜

The decline on the New York stock exchange had a repercussion in all other securities markets throughout the country. DELVING INTO PAST OF TRENOR A. RICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW ROCHELLE, Feb. 7—According to statements made by Chief Frank Cote of the New Rochelle police department, and Albert J. Smythe of Yonkers, N. Y., Trenor A. Rice, now being held at the county jail at Brooklyn, Conn., for the murder of his benefactor, County Detective William E. Jackson, disappeared suddenly from his home here 14 years ago after being questioned by the police during an investigation of the murder of Charles L. Seacord, 50, a well-known cider peddler of Tuckahoe, N. Y. Seacord was killed on the night of Dec. 22, 1914, in Tuckahoe just across the line from New Rochelle.

At that time Rice was living in New Rochelle with his first wife, Mrs. Alberta Mae Smythe Rice, who he later divorced and who is now dead. The father of the former Mrs. Rice, Albert J. Smythe, superintendent of the Yonkers Nursery and at present resident of Yonkers, said that Rice had been quizzed after the murder and that he himself had been questioned as to Rice's movements in connection with the case. The murdered man had been peddling cider for the Christmas season during the day and was returning home, having nearly reached his destination when he was brutally assaulted. The body was found lying in the snow. Considerable money that the cider peddler had taken in during the day's business was untouched on his person.

The investigation was apparently delayed owing to a disagreement between the Tuckahoe and New Rochelle police as to which had jurisdiction over the case. With the exception of a new cap that was never traced to its owner, the police were without clues. Five or six weeks after the murder police of the two towns had patched their difficulties and were conducting an investigation. They learned that Seacord and his three sons, Leonard, Chester and Ellsworth, were figuring in family troubles, the young men having strained relations with the father. They also learned that Trenor A. Rice, now 37 years of age and known at the time as "Babe" Rice, was a pal of the three sons.

Rice was questioned and shortly afterwards left his home town, moving to Canterbury. The murder went down into the records as an unsolved mystery. All written records of the case, however, have since been destroyed and Chief Cote spoke from memory. Asked what he thought of Trenor Rice, Chief Cote asserted that Trenor and his brother, Frederick S. Rice, were considered as irresponsible boys in their youth.

An interesting revelation made during the inquiry was that Trenor Rice had not been christened until he was six or seven years of age. The nickname of "Babe" remained with him since his childhood. It was also learned that County Detective Edward J. Hickey of Hartford had been in New Rochelle two days this week, getting information on Rice's past life.

STEWART FACES DEFEAT AT HANDS OF ROCKEFELLER

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—(AP)—The battle of proxies by which control of the Standard Oil company of Indiana will be determined a month hence, today was heralded again by a barrage of statements reflecting the confidence of the warring Rockefeller and Stewart factions.

Associates of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who is seeking to oust Colonel Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the board, claimed they had proxies for 51 per cent. of the voting stock, but from the Stewart camp—in fact from the colonel himself—came the reply that such claims give him no concern and that the results of his own campaign were most encouraging.

The first shot in today's skirmish was contained in a statement from Winthrop W. Aldrich, an attorney and member of the proxy committee conducting the Rockefeller battle, who said 51 per cent. of the proxies had been obtained—six per cent. more than those necessary for victory.

Anti-Saloon League Supt. Called 'Big Bum'

R. N. Holsaple Fled Before Sergeant-at-Arms of Michigan Senate.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 7—(AP)—Besides being called a "big bum" on the floor of the state senate today and being forced to flee before a sergeant-at-arms called to eject him, the Rev. R. N. Holsaple, superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon league, heard a swan song sung over a bill designed to strengthen the so-called "life for a pint" law.

The measure, authorizing the attorney general to initiate criminal proceedings, was designed to prevent a recurrence of failure of the habitual criminal law such as occurred recently when a county prosecutor refused to file fourth offense information against a liquor law violator. Filing of the information automatically would have condemned the man to life imprisonment.

The bill was withdrawn from the senate Tuesday, by Senator Cass J. Jankowski when he learned, he said, that the bill was supported by Holsaple. He would sponsor no bill, he explained, approved by the dry league superintendent. Today the bill was killed by the senate judiciary committee.

Senator Jankowski called Mr. Holsaple a "big bum" today when the dry leader refused to leave the senate floor at the senator's demand. Holsaple retorted that Senator Jankowski "should be a judge of bums." He left, however, when the senator called to a sergeant-at-arms.

NEW ORLEANS ABLAZE FOR MARDI GRAS FESTIVAL

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 7—(AP)—The carnival spirit burst into the open tonight as Momus, king of mirth and laughter, led a blazing parade through the streets of the city officially inaugurating the annual festival of mardi gras.

The jolly king headed a procession of seventeen floats depicting the "sandman stories." Characters bedecked in masks and grotesque costumes tossed gifts to the children as bands floated stirring airs, young girls and boys skipped in the streets and the city gave itself to carnival abandon.

Tumultuous applause went up as the parade turned into Canal street and started down the lane of lights and bunting with Momus, majestic in his regal gowns, the sceptre of royalty in his hand, standing in the silver crescent of a moon drawn by four white swans.

Monday night the parade of Proteus will be held as a forerunner of the day of days, Tuesday, Mardi Gras day, when business ceases, the populace dons masks and takes to the streets for the merriest of America's most noted carnival.

FAIL TO FIND BODY OF 6-YEAR OLD MERIDEN GIRL

MERIDEN, Feb. 7—(AP)—An all-day search failed to locate the body of Beatrice Lyons, six, who was swept to her death this morning when she fell into the swift waters near the head of Harbor brook, which had been swollen far beyond its usual bounds by the heavy rainfall.

The brook runs under many factories and business buildings and after passing through the heart of the city empties into Hanover lake. It was at this point, where there is a waterfall, that searchers worked tonight in hope of finding the body.

Extensive damage was caused here by the rain and resultant floods. Cellars were filled in scores of buildings and three factories were forced by flooded fire rooms to suspend operations for the day.

KILLED FATHER TO PREVENT HIM FROM BEATING MOTHER

ROCHESTER, Minn., Feb. 7—(AP)—A 16-year-old boy, who told police he killed his father to prevent him from beating his mother, was held in jail today.

His father, he said, came home intoxicated, drove six other children out of the house, and attacked Mrs. Glasby.

He testified at the inquest that his father had committed suicide, he said, because he didn't want to disrupt the funeral plans.

CRUISER BUILDING BILL UP TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Without a Record Vote the House Accepted the Senate Amendments to the Naval Construction Bill and Sent the Measure to the White House—A Number of Senators and Representatives Predict That President Coolidge Will Sign the Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP)—Without a record vote the house today accepted senate amendments to the naval construction bill and sent the measure to the white house.

The bill proposes strengthening the nation's sea fighting forces by 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier and stipulates that work must be started on all the vessels by July 1, 1931. President Coolidge had urged elimination of this requirement but congress refused to accede to his views.

Mr. Coolidge has indicated his displeasure over retention of this provision but at the same time has been represented as feeling that this did not necessarily imply he would veto the legislation. A number of senators and house members today freely predicted he would approve the measure.

The building program, submitted to congress more than a year ago, is the last of the major administration measures before congress and its disposition today clears the calendars of all big legislative proposals with the exception of several of the annual batch of supply measures.

Final action on the naval program was taken by the house a few minutes after it convened at noon. Chairman Britten of the naval committee, called the measure up and asked unanimous consent for concurrence in amendments adopted by the senate, the major revision being the Borah-Reed proposal calling for an international agreement upon the rights of neutrals at sea during wartime.

Rep. Huddleston, democrat, Alabama, however, objected to Britten's request and the committee chairman then offered a motion that the house accept the senate changes. This was done in short order after a proposal by Huddleston had been rejected.

The Alabaman sought incorporation in the bill of a provision to give the president the authority to suspend any or all of the proposed construction in the event of an agreement being reached with Great Britain on the neutral rights proposal.

A year ago the house passed the bill by a vote of 287 to 57. At that time it embodied authority for the president to stop the building in the event of agreement between world powers on further naval limitation, this was retained by the senate.

The cruisers would be 10,000 tons each, the largest displacement permitted under the washington naval treaty except for aircraft carriers. Each nation was given a maximum tonnage for aircraft carriers and the navy department has indicated the carriers provided for in the bill will be of 13,800 tons displacement or less than half the size of the Lexington and Saratoga which have a displacement of 33,000 tons each.

If President Coolidge should sign the bill tomorrow or the next day, as some house members predict, Chairman Britten plans to incorporate $12,475,000 in the pending navy department appropriation bill to start work on five of the cruisers and the carrier. The total cost of the program has been placed at $274,000,000.

HINDUS AND MOSLEM PATHANS FIGHT IN BOMBAY

BOMBAY, Feb. 7—(AP)—Bombay experienced its fifteenth successive day of riots between Hindus and Moslem Pathans, but tonight military reinforcements had arrived and a meeting of citizens was assembled to support the authorities' efforts at restoring order.

Casualties today exceeded eighty. Most of them were Hindus, including seven wounded by bullets when troops fired on a mob.

The Pathans, who are of a war-like Afghan race threw away their clubs today, used knives and daggers. A Pathan, attacked in a base, killed four Hindus and wounded several others by expert use of his knife.

Late this afternoon a band of Pathans returning from the docks attacked a Hindu merchant who was seated in front of his shop. As they stabbed him to death, the owner of the next shop closed his shutters but the Pathans forced an entry and killed the second merchant and also the latter's son.

They looted the shops and then ran down the street spreading terror among other Hindus. A crowd of the latter joined police and soldiers in pursuit of the Pathans, but the murderers escaped.

STEWART BERATED IN SENATE BY NORRIS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP)—The battle between Robert W. Stewart and John D. Rockefeller for control of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana again came before the senate today as Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, called upon Stewart to explain his share of profits from the extinct Continental Trading company.

The Nebraskan lauded Mr. Rockefeller for his attempt to oust Stewart but he said that the oil magnate did not go far enough. He called upon Rockefeller "to accept the doctrine he preaches every Sunday to his Sunday school class and denounce these extortionate profits" of the oil companies.

Stewart, he declared, would have been "behind the bars long ago," on his indictment for perjury before a senate committee "if he had been an ordinary working man." Norris added "one hundred million dollars is pretty difficult, if not impossible, to convict" Stewart was acquitted of the perjury charge.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP)—The senate today added to the war department supply bill an appropriation of $3,654,000 to rebuild roads and bridges damaged in Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas during the Mississippi flood of 1927.

IMPROVEMENT IN SERVICE OF NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 7—(AP)—New England industry can afford to pay rates that will give New Haven railroad stockholders just as good a return as the average earned by New England industry, C. E. Smith, vice president of the New Haven railroad, in an address tonight at the annual meeting of the Engineers club of Bridgeport, at the University club. Mr. Smith declared he had "no patience with those who clamor for lower rates while the stockholders go without dividends."

He pointed out that during the last 15 years, the stockholders' investment in the railroad worked for the public for nothing, as there were no dividends. All earnings were placed back into the property, and as a result, the deaths incident to its operation were reduced from 400 to 100 per year, and service has been improved proportionately, Mr. Smith declared.

PETITION FOR CLEMENCY FOR SLAYER OF OBREGON

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 7—(AP)—A petition for clemency delivered at the presidential palace this morning urges Emilio Portes Gil to set an international example by repudiating capital punishment and commuting the sentence of Jose de Leon Toral to life imprisonment.

The counsel for the defense declare that Toral killed President-elect Obregon while under an obsession which easily dominated his weak mind. They hold that he should be classed as "semi-insane," and hence semi-responsible for the assassination. They declare that there is an increasing sentiment throughout the world and that Mexico has now an opportunity to place itself at the head of the movement.

WOULD RENEW CONFERENCES ON $24,000,000 DRY FUND

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP)—Still hoping to save the deficiency appropriation bill, congressional leaders were seeking tonight to bring about a renewal of conferences between the senate and house on the $24,000,000 prohibition increase which has halted solution so far.

After Chairman Warren of the senate appropriations committee informed the senate today of the deadlock over the increase in dry funds voted by the senate, Senator Harris, democrat of Georgia, sponsor of the proposal, gave notice he would add the prohibition item to the next deficiency bill to come along if this measure failed. Hopes for compromise were held out tonight in some quarters.

DIVERSION OF WATERS OF THE SWIFT RIVER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—Although no official information can be quoted regarding diversion of waters of the Swift river into the Boston reservoir, there is strong reason to assert that some of the water will be thus diverted under reports of the army engineers. It is stated on good authority the report now at the war department advocates a certain amount can safely be diverted without injury to Connecticut interests but not the full amount claimed of Massachusetts. The district and division engineers agreed on a report now filed here but probably not made public until next week.

ROMAN CONCORDAT IS TO BE SIGNED SUNDAY

Rome, Feb. 7—(AP)—Conclusion of an agreement between the Holy See and Italy, settling the question raised by the fall of the papal states and providing in detail for the future relations between church and state, was formally announced by Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, today to the vatican diplomatic body.

The cardinal and Premier Mussolini will sign the agreement and concordat on Sunday afternoon at the Lateran palace. Simultaneously the pope will distribute to the cardinals the printed text of the documents. These will be published on Monday in the Italian press, which has not even alluded to the negotiations over the Roman question.

DANIELSON

H. E. BACK, JR., SAILS SAT. ON TRIP TO ORIENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 7—Harry E. Back, Jr., son of Attorney and Mrs. Harry E. Back, left here today and on Saturday will sail from New York on a trip that will take him to Egypt and thence during the course of the spring and summer through various countries of Europe. Mr. Back is to accompany Price McKinney, 16, member of a wealthy Cleveland, O., family. Young McKinney was graduated from high school at Watertown last June with high honors and has passed his entrance examinations for Yale, but is not to enter the university until next fall. The trip abroad, under the guidance of Mr. Back, is to broaden the youth's education. Mr. Back previously has acted as tutor for the young man's brother, Regan McKinney, and is highly esteemed by Mrs. McKinney, mother of the boys.

The itinerary calls for leaving New York this week end on an Italian liner bound for Naples, but with a day's stop scheduled at Algiers. From Naples they will proceed to Alexandria, Egypt, make a trip up the Nile and then return to Naples to start a motor tour of Italy, using a car that Mr. McKinney is taking along. They are to visit Florence, Rome, Pisa, Venice and other historic cities. From Venice they will cross northern Italy to Genoa and proceed to Marseilles. At that point they will leave the automobile before starting a tour of Switzerland, the non-uniform motoring laws of that country making travel difficult by machine for foreign motorists.

Completing their travels in Switzerland they will return to Marseilles for a motor trip into Spain as far as Barcelona, thence across the Pyrenees to Bordeaux and to Paris. From the latter city they will proceed to England and attend the spring races, the McKinney family being particularly interested in highly bred horses and in breeding and racing them. Their further travels will take them on a tour of Ireland, Scotland and Wales and then back to Paris to start a motor trip through Belgium, Holland, Germany, including the Rhine country.

This will be the last tour of the trip and upon completing it they will sail for the United States to arrive before the opening of the fall term at Yale.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Eli St. John

Mrs. Fannie St. John, 59, wife of Eli St. John, died today at their home on the Frank Warren farm at Killingly Center. Mrs. St. John had been in failing health for a long time. She was a native of Woodstock, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bickford. In addition to her husband, she leaves two children by a former marriage, Mrs. Archie Cotton and Walter Hopkins, both of East Killingly; two sisters, Mrs. Ella Bromley, who has faithfully cared for her during her illness and Mrs. Carrie Thornton, resident in Rhode Island. There are also four grandchildren, Walter Marcotte, Ella Cotton, Gladys and Mildred Hopkins.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Karah Ennis

This afternoon at the home in Brooklyn private funeral services for Mrs. Karah Ennis, widow of Charles Ennis, were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church, Danielson. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Thomas O. Talbot, Everett T. Tillinghast, Jabez Brown and George O. Thomas. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Reference in a press despatch out of Hartford in today's papers relative to the number of cemeteries in Killingly, which with 67, has more burial places than any other town of Connecticut, conjures up memories of many of these little out of the way resting places of the dead. There are various reasons for this town being so plentifully supplied with cemeteries. First, it is an old town, incorporated 221 years ago. Secondly, its centers of population have changed completely with the passing years. Again, in the long ago, it was the custom of various families and groups of related families to maintain private cemeteries. These family burial grounds are found in numbers in various parts of town, but more particularly in the eastern and northeastern sections. In numbers of them there have been no burials or very few burials in a generation or more. Some of them contain as few as a dozen graves. Some of them are hidden away in what has become heavily wooded country, though once open land, and the whereabouts of them known only to comparatively few people. Sidney R. Bard visited all of the town's cemeteries in his work of seeking graves of the soldier dead, and much information pertaining to them was assembled through his activities.

Whereas areas about East Killingly had many residents, largely engaged in agriculture, when Danielson was showing only early signs of development those areas later were largely abandoned. Meanwhile, however, many of those who had lived around "old Kentuck" and other regions thereabouts had passed on and lie at rest in some of the cemeteries that go to make up the 67 in the town. As an instance of the changing areas of population it may be mentioned there is now heavily wooded land north of Old Killingly pond where trees that appear to be of at least 50 years growth have their roots in what remains of the cellars over which comfortable homes once stood.

Danielson, among others, has two small cemeteries rarely ever used and now about surrounded by homes. One of these is on Hutchins street, the other on Franklin street.

What is now generally termed influenza has made a mass attack on the inmates of the town farm at Dayville. Eight were ill there today and under the care of a physician. At least one of the cases is so serious as to cause concern that it may end fatally. Everything possible is being done to make the patients at the farm as comfortable as is possible.

The report of certified public accountants who went over the books of the town of Killingly a few weeks ago, checking back for a period of six years, has been received by Chairman E. L. Darbie. What its contents are will not be revealed by Mr. Darbie until he arranges a meeting of the special committee of the town appointed to employ certified public accountants and obtain a report. It was said this afternoon that a meeting of this committee may be held on Friday.

F. E. Bitgood today entered a Boston hospital to undergo a surgical operation.

During the Lenten season Rev. J. Rees Jones of St. Alban's church will preach mid-week sermons at Episcopal churches in Plainfield, Putnam, Pomfret and Willimantic.

Many were in attendance tonight at a whist and dance arranged by the Telephone Employes' association in the rooms of the Danielson Girls' club. There were delegations from Putnam, Norwich and Moosup.

Floyd Ennis was reported today as remaining critically ill at the home in Brooklyn.

George Day, an elderly resident of Danielson, became ill while in Putnam and is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in that city.

Frederick Gingras of Dayville has gone to New York to undergo treatment intended to benefit his hearing.

Albert Messier, who conducted a taxi business here for years, remains as a patient at the eterans' hospital in Newport.

Miss Kathleen Burns, a former resident of Danielson, now of Hartford, has been a visitor here.

Members of Leo J. L'Homme post and its auxiliary will be in Putnam Sunday afternoon to attend the Fourth district meeting of units of the American Legion.

In excess of an inch of rain fell over this territory in the storm that started early yesterday evening and continued through the greater part of today.

The epidemic has been responsible, it develops, for numbers of the cases developing in which financial aid has been asked from the town. Wage earners have all been ill at the same time in some families, and some of these families had no cash reserves whatever.

Nash ("Doc") Oatley, a famous old time hunter and fisherman, one of the best known in eastern Connecticut, is critically ill at the town farm in Dayville, where he was recently taken from his home in East Killingly.

Mrs. L. S. Ingalls is to have the members of the Rounabout club at her home for a meeting Friday afternoon.

OBITUARY

Rev. John Rice Pratt

Rev. John Rice Pratt, pastor of the Congregational church at Brooklyn, died at his home in that town this afternoon after a long illness. He had been pastor of the church for nearly seven years and, during his residence there, had built up a wide acquaintance in eastern Windham county. He was a graduate of New York university. Rev. Mr. Pratt was born in Milford, N. Y., July 21, 1870, a son of Spencer C. and Anna H. Brown Pratt. He leaves his wife, two sons, Arthur Curtis and Robert Meredith, and also two brothers, Charles S. of Los Angeles, and Arthur V. of Flushing, N. Y. Prior to coming to Brooklyn, Rev. Mr. Pratt had held a pastorate for years at Verona, N. J. He was a member of the Masonic lodge of that community.

PUTNAM

NO SELECTION OF SITE FOR HOSPITAL YET, C. OF C. TOLD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 7—Contrary to an announcement made last week, it was learned today that no definite site has been chosen for the location of the Veterans hospital slated for some community in Southern New England, by an act of congress. Last week an announcement was made in a local publication, to the effect taht General Hines, chief of the federal hospitalization board and veterans bureau had recommended to the board sites situated between New Haven and Hartford.

President Walter N. King, of the Putnam chamber of commerce has been informed by the secretary of the federal board, that the Putnam committee may rest assured they will be notified as to the exact date of any meeting of the board, when further consideration will be given to the matter of selecting a general location for the hospital.

It is apparent that the Washington group of officials are planning to devote more time to locations within Rhode Island and Connecticut, since the secretary states in his letter to President King, that notices will be sent out as to the dates when hearings will be granted to congressional delegations from these two states. It is presumed that no definite site will be selected from the scores submitted, until hearings have been given the delegations from Rhode Island and the Nutmeg state.

This consoling bit of information received from the capitol in Washington is hopeful as well as inspirational to the Putnam committees.

The monthly meeting of the town school committee was held last evening at the law offices of Torrey and Geissler on Main street. The month's business was light, there being but one problem of major interest reaching the board. Supt. of Schools Leon M. Ferrin, in his monthly communication to the school board informed the members of one complaint from the parents of a child enrolled in the Israel Putnam school, regarding the crowded conditions existing in one of the higher grades, and wished some action be taken to relieve the situation. This complaint is the only one of its nature this year and to remedy conditions now, it would be necessary to employ another teacher. This could not be accomplished for at least another month, and would result in the breaking up of a class in the middle of a semester. The school committee was not wholly in favor of the motion and the matter was left for future discussions. Expenses for the current month were tabulated, read in open meeting and were voted to be paid.

The new industries committee of the Putnam chamber of commerce are still active and daily are renewing their efforts to induce new manufacturers to locate their plants in positions offered in this city. Developments are going forward but no definite statements were available today.

The contract for the printing of the municipal register for the year 1928 has been awarded to a local printing establishment by Mayor Chas. A. Richards. Two bids for the work were submitted, the lowest price being $1.40 a page.

A few weeks ago there came an announcement to the effect that insurance rates in this city has been reduced 10 per cent., the new rate to apply at once, on all new policies. The reason for the sudden drop in rates has been explained by Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston. According to Chief Thurston the new rate is applicable only upon two story blocks and dwelling houses. This is due, not because of the reduced risk in Putnam but of the greatly reduced risks on buildings of this nature in Connecticut at large. The chief of the fire department has explained that in the event of a number of great fire losses in other sections of the state, the rates will be increased all over the state to make up for the deficit.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Thomas Duffy.

Funeral services were held this morning at St. Mary's church for Mrs. Thomas Duffy, who died Tuesday at her home on Pomfret street. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Thomas McGarry, of Arcadia, formerly of Putnam, with Rev. Joseph D. Casey, curate at St. Mary's, deacon and Rev. Ernest J. Boileau, sub-deacon. In the sanctuary of the church was Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's, who acted as master of ceremonies. The choir sang the Gregorian chant at the mass. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and committal services at the grave were conducted by Rev. Father McGarry and Rev. Father Bellerose. The bearers were Bernard J. McGarry, Thomas F. Ryan, William Murray and Fred Mathieu.

The democratic national committeeman, Edward J. Keegan of Thompson, today purchased the Lawrence Keegan textile mills in Wilsonville at a sheriff's auction this morning, paying a sum of $26,000 in exchange for the plant. Besides acquiring the mills Mr. Keegan, by terms of the sale came into possession of the Wilsonville post office, several dwelling houses and a number of acres of land.

The property was offered for sale by Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of Dayville to foreclose a judgment lien against Edward J. Keegan and others in favor of the Webster National bank.

With the purchase of the mills come word that the new ownership is also prepared to commence manufacturing on one of the largest scales the mill has seen in several years since they are in possession of many orders for production of woolen goods.

The Keegan mills are situated in Wilsonville on the French river, and were established several years ago by the father of the new owner.

The first turn to dramatics by the entire student body of Putnam High school will take place in April when the pupils of the institution present the operetta "Gypsy Rover", in the high school auditorium. Miss Ernestine Mitchell, musical supervisor of the city educational department will direct the presentation.

This operetta will be given in modern dress. A large chorus composed of boys and girls of the glee clubs will furnish the vocal background. Principals taking part are: Meg, an old Gypsy woman, Elizabeth Bennett; Zara, the belle of the camp, Helen Varbedian; Mario, Meg's husband, George Holbrook; Sinfo, a Gypsy lad in love with Zara, Donald McLearn; Rob, afterwards Sir Gilbert Howe, the last heir to the Howe fortune, Leo Pomirville; Lady Constance, daughter of Sir George Martindale, Alexine Rothwell; Lord Cravey, an English noble, Leonard Shepherd; Sir George Martindale, an English gentlemen, Russell Sherman; Nina, Sir George's second daughter, Rita Stone; Captain Jerome, an English army officer, Thomas DeBerdinis; Sir Toby Leon, an English commoner, Sir Francis McCortle, a song publisher of London, Ellis Haines.

The Putnam Woolen company, one of the city's oldest manufacturing plants is about to commence a night and day shift, as the result of a quantity of orders which were received at the plant during the earlier part of this week.

A light rain storm, followed by a warm wave, and dense fog, sent the thermometer to staggering heights today and resulted in the few remaining patches of the last snow storm passing away. The mercury at noon time reached its highest point of 54 degrees. Ice on the ponds and other smaller bodies of water dwindled under the warm wave attack, yet local ice dealers laughed, because the prank played by the weather man so many times this season was on himself today, since all of the ice houses are now filled to capacity, as the result of two weeks of harvesting.

Wednesday evening brought a freezing rainstorm with an aftermath of icy streets and highways. Information from the Day Kimball hospital and local police station was to the effect that there were no accidents.

JEWETT CITY

THIEF AT DEARNLEY'S STORE TOOK GARTERS AND POWDER

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 7—Some time during Wednesday night burglars broke into R. W. Dearnley's store. Whoever did the job got away with several hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise, taken from the dry goods and men's furnishing departments. Among the articles stolen, according to the check up made today by the state troopers from the Danielson barracks, and the owner, were silk ties, men's silk scarfs and soft shirts several dozens of each.

On the other counters a number of fancy toilet cases were raided and from these the powder puffs only were taken. Three boxes of women's silk garters were among the loot.

The thief showed some remarkable preference for the couple of dozen shirts taken, for among the stock only size 16 would do. Other sizes were thrown in a heap on the floor.

Entrance was gained through a rear door, with the evident use of a jimmy or pinch bar. Under cover of a howling storm, the burglar feared no molestation, as an outside electric lamp was burning only a few feet away. Plenty of finger prints were recorded by the trooper. Heretofore, among the seven breaks that have occurred since Mr. Dearnley has ben connected with the store, there has been the conclusion that several of them was the work of petty thieves. This break has every characteristic of a different job.

The biggest sale that ever happened in the history of Jewett City begins this (Friday) morning at 9 at Elias Anthony's. $25,000 in fine mdse. to be sold below cost, regardless of loss. Come early. Take advantage of great sale.—adv.

DOG WARDEN GETS BUSY TO END BIG NUISANCE

William R. Palmer, dog warden for Griswold, in response to seven different complaints received this month began Wednesday what he intends to be a clean-up of the dozens of roaming dogs that have become a decided nuisance about the borough streets. Among the number of reports, were several of a most revolting nature. Mr. Palmer took away two female dogs, without either collar or tag.

Thursday a check-up was being made relative to information which may lead to the discovery of persons owning dogs contrary to law.

While taking in one of the female dogs, a big Airedale grabbed the warden by the leg. One dog is alive today that wouldn't have been had Mr. Palmer carried his gun.

NOANK

PARTY FOR CHAS. BANKS ON HIS THIRD BIRTHDAY

Mrs. George Banks entertained Wednesday afternoon at her home on Pearl street, celebrating her son Charles' third birthday. The room was prettily decorated in blue and white. Favors were given out. A large birthday cake with three candles was in the center of the table. The little boy received many gifts. Games were played and refreshments were served. Those present were: Mrs. George Truss and daughter, Beverley, from Mystic; Mrs. Fred Green and son, Fred; Mrs. Mary Horton, Mrs. Harold Fox and son, Robert, from Mystic; Nelson Reid, Mrs. Edna Thompson, Mrs. William Tourjee and son, Bramon.

Whites Win Game

The Reds and the Whites basketball teams composed of girls of the Baptist Sunday school, played a fast game in the Town hall recently. The Whites won, 16 to 6. H. Darling was high scorer for the Whites with six points, while M. Chesebro held the honors for the Reds with four points. The lineup for the Whites was: Rf, H. Darling; Lf, M. Garistensen; c, B. Christensen; rg, A. Pezzolesse; lg, B. Brown. For the Reds: Rf, G. Bracey; lf, B. Smith; c, M. Chesebro; rg, H. Clarke; lg, G. Haynes. The Speedboys also played the Baptist church team and the Speedboys won by a score of 15-12.

The Silver Link society of the Methodist Episcopal church held a meeting at the home of Mrs. John Horford on Potter court. After the meeting an hour was spent in sewing, after which refreshments were served.

He was saved by Fintan Cooran, who jumped in and got him to the bank. The Connaught Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals presented certificates and money to Morris for saving the nine lives of the cat and to Cooran for saving the one allotted to Morris.

STONINGTON

MEN WHO STOLE CAR CAUGHT BY THE POLICE OF NEW YORK

The Bousa Garage, 36 Cutler street, was broken into some time during Tuesday night and a 1925 Dodge sedan and $37 in cash were taken. Entrance was effected through the window on the north side of the building. The two young men who did the act were arrested in New York Wednesday. While the search was under way, Deputy Sheriff Nelson Brown, of Noank, received a call from detectives of the New York automobile squad that the car had ben recovered in that city. The deputy sheriff informed Lieut. Henry J. Albright of the Groton barracks and State Trooper George Webber left Wednesday afternoon to question the two men. Provided they were willing to waive extradition to this state, the trooper was to return them to Stonington for trial.

Mrs. Albert Miller and Mrs. Elias Clay are spending the week in New York.

Judge Billings B. Fairbrother and Dr. James H. Weeks were callers in Norwich Wednesday.

FORD WALKED TWO MILES TO THE EDISON ESTATE

FT. MYERS, Fla., Feb. 7—(AP)—Henry Ford, arriving for his winter vacation today, was so eager to see his old friend and former boss, Thomas A. Edison, that he hastened from his train to walk two miles direct to the Edison estate.

Ford's home is next to the Edison estate but instead of going there the Detroit manufacturer turned in at the Edison gate, walked to the wizard's new laboratory and without being announced leaned over the desk where the aged inventor was checking some rubber experiments.

Mr. Edison looked up in surprise and then jumping to his feet, placed his arm on Mr. Ford's shoulder, expressing delight at the visit, and arm and arm, the two inventors inspected the equipment of the laboratory where both expect to carry on experimental work this winter.

After looking over the work bench, which Edison has installed for Ford's labors in the laboratory, the two crossed the street and entered Edison's ten acre rubber experimental tract. The old cronies inspected the plants from which the electrical genius hopes to find a domestic rubber supply for this country.

EDUCATION RESEARCH PRESENTS PROBLEMS

BALTIMORE,—(AP)—The way of the education research worker, striving to find more effective means of teaching the children in public schools, is strewn with many human problems.

His job, as viewed by John L. Stenquist of the Baltimore public schools, does not end with discovery of reasons and remedies for failure among various groups of children.

It is better to have a heart of oak than a wooden head.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

THE SECRETARY OF STATE?

Something more than mere guesswork was apparently the basis for the claim that Governor General Stimson was coming home from the Philippines to be a member of the Hoover cabinet. This is indicated by the statement which is attributed to Colonel Stimson in which he admits that he is going to take up new work in the Hoover administration.

Not only is the governor general regarded as definitely slated for a post in the next cabinet but it is believed he will be the secretary of state. Additional support is given to this view from the fact that it has not been denied by Mr. Hoover, as has been the case when wild guesses have been made, or mis-statements put forward.

What lends further strength to the belief is the fact that Colonel Stimson has been recommended for that office by Elihu Root and Charles E. Hughes both of whom have been conspicuous secretaries of state and whose advice under the circumstances could not be idly disregarded.

Mr. Stimson has all the qualifications for the post. His record is a most creditable one. He is a lawyer of marked ability, having served as United States district attorney for the southern part of New York under President Roosevelt, was candidate for governor of New York in 1910, secretary of war in the cabinet of President Taft, served as lieutenant of artillery in France, was mediator for President Coolidge in Nicaragua and has been most successful as governor general in the Philippines.

Thus if, as indicated, he is to be the next secretary of state there will be good reasons for applauding the choice made by Mr. Hoover. He has had certain cabinet experience that will be helpful while his method of dealing with the problem in Nicaragua and the manner in which he has adjusted differences in the Philippines show what may be expected from him in the handling of foreign problems. The secretary of state holds a most responsible position but it is certain that Colonel Stimson can measure up to the requirements and will prove as skillful in handling those duties as he has been in meeting other difficult situations.

CROSSING THE ATLANTIC.

When we think of crossing the Atlantic faster we have in mind the flying machine as the means of transportation, but the time hasn't as yet come when the steamships are being abandoned. Even though airplanes have successfully crossed the ocean and the claim is made that within ten years there will be transatlantic lines operating on regular schedules, it is certain that it will be a long, long time before they will make any serious inroads into the passenger lists of the liners.

There are already available some large and expensive vessels for ocean travel, but there is sufficient business in sight and such a demand for accommodations that many of the lines are making plans for the future by constructing larger and faster vessels. They are after the business that is known to exist.

We haven't heard much of late concerning that group of men in this country who wanted to get sufficient government assistance to construct vessels that would make the crossing in four days from some New England point. The idea may not be given up but whatever has become of it has not discouraged others from going ahead.

One British line has a 60,000 ton ship under construction which will have engines capable of making 28 knots an hour, while another British line is planning to outdistance its competitor by building a bigger and faster ship, one that will be 1000 feet in length. Two german ships have been launched that will make 27 knots although their tonnage will be only 46,000.

The 27 knot ship is much sought these days for while the French are building one of 50,000 tons of that speed the Italians are soon to put two in commission, both of which will be rated as 27 knoters.

Thus faster crossings of the Atlantic do not depend solely upon the flying machines. The steamship has not gotten to the point where it cannot be speeded up and there is everything to indicate now that it will always be able to command an adequate amount of business as long as a reasonable amount of speed, the proper degree of luxury and a high degree of safety can be assured.

BORDER CROSSERS.

It is inevitable that immigration and border crossing problems should be brought forth with the demand that means of settlement be provided. There are those who are crossing both borders against the laws of this country and for the purpose of getting into the United States without observing the regulations.

There are also those who come into the country for the purpose of employment both from Canada and Mexico, and at the present time there is being considered in Washington a bill which would prevent the indiscriminate crossing of the borders by aliens. The bill is proposed by Congressman Box of Texas who apparently has in mind those Mexicans who come into the United States for the purpose of working in the fields during the harvest season, although it would also apply to Canadians on the northern border.

Such a bill will of course get careful scrutiny before it is acted upon, even in committee. Consideration will have to be given to any possible conflict with existing treaties and naturally there must be thought given to the effect it might have upon the agricultural industry. Getting sufficient farm hands in the harvest season has always been a big problem. Too often is the case that they are not to be on hand in sufficient numbers when wanted. It is then that many which may come from Mexico are of great value in handling crops. If sufficient help could be gotten in this country there would be no need of placing dependence upon those from other countries but the farmers are not always so fortunate.

Such however would not indicate that there ought to be an unlimited number of border crossers without some arrangement whereby it was known that they were not using that as an excuse for locating permanently in this country. There are restrictions governing that which need to be carefully observed. Perhaps those in Texas are more aware of that than those living farther from the border, but that should be carefully brought out in the committee hearing. It is a measure which seems to have little chance of being squeezed through at this session of congress.

"ONE-EYED" CARS.

Because there have been many accidents in which "one-eyed" autos have been involved, the police of Boston are conducting a campaign to stop the practice of driving automobiles with only one light. In that city it is the belief that the way to put an end to it is to bring the drivers into court.

Cars that are being driven with only one light are by no means confined to Boston. They are frequently seen in other cities and on the country highways, and there is no denying the fact that they are more or less of a menace to the other fellow since they are frequently taken for a motorcycle or there is misjudgment as to which side of the machine is not in commission.

The "one-eyed" car is frequently being driven with more than usual caution, the driver recognizing his handicap and endeavoring to get home without causing trouble to anyone, but there are probably many instances where the lack of one light is not recognized by drivers. Such instances like the absence of a tail light ought to be called to the attention of a driver whenever seen. They are entitled to a warning of such a deficiency and the demand that it be immediately fixed, quite the same as the driver who gets into his car and neglects to turn on his lights. Driving through city streets he does not notice the lack of lights but his car gives no warning to those crossing the street or to other drivers.

It can hardly be said that all are wilful violators of the regulations, but every driver without lights or with only one should be promptly reminded.

CORRECTING A MISTAKE.

Because of the imprisonment of people for life for offenses which were not intended to be included under the habitual criminal law, efforts are being made in the Michigan legislature to correct the situation.

Much publicity has been gained in that state in recent months because men and women have been sent to prison for life because their fourth, or perhaps all four, of their offenses involved the liquor law. It was not expected at the time the habitual criminal law was adopted that a violator of the liquor law was a felony. As such it was and to the surprise of many in that state it has been possible to give such violators life imprisonment on a fourth conviction. This was so contrary to the purpose of the law when enacted that the action which is now being taken has been under consideration for some time.

Liquor law violations can be dealt with adequately without any such severe and unintended sentence. That penalty is all out of proportion to those for serious crimes and it is the purpose in the plan now before the legislature to remove liquor law violations and many other offenses of a minor nature from the list of felonies and make it possible to impose the life sentence for habitual criminals only when the fourth conviction has been obtained in a case that calls for a maximum penalty of five years.

This means a modification of the Michigan law, if adopted, but only such a change as is justified. It is an effort to correct a situation that was not contemplated when the habitual criminal law was enacted, and if successful should be followed by an immediate modification of those life sentences which have been imposed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If we can judge by the Congressional Record every session of congress is a long one.

Even a February rain can be a wonderful ice remover, as more than the icemen know.

The man on the corner says: Now that we are well into the second month how are the new resolutions riding?

In noticing the increase in the length of the days you are probably anticipating the time when daylight saving will be with us again.

The governor of New York state is asking for a reduction in the cost of living but he didn't set the ball in motion by presenting a reduced budget and asking for a cut in taxes.

TRAILING ARBUTUS

"My dear," breathed Mrs. Herbert T. Arbuckle frankly as her next door neighbor, Mrs. Goldsworth, swept down beside her on the suburban train and Mrs. Goldsworth's stylish young woman companion sought another seat farther down the aisle. "I'm so glad to see you. I suppose you're bound for some exclusive shop as usual."

"I like to get my shopping done early," replied Mrs. Goldsworth affably, settling herself in the straw seat, "but this isn't so early at that—10 o'clock."

"It's quite early for me," remarked Mrs. Arbuckle, whose veracity was not always quite equal to her facile imagination. "I rarely manage to get up before 10.30 or 11," she continued, eying her neighbor's spring raiment appraisingly, "so this seems exceptionally early for me. What a sweet bag! Imported, I suppose?"

"No," said Mrs. Goldsworth, "it isn't, but I'm glad you like it."

"How quaint," tittered Mrs. Arbuckle. "Really, it's intriguing, the things you can pick up right here in Chicago sometimes if you're a connoisseur of values. I always say to Mr. Arbuckle, 'Herbert,' I say, 'we must go to Paris and Rome every so often—everybody does—but what we buy over there will be objects d'art or old masters. We can buy our clothes right here in America.' And he always says, 'You're right, as usual, Arbutus.'"

"I like American art objects, too," said Mrs. Goldsworth. "By the way, have you seen the pictures by the south side artists at Smith's gallery on 57th street?"

"Smith's gallery?" inquired Mrs. Arbuckle ruminatively. "Oh, yes, in that big new arcade building—"

"Smith's," enlightened Mrs. Goldsworth, "has been located in an old World's Fair building alongside an alley for 20 years. But they have lovely things."

"So glad you told me," said Mrs. Arbuckle. "I must run up there some day when I have time. And take some one along — probably Paulette Protheroe—you know, the girl who created such a furore last year by capturing that young English nobleman?"

"Oh, do you know her?" inquired Mrs. Goldsworth interestedly.

"Quite well, my dear, quite well," returned Mrs. Arbuckle. "But as I was saying, you've no idea how busy I am—just worn out attending to all my social obligations. I tell Mr. Arbuckle every day, 'Herbert,' I tell him 'we must run down to Biloxi for a few days, if only to give me a breathing space.' And he always says, 'You're absolutely right about it, Arbutus.'"

"I enjoy Biloxi very much," replied Mrs. Goldsworth. "But its funny nothing ever compares with good old Lake Michigan for me. Chicago's our home, you know, and wherever I go I'm always glad to get back here."

"Weird isn't it, what a hold one's home has on one," sighed Mrs. Arbuckle. "Chicago's my home, too, and I always tell Mr. Arbuckle when we get back here—in fact, I said to him recently, when we returned from Biarritz—'Herbert,' I remarked, 'Italy delightful, but there's something about America—' What an interesting ensemble suit, my dear. Mauve is just your color. It's mine too. I always tell my husband that when he chooses a gift for me he should select something in tan. Did you attend Mrs. Van Patten's reception Wednesday to meet the Hungarian consul?"

"No," said Mrs. Goldsworth. "I was sorry to miss it, but my youngest child came down with the measles. How was the reception?"

"Well, as I always tell Herbert after going places like that," replied Mrs. Arbuckle, suppressing a slight yawn with a white kid gloved hand, "they're all right if you're not used to them, but they get to be an awful bore if you attend too many. But Paulette Protheroe was there. It had been a long time since I'd seen her, in fact, not since her wedding. So I was glad to chat about old times."

"I've always admired Paulette," remarked Mrs. Goldsworth. "I was glad to see her get such a fine husband. He's making a name for himself as a lawyer."

"Doesn't care about the title at all, they say," confided Mrs. Arbuckle. "I always say to my husband, 'Herbert,' I say, 'I'm glad that, in spite of your money and position, you're a real man.' Paulette is like that, too. She probably will come to my house before returning to England for the winter season, and when we go abroad next time we'll no doubt visit her in London."

"Van Buren street next," called the conductor just as the young woman who had come in with Mrs. Goldsworth, rising to leave the train, started over to join her. Mrs. Arbuckle turned again to her neighbor.

"Charming young woman, your friend there," she remarked sweetly. "Who is she?"

"Oh," said Mrs. Goldsworth pleasantly, "she's one of my old college chums—Paulette Protheroe."—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Brains Not "Bedside Manner" Physician's Best Qualification

By LeRoy S. Peters, M. D. Albuquerque, N. M.

Do you know that 80 per cent of tuberculosis patients discharged from one institution of excellent standing die within three years of discharge?

Do you know that the majority of cavity cases only live on an average of fifteen months after the discovery of the cavity?

Do you know that 60 per cent of the cases coming to the desert country in search of climate are in the far advanced stage of the disease?

Do you know that 47 per cent of these patients die within six months of arrival?

And, further, do you know the why of all this slaughter of human lives?

The answer is: Lack of early diagnosis. Tuberculosis to be cured must be diagnosed early. Ninety per cent of early type cases get well. The other 70 per cent die because of poor advice, or because they did not take good advice.

Take an inventory of your health each year and slip an extra one in before the year is up if you do not feel up to par.

Choose your physician, not for his bedside manner, but for his brains and ability; if you choose wisely, he will refer you to the proper specialist if he himself does not know. In this way your tuberculosis, or any other beginning disease, will be picked up early and your chances of being made well increased a hundredfold.

Many good authorities state that any child who is ten per cent or more underweight is a tuberculous suspect until he has proved otherwise. For instance, Dr. Felix J. Underwood, Mississippi State Health Officer, says that to prove this it is necessary, first, for the child to have the tuberculin test, which only shows by its reaction that the child has at one time been infected; or if he does not react to the test he has no infection; and second, he must have a complete physical examination. "This not only brings to light tuberculosis, but oftentimes reveals other defects, such as bad tonsils and teeth, hookworm, and marked nervous conditions," he says. "Third, he must have an x-ray examination of his chest, which will not only show tuberculosis of the lung proper, but will reveal tuberculosis of the glands, which are part of the lung itself. It is very desirable to discover tuberculosis in this latter stage before it involves the lung tissue. Glandular tuberculosis is most easily cured. To recognize the disease at this early stage means the saving of the lives of many children and the prevention of many cases of active tuberculosis in after life."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Country Roads

Mr. Editor: The editorial entitled Country Roads which recently appeared in the Norwich Bulletin, seems to have struck a chord of satisfaction to many readers of The Bulletin who live in the country towns. It is also a sense of satisfaction to know that many of our city friends are in accord with us when we appeal to Commissioner Macdonald to help improve the terrible dilemma which exists in every rural community. Nearly every home in the rural towns owns an automobile and pays for the license, tax and gas and oil consumed. Why should not they have some decent road within their town to ride over?

Take Ledyard for instance. A town meeting was held. An appropriation was voted. A road leading from Preston line to Groton line was established. The selectmen signed the contract which was forwarded to the commissioner. (All of the above suggestions were carried out according to instructions from the commissioner). Some surveying was done from the Groton line to Ledyard Center and that was the end of the state aid gravel road that was to run through the center of the town from Preston line to the Groton line.

Perhaps our children may see this new road mature but we older people would like to see some improvement over the present conditions before we pass on. It is high time that the men sent to Hartford to represent our towns should see that some law is passed to benefit the traveling conditions in the rural towns. If these representatives are swayed by eloquence of a few who do not care a rap for the country towns then let us send men that will stand up for right and justice to the country towns. Every rural mail carrier who delivers mail to his patrons knows the horrid conditions of some of these country roads. They are either rutty or muddy and will remain that way until next spring. The country people do not expect their main highways to be all improved at one time, but a start could be made by the commissioner and a better feeling towards him would exist.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Nanny is Wiser Than Danny.

By Thornton W. Burgess

The wise know when to be afraid,
And every warning is obeyed.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny Meadow Mouse hastened to tell Nanny Meadow Mouse that he suspected that Roughleg, the Hawk was keeping special watch of the places where Reddy Fox had dug in the snow after Meadow Mice.

"We know," he explained to Nanny, "that when Reddy Fox or Mrs. Reddy or Old Man Coyote has dug down into the snow trying to catch one of us, that place has always been safe for some time afterward. None of them waste any time watching a place where they have already dug. I believe old Roughleg has found that out and now he is watching all those places dug in the snow. So we'll just keep away from them."

"That is good sense, Danny," said Nanny

"That is good sense, Danny," said Nanny. "but I can tell you something that is better sense still."

"What?" demanded Danny.

"Keep away from the surface altogether," replied Nanny. "We don't have to go up there. We can get plenty to eat underneath the snow where we cannot be seen."

"But just think of all those good seeds it is easy to get from the surface of the snow," retorted Danny. "It would be a shame not to get them while we can. We wouldn't be so fat now if it were not for those seeds."

"We are too fat," declared Nanny. "Anyway, you are. If you get any fatter, you won't be able to move quickly enough to get out of the way of danger. You take my advice and keep down under the snow. That is what I am going to do."

Nanny was as good as her word. Danny couldn't induce her to go up to the surface with him. "Pooh!" said Nanny. "There's no danger. All we have to do is to peep out and look all around before we climb out. I, for one, don't intend to miss those fine seeds."

So Danny continued to go up to the surface whenever he felt like it. He had one or two favorite weeds which he climbed. Sometimes he would go up in the daytime and sometimes he would go up at night, for Danny and Nanny are as active at night as in the day. You see, they believe in sleeping when you want to sleep, eating when you want to eat, and going and coming when you feel like it. So Danny got in the habit of using the same weeds over and over for climbing up to the surface of the snow. And having formed the habit, he became careless in the manner of climbing. At first he would climb very cautiously. When he would reach the surface, he would first stop for a while with only his nose and eyes showing, and then he would look long and carefully to be sure that no enemy was about.

But after a while Danny became careless. It often is that way. We become careless in matters with which we are very familiar. You know how it is yourself. If you cross a street every day, you get so that you don't look out for danger nearly as sharply as you did when you first began to cross the street. So it was with Danny. He would scramble up the stalk of a weed, and do it so hurriedly that he would shake the weed, whereas at first he took the greatest care not to shake the weed. Then, having reached the surface, he would pop right out before looking around.

Over and over again Nanny Meadow Mouse warned Danny that sooner or later something would happen if he were not more careful. She was wiser than he—much wiser. She meant to be safe, rather than sorry.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Many persons married during the taxable year fail correctly to compute the amount of their personal exemption.

The revenue act of 1928 provides that if the status of the taxpayer changes during the year, his personal exemption shall be determined by apportionment, in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer was single and married. For example: A couple married on July 21, 1928, and living together on December 31, 1928, may file a joint return and claim an exemption of $3,208.33; that is, 7-12 of $1,500 for the husband while single, or $875, plus 7-12 for the wife while single, plus 5-12 of $3,500, or $1,458.33, for the period during which they were married. If husband and wife make separate returns each may claim a personal exemption of $1,604.17. The husband is entitled to 7-12 of $1,500, or $875, for the period during which he was single and 1-2 of 5-12 of $3,500, or $729.17, for the period during which he was married. The wife is entitled to a similar exemption. Similar provision is made with respect to the head of a family. A person, who, on July 31, 1928, ceased being the head of a family—the support in one household of a relative or relatives being discontinued—is entitled to an exemption of $2,666.67, which is 7-12 of $3,500, plus 5-12 of $1,500.

With respect to the $400 credit for a dependent, the taxpayer's status as of the last day of the taxable year determines this credit. If during the year his support of such dependent ceased, he is not entitled to this credit.

A Washington Bystander

By EIREE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—Throughout the cruiser bill debate the maintaining of the 5-5-3 ratio of the Washington naval treaty has been the hammer with which "big navy" men pounded for their cause.

That has been the ceaseless slogan in navy circles for years. It has been used so often that it is highly doubtful how many folks even in congress know the facts.

As an instance, look at the exchange between Watson of Indiana and Borah of Idaho in the senate cruiser bill debate.

"The senator (Borah) knows as well as anybody in the world that both in letter and spirit they (the British) violated the terms of the 1921 disarmament conference," Senator Watson said.

Sees No Violation

"I do not feel that Great Britain has violated that treaty," Borah shot back.

"Was there a single soul who attended the Washington conference who believed that growing out of it England would immediately begin to build largely cruisers, even though cruisers had not been mentioned in the contract?" Watson demanded.

Shortridge intervened to ask Robinson of Arkansas if it had not been "the dominant, controlling thought" of the Washington conference to preserve a general 5-5-3 naval ratio. Robinson denied that the treaty had such an aspect or that there had been "bad faith" in connection with the British subsequent building.

All of which makes a review of the minutes of the plenary sessions of the Washington conference and its committees quite timely. And this is what is disclosed:

French Held Out

At the ninth session of committee on limitation of armament, Dec. 18, 1921, M. Sarraut for France stated definitely the French rejection of a 31,500-ton submarine limitation "instead of the 90,000 tons required by France."

Arthur Balfour replied for England. It was clear, he said, that with 90,000 tons of French submarines to be built "at Britain's very gates" no limitation whatever on any type of anti-submarine vessel could be accepted by Great Britain.

"He had no doubt," the minutes continue, quoting Balfour textually, "if the occasion ever arose Britain would be equal to it, but it was on condition that she reserved full right to build any auxiliary craft which she considered necessary to deal with the situation."

So much for Britain's violation of the Washington treaty.

CHILD TRAINING

LIKE THE STORY BOOK SAID

Minerva Hunter

Vernon's birthday was coming. Birthdays became the chief topic of conversation. Mother's birthday, Father's birthday, Baby's birthday and neighbors' birthdays were discussed frequently and fully. When Mother offered to read a story, Vernon repeatedly selected the one that told how a boy named Harry celebrated his birthday. Birthdays with their many possibilities held the center of the stage for Vernon day after day.

The long-expected morning came at last. When he awoke, he found the wagon he had longed for. The postman brought a box from his grandmother. He saw his mother preparing the birthday cake and placing candles on it. Ice cream had been ordered for dinner. Evidently everything was being done according to the accepted rules for this great occasion and Vernon moved as in a dream.

Dinner time found the lovely cake in the center of the table. Waxen candles flickered their golden flames. Baby in her high chair joined in the gaiety with gurgles of delight. All seemed well until suddenly Vernon gave a heart-sob of disappointment.

Mother paused at the pantry door, in surprise.

"What is the trouble?" Father asked.

"No package at my plate," Vernon managed to say.

"No package," his father repeated.

"Harry had a birthday package by his dinner plate," Vernon explained between sobs. Plans were not working out well. The story-book boy and the real-life boy were not having things alike.

Fortunately, Father knew all about this story-book boy who had a birthday. He had read it many times to his little son. Mother, at the door, nodded reassuringly to Father who said, "The meal isn't over, Vernon. Perhaps something nice may happen yet. Wait and see."

Mother had made some plain little handkerchiefs for Vernon to use around home. They had not been laundered, but she felt sure he would not notice that. She hurried to the drawer where she kept tissue paper and bits of ribbon. Soon the package was ready.

Another story in the book which contained the story of Harry, told about a prince who received gifts from his subjects. A picture showed the prince receiving a gift, presented on a tray. Mother got her tray, placed the gift upon it and went into the dining room. "A gift for Prince Vernon," she said, just as was said in the story book, except that it was Prince Charlie who received the gift in the story.

Vernon quickly remembered this other story. "Mother, O Mother!" he beamed as he accepted the gift, "even Harry was not called a prince on his birthday."

Later, when the children were in bed, Mother and Father talked of the incident. They agreed that the great joy of a story often lies in the fact that the reader can imagine himself the hero of the tale. Even grown people long for some stories to come true in their lives. It is the blessed privilege of parents to work this magic for the children once in a while, and a birthday is a most fitting season.

The Peak

There's a far high trail where the pines are,
There's a gray faint trail to the dawn,
There's a sudden hush on the hillside—
Look! The last star's gone!
Look, follow, the far trail seems to say,
Follow, comrade, follow, and you'll make the peak today!

There's a steep hard trail where the stones are,
There's a sharp crag gray at the bend,
There's a far fine mist where the road winds—
What is at the end?
Follow, follow, the dark trail seems to say,
Follow, comrade, follow, and you'll make the peak today;

There's an unknown trail—but we'll take it,
It's a steep hard trail—who's afraid?
There are deep sharp chasms to walk by;
No one's hands can aid.
Follow, follow, the far trail seems to say,
Follow, comrade, follow, and you'll make the peak today

JURY RETURNS VERDICT AGAINST PLAINTIFF IN $10,000 DAMAGE SUIT

At 11:10 o'clock Thursday morning a verdict for the defendant was returned by a jury in the superior court at New London in the $10,000 damage suit brought against James H. Smith of Stonington by Mrs. Nicholas Christine of Groton. The verdict was accepted by Judge Christopher L. Avery. The plaintiff claimed that on November 12, 1926, at about 10:20 o'clock in the afternoon, she alighted from a trolley car at the corner of Allen street in Groton and that she was struck while crossing the street by an automobile owned and operated by Smith, who she claimed failed to bring his machine to a complete stop when the trolley car came to a halt.

The jury found that the plaintiff was not free from contributory negligence. Atty. George Curtis Morgan appeared for the plaintiff and Atty. Henry Harris for the defendant. The following jury heard the case:

New London, Levi M. Kenyon, Thomas Gragan, Gurdon Pendleton, Archie F. Hutchins, Groton, James E. Griswold, George B. Lewis, Stonington, Albert G. Martin, Montville, Fred Kent, Milton L. Bogue, Ledyard, Andrew M. Avery, Waterford, Clifford A. Lathrop, Monroe L. Beckwith, East Lyme, Herman W. Smith.

GAIN OF 17,562 'PHONES DURING PAST 12 MONTHS

A net gain of 17,562 telephones during the year, an increase of 15,960,000 local and toll telephone calls bringing the approximate number of calls completed over the company's own lines to 470,438,000, to which may be added 2,588,000 calls completed to long distance points; a construction program for this year that exceeds in its scope and cost anything ever undertaken by the company in a similar period and a financial statement that indicates the favorable future of the business, are outstanding points in the annual report of the Southern New England Telephone company read by President James T. Moran at the annual meeting of the stockholders at New Haven.

The balance sheet of the company, as of December 31, 1928, shows assets totaling $59,930,985.38, in which the major items are land and buildings owned worth $6,046,569.91 and other telephone plant and equipment valued at $50,082,826.11.

The company has $25,000,000 capital stock outstanding, and a funded debt of $1,000,000. The corporate surplus unappropriated at the close of 1928 amounts to $2,950,867.24.

The income statement for the year shows operating revenues of $15,183,447.61, and telephone operating expenses of $10,350,959.19, leaving net operating revenues of $4,792,488.42.

Deductions for uncollectible operating revenues and taxes assignable to operating leave an operating income of $3,723,903.76. To this figure is added $72,571.83 net non-operating revenue, making the gross income $3,796,475.59.

Deductions for rents, interest and other purposes leave a net income of $3,258,389.50.

With dividend appropriations from income of $2,612,140, there is a balance for corporate surplus for the year amounting to $746,249.50.

In his report President Moran calls the attention of the stockholders to the advancement of the acompny's program of conversion to dial service and states that during 1928, with over 50 per cent. of the stations in the Hartford exchange and with the New London exchange entirely on this system about 14 per cent. of the total calls originated at dial stations. Toll calls, the report states, have again increased in greater proportion than telephones, indicating a growing appreciation on the part of the public of the improved forms of toll service offered. An interesting fact disclosed by the report is that 70 per cent. of all toll calls are now completed by the local operator and the average speed for completing a toll board call is given as 1.67 minutes, but when these calls are combined with the out of town calls completed by the local operator, the average completion time comes close to one minute.

In referring to additions to the plant Mr. Moran says:

"The investment in plant has more than doubled in the last seven years, totaling $56,129,000 at the end of 1928, an average of $187.14 per company station. The gross additions for last year amounted to $8,392,000, exceeding for the seventh consecutive year those of the previous year. During the year plant to the amount of $3,079,000 was retired, resulting in net additions of $5,313,000.

Land was purchased in Bridgeport, Middletown, Naugatuck, Thompsonville and Stafford as sites for the erection of buildings to house new central offices which will be required during the next few years. Land was also purchased for the erection of a garage in Stamford, and in New Haven our holdings on Liberty street were enlarged by the purchase of an adjoining plot on which we plan to erect an addition to our present garage."

NORWICH DAMAGE CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Settlements out of court have been reached in three damage actions for trial in the superior court this week. One of the actions settled was that of Frank Raikowski of Norwich, aged seven, who through his mother, Annie Raikowski brought suit for $5,000 against Napoleon Goyette and Rudolph De Lage, both of Stonington. The plaintiff claimed that he was struck while crossing North Main street in Mystic, by an automobile owned by Goyette and operated by De Lage.

Settlement was also effected in the $5,000 damage action brought by Ida M Maynard of Bozrah against the Fidelity and Casualty Co., of New York, in which the plaintiff sought to collect a superior court judgment for $4,500 against Peter Sablowski of Norwich, as the result of an automobile accident in Norwich. Sablowski, according to the complaint was insured with the defendant company.

The judgment was rendered on Feb. 24, 1928, as the result of an action filed Aug. 24, 1927.

Settlement was affected in the $1,000 suit brought by Edmund Swiensky, a minor, through Louis Swiensky against The Garde Theatre Co., of New London.

Swiensky claims that on March 25, 1928, while in the lobby of the theatre as a patron, he was struck and injured when a portion of the ceiling fell.

WATER UTILITIES BIG PROBLEM IN FUTURE

While Connecticut water companies are more than amply equipped to meet present water needs of the state, including the supplying of industry and the maintenance of surplus supplies to provide for emergencies such as fires and drouths, the utilities nevertheless face a great problem in preparing for future consumption. Not only is the population of Connecticut cities growing steadily, but with increase in living standards, consumption of water is growing even more rapidly.

For that reason, water company engineers throughout the state are laying plans now for future water supplies which will not be completely used for a quarter of a century and perhaps longer. There are at present a total of 207 reservoirs in the state.

SUN'S RAYS BENEFICIAL IN PREVENTING DISEASE

Get the sunshine habit, says this week's health bulletin, issued by the Connecticut state department of health. The bulletin says:

Since it has been determined that the sun's rays of shorter wave length are beneficial in preventing and curing rickets much research has been carried on in this and other countries in studying various phases of this subject.

Uppermost in the minds of mothers with young children is the thought—how can I secure for my baby enough of this protective element. So she is urged to adopt the "sunshine habit" to put her baby out in the sun for his daily nap—both winter and summer.

To throw some light on the subject as to the variation in quality of sunlight in different seasons, two Toronto physicians have recently published some interesting data.

Experimenting on white rats from December, 1926, to December, 1927, they found that in April, May, June, July and August, a fifteen minute exposure to the sun has as much curative value as a two-hour exposure in November, December and January. About October 15, the decrease in the sun's curative power becomes sharply noticeable and about February 15, there is an equally sharp increase.

In the experiment, white rats were fed a rickets-producing diet. Some of the rats were exposed to sunshine and some were kept indoors. At regular intervals X-ray pictures were taken of the bones of the legs of the rats exposed to sunshine and also those not exposed. Later the amount of phosphorous in the blood and the amount of ash in the bones of the thighs and legs of both groups were determined and compared. Even in November, December and January the sun was slightly but definitely effective against ricketa. In all the other months however, it was much greater, and in April and May, showed eight times as much power.

It is interesting to learn that the difference seems to result from quality rather than from quantity. In October, 1927, there were just as many hours of sunshine as in the months of June, July, August and September. Yet in spite of the amount of sunshine there was a big decrease in the sun's curative effect so far as rickets was concerned.

DETOURS AND ONE WAY TRAFFIC EXPENSIVE

Detours and one way traffic arrangements made necessary by highway construction and reconstruction during the year of 1928, cost Connecticut exactly $120,688.39, according to a statement made by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald today. This total was greatly increased over the 1927 figure due to the fact that more than 100 miles of paving was completed last year than in 1927.

The greatest part of the total cost was in the maintenance of one way traffic, this item alone costing $150,027.72. The one way traffic system was put to much greater use last summer than ever before, and very little use, in comparison to former years, was made of detours. There were only 57 miles of detour road used during the year.

During the construction season about 310 miles of new pavement were laid in Connecticut and all of the highway which went under construction had to be kept open for traffic on one side while the pavement was being laid on the other, or else had to be closed entirely while all traffic was shunted off on a detour.

In those cases where the one way system was put into use, it was necessary to have a corps of traffic directors on duty both day and night, and where long stretches of road were under construction, a temporary telephone system had to be installed in order that the directors at each end of the stretch might be in continuous communication with each other. Where detours were used, it was necessary usually to convert a rough, rutted country road into a well graded gravel highway before it was put into use. Extensive repirs, grading and oiling to harden the roads and allay the dust are always necessary.

Both on one way traffic stretches and upon detours, it is necessary to post signs warning the motorists of the existence of either and to point out directions. There were 1,223 such signs made and posted last year. In many cases it was necessary to install a temporary lighting system in order that the signs might be read and to assist motorists in finding their way through the area under construction or through the detours. In oiling the detours, 49,937 gallons of oil were used.

A considerable amount of detour and one way traffic time was saved last summer by the use of the quick hardening concrete formula developed by the department's chemists. When mixed according to this formula, the concrete hardens in two-thirds of the time formerly consumed. Practically all concrete pavement laid last summer was opened to traffic about a week in advance of the time that would have been required a year or two ago.

Wins Praise

The quality of her acting as the Private Secretary in "The News Parade" is winning the praise of movie fans everywhere for this lovely newcomer to the screen. At home in New York City, hundreds admire her charming personality and she has fairly "set the style" on Broadway by the way she dresses her hair.

"The simple method I use in caring for my hair," says Miss Shea, "has been of great help to me in my motion picture work, where one's hair must always look its best. It's just the thing for busy girls, too, because it is so easy. Most of the girls I know in stage and picture work are taking it up as soon as they hear about it. All you do is put a little Danderine on your brush every time you use it. It makes your hair so easy to dress and holds it in place wonderfully. It's ideal for girls who are letting their hair grow. It keeps my hair and scalp so clean and comfortable. I don't shampoo half so often, now. It gives my hair such a silky, soft, lustrous appearance that all my friends comment on it."

Danderine removes the oily film from each strand of hair, restores its natural color, gives it more lustre than brilliantine. It cleanses and invigorates the scalp, helps overcome dandruff. It is delightfully fragranced; isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. Waves "set" with it, last longer. All drug stores have it, in generous 35c bottles.

COMMISSION TO TURN EVIDENCE OVER TO DISTRICT ATTORNEY FOR ACTION

BOSTON, Feb. 7—(AP)—The Boston finance commission in a report made public tonight, described the revelations resulting from its investigation of the local Sunday baseball scandal as an "array of very suspicious circumstances."

While the commission made no finding as to the guilt of the persons involved, it announced that it would send a transcript of the evidence to the district attorney of Suffolk county "for further investigation and action as he may deem proper."

The commission, in its investigation, had endeavored to determine the truth of charges made by Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, that William G. Lynch, a member of the city council, had demanded bribes of $5,000 each for himself and 12 other council members in return for favorable action on the Sunday baseball measure. The question before the council at the time was the ratification of the state law, adopted by referendum, which would permit professional sports on Sundays.

After reviewing the evidence presented during the public hearings which lasted for several days, the commission, in a summary, emphasized the significance of a meeting at midnight in Fuchs' suite at a Boston hotel. Fuchs had testified that on the night of November 23, last, Lynch, in company with Daniel J. Carroll, a boxing promoter, visited him by prearrangement at his suite. It was during this visit, he had testified, that Lynch made his demand. Lynch, on the other hand, while admitting the visit, denied that he had demanded money and said that he visited the suite at the request of Fuchs, who attempted to threaten him into a favorable attitude toward the Sunday sports measure.

The report of the finance commission questions the propriety of Lynch's visit to Fuchs' suite.

The report reviewed a statement made by Lynch during a hearing to the effect that Fuchs could be proved to be "a racketeer, a blackmailer and a blackjacker."

The commission "heard no evidence and could not discover any that would justify these epithets against Fuchs, but heard commendations from prominent and reputable men as to Fuchs' character and integrity," the report said.

The report criticized Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols for failing to produce substantiation of a published statement in which he characterized the council: "Poor councilors, just a little bunch of orphans; what they want is a Christmas tree and they haven't got one."

"It seems incredible that the mayor of this great city should have had no basis for his gratuitous aspersions on the city council. The mayor admits he had none, and therefore, he was guilty of a grave breach of official propriety," the report said.

Myles McSweeney, a Boston sports writer, also was criticized by the commission for his "outrageous conduct in manufacturing charges against members of the council."

The commission found but two findings.

First, that there was no evidence that any of the other 12 councilmen alleged to have been named by Lynch authorized him to use their names, and second, that the name of every city councilman alleged to have been named by Lynch had voted to table the Sunday baseball measure at a council meeting on November 30.

TOURTELLOTTE SWAMPS KILLINGLY HIGH, 52 TO 26

(Special to The Bulletin)

NORTH GROSVENORDALE, Feb. 7—Tourtellotte swamped Killingly High at the Tourtellotte gym tonight by the score of 52 to 26. The Killingly team was unable to break through the strong defense of Tourtellotte, which was a big factor in the latter's victory. The Killingly team was outplayed by the Tourtellotte aggregation in all but the third period, when the Red and White played them on even terms. Conly and Sherry were the outstanding players in the first half, scoring eight points. The half ended in Tourtellotte's favor, 28 to 11. The second half again displayed Tourtellotte's fast floor-work with Conly, Sherry and St. Marie scoring three baskets each.

The high scorer of the encounter was Sherry, Tourtellotte center, scoring 15 points. His teammate, Conly, scored 14 points, while Young was high scorer for Killingly with nine points. The Tourtellotte team is one of the strongest teams in eastern Connecticut and has beaten some of the best schools in this part of the state. The players of the team have played together for a number of years, which proved to be a great help.

BIG GOLF SHOTS PREPARE FOR PENSACOLA TOURNEY

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 7—(AP)—Magic mashies in the hands of masters today heralded the opening tomorrow of the greater Pensacola Open Golf tournament as some of the greatest stars of the game put in practice rounds, preparatory to the quest for $3,500, in prize money and amateur trophies.

Wild Bill Mehlhorn, fresh from record-breaking tournaments in the swing of the professionals from the Pacific coast to Florida, was among the first arrivals today to tee off in a practice round. Tommy Armour, Bobby Cruickshank, Johnny Farrell, A. Espinosa, Henry and Al Ciuci and others equally as famous in the professional ranks also shot practice rounds.

The day following the medal score tournament, the visiting golfers will be given a chance to ride in the air to Valparaiso for an exhibition round. Seaplanes from the naval station here will take the golfers to the Valparaiso links and bring them back.

George Hepburn, of New York, eliminated G. P. West of Bermuda, 2 up, and G. J. Costello of Atantic City, N. J., 3 and 2. E. J. Query, of Rochester, won from Glen Sherrard of Boston 2 and 1 and from L. R. Cutler, New York, 1 up. The fourth victor in two rounds was Stanley Howe, of Bermuda. He eliminated S. A. CANADIANS IN TIE WITH U. S. STARS FOR ICE HONORS

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y. Feb. 6—(AP)—Canada and the United States were tied for premier honors at the end of the first day's events in the North American amateur outdoor speed skating championships at Pontiac rink today.

Scores of skaters represented the United States and Canada in the events which will end Saturday. Willie Hogan, youthful dominion speedster of St. Johns won the 220-yard dash in impressive fashion. The other senior event of the day went to the equally youthful American skater, Jack Shea of Lake Placid, N. Y., who won two miles race after a bitter battle with Valentine Bialis, of Utica, N. Y.

Alex Hurd of Hamilton, Ont., threatened Shea in the final lap. He fell in the preliminary heat of the 220 and thereby lost all chance for points in that event.

In the 220 intermediate final, Millard Deitz of Saranac Lake, N. Y., and George Downey of New York were tied. Deitz conquered in the skate off, equalling the time made in the corresponding senior event.

In the two-mile senior logan of St. Johns was disqualified for fouling Bialis.

Ice conditions were not at the best and many falls resulted.

All entries expected to be strong contenders came through the day impressively, with the exception of Francis Allen, of Chicago, former international champion who is staging a comeback. Allen did not appear up to his old form.

SHARKEY GETS DOWN TO REAL TRAINING

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7—(AP)—Jack Sharkey today advanced to the top of the list of those who are taking seriousy his heavyweight elimination bout with Young Stribling. The Boston gob stepped a fast nine round workout at his training quarters, the first heavy work he has attempted since arriving here. He will go to Tampa with Jack Dempsey, promoter of the bout, tomorrow, where the pair will be guests of honor at a fight.

Sharkey took on the light and heavy bags during his training at the Miami Beach kennel club. He went through the work in a snappy manner to indicate continued good trim, to the delight of a crowd who watched him.

"I'm going to get down to real hard work Monday," Sharkey said after he had finished this afternoon. "I had thought that I would not start until later, but if I find I'm getting overtrained, I'll slow down for a while."

Stribling plans to get in a few workouts at Hardie's casino before Monday when he will call it a day and prepare for a Tuesday fishing expedition into the Everglades. He said today he will work in the ring tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday afternoons in addition to his nightly road work before starting his rest on Monday.

William F. Carey, vice president and treasurer of Madison Square Garden corporation explained today that the Garden's decision not to broadcast the fight which will be staged here February 27, was purely a matter of experiment and that it does not signify intention of the Garden to abolish broadcasting from its future programs.

Dempsey said ticket sales had reached the $180,000 mark, which it is understood, is some $50,000 more than the estimates which have been placed on the cost of promoting the fight.

WIDE BEATS NURMI'S MARK FOR NEW RECORD

(By Ted Vosburgh, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 7—(AP)—Olympic heroes of two foreign countries came through in brilliant style tonight in the Nekark A. C. track and field games at the 113th Regiment armory.

Percy Williams, of Canada in the sprint and Edvin Wide of Sweden in the two mile run defeated handicap fields in time that compares favorably with the best being done indoors anywhere. Wide, the Swedish schoolmaster, eclipsed even the time registered by the great Paavo Nurmi, his Finnish rival. On this same track a week ago, Wide covered two miles against a big handicap field in 9 minutes, 17 1-5 seconds to set a new track record. Paavo's time in a race run under almost the same conditions was 9:19 3.5.

Williams lived up to his reputation as the greatest sprinter now extant by giving away a one yard handicap to all opponents in a 60-yard dash and plunging down the boards as though shot from a catapult to come within a fifth of a second of the world's record. When the fact that he was running without spikes for the first time in his career is considered his time of 6 1-5 seconds is all the more notable.

While the foreign stars were doing their sensational bit gainst handicap fields which could give them little opposition, the home-bred performers were providing a full spare of competitive thrills.

A highlight was the defeat of Ray Conger, Illinois A. C. in the 1,000 yard event at which he is chatmpion. Sam Sam Martin, Boston A. A. and Jimmy Kennedy, Georgetown freshman, leading him across the line. Johnny Gibson's victory over Oliver Proudlock and Herbert Robinson, the Virginia collegiate, provided another of the night's big moments.

The special sprint series was won by Chet Bowman, former Syracuse star who is attempting a come-back, with Jimmy Pappas second. Both are Newark A. C. men.

Springfield Mermen Win

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 7—(AP)—Coach Jack Rothacher's Springfield college swimming team, easly defeated the Williams college mermen here this afternoon, by a 52 to 33 score. It marked the first time that Springfield has beaten Williams in the local tank. Williams won only two first places.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Torrington High basketball team makes a two-day excursion into eastern Connecticut at the week-end. Three games will be played in two days, with N. F. A., Windham and Chapman Tech. This is somewhat on the order of Warren Harding's one-day jaunt hereabouts last year. The Presidents took Stonington and Chapman Tech into camp on that occasion. Torrington expects to also make a clean-up. Somehow or other, Eastern Connecticut hasn't a strong rep in basketball. A large number of Torrington students will make the trip with the team, it is reported.

Some kind of a record was broken in New Haven last week when 4,200 paid admissions were recorded for the first of the Hillhouse-Commercial city title court games.

The Academy quintet will get plenty of conference games from now on. The locals have played the least games of any in the circuit.

Torrington will make her first appearance here in basketball Feb. 15, for the Academy game.

First of the Academy's two major basketball games, with Windham, comes next Tuesday at the Y gym.

Chapman Tech and Bulkeley, in New London, meeting in football next fall in a conference game, will surely played before a banner gathering. The games comes Saturday, No. 16, one week before the Academy-Bulkeley classic, which this year is also played in New London.

HUNTER AND TILDEN PLAN ANOTHER EUROPEAN CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK Feb 7—(AP)—Just when rumors were being raised that he was about to retire from tournament tennis, Francis T. Hunter, shattered them all today with the announcement that on the contrary he and "Bill" Tilden are going abroad May 8 for another international campaign.

Neither Tilden nor Hunter will be a candidate for the Davis cup team this year, the New Rochelle veteran further revealed.

Tilden is sure to be reinstated by the executive committee of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association on its meeting in Boston tomorrow, Hunter said, and will go south about the middle of March to begin tuning up his shots.

Hunter himself will take to the courts even sooner, leaving New York next Thursday for Florida, where he will defend his titles in the south Forida tournament at Miami, February 25, and the state championship at Palm Bech, March 4.

Their programme of foreign play which includes participation in the French championships at Paris, May 29, and the English championships at Wimbledon, June 24, will make it impossible for Tilden and Hunter, who are respectively the first and second ranking American players, to represent their country in the American zone Davis cup competition.

CUBS GIVE UP HOPE OF GETTING LESTER BELL

CHICAGO, Feb. 7—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs have given up hope of obtaining Lester Bell, star third baseman from the Boston Braves, President William Veeck announced on his return from the National league schedule meeting at New York today.

Veeck said he and Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs had dickered with the Braves, but that the attempted deal fell through.

"We wanted to give cash for Bell, but Boston wanted players and we couldn't see it that way," Veack said.

Clyde Beck, a weak hitter but a brilliant fielder, probably will cover the hot corner again this season, although the Cubs have a promising rookie in Clarence Blair from Little Rock, Ark.

MRS. STERRITT TO MEET MRS. ARENDS IN FINALS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7—(AP)—Two mid-western golfers, Mrs. H. D. Sterritt, of Hutchinson, Kansas, and Mrs. John Arends, of Chicago, today advanced to the finals in the seventh annual Miami Beach women's tournament, with decisive victories.

Mrs. Sterritt, tournament medalist eliminated Mrs. Jo Roberts, of Philadelphia, 5 and 4. Mrs. Roberts furnished the upset of yesterday in defeating Mrs. J. Bydolek, of Buffalo, 1 up on the 20th green.

Mrs. Arends took her semi-finals victory from Mrs. Leo Federman, of Great Neck, L. I., 4 and 3, to complete the mid-west rout of the east.

Cunningham a Holdout

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7—(AP)—Bruce Cunningham, young pitcher who was sold by Los Angeles to the Chicago Cubs, and then traded to the Boston Braves in the Rogers Hornsby transaction, revealed here today that he is a holdout.

Cunningham said he returned his unsigned contract nearly a month ago but has heard nothing from the Braves officials. He did not say what salary he was asking.

ACADEMY PLAYS CHAPMAN TONIGHT IN FIRST HOME LEAGUE GAME

Probable Lineups.

N. F. A.		Chapman Tech
Stevens, lf		McKelvie, lf
Henschel, rf		Quinn, rf
Berghinzo, c		Snoesky, c
LaCroix, lg	(C)	Chihowski, lg
Barber, rg	(C)	Johns, rg

Chapman Tech's fast-stepping quintet, present leaders in the Eastern Connecticut Conference race, will open the Academy's home league season tonight at the Y gym. The main game will start about 8.30 with a preliminary, a Church league game between the Baptist Methodist and Phi Delta Nu fives, at 7.45.

This is the first basketball game under the new conference to be played in Norwich. The Academy has played two games to this loop, losing both and is in a virtual tie for last place with Stonington High, which has played four, and lost all of them, too. The Wildcats have lost to Tech and Putnam, both by sizable margins.

Henschel In Action Tonight.

However, in the Tech game, the locals presented but two regulars, the other three being rendered hors de combat at the last moment, two by sickness and one by having withdrawn from the team. Tonight, Coach Courtland C. Whitney expects to present his full strength. Cecil Henschel will make his first appearance on the home court with the team. He played Wednesday at New Haven against Collegiate Prep and was the Academy's leading scorer, playing a nice game. Henschel has been on Red and White squads now for three years, sharing with Capt. Buck LaCroix the honor of wearing the colors of all Academy basketball teams, the sport having been established here in 1927. Henschel should add a world of power to the club. He is a good scorer and knows basketball. He has played considerably with Stevens, who will be at the other forward and they should work well together. With him in the lineup local fans are looking for a marked improvement in the Academy's play this evening.

The Wildcats have lost seven straight now and eight out of ten games. Tech, this year, is not a very good team upon which to pick in breaking a losing streak. The Academy has only beaten Tech once in basketball, that in 1927, on the occasion of the memorable "ineligibility" game, when the locals were talked out of the pennant, after they had apparently copped it in the first year at the sport.

Tech is having a phenominal season, having lost but one scholastic game this year, that to Windham last Friday night. The Whalers need tonight's game to stay at the top of the Conference heap and they will, no doubt, take no chances.

A packed gallery is expected for the tilt as prospects of a lot of action are seen by many. This will be the Academy's last game this week, there being no game Saturday night because of the annual Football dance.

GLENNA SHARES MEDALIST HONORS WITH MARTHA

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 7—(AP)—With Glenna Collett, national champion, on the side lines, Miss Martha Parker, of Spring Lake, N. J., won medalist honors today in the qualifying round of the twenty-fourth annual St. Valentine's tournament here. Miss Parker, former New Jersey state champion, turned in an 84.

Miss Collett, who was forced out of the recent mid-south tournament by illyness, had not recovered sufficiently to enter.

In the first round of championship play tomorrow Miss Parker meets Mrs. A. H. Blight, of New York; Miss Helen Warning, of Yonkers, plays Mrs. N. P. Hood, of Wilmington, Del.; Miss Ruth Batchelder, of Boston, plays Miss J. F. Jacques, of New York, and Mrs. John D. Chapman, of Connecticut, meets Mrs. Harry V. Maxwell, of Spring Lake, N. J.

BARNARD TALKS OVER RULES WITH 12 A. LEAGUE UMPIRES

CHICAGO, Feb. 7—(AP)—E. S. Barnard, president of the American league, and his staff of 12 umpires were behind locked doors today discussing a uniform interpretation of the rules for the 1929 season.

Although no information of the discussion was given out, the umpires were not expected to make any radical changes in their interpretation of the playing rules. Their version of minor rules probably will be announced after the two-day session, Barnard said.

A similar conference was held last year for the first time in the history of the American league. Barnard followed up the meeting with a swing around the spring training camps, discussing with each manager the stand taken by the umpires on questionable rules. The junior league executive, however, will not make the southern trip this year due to the widely separated training camps.

FRENCHY BELANGER CLASHES WITH SCHWARTZ TONIGHT

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 7—(AP)—Albert (Frenchy) Belanger, Canadian titleholder, and Corp. Izzy Schwartz, of New York, recognized as world's champion by the boxing commission of that state, meet here tomorrow in the feature bout of an all-flyweight show.

Belanger, who was recognized as world's champion by the National Boxing association but lost the title to Frankie Genora, recently regained the Canadian championships from Steve Rocco, another Toronto boxer.

In the other flyweight attractions on the card, Willie Davies, Charleroi, Pa., meets Ruby Bradley, Chicago; Marty Gold, Philadelphia, boxes Johnny McCoy, Rochester, N. Y., who has won his last three bouts here, two by knockouts; and Willie Lamorte, Newark, N. J., takes on Harry Hill, of Montreal. Sam Hackett, Toronto, and George Barber, Toronto, open the show.

MRS. FRANCISCO IS NEW WOMEN'S HORSESHOE CHAMP

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 7—(AP)—Mrs. Mayme Francisco, Columbus, Ohio, won the "women's world horseshoe pitching championship" from a field of three here today, with Mrs. George Brouillette, of Minneapolis, a close second. The winner won a 50 to 49 victory over Mrs. Brouillette to take the title.

Blair Nunemaker, of Cleveland, set the pace in the men's third day's play with nine victories and one defeat, while Bert Dwyer managed to eke out a close triumph over Jimmy Risk, of Montpelier, Indiana, to rank second with eight triumphs and one defeat.

The tournament will continue until Saturday when the tie contests will be settled.

AGGIES CLASH WITH HOLY CROSS TONIGHT

STORRS, Feb. 7—Tomorrow night the Aggies tackle the formidable Holy Cross five at Worcester. The game at Worcester concluded in a close victory for the Crusaders last year on their small court, but as the Aggie team has won from Mass. Aggie and others on small courts away from home this year, Holy Cross will have a stiff battle on their hands to overcome the offense the Connecticut team has shown in the last few games.

The same team that faced the Dominican five will start against the Worcesterites tomorrow night. Ryan will have Matskin paired up with him at the forward positions, Dan Chisbuck will start at center, with Dall and Captain Schildgen in the backcourt.

BILL TERRY SIGNS; ALL 1928 GIANTS IN FOLD

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—(AP)—Receipt of the signed contract of Bill Terry, hard-hitting first baseman, was announced by the New York Giants today. All of the Giant regulars of 1928 have now signed.

The world champion New York Yankees have not announced receipt of any contracts, signed or unsigned. The Yankees have many of their stars under holdover contracts.

JIMMY QUINN AND FERRA PERFORM IN PROV. TONIGHT

Jimmy Quinn, state amateur lightweight champion, and Patsy Ferra, hard-hitting welterweight, will be on the card at the Arcadia arena tonight at Providence. Quinn fought his way to popular favor several weeks ago and fans in Rhode Island are strong for him.

Tonight's bouts mark Ferra's first appearance in a Providence ring and it is probable that he will meet with stiff opposition, in all likelihood Ferra will be sent against Young Gayner, Providence college student, and state welterweight champion.

PRESENT SYSTEM OF OLYMPIC TRYOUTS MUST BE JUNKED

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—In the opinion of five of the country's leading college coaches the system of final Olympic track and field tryouts as now constituted must be junked.

This suggestion is made in one form or another by Harry Hillman, Dartmouth; Edward L. Farrell, Harvard; Keene Fitzpatrick, Princeton, and Jack Ryder, Boston college. Harry Gill, University of Illinois, confined his recommendation to one that the final tryouts be extended "from two days to three or even four.

Expensive Pins.

The boys at the West Side Smoke shop are having a grand and glorious laugh at the expense of one of the Thames street boys who thought he was quite some bowler. In fact he thought he was so good that he was willing to bet $25 on his ability to beat a certain other member of the Smokers. After some discussion pro and con as to the relative merits of each bowler the match was stayed. The result was that the boy who took such pride in his bowling was beaten by two pins which he says cost him $12.50 each.

DANIELSON VS. LITHUANIANS TONIGHT

The Danielson Towners meet the fast K. of L. team of Hartford, tonight, in the town hall, in what is expected to be a great game of basketball.

The Hartford team certainly needs no introduction to the Danielson fans as they played one of the best games seen on the local floor about a month ago, beating out the locals by one basket in the last minute of play.

The Knights will bring the same lineup to Danielson that they had before and the lineup which made them champions of Hartford county. This lineup will consist of Malinowski, r. f., chosen fastest forward in the state of Connecticut, with either Bennett or Girtis as his running mate. The pivot position will be covered by S. Shimkus who stands well above 6 feet, while the guard positions will be held down by C. Shimkus and Mazotas, who play a great guard game.

Danielson will go into the game with "Pop" Williams at center, with Gallup and Armington at the forward positions, while Potrier and Godreau will do guard work. This lineup should surely make the Hartford boys step and every effort will be made to turn the tables and bring a victory to the Towners.

BASE BALL CHATTER

(By Brian Bell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—President John A. Heydler does not want National league clubs to play ten-man teams in the spring exhibition season, as has been suggested.

"It will prove nothing," said the National league head, "and will serve only to deprive pitchers of a chance to get actual batting practice in competition, something they sorely need. Goodness knows the pitchers will have enough trouble at bat without depriving them of the few chances they have to hit in the spring.

"I have not been discouraged by the failure of the suggestion for a batsman for the pitcher to arouse the enthusiasm I had hoped for it, but until it becomes an approved practice there is nothing to be gained by having a few clubs experiment with it in the south. I hope this will not be done."

President Heydler will let his scheme for the so-called ten-man team wait for another year and it probably will be brought up again at the next annual meeting. The plan shares one distinction with the idea of numbering baseball players. The two subjects were among the very few not discussed at the schedule meeting of the National league.

Twenty-five members of the world champion New York Yankees, present and prospective, were notified today to report to Manager Miller Huggins at St. Petersburg, Monday, February 25. Eleven pitchers will be included in the advance guard—Heimach, Wells, Craig, Johnson, Rhodes, Sherid, Shealy, Fay Thomas, Myles Thomas, Van Pelt and Moore. The four catchers on the roll, Bengough, Dickey, Grabowski and Jorgens, will be on hand to assist Scout Paul Krichell in handling the offerings of the pitchers.

In addition to the batterymen, five infielders and the same number of outfielders will get in some early season work. Gehrig and Burns, first basemen, will be joined by Durocher, Lary and Robertson. Robertson is the only professed third sacker in the group but Len Lary, the Pacific coast recruit, may be a former shortstop by the time the regulars arrive.

Manager Huggins, shy a regular third sacker since Joe Dugan was sent away, will give Robertson, Lary and Koenig a chance to demonstrate their fitness for the position.

Bob O'Farrell, one time most valuable player in the National league and one of the growing class of former managers of the St. Louis Cardinals, has signed his contract to catch for the New York Giants in 1929, reducing the unsigned list of Giant players to five.

PARIS, Feb. 7—(AP)—Emile "Spider" Pladner, French flyweight, knocked out Johnny Hill, of England, in the sixth round of their bout here tonight.

Famous Golf Shots of 1928

By BASIL WYRICK
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Astounding shots have thrilled galeries or even decided titles, but the only hole scored in three under par during 1928 championship play did neither. H. J. St. Clair, of Kansas City, made the "cuckoo" during qualifying rounds of the Western open but won no title and had no gallery to cheer his feat.

St. Clair was halfway home on the 501-yard 15th of the North Shore Country club, Chicago. He threw his weight into a scorching brassie shot and that was that. He was alone except for his qualifying partner and neither of them saw the ball duck into the cup. It was found only after a long search of the neighboring territory. Nor did it win St. Clair a title, for he failed to survive the elimination rounds.

But it did give St. Clair a cuckoo and came close to equalling the distance from which a golf ball has been holed in one blow. The Kansas City professional was not scoring well during the round. He was struggling to keep under 90 when he stood on the 15th tee and looked down the forbidding fairway to the undulating green nearly a third of a mile away.

"The way I'm going," said St. Clair to his partner, "I ought to take about seven on this cantankerous hole, but I'm going to give this pill a ride anyway, even if it goes out of bound over the hedge."

The stocky golfer smote the ball and it stopped 250 yards from the tee in the edge of the rough. Thinking he might reduce the predicted seven to a par five after this good drive, St. Clair got hold of the pellet with his brassie just right and it sailed away for the flag straight as the proverbial arrow, bobbed to the carpet and rolled over a slope into the cup. But the last 50 yards of the ball's course could not be seen by the players.

When they reached the green there was no ball in sight. Searching the rough and surrounding pits, where he felt his ill luck might have caused it to kick despite its true flight, St. Clair was about to go back and drop another ball when his companion's caddy, lifting the flag for him to putt, drew up the missing globule with the staff, and St. Clair then realized that he had made a hole in three strokes under par.

POETRY

"Eastward"

Eastward from the wide, low porch
With its drab, bedraggled vines,
I tread the sallow grasses
And then the broad, stubbly fields
Where, it seems but yesterday—
Corn ripened to the rustle
Of its verdant, glinting shields.

Beyond the stubble the afternoon sun,
Slanting through cumulous clouds,
Makes blaze still-clinging masses
Of sere leaves on beechwood boughs.
It transfigures them until they become Miraculous, colossal clusterings of topaz
Set against the amethystine haze of far-off hills—

I loiter, watching the vision slowly fade.
As if upon a giant's jewel-casket,
The dusk flings a phantom drapery
That soon spreads over the whole countryside.
Homeward turning, with quickened pace,
I reach the wide, low porch
Whose drab vines are now tinged with ebony.

I unlatch the door. In the grate a fire
Is glowing, eager to depict shadow-dances
On walls and ceiling. Down I sit
To follow the fire's umbrose fantasy.
I sense a grotesque rhythm,
And wait for goblin minstrels
To give it melody in quaint,
Flame-droning part-song.

—William Struthers, in Boston Transcript.

Unappreciated

He daily does what he is told to do.
Departing when his daily task is done.
Forgetting all about his work until Another day sees work again begun.
He takes no special interest in his job,
To him it is but necessary work,
And everyone, he thinks, should be content,
If to the boss he does not seem to shirk.

He always keeps his eye upon the clock,
And never lingers when it's time to go.
But mornings, when he is ten minutes late,
He guesses (to the boss) his watch was slow.
And so in unenthusiastic toil
He plods along through dreary working days;
But every now and then he stops to rest.
And wonders why he doesn't get a raise.

—Somerville Journal.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What did that bootlegger get in the police court this morning?"

"Half a dozen new customers."—Vancouver Province.

She—Now tell the truth, you men like the talkative women as well as you do the others.

Hobbs—I understand Tom and his wife just had their first quarrel. Was it serious?

Dobbs—Very. He gave in and thus established a precedent. — Boston Transcript.

Peewit—A man can hardly wed now unless he can show the girl two licenses.

Dismuke—Two licenses?

Peewit—Yes, marriage and automobile.—The Pathfinder.

Mrs. Skimpy—John, I wish you'd drop into the cleaner's with my dress on your way to the office.

Husband—All right, my dear. Just tie it around my finger and then I'll be sure to remember.—Exchange.

"Harry," ventured the fair heiress, to the young man who had proposed to her "I don't want to think that you are marrying me for my money."

"That goes double," responded the young man. "I don't want you to think so either."—Portland Express.

Husband (entering and seeing movers bringing piano downstairs)—Good heavens, Madge, what's this? Didn't I leave you the installment money for the collector?"

Wife—S-sh! I'm going to pay them as soon as they get it down. I decided to have the piano in the front parlor. —Boston Transcript.

"That's enough out of you!" said the burglar to the loquacious woman. "If you so much as open your mouth again I'll shoot."

"Say, fellow," put in the meek-looking husband after a few moments' silence "how much will you charge to stay here by the month?"—Country Gentleman.

Within a year it is expected that the telephone system of England will be linked with the Australian service by means of wireless. Inquiries are being made to determine the possibility of introducing wireless telephony services to replace trunk line services over long distances in Australia to avoid the heavy cost of erecting thousands of miles of wire. It is proposed also to establish a wireless telephone service between Tasmania and the mainland.

Mrs. Thomas Owens, of Minerva, N. Y., rushed from her home on hearing a commotion in the henhouse. She found a fox with a hen in its mouth. An old farm dog, Rex, feeble and nearly blind, started after the fox, which was making slow time with the fat hen. The fox dropped the hen and seized the dog by the throat. When Mrs. Owens reached the scene of battle and realized that the faithful dog was being killed she lost all fear. She grasped the fox by the throat and choked the snarling beast until it lay limp and helpless.

WESTERLY

ON WRONG SIDE OF ROAD MICHAEL URSO BUMPS CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 7—Michael Urso, of 242 High street, received a summons to appear in third district court Friday morning as the result of an automobile collision about 1 p. m., Thursday, near Grace Methodist Episcopal church, corner of Grove avenue and High street. His wife, Mrs. Mary Urso, was taken to the Anderson hospital, where it was found by Dr. J. Gordon Anderson, that she had been badly cut about the head by broken glass from the windshield of the Buick car driven by her husband. Occupants of the Buick were Ralph Perry, 74 Oak street, John Murano, of Oak street and a friend. A Hudson coach, driven by G. Arthur Leonard, clerk in the office of the Bradford Dyeing association, and residing at 3 Hillside avenue, was struck by the Urso car on the right side of the road, as Urso was attempting to pass it and proceed down Grove avenue. With Leonard, at the time, was Norman Karcher, of Bradford. Both escaped injury. The front ends of both automobiles were badly smashed, the left side of the Leonard car being the more badly damaged. The Urso car had a broken front fender, right headlight and windshield. Officer George L. Madison investigated and on making measurements found the Urso auto was on the wrong side of the highway.

HENRY MARTEL, PAWCATUCK, ARRESTED BY N. Y. POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Feb. 7—Henry Martel, of Pawcatuck, brought back from New York by State Trooper George Webber, of the Groton barracks, will be given a hearing Friday morning at 9 o'clock, in Stonington town court, before Judge William A. Wilcox. Martel, in company with a soldier, reported to be a deserter, was detained in New York while driving a Dodge sedan. They were deemed suspicious persons, when they declared they were bound for no particular objective. The auto is said to correspond with that stolen from Bouso Bros' garage in Stonington, Tuesday night. The theft of the car was reported to the Connecticut state police who sent out numbers and description of the stolen machine. The same night the garage was rifled of something over $36 and Martel is also believed to be connected with the disappearance of the money. The maximum penalty in Connecticut for the theft of an auto by breaking and entering is 15 years in jail and for the amount of money reported as stolen the maximum penalty is four years.

There will be more difficulty experienced in bringing back to Stonington the soldier deserted, and the case against him will have to be taken up later. In going to New York to return with the men picked up by the New York detectives, Trooper Webber was under instructions to have the men return of their own accord, but upon refusal, to have extradition papers started at once. The auto was found missing from the Stonington garage when the place was opened for business Tuesday morning and then the loss was reported. Local police are of the opinion that Martel can be connected with a number of recent breaks in Westerly.

AUTHORITIES CHECKING PAST HISTORY OF RICE

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 7—(AP)—Interest which has lagged in the proceedings into the shooting to death of County Detective William E. Jackson last week, were somewhat revived tonight with the return here from Hartford, of Detective Edward J. Hickey, in charge of the state's investigation.

"As far as I know there is nothing new," said the detective. He made this statement following a long conference at police headquarters with Patrolman Arthur Hurley and Police Chief Thomas F. Grady. The authorities however, have been checking the past history of Trenor A. Rice, deputy sheriff, awaiting a grand jury hearing into the death, and it was learned they are interested in a report that Rice was employed last fall as a foreman for John F. Collins, an engineer.

Since William A. King and Samuel B. Harvey were retained to defend Rice in the event the grand jury returns an indictment for first or second degree murder, they have not been approached by relatives of Rice except Frederick S. Rice, a banker, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Upon his arrival here Frederick Rice made an announcement that the defense would not lack for funds and that famous criminal lawyers would be on hand to assist. Mrs. Florence Wakelling, a sister, of New Rochelle, arrived here today but has not gone to see her brother's attorneys.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford today said that he has received a large number of applications asking for the position of county detective left vacant by Mr. Jackson's death.

LAST CONCESSION TO GEN. BRAMWELL BOOTH

The defense is to be made by William A. Jowitt, who was counsel for the general in the Chancery court injunction proceedings.

STORES PREPARE FOR LARGE DOLLAR DAY CROWDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 7—Hundreds of eastern Connecticut people will flock to this city Saturday to participate in the greatest price-slashing event ever staged here. Saturday will be officially designated by the merchants of the city as Dollar day. It is the first Dollar day event to be held here in the past few years and in view of this the merchants are fully co-operating in giving the public a real bargain feast. Thousands of items in the stores have been brought into prominent display and unheard-of values will be given for one dollar. The stores will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. With the exception of the fire district on Bank street and the north side of Union street, parking facilities are unlimited throughout the business section. The out-of-town shopper need have no fear of violating parking rules, except in the two exceptions mentioned.

Everyone interested in real values, and that would tend to mean everybody, will find a definite effort to give unusual offers in a glance at the pages of Willimantic Dollar day advertising appearing in this issue. In several stores the shoppers will have an opportunity to view some of the new spring merchandise. The fact that this advance stock is included in the sales event is full indication of the fact that the merchants are making an honest effort to dispose of real live goods during the sale. Where special lots of merchandise have been purchased for the sale the values given are almost ridiculous. Saturday's Dollar day is the first of a series of two official Dollar days to be held in 1929 under the auspices of the Merchants' bureau of the chamber of commerce. Official stores, of which there are over 80, will be designated by a brilliant yellow poster and cards, appearing as part of the special window trims or in some prominent location in the store fronts. It is in these stores that the bargains will be found.

COLCHESTER

GRANGE UNDER NEW OFFICERS STARTS ACTIVE SEASON

In spite of rainy weather, there was a good attendance at the meeting of Colchester Grange No. 78 P. of H., Wednesday evening. Worthy Master William B. Gerhardt presided. Two candidates were voted upon and accepted and one candidate was proposed for membership. The recently installed lecturer, Mrs. Robert E. Greene had prepared a very interesting and instructive program. Mrs. H. H Tompkins, Mrs. Frederick Kopp, Mrs. M. J. Cornwell and Mr. and Mrs. Frank H Browning presented some interesting readings on Abraham Lincoln and George Washington. The secretary Miss Belle L. Strong read a manuscript extolling the accomplishments of the local grange and urged the members to work together to make the organization an even more flourishing and influential group during the present year. The readings were interspersed with all present singing old-time songs, Mrs. W. O. Seyms being accompanist. At the close of the program the meeting was adjourned to the home of Past Master F. H. Browning, where refreshments were served. In keeping with a recent suggestion made by State Deputy J. P. Hollowell of Preston City, Worthy Master William B. Gerhardt in taking steps to form a Colchester grange degree team so that in the future the local grange will not have to depend on neighboring granges to work degrees on new candidates. Forty-two new members were taken into Colchester Grange during the past year and several more candidates are to be initiated during the next few weeks. The recently installed officers entered upon their duties at Wednesday evening's meeting with considerable vim and one of the most successful years in the history of the local grange is forecasted.

Low Sections Flooded

The down pour of rain which fell in this section all night Wednesday and until Thursday noon quickly washed away the snow which has covered the town for the past week. It was the heaviest fall of rain in this section for many months. Many sections of the village were veritable ponds, the water accumulating faster than the culverts could care for it. One of the heavily flooded areas was in the vicinity of the railroad station. At eight o'clock Thursday morning there was nearly a foot of water over the railroad tracks adjacent to the station. Two large baggage trucks were blown by the high winds from the station platform and were found bottom up between the water-covered railroad tracks. The roadway between the depot and the Shea grain store was completely covered with water, the culverts being unable to care for the deluge. By ten o'clock the rain had somewhat abated and the roadway gradually lost the appearance of a flooded area.

P. J. O'Connor, rural delivery mail carrier to the Salem and West Road sections was confined to his home Thursday ill with a severe cold. Substitute Carrier James Shugrue covered the route.

Chauncey McFarlane of Willimantic was a caller here Thursday.

She is apparently in good health and is unusually active. Mrs. Rathbun was born in Colchester, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swift. Up to about twenty-five years ago she was a resident of Colchester, her husband and her son being in the livery business here for many years.

USE OF FRUITS DEMONSTRATED BY MISS RUTH RUSSELL

Miss Ruth Russell, home demonstration agent for the New London County Farm Bureau gave a demonstration Wednesday on the use of fruits in main dishes and desserts, at the home of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, leader of the local group. This was given as the first in a series on Square Meals For Health, as arranged by Mrs. Marion Evans Dakin, nutrition specialist of the state agricultural college for the college extension service. The demonstration included baked apples with sausage filling, rhubarb tutti-frutti short cake and Parisian sweets which were served at the noon luncheton, with sandwiches and tea. An informal talk on Vitamins and Minerals was given by Mrs. Jerome Greer, following luncheon, as Miss Russell had an other appointment for the afternoon. Mrs. Greer was one of the local group to attend the class for instruction conducted in Mystic recently by Mrs. Dakin. The attendance was small, owing to illness in the place and the absence from town of several who usually attend the group sessions.

Mrs. Charles F. Bartlett and her granddaughter, Gene Hurlbutt, returned Sunday from a visit to Mrs. Bartlett's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bartlett, in Mystic.

Rev. and Mrs. Jerome Greer and their son-in-law, Dr. Willard E. Upham, were attendants at the midwinter session of the Norwich District Ministers' association and the joint meeting of the District World Service council at the Baltic Methodist Episcopal church Tuesday. Mrs. Greer represented the local church as delegate to the council meeting.

Milo Benn, accompanied by his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilbur Norton, and their little daughter, Nancy Lee, motored here Sunday for a visit to their aunt, Mrs. Joab B. Rogers.

A Bean Party social was given under the direction of the officers of the Epworth league at the vestry of the M. E. church Wednesday evening and was well attended by the young people of the community. The enjoyable program included games and stunts, the company being divided into sides. The captains, Courtland E. Colver, Jr., and Miss Lillian Atkins, were the same as in the Time and Tide contest, being conducted at the Sunday evening services of the league. The programe numbers included an I. Yes or No, game with beans as forfeits, a bean bag relay race, a bowling game with the bean bags, a guessing contest for the number of beans contained in a fruit jar, bean toss and bean balance, those having part in the last being required to carry a bean across the room on a knife and deposit it safely in a cup. The points made in the several contests were the same for both sides.

The February business meeting of the league was held at the close of the social, the president, C. E. Colver, Jr., presiding. It was decided that the local church members attending the series of Epworth league institutes held recently in different localities, should give a report on the sessions, at the meeting Sunday evening next.

Twenty dollars was voted toward the interest on the parsonage loan. Five new members, Miss Doris Wightman, Robert Allyn, William McNaught and Dr. and Mrs. Willard E. Upham joined at this session. Cake, cocoa and jelly beans were served.

Guests entertained over the week end by Mr. and Mrs. James Abbott at their home in the Lester district included Mrs. Abbott's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pelletier, of Versailles, and her brother, Napoleon Pellier, of Jewett City.

Rev. James E. Breer of South Manchester, who was in attendance at the Norwich District Ministers' meeting in Baltic this week, was entertained over Monday night at the home of his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Jerome Greer, at the M. E. parsonage.

Miss Emma Beth Bennett was the guest of Miss Elizabeth Smith of Norwich for a motor trip to Anthony, R. I., where they were guests for the week end of Miss Bennett's relative, Mrs. Byron A. Maynard. HOOVER DEVOTING TIME TO INAUGURAL ADDRESS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7—(AP)—With only a few callers on his list today, President-Elect Hoover was able to devote much of his time to his inaugural address and to further conferences with Senator Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the senate finance committee, who has been his house guest.

The senator will leave tomorrow for Washington and is expected to carry to congressional leaders a full report of the views of the next president on the legislative questions which are to come before the 71st congress at the extra session to be called in April.

Apparently there has developed some confusion as to the position of the president-elect on the matter of tariff revision, but it was developed definitely today that there has been no change in this situation since the conference Mr. Hoover had with congressional leaders during his two weeks' stay in Washington.

The next chief executive is in agreement with senate and house leaders that there should be no general tariff revision but an amendment to the existing law covering agricultural and other schedules affecting industries whic hface very changed conditions from those which existed when the Fordney-McCumber bill was written six years ago.

It also was developed that Mr. Hoover does not intend to call any general farm conference before the convening of the extra session, but will confer with a number of the leaders of agricultural thought to seek their assistance in working out a common ground on which to proceed in alleviating conditions in the industry.

Judge Reserves Decision

Judge C. B. Waller of the court of common pleas took the papers in the $100 damage suit brought by Jack A. Goldberg, of Hartford, against Betty Kaplinsky, of Bozrah, following trial of the case in this city. The case came before the common pleas court on an appeal from the decision of Justice of the Peace John J. Sweeney in Justice court at Bozrah. Justice Sweeney gave the Hartford man judgment for $100 and costs of $22.40.

Goldberg claims that an automobile belonging to him was damaged to the extent of $100, when it was struck by an automobile owned by the Bozrah woman. At the time of the accident Goldberg alleges that his car was parked in front of Spruce Lodge, Fitchville.

HOOVER DEVOTING TIME TO INAUGURAL ADDRESS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7—(AP)—With only a few callers on his list today, President-Elect Hoover was able to devote much of his time to his inaugural address and to further conferences with Senator Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the senate finance committee, who has been his house guest.

The senator will leave tomorrow for Washington and is expected to carry to congressional leaders a full report of the views of the next president on the legislative questions which are to come before the 71st congress at the extra session to be called in April.

Apparently there has developed some confusion as to the position of the president-elect on the matter of tariff revision, but it was developed definitely today that there has been no change in this situation since the conference Mr. Hoover had with congressional leaders during his two weeks' stay in Washington.

The next chief executive is in agreement with senate and house leaders that there should be no general tariff revision but an amendment to the existing law covering agricultural and other schedules affecting industries whic hface very changed conditions from those which existed when the Fordney-McCumber bill was written six years ago.

It also was developed that Mr. Hoover does not intend to call any general farm conference before the convening of the extra session, but will confer with a number of the leaders of agricultural thought to seek their assistance in working out a common ground on which to proceed in alleviating conditions in the industry.

Ill With Grip

Miss Mary O. Casey, who has been ill since Dec. 22 at her home on Division street, had been showing marked improvement the past week until Tuesday when she contracted a severe case of grip, but under the care of her family physician it is hoped Miss Casey will soon be on the road to recovery.

"It's so economical" says Mrs. Frank Chester, 6 Stanton Ave.

"My lands! How white Rinso washes clothes. I never saw anything like it. I just soak the wash in Rinso suds and everything comes out bright and snowy. So easy on me—and easy on the clothes, too. They don't need to be scrubbed thin and boiled. Another thing about Rinso: it's so economical. A little makes a lot of creamy suds that last till the wash is done."

BALANCE RESTORED IN THE GERMAN CABINET

BERLIN, Feb. 7—(AP)—The centrist party, which yesterday withdrew its only representative from the cabinet, today decided to resume its traditional present position of holding the balance of power between the government and the opposition. The party leaders hope by this course to be able to dictate whether the cabinet shall be made up of members of the right or of the left.

It was stated that strong pressure from within the ranks of the centrists determined the leaders to withdraw Deputy Von Guerard, minister of communications and of occupied territories, from the Mueller socialist-coalition cabinet. The ministers today decided to split the duties of the vacant posts, giving the jurisdiction of occupied territories to Dr. Wilhelm Karl Severing, minister of the interior, and the duties of minister of communications to Dr. Schaetzel of the post office department.

The centrist action caused considerable adverse criticism among leaders of other parties. The social democrats, who are led by Chancellor Mueller, Dr. Severing and Dr. Hilferding, the latter being minister of finance, said the central move was untimely because it tended to make the position of the government uncertain just as the new commission of reparation experts is about to assemble in Paris.

DINERS WERE WATCHED BY PHOTO-ELECTRIC EYES

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—(AP)—Photo-electric eyes watched the guests at a scientific dinner here tonight, counted them, guarded them from a fire, and substituted almost human stunts in place of a speech.

The dinner was the annual meeting of the American institute of New York. On a platform for the "speakers" John L. Broiley of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company, placed a pail of mixed kerosene and kerosene.

Beside it he set a photo-electric eye, a vacuum tube resembling an electric light globe, so sensitive to light that it registers minute changes faster than the human eye can perceive them. Attached electrically to the photo-eye was a carbon dioxide fire extinguishing apparatus, set to guard the pail of explosive liquids.

Mr. Broiley lighted a match, and when it was flaming strong, said: "Now watch."

He thrust it into the pail, which flared with fire. But almost as quick as the flame, was the photo-electric eye, which translated the light from the pail into an electric impulse that shot the fire extinguisher over the surface. In a split second the demonstration was over, a light ball of smoke over the pail the only reminder of the flame.

Another photo-electric eye counted the guests, catching them as they passed through a slender beam of light; similar "eyes" sorted packages, operating an automatic device. Whenever any package lacking a label passed before the "eye," it was yanked out of the moving procession. Color sorting was demonstrated, including that domestic problem that sometimes causes argument, known as matching colors.

There was also a speaking program, in which Harvey Wiley Corbett, architect, described "skyline cities." He sketched a New York with three levels, carrying rail traffic below the ground, wheel traffic on the surface and pedestrians on a series of connected, raised platforms.

ASKS TO SET ASIDE THE SENTENCE OF SINCLAIR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP)—The District of Columbia court of appeals was asked today by counsel for Harry F. Sinclair, to set aside his sentence of six months on charges of contempt of court, on the ground that the jury shadowing during the oil man's conspiracy trial with Albert B. Fall, fell "far short" of this offense.

Appeals were made also on behalf of H. Mason Day, who was sentenced for serve four months; William J. Burns, head of the detective agency bearing his name, sentenced to 15 days, and his son, W. Sherman Burns, who was fined $1,000.

The government's answer, made through Neil Burkinshaw, assistant district attorney, declared "the espionage" employed by the Burns operatives "comprised much more than shadowing."

George P. Hoover, counsel for Sinclair, said that jury surveillance did not obstruct or tend to obstruct justice and hence did not meet the supreme court's definition of contempt. The record shows the jurors were not molested or even approached, he added.

Dan Thew Wright, counsel for Day, a business associate of Sinclair, declared the latter was well within his rights in keeping the jury under observation. The department of justice itself has established "by common custom and usage," the legality of the surveillance of juries.

For William J. Burns, his attorney, Charles Douglas, asserted that he did not know detectives from the agency were employed to shadow the jurors. Douglas said Burns' detective activities consisted solely of advising the firm and said that in this instance, his assistance had not been asked.

WOULD MARRY DAUGHTER OF WOMAN HE MURDERED

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 7—(AP)—From the cell where he awaits execution, Joseph Reginald Victor Clarke, known as "the boy with a hundred sweethearts" today made application of the home secretary for permission to marry the daughter of the woman he murdered. His desired bride is Mary Agnes Fontaine, a former sweetheart whom the prisoner was charged with attempting to murder after he had killed Mrs. Alice Fontaine.

When questioned about the proposal the girl said: "I am not going to say anything about what I intend to do."

Further pressure elicited only, "It is no use I won't talk about it."

It took less than five minutes last Monday to try, convict and sentence Clarke, who had pleaded guilty to killing Mrs. Fontaine, with whom he boarded, by strangulation. He is 21 years old and spent some years in the United States and Canada. He is said to have practiced psychology and hypnotism on many women to avoid paying board bills.

While his application was addressed to the home secretary it was the governor of the prison who acted upon Clarke's request. He refused permission.

SHADE TREES ENHANCE VALUE OF PROPERTY

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—(AP)—Shade trees were credited with producing higher property values and more rent revenue in a talk before the National Shade Trees conference here tonight by Dr. E. P. Felt, director of the Barlett Tree Research laboratories.

He said that in the four years after creation of the $50,000,000 Westchester county park system of Greater New York, total assessed property values nearly doubled and that rental revenues increased. He credited trees with creation of part of these values.

The borough of Manhattan with a population in the 1920 census of 2,250,000 he said has less than five shade trees per thousand inhabitants. Dr. Felt estimated the total of shade trees useful for lining American highways and ornamenting lawns at about half a billion. He cited estimates of tree values ranging from $20 each on New Haven trees fixed by the city forester there, to an elm 100 years old, which the owner said could not be purchased for $10,000.

FLIER PILOTS PHYSICIAN TO ILL MAN ON NIGHT HOP

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Flying a physician over an unlighted course of the Atlantic ocean to the home of a man dangerously ill, Eddie Nirmaier, veteran pilot, landed his amphibian plane on the beach of West End Island, 90 miles from here, and won a race against death.

A telephone message at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon advised Nirmaier that a physician was needed immediately to attend a sick man on West End Island. Twenty minutes later the plane was in the air, heading out over the ocean.

Nirmaier flew 40 minutes through the night, landing his plane one hour and 40 minutes after taking out.

The physician attended the sick man, saving his life. They returned to Miami the next morning by air.

POLICE DOG KILLED RAIDING GRAY FOX

Rhoda, a German shepherd female dog, sent from the Groton barracks of the state police to be guardian of the turkey and chicken flock on the farm of Henry Hill in the Pleasant Valley road, can well claim the title of Guardian Extraordinary, for she has done an extraordinary thing. Unaided she has killed a raider of the flock—a big gray fox which boldly raided in broad daylight.

The killing occurred Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mr. Hill and Rhoda had been working near the farmer's house when suddenly the dog pricked up her ears and dashed swiftly away.

Stepping out from behind a corner of the house, Mr. Hill saw Rhoda nearly at the turkey run and in front of her, evidently unaware of her charge, was a big gray fox which was trying to gain access to the run. Mr. Hill entered his home to appear a moment later with a gun.

But there was no occasion for the use of the firearm. Rhoda and the fox were tangled in a mass of rolling, snarling fur. But only for a short time. The dog secured a hold on the fox's neck and Reynard was out of combat. His dead body dangled limply from the mouth of the dog.

Mr. Hill was surprised and rightly so, for it is unusual that a dog detects the capture of a fox in broad daylight and particularly when the member of the noted robber line is in the open.

LOCAL MAN WANTED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Anargyros Capilos, 45, arrested here by the local police at the request of the Spartanburg, S. C., authorities, appeared in city court Thursday morning charged with being a fugitive from justice. His case was continued until Feb. 16 and he was placed under bonds of $500, which were furnished by local friends.

It is understood that the accused passed a worthless check in Spartanburg, S. C., for the amount of $65. It was discovered that the accused had no money in the bank on which the check was drawn.

Wise is the individual who is sensible of his own follies.

MANY ACTIVE ISSUES DROPPED 5 TO 35 POINTS IN THE MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—(AP)—The stock market underwent a thorough shakeout today on the wave of selling which followed the federal reserve warning against the excessive use of speculative credit and the rise from 4 1-2 to 5 1-2 per cent. in the bank of England discount rate. Extreme losses in many of the active issues ranged from 3 to 35 points, with final quotations generally around the lowest of the day.

Trading started off at a terrific pace but slowed down in the afternoon, the day's sales running above 5,000,000 shares but falling far short of the record-breaking session of 6,942,500 shares November 23, last.

Opening declines ranged from 2 to 17 points, but a partial recovery set in when the call money rate was lowered to 6 per cent. The rally failed to hold, however, and prices weakened again in the afternoon when U. S. Steel common, Union Pacific, Johns-Manville and several of the other recent leaders touched their low prices of the day.

While the federal reserve warning was generally expected, it was much stronger in tone than Wall street had anticipated. The rise of a full point in the bank of England rate was a complete surprise, as it brought the British rate a 1-2 of 1 per cent, above the prevailing rate among federal reserve banks in this country.

It was followed by a brisk rise of about 3-4 of a cent in sterling exchange, bringing it well above the "gold import" point and undoubtedly precluding the possibility of any further shipments of gold from London to New York.

After the close of the market, the New York federal reserve bank announced that brokers' loans had increased 110,000,000 in the week ended Feb. 6, bringing the total to a new high record at $5,669,000,000. This compares with $3,535,000,000 a year ago.

Recent imports of British gold have inspired a resumption of pool activity in many stocks on the theory that the increase in gold reserves would relieve the credit situation, which has been a thorn in the side of many traders. No change was announced today in the 5 per cent. rediscount rate of the New York federal reserve bank, confirming the belief in banking circles that local authorities would await the market's response to the federal reserve board's warning before taking any further action. Some uneasiness was created, however, by the announcement that directors of the New York bank would meet again on Monday.

Trade and business developments today continued favorable. Domestic copper sold as high as 18 cents a pound, directors of the Goldman Sachs Trading corporation declared a 100 per cent. stock dividend, the new stock of the General Motors was placed on a $3 annual basis and the New York stock exchange approved an increase of 25 per cent. in the membership of the organization. The exchange will be closed on Saturday to give members an opportunity to catch up with a vast accumulation of work.

High priced industrial specialties were the hardest hit in today's reaction. Radio corporation common, which sold as high as 494 on Monday, broke 35 points to 254 and closed at the bottom. Johns Manville fell 22 points to 208 and rebounded to 211 1-2. At least fifty other issues, including American & Foreign Power, Case Threshing, Columbia Graphophone, Curtiss Wright, General Electric, Kennecott, Greene Cananea, Montgomery Ward, Packard Motors, Union Carbide, Victor Talking Machine and Westinghouse Electric closed at net declines of 5 to 15 points.

U. S. Steel common opened with a block of 20,000 shares at 175 1-2, rallied to 178 1-2, dropped to 174 3-8 and then crossed 175 again for a net loss of 6 1-4 points.

Call money held steady at 6 per cent all day. There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates.

Commodity markets moved within narrow and irregular limits, cotton closing slightly higher while wheat futures lost ground.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm undertone, with sterling cables ruling around $4.85 5-8 as against a ruling rate of $4.84 15-16 earlier in the week.

MAN AND MULES

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

When people say of a woman that she is "smart" they usually refer to something challenging or provocative in her manner of dressing. When they refer to a man as "smart" they usually mean that he is more than averagely capable—and not quite averagely "square." The adjective expresses admiration, always, and at the same time, generally implies a danger signal.

To say that So-and-so is a "smart" lawyer is about equivalent to saying that he is able and tricky. To say that another is a "smart" business man means that he knows his job but is rather apt to take unfair advantage when opportunity offers. To say that a writer is "smart" is to say, in effect, that he puts things entertainingly, without too scrupulous regard to whether they are true or not.

The really Wise Guy offers one universal morning prayer as he goes out to his daily task, "Heaven protect me from 'smart' neighbors." Likewise when he picks up his book or his paper and reads something especially "smart" in its phrasing, he either knocks wood and hurries on to something less pert but more intelligent, or pauses just long enough to see if there is really anything substantial in the sparkling bubble.

But really Wise Guys are a minority in the world. Wherefore the "smart" writer or speaker finds a big and applauding audience in the less wise majority. It thus comes about that a considerable number of writers and speakers who desire to make hits with their audiences, go in for a sort of epigrammatic "smartness" as a means of evoking the desired handclap.

Sometimes, by lucky accident, they emit a bit of actual truth, sparkling in its purity. Sometimes, their output is sheer bunk, all show and no substance. And sometimes it is a mixture of sense and sappiness, of gold and brass, of fact and fiction. In any case, it is always worth looking at twice before it is absorbed.

I am moved to these somewhat remote musings, this morning, by reading a few extracts from a recent speech by a prominent westerner, selected by a popular western newspaper and called "a bag of epigrams."

The last one reads: "Consider the mule. When he kicks he can't pull, and when he pulls he can't kick."

That's rather a clever way of putting the old sermon eulogizing the booster as contrasted with the knocker. It's truly epigrammatic; it's terse and nutty; it's certainly calculated to make a drowsy listener sit up and take notice. That is to say, it's "smart."

But is it true, not merely of the much maligned mule, but also of the human beings to whom it was manifestly intended to refer by implication. Assuredly, it would seem reasonable to assume that a four-footed mule which was vigorously and whole-heartedly kicking with the entire assortment of legs couldn't, at the same time, do much pulling at the load. So far, one is justified in accepting the epigram at its face value.

But the point which jabbed into the consciousness of this orator's hearers and made them prick up their ears was the subtle implication that it was just the same with two-legged humans; that they couldn't pull and kick, boost and kneck at the same time.

That implication simply isn't true. It sounds fine to the ears but rings false by the time it reaches the brains—if it ever does. It is catchy, it is snappy, it is "smart." But it isn't true.

And this for one substantial reason, i. e., that men are not mules. Sometimes men act like mules, it may be admitted. Sometimes they seem quite as impervious to reason. Sometimes they show themselves about as stubborn. Some times they are apparently as vicious. But, nevertheless, there is a difference. Most men can do two things at the same time, despite the old saying. For illustration, from my own backyard: I can sweat and saw wood at the same time. Take another illustration from the laboratory; the blowpipe expert can blow a steady blast of exactly modulated air on his test material for ten minutes and yet inhale regularly 18 times a minute all the while. He doesn't have to stop blowing to breathe; he does both things at the same time. Take another illustration from the field of politics; the same man may ardently favor the Kellogg war-renouncing pact between nations and, at the same time, as vigorously indorse the building of sufficient cruisers to protect our commerce and our shores, should some outlaw or piratical nation treat the pact as a mere scrap of paper and attack us.

No, men and mules are not alike in several particulars. And, while it may sound snappy and "smart" to imply that they are about the same in motives and capacities, such an assumption isn't a sound, sensible basis for any theory of life and action.

Pretty nearly every community has its "boosters" and its "knockers." The former are making whoopee all the time and ballyhooing for their town or city right or wrong, fair or foul. The latter are popularly supposed to sit up nights scuring out ways in which to find fault and obstruct progress.

To the average mind they seem as far apart as east from west, and as incapable of concerted or united action. And yet, as a matter of cold fact, the "booster" who in his zeal for that town mentioned showers boos in vigorously for some half baked project or some dubious reform is actually the most pernicious "knocker" in his community. Similarly, the confirmed "knocker" who opposes illadvised and more or less disloyal schemes is a vastly more valuable "booster" than any one of his contemporaries.

The simple truth is that the Wise Guy already referred to is practically required to be both booster and knocker, both kicker and puller, if he does his full duty as citizen and neighbor. He must boost and pull for necessary or manifestly desirable ends; he must, at the same time, kick and knock all unnecessary and inadvisable and moonshiny projects brought out of Waste Land or Graft Land or Dream Land.

He must be a vigorous progressive behind the useful and the right, at the same time that he is a careful conservative in matters of questionable utility. He must keep his hands always ready to grasp at real opportunity and, at the same time, keep them thrust deep into his pockets against the temptations of congenital promoters.

And it's right there that the mule analogy falls apart. A mule, apparently can't do two different things at the same time, while a Grade A, No. One, first class man can—and often must.

In other words, our western speaker, in order to impress his audience with his "smartness," subordinated the truth to a catchy epigram.

Let us not blame him for succumbing to the temptation. He is not alone in his choice. Newspapers and magazines and even books are peppered and salted with "smartness," these days, till the judicious reader finds it difficult to get the flavor of the meat over the tang of the seasoning.

Why? The answer is simply the old and trite one: because there is a public demand for just that sort of superficial and often meretricious "smartness." And the first law of our merchandised and conventionalized modern life is that supply must meet demand.

The public sentiment of any intelligent community, large or small, can put an end to mis-government any time it chooses to take the trouble. Similarly public sentiment can put a period to the present fad and "smartness" and "whoopee" any time it refuses to take such cheap and tawdry goods off the market.

It's really, in the end, up to the majority to say just what shall be done by governments, or approved by society, or accepted as literature or music or art.

The voice of the people may or may not be the voice of God, according to your definition of Deity. But when firmly and definitely spoken it rules. That is just why all such as are able, in even the smallest degree, to modulate or qualify such voice must be pullers and boosters when it rings true, and kickers and knockers when it jangles falsely.

The mule has his useful and we may freely admit his honorable place in the big scheme of things. But he isn't the appointed pattern for human copying, nor are his various virtues and vices models for human imitation. It may sound "smart" and bring laughs from the unthinking to imply that what is true of mules is equally true of men, and that the bit and bridle fitted for the mule's mouth are equally adapted to human guidance. But it isn't good sense.

Nor are many of the "smart" utterances of epigram-makers in other directions true. They are apt to be just wind-filled bubbles, as attractive to undeveloped minds as soap-bubbles are to little children—and just as easily annihilated by a pin-prick of common sense.

Some one once said that the world is what we make it. That doesn't mean that the world is what you and I make it, but what the whole bunch and caboodle make it.

So long as the Jiggses want corned beef and cabbage, corned beef and cabbage will be supplied.

And there always have been, are now, and doubtless long will be more Jiggses than Solomons in this befuddled world.

THE FARMER.

SWEET CORN SEED TESTS HIGH IN NEW HAVEN

Frederick Doolittle raised a lot of sweet corn last year. The varieties were Golden Bantam and Whipple's Yellow. He saved his own seed for planting this year. To be sure of the germination he sent samples to the New Haven experiment station for testing. He has received word that the germination test was 100 and 97 per cent. respectively. With this test he is sure of a good stand of sweet corn for this year.

"What Might Have Been," was the subject of Nelson Schlegel's eloquent address in the Congregational church Sunday morning. Mr. Schlegel had been absent for three Sundays on account of illness and his parishioners were pleased to see him back in the pulpit.

There was no Christian Endeavor meeting of the local society Sunday evening as several members motored to Greeneville and heard Mrs. Robert Chandler, family of China, speak on "Young China at the Helm." Thirteen attended including Mr. and Mrs. Carl Holdridge, Mrs. Sarah Gallup, Alfred Clark, Gilbert Hagen, Paul Holdridge, Edward Bennett, Earl Babcock, Marion Williams, Louise Burton, Harry Williams, Lavina Crouch and Geo. Gray.

Mrs. William I. Allyn has returned home after spending several days with friends in New York. Mrs. C. D. Geer remained at the Allyn home during the absence of Mrs. Allyn.

George Geer and Reynolds Hewitt, of Hartford, and Miss Marian Geer, of Connecticut college were week end and Sunday visitors at the Allyn homestead.

Miss Louise Clark, of Willimantic normal school returned to school on Wednesday after a few days' vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Clark.

Ledyard grange held its last meeting in Grange hall with Carl Holdridge, master, in the chair. There were several visitors from Norwich grange at the meeting. Two candidates, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Percival were obligated in the first and second degree. An impromptu Old Folks' concert was given by several members of the grange and pleased a good sized audience.

CLARK'S FALLS

Miss Ruth Bill is confined to her bed, ill with influenza.

Friends are glad to hear that Edith Watson is recovering. She has had a severe attack of influenza.

The Y. P. S. C. E. held a social Friday evening with 21 members attending. The evening was enjoyed by all. Cocoa and cookies were served.

The young people have had a number of skating parties this year.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

One of the most perfect demonstrations of the Vitaphone ever shown on the screen is "Stark Mad," the remarkable all-talking picture which not only is completely told in dialogue, but which includes all the weird sounds encountered in the mysterious Carracas jungles of Central America, which furnish the locale for the story. The doleful baying of bloodhounds is heard throughout the picture, and the maniacal laughter of a madman at large in the forest.

In no other picture ever made have the possibilities of the Vitaphone been utilized more completely or more successfully, and "Stark Mad" is said to constitute a veritable triumph of the talking picture. This thrilling mystery story takes a party of people into the depths of the tropical jungles, where their startling adventures become still more hair-raising after they encamp in the ruins of a great Mayan temple. Unseen dangers menace them on every side, and the Carracas jungle completely justifies its reputation as a region of unseen horrors.

The all-star cast assembled for this great production includes H. B. Warner, Louise Fazenda, Jacqueline Logan, Henry B. Walthall, Lionel Belmore, Claude Gillingwater, Andre Beranger, John Miljan and Warner Richmond, and was directed by Lloyd Bacon. The original story by Jerome Kingston was the basis of the scenario written by Harvey Gates.

"Stark Mad," Warner Bros' latest 100 per cent all-talking picture, is now playing at the Broadway theatre.

Breed Theatre

Loretta Young was "discovered" for the silver-sheet by Colleen Moore, the famous star, and given her first real chance in pictures in Colleen's starring vehicle, "Naughty But Nice."

Miss Young is leading lady in "The Head Man," Charley Murray's latest First National featured picture, now playing at the Breed theatre. Paired with her in the love interest of the mirthful tale is Larry Kent, one of the newest and most popular of the young leading men.

Lucien Littlefield and Dot Farley head the veteran division of Murray's supporting cast in "The Head Man." All of the famous characters of "The Boss of Little Arcady," Harry Leon Wilson's novel upon which the picture is based, are depicted by capable screen players who are hand-picked as to "type."

Eddie Cline directed the picture and with Murray, coached Miss Young in this, her second leading role in pictures. Her first was when she was loaned to Lon Chaney to be leading lady in his "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

Connecticut College Concert

Those who pride themselves on practical-mindedness regard the traditional temperament of genius with a shrug. It is the thing which makes it "not as other men are," and therefore gives them an excuse for all sorts of shortcomings. It excuses "brainstorms" which in an ordinary mortal would warrant incarceration in an "observation ward." It excuses moral weaknesses and civic irresponsibility.

Fortunately the old-time idea is passing, that every genius must be possessed of this sort of a temperment, and therefore can be expected to give of himself artistically but in no other wise to the community, just as the physical attributes of this so-called genius type, the long hair and the flowing tie, have become non-existent save in musical comedy. The World War helped to dissipate this erstwhile idea of genius.

Nikolai Sokoloff, conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra, which comes to the New London State Armory on February 14 is this type of genius, an genius, he is to the finger-tips and to the innermost soul. But first of all, he is a good citizen, husband and father, a regular man, revelling in men's sports, wearing the normal man's attire, and minus affectations.

Strand Theatre

Those of the fair sex who have not availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing "The Naked Truth" picture which is being shown at the Strand this week, have only one more opportunity of doing so as the final presentation for women only is announced for today from 2 to 4 and tonight and tomorrow is especially for men only.

"The Naked Truth is presented by an excellent cast, headed by Jack Mulhall and Helene Chadwick. It contrasts the boy who has enjoyed every advantage in being instructed in all of the mysteries of life and warned of the dangers of the social evil, and the boy who grew up in darkness groping his way through life and picking up knowledge here and there whenever he could find it.

Palace Theatre

The new vaudeville program which opened yesterday at the Palace is worthy of the patronage of any city, and it is recommended to the people of Norwich and surrounding cities and towns.

The feature act is hard to pick this week, and we can only, therefore, tell you a few words about each act. There are girls aplenty in Flo May's aggregation -it to be accurate and these girls can sing and play and dance and emit a good comedy line; they are beautiful, youthful and peppy. The Golden Horse, assisted or rather directed by Belladonna is a big time act and one which has been a sensation around all the large cities of the country. It is billed as a study in bronze and is beautiful. Billie Richmond is another girl who handles her job all by herself, but she has that something which makes friends of the audience, and it must be "it," therefore lets remember Billie as the girl who taught Clara Bow all her tricks. Sam Liebert and his company present the famous Tubilitsky sketch from "Wine, Woman and Song;" this sketch ran 400 consecutive nights on Broadway, and is a very clever offering. Kay and Barr are newcomers to Norwich, but they present double comedy singing act in a very entertaining manner.

The program finishes with the Pathe News and a Comedy and a feature picture "Power of the Press" with Jobyna Ralston and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. It is a good, thrilling action picture.

FISHER, TRACED TO NEW LONDON, FOLLOWING FRAUD IN NEW JERSEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 7—Joseph Fisher, a member of the United States Coast Guard cutter Beagle, state pier, is under arrest there, having been lodged in the brig this afternoon as a fugitive from justice. Tomorrow he will be taken in charge by civil authorities.

The charge is made against Fisher by the police of Westfield, N. J., that the sailor has been successfully operating in New Jersey, particularly Westfield, as an automobile salesman and has made fraudulent collections in a sum in the aggregate said to be between $6,000 and $7,000.

Fisher's scheme was to seek a prospective customer of an automobile and when the latter became interested in the deal sufficiently to purchase a car, a deposit was exacted by Fisher. The amount of the deposit obtained ranged from $100 to $500 and this once in possession of Fisher he vanished and with him went the money. After several persons had been victimized by Fisher recently, complaint was made to the Westfield police. Fisher was traced to New London where it was ascertained that he was a member of the coast guard. This afternoon Detective Nelson, of the Westfield police, came to New London and with Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh, went to the state pier. When officers there were acquainted with Fisher's fraudulent operations he was made a prisoner. Tomorrow afternoon he will be turned over to the police and will be taken back to Westfield for trial.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION IN ROBT. C. BURCHARD'S CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 7—In an endeavor to save the life of Robert C. Burchard, well known resident of Montville, who was seriously injured a fortnight ago when the automobile he was riding in and which was driven by Mrs. Anna Crandall, Williams street, collided with a motionless car on Bank street, a blood transfusion was made last night at Lawrence Memorial hospital, where Mr. Burchard has been a patient since the accident. Today at the hospital, it was stated that the transfusion appeared to be successful, as there was a slight improvement noticeable in Mr. Burchard's condition.

Jeremiah Murphy, former member of the New London police department, now employed in Watertown, is spending a few days in this city.

The condition of Thomas Keeney, seriously burned Tuesday when his home on Broad street extension was damaged by fire, is reported today at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial hospital, as being unchanged. Because of Mr. Keeney's advanced years, the chances of his recovery are problematical.

WILD DAY AT THE BEACH FOLLOWING THE GALE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 7—The streets on the west side of Bentley avenue at Ocean beach got a drenching from the storm of last night and early this morning such as they have not experienced this winter. Easterly place, Westerly place and Midway place were flooded from side to side and entrance to the buildings there could be gained only by boats. Alewife cove overflowed and the water found its way into these streets. The wind was from the southeast and it drove the sea up the beach with great force. The pier at the entrance to the beach at the north end was above the water only by inches and waves dashed over it and went up the beach as far as the steps to the board walk. High tide was at about 8:30, which marked the height of the water. Along Pequot avenue the sea struck the bath-houses opposite Lower Boulevard and dashed over the structures into the highway. All along the avenue the boat landings were barely above the tide, while small boats were toyed with as though they had been made of cork. The east side of the harbor escaped the force of the wind and of course of the tide, for the land was somewhat sheltered.

Poor catches of recent months have caused slack times at the Groton plant and workers there are hoping that from now on fish will be more plentiful.

Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith resumed his duties today after having been confined to his home on Rogers street, for 10 days by a severe attack of grip.

DISMISSAL OF CHARGES AGAINST WOOD AND HOLT

DETROIT, Feb. 7—(AP)—The Wood-Holt case today appeared to be unraveling. With the dismissal this afternoon of charges against Ralph A. Wood and Cecil T. Wood and Holt were freed today on recommendation of Assistant Prosecutor James T. Sloan, of St. Joseph county.

Wood and Holt had been held in the St. Joseph county jail at Centerville, Mich., since January 25, when they were arrested in Detroit on information given police by Mrs. Wood.

Mrs Wood, Thompson and Pierce are to appear for examination February 25 on charges of conspiracy to commit murder, in connection with the alleged attempt to kill Wood January 9.

This new No. 635 Treasure Chest uses six of the modern improved A.C. Tubes and one full wave rectifier tube. No batteries or liquids are needed. The Receiver reproduces every note in the musical scale from the deepest note of bass viol to the highest note of piccolo. Single dial (illuminated). Phonograph jack to facilitate electrical reproduction from records.

Price, less tubes and speaker $185.

Dangerous Stomach Catarrh
Often Mistaken for Indigestion. Watch These Symptoms.

Thousands of people have Catarrh of the Stomach and don't know it. They treat it as indigestion. Yet coated tongue, bad breath, sour burning stomach, rumbling, bitter eructations and gas are all common symptoms of dangerous Gastric Catarrh.

In this disease, a coating of phlegm covers the mucous membrane lining of the stomach, so that digestive fluids cannot mix with and digest the food. This condition soon breeds deadly disease in the fermented, unassimilated food. The blood is polluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are apt to form and deadly cancer may develop.

Pepsin pills, soda mints and artificial digestants should never be used in such cases. Instead, right after meals, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Pure Bisurated Magnesia in a glass of hot water. This will wash away the mucous, draw the blood to the stomach, neutralize acidity, prevent sourness, gas and fermentation and permit natural, easy, painless digestion. The whole stomach is cleansed, strengthened and sweetened. Be sure to get genuine Bisurated Magnesia which is especially prepared for this purpose. Any good druggist can supply you, and it is safe, easy and pleasant to use.

JOHN WARECHA SAVES HIS MOTHER AND TWO BOYS FROM DROWNING

John Warecha, about 13, rescued his mother, Mrs. Melk Warecha, and two boys from drowning in the Yantic river at the Falls shortly before 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The boys Stanley Banas, son of John and Sophie Banas, of No. 149 Sachem street, and Aloysius Mastal, son of Stanley and Josephine Mastal, of No. 14 Yantic street, were playing on the ice, about 15 feet from shore, when it suddenly gave way under their weight plunging them into the icy water.

Their cries attracted the attention of Mrs. Warecha and her son, John, who live at No. 56 Yantic street, nearby the scene of the accident. Hurrying to the river bank they pushed a rowboat from the shore across the ice and into the open water. In some unexplained manner Mrs. Warecha fell overboard.

John succeeded in pulling all three into the boat and got them ashore. The Mastal boy had gone down twice before he was pulled into the boat but the Banas boy managed to grasp a keg floating nearby and held on to it, until he was rescued. All three were taken into Mrs. Warecha's home where they quickly revived and Thursday evening were little the worse for their harrowing experience.

An emergency call was sent to the police department and Officers Patrick Murphy, Albert Lamphere, William Ryan and Sergt. Myron O. Morgan made a hurried response. Chief George Linton notified the fire department and Squad A responded with the department's inhalator. Fortunately the inhalator was not needed.

Dr. Paul F. Gadle also responded to the emergency call.

LIONS' CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN NORWICH

Announcement was made at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club Wednesday noon at 12:15 o'clock, that Earl Hodges of 60 Wall street, New York, representative of the International Lions, is to preside at the 23rd district convention here Feb. 28 and that invitations have been sent to the New London, Westerly and Hartford Lions clubs. There will also be delegates from other Connecticut and Rhode Island clubs. Louis Fontaine, Joseph French and Louis M. Crandall are the committee in charge of the meeting.

President Kopland K. Markoff presided at the meeting and the blessing was given by Mr. Crandall. Louis Fontaine was awarded the weekly attendance prize. A feature of the meeting was an interesting address given by Clifford G. Green of Syracuse, N. Y., a sales efficiency expert, who spoken on What is This Fight About and What Are We Aiming at in Business?

In his opening remarks Mr. Green emphasized the fact that happiness cannot be obtained without effort, success and efficiency, combined with good health, and pointed out that pep is dependable upon good health. A man, in order to be successful, must like his position and must be sincere in his efforts to serve, he said. With the aid of a diagram the speaker showed that success depends on these four points: To know yourself, to have faith in yourself, to know your business and the "meeting of minds." In explaining the fourth factor the speaker said that it is up to the merchant to apply his salemanship in an effort to convince the purchaser that he really needs and wants the articles offered for sale.

The speaker was given a rising vote of thanks for his talk, after which the meeting adjourned.

SPEAKER ADDRESSED ROUND TABLE ON "WONDER TALES"

The speaker at the February literature round table of the Woman's City club was Mrs. Channing M. Huntington, who, as Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn said in presenting her, needed no introduction. Her subject was "Wonder Tales"

By way of introduction to her main theme, Mrs. Huntington outlined the early beginnings of the novel. Since the people of earliest recorded life were Egyptians, and definite record gives traces of their life 6,000 years ago, Egypt as the starting point seemed logical.

"Prehistoric Egyptians understood each other, but it was not until late in the history of Egypt that they expressed themselves in writing. From their very elaborate pictures and symbols they evolved a simplified method of expression by dots and lines, similar to if not exactly like the short-hand of today.

"The study and contemplation of these ancient days is a most alluring pastime, for the Egyptians did things, performed wonders, in fact and on a colossal scale; all their projects were huge. They were agriculturalists because they had to be. They had to wrest their livelihood from naturally arid lands, and all that made life possible was irrigation which found its source in the yearly rise of the Nile. We can understand how truly Herodotus spoke when he exclaimed that Egypt was the gift of the Nile.

"History played its part and the life of the people colored the development of literature. Perhaps the most huge accomplishment was the building of the pyramids, a dream of the Pharaohs, made possible by the labor of 100,000 men. For specified periods of time this and other tremendous operations required the services of hundreds of scribes who became an important class by themselves and later recorded the tales which have come down to us through the ages. They were keepers of the scrolls or librarians—and recited these tales for the entertainment of the kings. Included in the royal household was always a chief reciter, who was likewise a powerful magician. Recorded literature of these times is negligible, but its existence, even on an extensive scale, need not be doubted.

The climax of the hour, approached bit by bit, centered around the Tales of the Magicians, or "Wonder Tales," translated from the Westcar papyrus, and selected from "Egyptian Tales," by W. H. Flanders Petrie, a noted Egyptologist of London The tales were three. "The Magical Crocodile," "The Lost Jewel," and "The Story of Bata," the last of which is considered the most famous. Simple, but appealing in all three the prose is poetical, and the imagery in "The Story of Bata" is quite vivid. These stories are reminiscent of the Book of Exodus, showing the influence of the magician in the life of the people. The chief impression left by them, in the opinion of the speaker, is that human nature was much the same 6,000 years ago as it is today.

Mrs. Huntington's complete enthusiasm for and absorption in her subject, coupled with her entertaining comments both modern and historical, made the hour most pleasing and instructive for all those who gathered to hear her.

ELECTRIC LIGHT IS CHEAPER THAN DAYLIGHT

Although it may have a dubious sound, it is an actual fact that electric light costs light and power company customers in Connecticut less than the natural light of the sun inside their homes. If one adds up the additional cost of placing windows, shades, curtains, hangings, screens, weather-strips, painting, cleaning, laundering of curtains, and loss of heat through radiation—all of which enter into the cost of bringing daylight indoors—he will find a surprising bill.

On the other hand, the cost of electric light not only in Connecticut, but throughout the entire country, is extremely low, lower than it was before the World war. Electricity is practically the only item entering into the cost of living which has shown an actual decrease since 1913. The cost of the electricity consumed in the light bulbs in any home is considerably less than the amount involved in bringing the sun's light through windows.

USE OF GAS SHOWS BIG INCREASE IN STATE

Use of manufactured gas for house heating in Connecticut in lieu of coal furnaces this winter is almost exactly double its use last winter. According to statistics of the American Gas association, the use of gas for that purpose in this state increased nearly 93 per cent from January 1, 1927 to January 1, 1928. This increase is due to the fact that many hundred Connecticut home owners are now making use of gas to heat their homes to the exclusion of every other type of fuel.

A total of 163,308,000 cubic feet of gas were consumed in house heating gas installations in this state during the year of 1928, an increase of 78,591,300 cubic feet over the total amount of gas used for that purpose in 1927. This gain in the use of gas for home heating is considered by gas company executives to be extraordinarily remarkable in view of the very mild winter of 1928 when the use of all fuels fell off.

'Phone Consumption of Power

Electrical power generated for use in the operation of the telephone system throughout Connecticut is sufficient to supply a small town with electricity for all purposes, although the amount of current necessary to convey the vibration of the voice from one point to another during any one call is almost infinitesimal. The average telephone conversation uses, in technical terms, about one ampere minute of electricity. In the entire state, however, current generated for telephone use reaches a total in the neighborhood of 50,000 ampere hours daily.

NOTED WELFARE WORKER TO ADDRESS WOMAN'S LEAGUE

The annual child welfare luncheon to be given under the auspices of the Norwich League of Women Voters, Monday, February 18th at 12.15 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel promises to be a most successful event. Bird S. Coler, noted welfare worker and until recently commissioner of charities and welfare in New York city, will be the principal speaker.

Unhampered by office, Mr. Coler has recently made some interesting comparisons of administrations under which he served, on occasions of complimentary banquets given in his honor. In these comparisons Mayor Walker came in for a liberal share of criticism Mr. Coler declared he has no differences with the democratic district leaders as such, but that under the leadership of Mayor Hylan and of Charles F. Murphy, he was little interfered with.

With reference to Mr. Coler's resignation and his decision to enter wholeheartedly into the self-appointed task of acting as adviser of those wealthy Americans who desire to help charitable and welfare organizations, create foundations, etc. The New Haven Register said editorially:

"Mr. Coler announced this decision the other day and in doing so merely reiterated an oft-expressed intention. He has been so thoroughly through the mill of welfare work that he knows how completely it is honeycombed with institutions and organizations that do not efficiently function in the spheres to which they devote their activities.

The humbug in charity is not by any means confined to those rich "cripples" who go about on crutches begging pennies and dimes at subway stations and other points where crowds congregate. There are many organizations that are just as great humbugs. It is to prevent kindly disposed men and women from enriching such bodies that Mr. Coler would devote the balance of his extremely useful and generous life.

Undoubtedly there also exists in the heart of this man a desire to avert further duplication in the field of research and other well meant activities. No one knows better than Mr Coler what is needed in charity and welfare work. No one is better able to advise and plan great endeavors. That he has decided to give his time and ability to laying out these schemes for others instead of accepting the active headship of one of the great repositories of wealth now working for the benefit of man, really means more than one can grasp at first thought. His decision probably signifies the opening of many new and greatly needed channels, to attain which so many strive but which through ignorance or lack of experience few really gain."

The announcement that Mr. Coler is to address the local women's league has attracted the attention of prominent social welfare leaders all over the state. Judge Whittaker of New Haven and Commissioner Messenger of the state bureau of child welfare will also participate in the program. Plans are underway for a reception for the speakers and out of town guests.

NORWICH TOWN EVER READY CIRCLE WORKS FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters of the First Congregational church, met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Michael Buckley on Town street. As the leader, Mrs. Philip S. Whaley was not present, no business was done. This circle has been most active during the winter and through the efforts of the several members much has been accomplished. At the recent food sale held in one of the down town store the circle netted $24.00. For this not only members contributed, but others interested in rendering valuable help, for which appreciation has been expressed. The work this winter has included making blouses for boys and dresses for girls, which have been distributed in needy families in Norwich; a quilt pieced by the circle was presented a needy family in Occum. The membership has been decreased by the death of two interested and loyal members during the past few weeks—Miss Jennie G. Bonney who was killed by an automobile near her home Friday evening December 21st, and Mrs. Estelle Bliven Perkins of New London, who died about the middle of January. During her residence in Norwich Town, Mrs. Perkins was an active member of Ever Ready circle, she and Miss Bonney being among the first members to be enrolled.

The severe rain-storm of Wednesday night and early Thursday morning, did much toward filling up streams, etc. In several locations the Yantic river was overflowing its banks, with a swift current throughout the day.

Because so few of the members were present Thursday afternoon, when the February meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church was scheduled to take place at the home of the president, Mrs. William Weaver, Huntington Green, the meeting was postponed to next week.

Rev. Mr. Potter will speak Sunday night on "The Value of Scouting" or what shall it profit a church if it gain the things of the world and lose its boys. The Boy Scouts of Troop 2 will attend in a body as will also the boys of the Wolf Cub Pack and both organizations will have a part in the service. The scoutmasters and Scouts from the other troops in the northern New London county council have been invited to attend the service which will begin at 7:15. The soloist of the evening will be Lloyd Thompson, of Thamesville, who will be accompanied by Natalie Service.

At the business session the president Doris Rose presided and there was an attendance of 22. STAGE SET FOR SETTLEMENT OF REPARATIONS PROBLEM

Keenest Financiers of the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Japan and Germany Are Assembling in Paris—J. P. Morgan, Owen D. Young and Thomas W. Lamont, the Unoffcial Representatives of the United States, Have a Staff of 34 Assistants.

PARIS, Feb. 8—(AP)—The assembling of the keenest financial brains of the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Japan and Germany, with the object of settling once for all the extent of Germany's obligations to the allies of the World war, was completed today when the unofficial American reparations delegates arrived in Paris. The Americans immediately went into conference.

J. P. Morgan, Owen D. Young and Thomas W. Lamont, the unofficial representatives of the United States, brought a staff of 34 with them. Mr. Morgan, who stands out in the minds of Frenchmen as the personification of the power of money, remained in the background at popular receptions at railroad stations and other public places. He let Mr. Young do what little talking was done but about all that the reporters got was a polite refusal to discuss the coming negotiations.

The French attitude might be summed up in the statement that Germany must pay France or this country cannot pay the United States. Yet any solution by bookkeeping methods, such as wiping off France's debt to America in return for cancellation of Germany's indebtedness to France, would be looked upon here with the utmost disfavor.

Several Belgians were present at a meeting this evening which was held in the Paris quarters of the Morgan bank. This fact was interpreted as showing the desire of the American delegates to be entirely impartial because hitherto Belgium has been committed to the French stand that Germany should pay sufficient to cover all damages to occupied territories as well as amounts equal to debts incurred by the allied governments. This viewpoint has been considered somewhat antagonistic to the reputed willingness of England and America to grant Germany a reduction in the grand total.

The task before the experts, who are to have their first general meeting at a social function next Saturday, is to find a satisfactory compromise between the number of dollars which Germany says she can pay and the amounts which the allies, headed by France, aver she is capable of paying.

SHIELDED SON WHO HAD ACCIDENTALLY SHOT HER

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 8—(AP)—Shielding her 11-year-old son, Francis, to the end, Mrs. Amy Rankin, 40, died in Maine General hospital today soon after she had been accidentally shot by the boy.

Mother instinct and fear that he might suffer for his act, apparently led her in the last moments of her life to take the blame. On the way to the hospital in an ambulance, when asked by a patrolman who fired the shot, Mrs. Rankin gasped: "I did."

On the operating table at the hospital she appealed to a surgeon repeatedly: "Can't you do something for me?" Not once, even as death approached, did she indicate her boy whom she had kept home from school because of the slippery condition of the sidewalks, was responsible.

This seemed to confirm a suicide theory, held for several hours after Francis had declared his mother had shot herself accidentally while making up a couch bed, and that they were in destitute circumstances because Frank S. Rankin, the husband, and father, had been without employment for a long time.

Later when the revolver was found hidden under a hook on a desk and their other child, Marion, returning from high school, denied the destitution story, Francis was taken to the police headquarters for questioning by County Attorney Ralph M. Ingalls.

The boy sobbingly held to his story for a time, but as the questioning continued, his voice reflecting his anguish, he finally admitted he had been playing with the loaded revolver and it was unexpectedly discharged.

He was being held pending further investigation. The father, who recently had obtained employment in New Hampshire, was notified of the tragedy in his home.

FOOT GUARD MUST PAY OWN EXPENSES TO INAUGURATION

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 8—(AP)—A trio of the First and Second company foot guard to the inauguration of President Herbert Hoover will have to be at their own expense it was stated here today, as Governor Trumbull had indicated that he was not in favor of the $10,000 appropriation made by the general assembly to cover the expenses of a military escort.

If the governor should not order out the guard the appropriation would lapse and a veto of the appropriation bill would not be necessary for the general assembly might pass the bill over executive disaproval.

The incident, it was further stated, would not prevent Troop A cavalry and Company E, 242nd coast artillery, Milford from going at their own expense.

ARRESTS OF 50 STRIKING N. Y. GARMENT WORKERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—(AP)—Fifty arrests were made today the third day of a strike in the garment industry called by the recently organized Needle Trades Workers' union, a left wing organization opposing the American Federation of Labor.

The arrest of 77 persons yesterday apparently had little effect on efforts at mass picketing in the crowded garment center. Today's prisoners, most of them women, were taken into custody on disorderly conduct charges after ignoring police orders to disperse.

Of those arrested yesterday 24 got suspended sentences, seven were held for hearing on charges of wrecking a garment shop, one man was fined $5 but preferred to go to jail rather than pay it, and the others were discharged.

RICE'S SISTER IS PREPARED TO DEFEND HER BROTHER

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 8—(AP)—Mrs. Florence Wakeling, of New Rochelle, N. Y., sister of Trenor A. Rice, deputy sheriff confined to the Brooklyn county jail, pending grand jury action into the death of County Detective William E. Jackson, arrived here today prepared to assist her brother in fighting the charge of murder placed against him.

With her husband, Arthur Wakeling, she immediately went to the office of William A. King and Samuel B. Harvey, both counsel for Rice, where they held a two hour discussion. Mrs. Edna Shorter Rice, wife of the accused man, who is understood to be willing to drop a pending divorce action against her husband, was present in the office part of the time.

Later in the day, Mrs. Wakeling went to see her brother, at the jail and talked over plans for his legal battle in the event that a true bill for murder is returned by the grand jury in Putnam on Monday.

Mrs. Wakeling before making the trip to Brooklyn, denied statements made by her brother Frederick S. Rice, New York broker that $1,000,000 from a trust fund would be available for the defense. She stated that the stories were "purely imaginative" and if made by her brother he was not responsible. Since Tuesday, Frederick Rice has been staying at the home of his sister in Canterbury.

The money from the trust fund, Mrs. Wakeling said, is shared in by two brothers and two sisters, and is not as large as published reports have stated.

Detective Edward J. Hickey, of Hartford, who has been working incessantly on the case, was away from the city for a short time this morning but arrived back later in the day. Following a half hour conference in the office of Police Chief Thomas F. Grady with Patrolman Arthur Hurley, he reported he had nothing to say.

(Spec[illegible] Bulletin)

HARTFO[illegible], Feb. 6—For a Friday session the at[illegible]nce at the legislative session today [illegible]as unusually large. The session was short, lasting only eighteen minutes. But one item was on the calendar and action on that was delayed as the bill had not been printed. It is an act limiting the height of buildings adjacent to the state capitol.

An unfavorable report from the judiciary committee on the repeal of the standard time law brought Mr. Diana, of New Haven, its author, to his feet in protest against its rejection as recommended by the committee. He tried to have it placed on the calendar for printing but the house would not dispose of it that way and with but a few protesting votes adopted the report of the committee.

WNTRY WEATHER IN THE LOWER MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 8—(AP)—Winter blew its icy breath deep into the lower Mississippi valley tonight after bringing the coldest weather of the season to the west and southwest and at some places the heaviest snowfall in several years.

Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky and Tennessee were feeling the storm with rain, snow and lower temperatures, while in the Rocky Mountain and the northern plains states the skies were clearing and there was some relief from the intense cold.

Reports reaching Salt Lake City told of the finding of the frozen body of Jack Booth, caretaker of the Schofield dam, who was overcome by the cold and lay down to die a mile from his home. Two motorists trapped in a snow drift near Colton, Utah, saved themselves from freezing to death by burning the tires and upholstery of their car until rescuers arrived.

Temperatures in northern Utah dropped to 24 degrees below zero this morning and at Idaho Falls and Blackfoot, Idaho, it was 30 below.

At points in Wyoming and Montana the mercury sank as low as 40 below zero. Colorado Springs, Col., reported a mark of 16 below.

The edge of the frigid weather in the Rocky Mountain states was tempered today, however, when sunny skies returned.

Replies To Group Of Women Dry Leaders

President of Bay State Senate Says Action Was Based on Instructions of the Voters.

BOSTON, Feb. 8—(AP)—Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the state senate, today issued a statement in reply to a group of women dry leaders who attacked him and other senators for their recent action in passing a resolution calling upon congress to take action for the repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The senator emphasized that the action of the senate was based upon the specific instructions of the voters in 34 of the senatorial districts, who in the last election, adopted, by a large plurality, a measure instructing their senators to so memorialize congress.

"Your quarrel, ladies, is with the people, and not with those who are trying to carry out the express instructions of the people," he said.

Senator Bacon's statement was in response to a joint statement signed by Mrs. Ella G. Gleason and Mrs. Alice G. Ropes, honorary president and vice president, respectively, of the Massachusetts Women's Christian Temperance union; Mrs. F. E. Crawford and Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, chairmen, respectively, of the Massachusetts and the New England Women's committees for law enforcement. In their statement, the women called upon republican women "to change or educate your leadership."

The senator pointed out that the total vote in favor of instructing the senators to memorialize congress was 707,352, that the vote against was 422,655 and that the total number of persons voting at the election in the districts concerned who did not vote on the question was only 310,244.

"With these instructions before them and with the results of the vote in the several senatorial districts, the members of the senate were obliged to take action to carry out the instructions. They certainly could not ignore the expressed wishes of a majority of their constituents," he said.

He referred to a portion of their statement in which the women said that the resolution had been "rushed" through the senate and said that such an accusation could be based only on "an utter misunderstanding of legislative procedure."

DE VALERA SERVING ONE MONTH'S IMPRISONMENT

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Feb. 8—(AP)—Eamon De Valera tonight began serving a sentence of one month's imprisonment after his conviction on a charge of violating the civil authorities act forbidding his entry into northern Ireland territory.

At the conclusion of evidence regarding the republican leader's arrest on Tuesday at the Ulster border, Patrick J. O'Donoghue, the presiding magistrate, gave De Valera an opportunity to speak in his own defense. The defendant, who had been taken off the Dublin train at Newry while en route to Belfast to open a Gaelic bazaar, replied in Gaelic:

"Irish is not the language of these courts". The magistrate responded, "the official language is English."

The crown solicitor then interposed with the remark that De Valera understood English and was merely playacting when he spoke Gaelic.

In passing sentence the magistrate said that De Valera by his demeanor, not only failed to offer any reason or excuse but seemed to have flouted the whole administration of justice in northern Ireland and expressed the belief that the defendant was there in consequence of his own deliberate act.

SLAYER OF GEN. OBREGON TO BE EXECUTED AT NOON

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 8—(AP)—Jose De Leon Toral tonight spent the last hours of his life in prayer in the death cell of the penitentiary on the outskirts of the capital where at noon tomorrow he will face a firing squad in fulfillment of the death sentence imposed for assassinating President Elect Alvaro Obregon on July 17.

President Emilio Portes Gil today denied his appeal for executive clemency, which was his sole remaining hope. Relatives were permitted to pay final visits to him today. As soon as Governor Jose Manuel Puig-Casuarac of the federal district received the final papers from the San Angel court where Toral was tried he notified the director of the penitentiary to carry out the sentence at noon tomorrow.

BILL TO REORGANIZE THE CENTRAL VERMONT RAILROAD

MONTPELIER, Vt., Feb. 8—(AP)—A bill dealing with reorganization of the Central Vermont railroad was introduced in the legislature today. It provides for a foreclosure sale of the property, which has been in receivership since 1927, and for organization of a new Vermont company to take title to the property. It would also enable the Canadian National railways to own stocks and bonds of the new company and have the same relations with the new organization as it did with the old.

REACTION IN CONGRESS TO FED. RESERVE STATEMENT

Resolutions Were Introduced in Both Houses Regarding the Board's Condemnation of Speculative Loans—Leaders in Both Senate and House Are Inclined to Regard the Subject as Outside Their Domain—It is Generally Conceded That the Subject is Too Involved to Permit Corrective Legislation at This Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(AP)—The attention of congress was directed today to the federal reserve board's statement on speculative loans with the introduction of resolutions in both the house and senate, regarding the board's action.

Representative Black, of New York, offered a resolution proposing an inquiry into the board's declaration while Senator Heflin of Alabama, asked that the board be requested to submit a corrective for the speculative ills of which it complains. Neither resolution was acted upon.

There was, however, plenty of private discussion around the capitol of the tumble on the stock exchange following the board's warning on Wednesday night against extended use of federal reserve funds for speculative purposes. But leaders in both the senate and house were inclined to regard the subject as outside their domain.

The Heflin resolution went over until tomorrow without debate at the request of Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the republican leader. The measure among other things, would have the senate ask the board to explain recent increases in federal reserve rediscount rates.

The Black proposal was referred to the house banking committee which already is contemplating a general study of the banking situation. Chairman McFadden, of that committee is one of those displeased with the board's action. He has been planning a general study of banking and there were indications that this might be turned into a particular study of the recent development.

Senator Glass, of Virginia, secretary of the treasury, during the Wilson administration, is one of those who has been giving considerable thought to the question of how far the federal reserve funds may be loaned for use on the stock market. He has introduced a bill intended to withhold more of the money in reserve and keep it from the exchanges.

However, it is generally conceded that the subject is too involved to permit of corrective legislation at this session. Nor does there seem to be any tendency to push for action. The treasury department is still studying Mr. Glass' proposal.

The big stumbling block bothering congress and apparently annoying the federal reserve board is the need for a definition of just what is speculation and also a determination of just when a loan is made for speculative purposes. It is denied that all loans by member banks of the federal reserve system to brokers on account of stocks and bonds for speculative purposes and because of this the question is asked by interested members of congress what is a speculative loan. It is feared that legislation to be effective would have to contain a definition of speculation and this is admittedly a big task.

The senate banking committee held its regular session today, but the question did not come up. There was informal discussion of it among some of the members prior to the meeting but no conclusions were reached or voiced.

THE HOOVERS ARE NOT ACCEPTING INVITATIONS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8—(AP)—The President-elect and Mrs. Hoover have disappointed socially the wealthy winter colony of Miami and Miami Beach. They literally have been showered with invitations to functions of various sorts, but thus far have accepted none.

In fact since their arrival more than two weeks ago, they have lived in virtual seclusion on Belle Isle or on the houseboat on which they have made a couple of excursions to the fishing grounds off the Florida Keys down in the vicinity of Key West.

On those trips they were accompanied by a number of old friends and they have had many other friends in for luncheon and dinner at the pre-inaugural home on Belle Isle. The only invitation they have accepted was that to a private luncheon given in their honor yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. K. Curtis aboard the Philadelphia publisher's yacht, the Lyndonia, in Biscayne Bay.

The latest invitation to come to Mr. and Mrs. Hoover is that from the committee of one hundred, composed of winter residents of the twin resort cities, to attend the first annual ball of those residents to be given one week from tonight at the Nautilus hotel in Miami Beach. The committee proposed to provide a presidential box for the next chief executive and first lady.

The invitation was declined with the explanation that Mr. Hoover on that date would be engaged in his inspection of the Okeechobee flood district of southern Florida.

FANNIE BRICE, SINGER, WEDS WILLIAM ROSENBERG

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—(AP)—Fannie Brice, singer, was married today to William Rosenberg, who writes songs under the name of Billy Rose. Mayor Walker officiated, reading the brief civil ceremony and a translation of the Jewish marriage text.

The mayor kissed the bride and remarked with a smile that "it didn't hurt a bit." The groom suggested that he give the mayor one dollar of the marriage fee as down payment and the other later "if it's a success."

The marriage was performed in the reception room at city hall. Before going to city hall the couple got their license in the municipal building. Rosenberg giving his age as 29 and Miss hers as 37. The bride gave her maiden name, Fannie Borach.

It was Miss Miss Brice's third marriage, her last husband being Nicky Arnstein whom she divorced in Chicago. The first marriage ended in divorce at Springfield, Mass.

STIFF OPPOSITION TO THE APPEALS OF WOOL GROWERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(AP)—Appeals of wool growers for a higher tariff on their raw product ran up against stiff opposistion from clothing manufacturers at the third day's hearing on wool duties today before the house ways and means committee.

Appearing for 30 manufacturers employing 50,000 persons, William Goldman, of New York, opposed the growers' proposal to increase the present rate of 31 cents a pound on the clean content of wool in the grease to between 36 and 40 cents on the ground that it would place an unnecessary additional burden on consumers' clothing costs. There already were $200,000,000 a year on account of the tariff, he said.

STEAMER FROM BOSTON NOT HEARD FROM SINCE JAN. 12

MANILA, Feb. 8—(AP)—The steamer Illyra, which left Boston, Mass., last October, carrying a number of scientists, bound for the South Sea Islands, has not been heard from since January 12. Insular customs authorities here have received a message from the American embassy at Tokyo asking aid in locating the vessel.

The Illyra, a two-masted vessel, was under charter to Cornelius Crane of Chicago, and was last heard off Turk island in the Caroline group.

Scientists here say the vessel had no fixed course and they take the hopeful view that the vessel has entered an area from which it cannot make their radio heard.

DEATH OF EDWIN DENBY, FORMER SECRETARY OF NAVY

DETROIT, Feb. 8—(AP)—Edwin Denby, who as secretary of the navy in the cabinet of President Harding, approved and was relegated to political oblivion by the Teapot Dome oil scandal, died while he slept today in his home in the Whittier apartments here. He was found dead in bed by his wife, Mrs. Marian Thurber Denby, when she awoke soon after 8 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Denby was aroused by a slight restlessness on her husband's part at 5 a. m., but this seemingly was only momentary and he apparently fell asleep again. He was dead when she attempted to arouse him three hours later. Denby would have been 59 years old on February 18.

Besides Mrs. Denby, their daughter, Marian, 13, was in the apartment at the time. A son, Edwin, Jr., 16, is a student at the Severn school, in Maryland. Three brothers, Charles Denby, of Washington, Wythe Denby, of Chicago, and Garvin Denby, of New York, also survive.

A huge, rock-like figure of a man, Denby apparently was in his usual good health when he retired Thursday night. Only recently he had undergone a physical examination and been pronounced in good condition.

A love for the sea was deeply ingrained in "Ned" Denby, as his friends called him. His father was at one time U. S. minister to China, but Denby insisted upon enlisting in the navy during the Spanish-American war as a plain gob—a gunner's mate, third class on the U. S. S. Yosemite. Came the World war, and Denby enlisted as a leatherneck, a private in the marine corps, from which he was mustered out as a major.

While his resignation as secretary of the navy on his birthday in 1924, virtually forced by his connection with the Teapot Dome affair, was a bitter blow to him, he turned it in without bitterness in his heart. To some 200 navy and marine officers who gathered to do him honor on the night before he left the navy department, Denby said:

"I am trying to die with my face to the enemy. I am trying to be brave and go through with this. I am leaving in body, but my spirit always will be with the navy."

FIRE DESTROYED ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE RECORDS

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 8—(AP)—Many records of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league were destroyed by a fire in the heart of the business district which brought out all available fire fighting apparatus there. A night watchman, was injured. The fire, which started in a large clothing warehouse spread quickly to a furniture warehouse adjacent and then to a third building across the street.

The league records were in one of the buildings that was destroyed. Firemen brought the fire under control after a two hour battle. The loss was expected to reach several hundred thousand dollars.

FLAGS AT HALF-MAST ON DAY OF DENBY FUNERAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—All the navy's warships and stations were ordered today by Secretary Wilbur to fly their flags at half mast on the day of the funeral of former Secretary Edwin Denby. The tribute is a usual custom of the navy upon the death of a former secretary.

Mr. Wilbur also announced that the navy would be represented at the funeral by some of its officers. In a statement the secretary said Mr. Denby's death came as a complete surprise because on a recent visit to Washington he appeared to be in excellent health and spirits.

"We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family," the secretary said.

FED STEAK TO DOG; BUT NOT TO HER HUSBAND

NEW BRITAIN, Feb. 8—(AP)—Felix Setnick today told the court that because his wife feeds steaks to their dog and won't give him any he struck her in the face. Judge William S. Mangan replied that he had no right to strike his wife, but had just provocation and continued the case for a week. Setnick was arraigned on an assault charge preferred by his wife.

RICE'S SISTER ARRIVES TO CONFER WITH TRENOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 8—Decisive developments in the investigation of the murder of County Detective William E. Jackson for which Deputy Sheriff Trenor A. Rice is now being held at the county jail as a suspect, were again at a standstill today. The authorities are concentrating their efforts in compiling major evidence for proper presentation to the grand jury at Putnam next Monday.

The note of interest in relation to the case today was the arrival, this morning, of Arthur C. Wakeling and his wife, Florence R. Wakeling, the younger of Rice's two sisters. Mrs. Wakeling reiterated that the stories of fabulous wealth at the command of the Rice family as told by her brother, Frederic S. Rice, were purely mythical. Trenor Rice does draw an income from a trust fund in which he shares with his brother and two sisters. Mrs. Wakeling said that she understood that Frederic Rice was intoxicated about all of the time that he was in Willimantic and she added that the man is not responsible for what he says when under the influence of liquor. Frederic Rice gave the newspapers a real chase with his stories of money and of his plan to secure such noted counsel as Clarence Darrow and Samuel Untermeyer. It is believed that owing to his conduct while here the defense counsel were instrumental in preventing him from having an interview with his brother at the jail and in inducing him to leave the city and remain at the home of Mrs. Trenor Rice's parents in Canterbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Wakeling went to Brooklyn this afternoon to visit Trenor at the jail. They were accompanied by the defense counsel, Attorneys William A. King and Samuel B. Harvey.

Speaking as corporation counsel for the city of Willimantic, Attorney King stated this afternoon that suitable resolutions on the death of Alderman William E. Jackson would be introduced at the February meeting of the common council next Monday night.

At the Twenty-ninth anniversary of the establishment of the Y. M. C. A. celebration, held in the "Y" building, Thursday night, attractive desk clocks were presented to James L. Harroun, first president, and H. Clinton Lathrop, first treasurer of the association. The reception to the first officers and directors of the organization was followed by various events in the gymnasium with Charles W. Hill as master of ceremonies. The minutes of the first meeting, held April 11, 1900, were read by George S. Elliott, who was then recording secretary and has been a director or trustee considerable of the time during the intervening years. Photographs of Messrs. Harroun and Lathrop and of the late Fred D. Jordan were then presented to the association. They were received with appropriate remarks by President James B. Fullerton. Refreshments were served after the festivities by a committee in charge of C. C. Case.

The Y. M. C. A. was founded February 7, 1900, as a local unit, with the first officers: J. L. Harroun, president; W. N. Potter, vice president, H. C. Lathrop, treasurer and Charles L. Crane, director. The presidents and their terms, who have served since the organization are: J. L. Harroun, February 7, 1900 to April 15, 1913; Fred D. Jordan, April 15, 1913 to May 3, 1920; Robert H. Fenton, May 3, 1920 to October 1, 1923; and James B. Fullerton from October 1, 1923 to date.

All roads will lead to Willimantic today, (Saturday) when hundreds of shoppers from throughout eastern Connecticut will flock to the great bargain feast being staged by over 80 of the leading merchants affiliated with the Merchants' bureau of the chamber of commerce. Counters and shelves have been heavily stocked with a delightful variety of special Dollar day merchandise and new spring goods. Owing to the fact that all parking restrictions were lifted some time ago, shoppers will not be hampered by time-limits and other problems involved in a visit to the average city. The fire district on Bank street and the north side of Union street are the only two places in the city where parking is not allowed without time limit. Most of the stores will open at 8 o'clock and business is expected to start at a brisk pace during the morning hours. The closing hour has been set for 9 p. m. Additional names left out of the announcement of merchants participating in the Dollar day sale are: Economy Grocery store, 798 Main street, Fadlou Saba, 77 Milk street and Frank P. Lombardo, 763 Main street. All stores listed by the Merchants' bureau will be designated by bright yellow official posters and shoppers are asked to seek these out as assurance that values are being offered in the store they are about to visit.

The funeral of Mrs. Delima Lavigne was held from 31 Union street this morning with a high mass of requiem in St. Mary's church, at 9 o'clock. Rev. Edward A. Mathieu was the celebrant and Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau presided at the organ. The body was placed in the receiving vault of St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by Rev. R. rooms, Thursday night, on the death of Past Commander William E. Jackson. A letter of appreciation to the camp members for assistance in their hour of sorrow was read from the Jackson family. The meeting was in charge of Officer of the Day Frank Teevan, presiding as past commander, in the absence of Commander David Loree, who was unable to be present. Joseph LaFlamme was mustered into the organization as a new comrade. The communications were read by Adjutant Robert O. Snow. It is planned to hold a special meeting February 21, when the induction of three to four new comrades will take place. The closing business was an order by Quartermaster J. A. McCarthy that current bills be paid.

The Mathieu Trio, in instrumental numbers and specialty dances, and Edward G. Rocheville, vocalist, appeared as the feature entertainment this evening at the Knights of Columbus Boys' band carnival now underway at the town hall. The police court struck a new wrinkle in the various lines of endeavor this morning when James Aylward, of Fall River, Mass., replied to a question as to the nature of his occupation that he was "drinking a little." It was apparent to the court that the man had "overworked" himself and he was sen to the county jail for a 30-day rest.

Henry Ford's agent in his collection of antiques, W. W. Taylor, of Sudbury, Mass., has become interested in the 200-year-old pair of hames mentioned in The Bulletin some time ago as the property of Fred LeClair, local truckman. The hames, which were part of a harness and were cleverly wrought of wood and heavy leather, by hand, are now on display in a Main street show window. Mr. Taylor awaited Mr. LeClair's return from a moving job oiday to propose the purchase of the hames which are regarded as one of the most antique pieces of harness ever seen in this section.

The workers' council of the Baptist Sunday school held a meeting in the church vestry this evening, opening with a supper at 6:15 o'clock. Harold Nichols, superintendent of the Sunday school, was in charge of the session, the purpose of which was to discuss plans for the work during the ensuing year. The workers' council is composed of Sunday school department officers and teachers.

An appeal to automobile drivers not to park cars in the immediate vicinity of the scene of a fire was issued today by Fire Chief Wade U. Webster. The department has been severely handicapped on past occasions by the cluttering up of street space adjacent to a fire by automobiles. This has put the handling of the apparatus by the firemen, to a serious disadvantige. Chief Webster stated today that unless the appeal had some effect he would appeal to the police to take action.

Lieutenant Edward P. Leahy entertained at police headquarters today, Police Captain S. J. Tobin, City Court Judge John E. Fiske and Alfred Newmarker, teller of the People's Savings bank at Rockville. The visitors were favorably impressed by the notable improvements made in the cell room and by the metropolitan equipment provided for the department.

WESTMINSTER

Inclusive with the morning service at the Congregational church Feb. 17, the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln will be observed. The pastor Rev. Harry E. Small will lead in paying tribute to the memory of two outstanding names in American history.

Local friends of Deputy Sheriff Trenor Rice held for the murder of County Detective William E. Jackson are confident of his complete exoneration when the case comes up for hearing in the police court at Willimantic Feb. 14th. Before moving to Chaplin, Deputy Rice lived in Westminster for several years on the Elmer Bennett homestead which he bought when the late Elmer E. Bennett moved to Plainfield. His wife, a former Canterbury girl, is living with their four children with her mother, Mrs. Ida Shorter.

Colds are still going strong up this way. As fast as one family recovers another succumbs to the particularly troublesome form of colds which is sweeping through this vicinity.

Miss Florence Jones spent the week end with friends in Plainfield.

Following the mid-year exams which he passed successfully, Edwin E Small, a junior at Yale university, made a brief visit with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Harry E. Small, at the parsonage.

RED CROSS EXPLAINS ABOUT GINGERBREAD HEARTS

The local Red Cross has received this week the following interesting letter. Something of interest was heard relative to this subject, by a Jewett City resident at a lecture in Norwich, two weeks ago, on Jan. 26.

Gingerbread Hearts Bring St. Valentine's Greetings to American Juniors from Abroad

In gratitude to the American Junior Red Cross for aid given through the National Children's fund to establish the Junior Red Cross of the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, the school children of Zagreb, Jugo-Slavia have sent to American school children several thousand paper replicas of the famous "Heart of Gingerbread." The pretty paper hearts, strung on the kingdom's national colors, red, white and blue, so that they may be used as book marks, will be divided between the national headquarters in Washington and the branch headquarters in St. Louis and San Francisco, for distribution on St. Valentine's day. The hearts bear two inscriptions. "Love for love, to our friends in America" and "a present from the juniors in Zagreb, to their friends in the United States of America." In an accompanying letter, the story of the gingerbread heart is told. Although its use is very similar to the practice of exchanging valentines in vogue in America and some continental countries, the gingerbread heart is not reserved for February 14, but is exchanged between sweethearts, friends and relatives on all days of church festivals or holiday. The hearts, baked of the sweet cake, are elaborately decorated with the national ornaments, and in their exchange their symbol is "Love for love—heart for heart". A large gingerbread heart accompanied the gift of the paper hearts to the American juniors, and in its center it bore this message, worked in sugar about a small mirror. Several portfolios, telling of the customs of the kingdom, and illustrated with Kodak pictures, also were received. The real gingerbread heart and the portfolios will be sent by the American Junior Red Cross as a part of their exhibit material to all schools interested in the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. American school children receiving the paper hearts on St. Valentine's day will be asked to prepare exhibits of their own activities, to send in return to the schools of Zagreb.

In a letter explaining about the gingerbread hearts, the Zagreb juniors wrote, "Our hearts of paper send you thousands of warms hearty and cordial greetings of love, as on each of them there is engraved from our lips a warm, friendly kiss." This charming gift from Jugo-Slavia is a part of the international correspondence which American school children carry on with school children of many nations, building good will and understanding through the Junior Red Cross.

GRISWOLD BOY MAKES GOOD IN CALIFORNIA

Local friends of Paul Potter, son of John Potter of Griswold, are pleased to hear from him this week from his home in Fontana, California. The young man, now about 30, is a native of Griswold where he is well remembered by many who were his young friends before the war.

He studied eight years to complete his education, four years in the academy at New Hampton, N. H., and four years at the Bates university, Waterville, Me. In Fontana, which is in one of the southern countries of California, he has established a sign decorating and painting business, which includes several branches of color advertising. During the young man's last trip across the continent, he travelled by way of the Sunset route, which gave him opportunity to photograph points and scenes of interest along the route. He has sent to his father here an album of two dozen mounted views which serve to show his friends the picturesque country through which the Santa Fe limited is routed.

Plans are underway for a grand school celebration at the new hall in Newent. A supper is to be served, after which there will be an attractive program by the pupils of the town. The new hall has been equipped with the latest model of motion picture machines, and in connection with the pupils' past, there will be a number of interesting reels.

MRS. WILLIAM BARCHINE CUT WHEN CAR IS OVERTURNED

Mr. and Mrs. William Barchine, who live about a mile north of the church, were painfully injured in an automobile accident early Wednesday morning. When going down the hill near the home of John Valley, Mrs. Barchine attempted to turn out for Fred Brown, driving a team of horses to pass. The wheel of the car caught in a deep rut and broke the axle. The car turned a complete somersault into the ditch. Mr. Brown and Mrs. Barchine, who was as badly injured as his wife, extricated her from the overturned car. She was badly cut and bruised and there is fear that she may be injured internally. She was taken to her home nearby. The car which was practically new is a wreck.

NOTHING STARTLING IN REPORT OF AUDITORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 8—There is nothing startling in the report of the certified public accountants who recently audited the books of the town of Killingly—nothing whatsoever. The report is a very complete and analytical one, covering the period from Aug. 1, 1922, to July 31, 1928, six full financial years. The detail of the report is so complete as to indicate the thoroughness with which Mahoney, Bowen and Co., of New York, performed their work and sets at rest any belief that may have existed that major discrepancies might be found in the town's records.

This afternoon the special committee of the town appointed at a special town meeting to employ certified accountants to make the audit—Attorney E. L. Darbie, chairman, Frank J. Gorman and Patrick Riley—met in the office of Attorney Darbie and studied the report. Mr. Darbie said later that the committee will recommend the calling of a special town meeting to be held immediately following the adjournment of the adjourned town meeting next month that the report may be presented to it in detail and any advisable action taken.

The auditors' report contains some recommendations, chiefly as to replacing the present single entry system with double entry bookkeeping, a suggestion that may be adopted, as it is known to be favored by members of the town's official family. Another recommendation is that the town treasurer, who now pays the great majority of the charges against the town with a town order, good at any bank or trust company, but does pay some accounts in cash, pay only by order. Still another suggestion is that when the banks collect on town orders, many times coming in groups of a dozen or more at once, that the check given in payment of them be somewhere noted in the records as paying specific orders, with their numbers. Another suggestion, having to do with town farm finances, is that, for instance, and entry should read—100 dozen eggs at 43 cents per dozen. $43.00, instead of the less definite "eggs. $43.00."

It will be seen from this that the report of the auditors has to do with suggestions for improving bookkeeping methods, in order that all details of any particular transaction may be easily traced, even after those who had to do with them have retired from office, as well as with the careful check of all business transacted in the six year period mentioned.

The report deals in one section with uncollected taxes, overdue to the town. It shows, too, a discrepancy having to do with tax items that have been paid remaining as unpaid on the books. These items were paid by Former Collector George Williams, it develops from the checkup, but he never credited his account with the payments.

From various standpoints the auditors' report is very satisfactory. It removes suspicion of shortages in official accounts, it satisfies those who hold it is good business to have such an audit from time to time and it brings valuable suggestions for improving the town's system of accounting. The cost of the audit was $2,000. In making it the auditors checked through transactions involving the expenditure of $1,718,039.05.

OBITUARY.

Rev. John Rice Pratt.

Rev. John Rice Pratt, who died yesterday in Brooklyn, had a highly useful, interesting and eventful career. A native of Milford, N. Y., where he was born in 1870, Rev. Mr. Pratt moved to New York city when he was but 10 years of age. He was graduated from a grammar school there, later moving to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he prepared for college at Adelphi academy and then entered New York university, from which he was graduated and where the excellence of his scholarship won Phi Beta Kappa honors. He was a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity. His university course completed he began his studies in the Theological seminary of New York.

At the age of 18 he joined Dr. R. R. Meredith's church in Brooklyn, N. Y., the largest Congregational church in the United States and the second largest of the denomination in the world. It was in this church, in 1901, that he was ordained to the ministry. His marriage to Mrs. Pratt, who survives him, was in 1897, and their wedding journey took them to Bermuda, a trip several times repeated during the more than 30 years of their married life.

For three years he ministered to the Waverly Congregational church in Jersey City as associate pastor, with a Rev. Mr. Briggs, later president of Straight college in New Orleans. In 1904, Rev. Mr. Pratt became pastor of the Verona, N. J., Congregational church, and faithfully served there for 16 years.

In this congregation he organized, equipped and financed a summer camp for the people of the church and maintained this camp for 12 years. Rev. Mr. Pratt also had the distinction while in Verona of serving as mayor of the city. Always deeply interested in boys' work, he organized three different castles of Knights of King Arthur in Verona and also organized a robed choir for the church. Attesting his very affectionate interest in young people is the fact that he during the course of his life time liberally assisted in sending several of them through college courses. The outstanding monument to his work in Verona is the beautiful Congregational church built during his pastorate. The church has a basement that will accommodate 500 people and a gymnasium where boys' brigades drill and banquets are held. For his activities in behalf of patriotism during the World war he received a certificate of appreciation from President Wilson for himself and for his church.

With all his crowded life and varied activities he found time for some delightful journeyings. In 1909, with Mrs. Pratt, he made a tour of the Orient, that extended through several months. Their travels took them a total of 15,000 miles. They camped in the Holy Land, riding horseback from Jerusalem to Nazareth. Prior to coming to Brooklyn as pastor of its Congregational church in 1919, Rev. Mr. Pratt motored to California to join Mrs. Pratt and return through the Yosemite and California big tree country. Brooklyn will greatly miss Rev. Mr. Pratt. He organized there a Men's club, two boys' clubs, the Boy Scouts and Friendly Indians, all proving their value as time went by. Rev. Mr. Pratt was a member of the Masonic order and of Brooklyn grange.

There will be representatives of the Killingly Woman's club in Hartford next Friday at a special meeting of the Connecticut State Federation of Women's clubs for the consideration and sponsoring of bills that will come before the present session of the legislature and in which women of the state have an active interest. Measures in which the federation members are particularly interested are these having to do with jury service for women, an act concerning the local regulation of milk, outdoor advertising regulation, interstate placement of children, child welfare matters, codification of shade tree laws and various other matters.

The utter lack of science that allows some people to do just about anything that their mind conceives has a shameful illustration in the efforts of one family of Killingly feigning poverty and seeking aid from the town, in a period of real distress for many, when they are getting sufficient revenue from their earnings every week to live comfortable. This particular family fell under suspicion as grafters and were subjected to a careful checking up by the selectmen. The checkup revealed that three of the five members of the family are regularly employed, earn a total of $54 weekly and are under no great burden of overhead expense. It is cases like this one that set the selectmen to seeking some legal means by which such people can be duly punished for their dishonest misrepresentations.

Selectman Napoleon P. Gingras has harvested and stored 500 tons of 10-inch ice at Alexander's lake, where he has had an ice house for years.

Attorney E. L. Darbie is the newly elected deputy grand master of the Connecticut Grand lodge of Masons, which has been in session at Hartford this week.

Being first selectman in Killingly is no soft snap these February days. In that capacity Charles A. Tillinghast is putting in about 10 hours each day, mostly in investigating and giving other attention to calls for relief from poor families.

For the time being only a very few persons are at work at the big plant of the Assawaga mill at Dayville, this being the dull between-seasons period. Samples for the new lines are being produced meanwhile.

Killingly High school students who are to play in the new band are scurrying about in numbers of instances getting instruments.

Ash Wednesday services at St. Alban's church will be at 10 a. m., litany and holy communion, a children's service at 4 p. m. and penitential office at 7.30, Rev. J. Rees Jones, the rector, announced.

Out of Central Village comes the tale of several ducks being frozen in the ice near the River street bridge on a recent morning. The ducks are owned in that vicinity.

Nason Oatley, who is seriously ill, was reported as slightly better this morning.

Next Tuesday being Lincoln's birthday, banks in Danielson will be closed all day. Schools will be in session as usual.

A joint meeting of the Ladies' Prayer circle and W. C. T. U. is to be held Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the parlors of the Westfield Congregational church.

New 6-room cottage for sale, price $4200, necessary cash $1200. J. C. Witter.—adv.

Rev. and Mrs. Leonard R. Richards of Pomfret were visitors in Danielson today.

Mrs. Nelson Gauthler of Broad street and George Dupre were winners of the first honor at the Telephone Employes' association whist last evening, while consolation honors went to Miss Edna Taylor and William Johnson.

It seems that matter of a reduction in fire insurance rates for Danielson is not such a glamourous thing as appears at first glance. True, there has been a reduction, but it was made after a smart jacking up of the rates in force up to about a year ago, and the new rates while lower than they were a year ago are higher than they were before the advance was made. This may be explained more simply by stating that the bills for any given amount of fire insurance now on certain classes of risks are higher than they were two years ago, not lower.

SEVERAL ATTEMPTED BREAKS FOUND IN BUSINESS SECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 8—Burglars entered the furniture store of Blanchette and Brodeur on Main street last evening were frightened away from the storehouse before they were given an opportunity to obtain the layout of the large store. The grocery store of Edward Mullan on Union square was also a target of the burglars, but before they could make their way into the provisions house someone also sent them away. After the news of the attempted thefts spread John Strobells, owner of the building on Main street bearing his name, made an investigation of the condition of the secluded entrances on Bundy street and reported to the police that the sneak thieves had used a jimmy on one of the doors, but were unable to pry the lock to make their way in.

Capt. William Jarvis and Sergt Liard of the local police were today investigating the theft attempts. In the furniture store, which is located in the Victory theatre block, entry was made through a door in the rear of the structure. Footprints, indicated that the men had entered the store, but a check up of stock, revealed nothing had been taken.

In the grocery store, a panel in the rear of the store was broken out, but no tell tale markings were present to indicate that the burglars had entered and stock was intact, Mr. Mullan told the police today.

Capt. Jarvis said this afternoon, that he was reasonably sure that no consideration had been given to the Strombells block, since the markings on the door were caused by some employe, who had used force to open the door.

Capt. Jarvis is to round up a group of suspects for questioning regarding the attempted breaks.

Officers, performing duty in the business section last evening reported today that they observed nothing unusual while making their rounds and latching the doors.

FIRE TRUCK AND AUTO IN COLLISION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 8—The Hook and Ladder Co. of the Putnam Fire department and a Chevrolet sedan, owned by A. R. Saundstrom of West Thompson crashed tonight at the intersection of Mechanic and School streets. The fire apparatus was returning from a chimney blaze in the Dam Tavern section, and the Chevrolet came out of Mechanic street, making the left turn, sideswiping the ladder truck. Mrs. P. Reilly of West Thompson, a passenger in the Saundstrom car received a number of severe gashes about the face and hand from flying glass from the windshield. She was taken to a local nurse's home and treated for her injuries.

This may sound strange, but nevertheless it occurred in a local barber shop today—"Patrons who purchase a shave in this shop today will be given the shaving mug and lather brush used," read a sign in the shop, which attracted much attention throughout the day. Several were seen leaving the barber shop in possession of a bright mug, with gold letters across the exterior portions, the name of some patron, who has long since passed to his eternal reward.

It was learned that the barber, was cleaning house in anticipation of the early arrival of spring and in doing so thought it a wise plan to encourage new patrons, by awarding each of his patrons a mug. The offer was for one day only since there were only enough of the shaving necessities to last but during the business hours of Friday.

A meeting of the Anslem Mayotte post of American Legion was held last evening in the Community rooms of the Putnam Savings bank. The gathering was largely attended by the post members, and plans were completed for the district meeting of the American Legion posts to be held in this city on Sunday. The committees in charge of the event reported all details were complete and ready for the delegations which will gather in the Elks hall on Main street Sunday afternoon, the guests of the Anslem Mayotte post No. 13.

An inaugural screening of motion pictures, which were projected in St. Mary's hall on Marshall street by the newly acquired machines, was held this afternoon. The showing of about five reels of educational film was done before the entire student body of St. Mary's parochial school and a number of guests of Rev. U. O. Bellerose pastor of the church.

Officer Alpherie Sponcey of the Putnam police was relieved from duty today to enter the services of County Detective Hickey, leading official on the investigation of the murder of County Detective William E. Jackson of Willimantic. Officer Sponcey was directed to Boston with a packet, its destination or contents not being disclosed by the police.

The Collegiate Hop, given last evening in the Putnam high school auditorium was largely attended by the student body and their friends and parents. Music for the dancing was furnished by a novelty group of musicians from Providence, and with the aid of colored lights presented a number of fancy dances. The hop is one of the many post Lenten social events.

The annual entertainment presented each year by the pupils of Miss Etta Whiting's class of the Israel Putnam school, was held Friday evening in the auditorium of the school before a large audience.

Miss Whiting is deserving of much credit for her remarkable work in coaching the youngsters. All proceeds derived from the affair are devoted to the purchase of class room improvements.

It was learned through reliable sources today, that through correspondence, Henry Ford, manufacturer and a leader in the automobile industry and of late a collector of antiques is contemplating the acquisition of a number of his ancient products which are owned by a few in this section of the county. According to Ford's representatives models which he is desirous of purchasing are those made previous to 1912.

Ferando Regis, struck by a motor vehicle on the Brooklyn highway several months ago, and as the result of the accident was seriously injured, and has since been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital has improved to such an extent that he is able to leave his bed. Regis also suffered the amputation of his leg, due to the seriousness of the unfortunate occurrence.

Mahlon H. Geissler, who for a number of years has been judge of the city court of Putnam was reappointed to that office for an another term by confirmation of the state senate, which was announced yesterday. The higher house of the legislature also confirmed the appointment of Archibald Macdonald, Jr., for another two year term as deputy judge of the city court. Like Judge Geissler, Mr. Macdonald has served in this capacity for nearly ten years.

About a week ago State Senator Walter C. Brown of the 28th senatorial district introduced a bill into the senate for the reappointment of the two Putnam court officials. Prompt action was taken by the house, resulting in the appointment being made known Thursday.

Everything is in readiness for the sitting of the grand jury in Windham county superior court Monday, the first step the state will take against Trenor A. Rice of Willimantic, charged with the murder of his friend and associate William E. Jackson, county detective, who was slain in his home in that city on Tuesday evening, Feb. 5.

Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol will occupy the bench in the little court room on Main street, where within its chambers the "Ice Box" bandits Roland G. Lalone and Arthur G. Raymond Worcester youths, were sentenced to serve life sentences at the state prison in Wethersfield for the slaying of State Officer Irving H. Nelson of Danielson barracks at Pomfret on the night of April 6 last.

The session will open promptly at eleven o'clock, when the jury will be called, the judge's charge directed to them, following which will be the presentation of evidence against the suspected slayer by the state.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, refused to talk with newspapermen today, regarding the conference between County Detective Hickey and Police Officer Arthur Hurley of Willimantic, who have been leading the state investigation into the slaying of the county detective. It was apparent today, that no new angles in the case would be brought to light until the grand jury convenes on Monday morning.

Delmer E. Hazen of Bridge street was in Providence today on a business trip.

The members of the Second Congregational church of this city met last evening in the church parlors where they discussed the sale of a plot of land adjoining the O'Leary property on Main street, now owned by the Cargill Trust company. About a year ago the same subject was debated, and a vote was made to retain the desired property, since an offer for its purchase was but $1,600. The result of a ballot last evening was in favor of the sale of the church property to the trust company providing the construction of the new building takes place within a reasonable length of time.

Leo Dumas of Goodyear was operated upon at the Day Kimball hospital yesterday for appendicitis.

D. A. R. CHAPTER PREPARES FOR NATIONAL CONGRESS

The February meeting of Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R., was held Wednesday afternoon in Masonic temple, the regent, Mrs. Estella B. Bailey, presiding. The chapter voted to hold its annual observance of Washington's birthday, each member to have the privilege of inviting two guests. This custom was begun early in the history of the chapter and with only one or two exceptions, has been carried out every year, following the organization of the chapter in June 1893. In line with the program of work planned by the Connecticut D. A. R. the chapter voted a contribution of 30 cents per capita to complete its pledge of $1.00 per capita toward Connecticut college scholarship fund, also 25 cents per capita toward the publication of the report of the state committee on the preservation of historic spots. The report for the chapter was made by Mrs. Emily W. Williams, chairman of the committee on the preservation of historic spots. It was also voted to contribute to the fund being raised in this state toward the monument for the four founders of the National Society, D. A. R., and to the work of the Berry school in Mount Berry, Ga., a school for southern mountaineers whose work the chapter has supported for many years. Much interest centers this year in the annual election of a president-general, at the National congress of the D. A. R., in Washington in April. One group is headed by Mrs. Talmadge of George and the other by Mrs. Hobart of Ohio. It is the latter group in which Connecticut chapters are most interested, due to the fact that Mrs. Charles H. Bissell of Southington, former state regent of the Connecticut D. A. R. and now vice president general from Connecticut, is on the ticket for the office of recording secretary general. A reception for these candidates will be held in Washington during the week of the congress.

Following the business session Mrs. Flora A. Morin played two piano solos, one of which was an original composition by Mrs. Morin. A prize essay on the Battle of Stonington was read by Miss Thelma Crouch; and an interesting article on the women's organization who purchased Mount Vernon in 1859, was read by Mrs. Carl Cutler. Refreshments were served by the committee.

HANOVER

Frank Still visited relatives in Franklin Sunday.

Miss Mary Burgoyne of South Coventry is visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles Rood.

Deacon Lee is slowly recovering his strength, and is made happy day by day by receiving messages from his many friends.

Miss Gertrude Ladd gave friends a pleasant surprise by coming home from Columbia university over the week end to visit her family at Ash Lawn.

Friends of Mary Kusian are glad to see her out, after her enforced vacation.

Mrs. Dorothy West has gained rapidly of late and is able to be out and at work again.

Many here have been ill, Edward Tucker and Miss Florence Lucy among the later ones.

Master Gordon Wilson seems to be almost well again.

The Dickens entertainment given in the Parish House Wednesday evening brought out a good house and was highly enjoyed by all whose wealth and the threatening weather would permit to attend.

In the musical part of the program the school children did full credit both to themselves and their teachers. The children were especially captivated by Mr. Suter in the juggling feats as he impersonated Sweet William at the English Inns. Mr. Suter's ability as a dramatist together with his native English accent especially fits him for the impersonating of the immortal Dickens' characters.

A number of local people availed themselves of the privilege of listening to the most illuminating address upon conditions in China at the present time, as given at Greeneville Congregational church Sunday evening by Mrs. Robert Chandler, who with her husband has spent eighteen years in the country as a missionary.

The recent cold weather has been duly appreciated by two Hanover citizens. Judge Adams has made good use of the nine or ten inch ice in hauling wood, the result of William Pocquet's ambitious efforts, out from the park; and Arthur Goyette has filled the Airlie Mills house with the product, for use next summer.

On account of the severe storm on Thursday together with the fact of there being so many ill, no sessions were held in the Hanover schools that day.

CANTERBURY GREEN

At the Ladies' Aid society meeting, at the home of Mrs. James Lathrop, Tuesday afternoon, the annual election took place. All were reelected, Mrs. Hiram Hawes, president; Mrs. Sager, vice president, and Mrs. Lillian Frink secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Merritt Hawes will entertain the next gathering in two weeks.

Mrs. Lydia Lathrop, who has been spending some time at her home here, returned to Meriden, Wednesday, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. James Lathrop.

Officials were at the Green school this week for health examinations of the pupils. Of the five girls who were examined, average reports were given.

At the Grange, Wednesday evening, Mrs. Grace Wright, with helpers, presented an excellent program. The next meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Bushnell.

During Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bennett motored to New London, on a business trip.

Canterbury Grange has been invited to provide a part of the program at Putnam, next Monday evening. An invitation for the degree team to go to Storrs, to Mansfield Grange, the same evening, had to be turned down because of the previous engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Frink and Andrew Clark were at Willimantic, Saturday, to attend hte funeral of William E. Jackson.

Dinner guests at Arthur Bennett's Sunday, were Mrs. Jennie Wilde, of Plainfield, and Ernie Raney, of Jewett City. Other visitors on that day were Mrs. Lydia Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Luman Bennet, of Central Village.

Asa Hall, long distance roller skater, of Mexico, Mo., has started training for a skating trip from San Francisco to New York. Hall plans to leave San Francisco April 15. Hall, who is forty years old, has been skating on polished rink floors, on highways and stage floors for 20 years. He skated this year from Kansas City to New York in 71 days, averaging 40 miles each eight hours, besides calling on 54 mayors en route. In making his last trip Hall wore out three pairs of shoes and four sets of skate wheels.

ANOTHER JOB FOR MR. ROOT.

No one is better qualified to undertake the task of bringing about an understanding with other nations that will result in the entrance of the United States into the world court than Elihu Root. That was apparently recognized in his selection. He was one of those who helped to draft the constitution of the world court and he is thoroughly in touch with sentiment of this country concerning the court. His aim will be to reconcile the differences which exist at the present time.

When this country through the United States senate came to pass upon the question of joining the court, it agreed to do so with certain reservations which must be accepted by the member nations and that they have not as yet done.

The United States adopted as one of its reservations a provision that the court shall not entertain requests for advisory opinions upon matters in which the United States is interested without the consent of this country. Such of course would be applicable to all countries but there is a difference of opinion among the other countries as to whether an advisory opinion can be sought by a majority vote or whether it must be unanimous. If it is unanimous all countries would stand in a similar position of being able to prevent a unanimous vote in case they desired to keep any question from being referred to the court. If a majority vote is all that is needed then it would mean that a special privilege would have to be extended to the United States in order to comply with its reservation.

For the purpose of bringing the nations to an agreement in regard to these points Mr. Root has been appointed. His selection cannot fail to meet with hearty endorsement in this country and there is every reason to believe that he will be similarly received in other countries as he undertakes his work. Upon the outcome of his efforts undoubtedly hinges the question as to whether the United States becomes a member of the court. The task is to clearly present the attitude of this country to the others that they may be the fullest understanding of what is sought and the reason for it.

THE BIDS UNDER SCRUTINY.

From all indications the shipping board is favorably disposed toward the high bid that has been received for the two steamship lines that were offered for sale. It hasn't actually said so but the belief prevails that the board was ready to act favorably and sell the ships.

On the threshold of a sale and thus carrying out the policy of the administration, a resolution was introduced in the senate calling for an investigation of the bids. This was favorably acted upon and now there is no telling when the senatorial committee will act or when the board will be able to take action, inasmuch as the vote of the senate included the request to delay action on the disposition of the ships.

It is to be realized that the senate is within its rights in looking into the bids that have been made for the ships, and if there is good ground for such action there can be nothing said. But the impression is created that the senate hasn't confidence in the judgment of the board and that better protection of the government's interest is needed.

But whatever is the underlying purpose of the inquiry it is to be hoped that it will be speedily conducted in order that the sale or decision may be held up no longer than is necessary. It would be unfortunate if the prolongation of such an investigation should be the cause of blocking an advantageous disposition of the ships.

It has been shown that the ships are being operated at a yearly loss to the government, that the price offered for them is equivalent or slightly better than the book value carried by the government and even though it will not mean obtaining either the construction or reconstruction cost it will stop an annual drain on the treasury, take the government out of part of the shipping business and place it in the hands of private capital with a guarantee that it will be continued and extended. This is the goal for which the administration has been aiming for a long time without being able to make much progress in reaching it. Whether there is any justification for the inquiry which will be made by a senate committee will be determined by the results which it reports.

LEJEUNE AND NEVILLE.

Something like two years remain before Major General Lejeune reaches the retirement age. He has served for the past eight years as commandant of the marine corps and he is anxious that the closing years of his service be with the troops rather than in the swivel chair. In accordance with his wishes he asks for retirement from the post of commandant and assignment to field duty. His request has been granted, he is ready to leave the commandant's office and in his place Major General W. C. Neville has been assigned. The change will take place early next month provided the nomination meets with the approval of the senate.

Thus it can be expected that one valiant fighter will succeed another. Both have proved themselves thoroughly qualified by training and experience as commandant of the marines. Their service was conspicuous before the World war but in that they rendered signal service in telling engagements, General Lejeune having directed the St. Mihiel offensive and guided the marines in engagements at Blanc Mont ridge and in the Meuse-Argonne drive, while General Neville commanded regiments of marines in the Verdun and Chateau Thierry sectors and led them in operations at Soissons, the Marbach sector, at St. Mihiel, Champagne and the Meuse-Argonne.

The American marines have established a reputation as a fighting force that is known around the world. They have rendered brilliant service whenever occasion required whether it was actual participation in warfare or the protection of American interests. Frequently they are called upon for protective work, but whether this involves bloodshed or is rendered without use of firearms it invariably makes a good impression because of the businesslike manner in which it is carried out.

Thus while the marine corps will be losing the services of a valued leader, one whose term of office has been conspicuous for its accomplishments, it is certain that it will find itself in capable hands as the office of commandant is assumed by General Neville. He knows the game and the traditions of the corps thoroughly and as a leader his conduct of the office should measure up to every expectation.

THE GOVERNOR'S APPEAL

Probably not all members of the general assembly were at the annual McKinley association's banquet at Hartford but they cannot fail to be interested in what Governor Trumbull had to say about expediting business.

The governor called attention to the time that is being wasted even in the early stages of the present session. He was direct in his statement to the effect that it ought not to be so, that delays in committees ought to be overcome even if it becomes necessary to work overtime and he directed attention to the fact that "this year a budget has been prepared with every item of income and expenditure tabulated as accurately as possible. We have an intelligent survey of the entire situation and I believe there will be ample funds to take care of our institutional needs and operating expenses."

Having been given a budget for the purpose of aiding the legislature and the appropriations committee in particular the governor expects the members to take advantage of it and when he urges the elimination of much waste time he is advocating a change which will make its appeal throughout the state. Endorsement of his sentiments will be given by the people of the state who are looking for constructive legislation but who decry the dawdling that is done and deplore the efforts that are made to delay matters and put the responsibility on other shoulders.

Furthermore the governor urged the legislature to stick to the budget for he declared "I see no reason in the world why we should seek new avenues of revenue or increase the burden of our present revenue sources. * * * There is no reason to expect an emergency which should cause us to spend more than our income."

Governor Trumbull spoke pointedly, and what he had to say ought not to fall upon barren ground.

GRASS FIRES.

Strange as it may seem at this season of the year with the ground wet, partly covered with snow in places and the underbrush seemingly waterlogged, word comes from Rhode Island of a grass fire which burned over 40 acres and threatened considerable property before it was put out. We do not look for such things in February, but it will not be many months before grass and brush fires will be numerous, far more so than they ought to be.

That will be when the frost has disappeared and the sun has dried out the leaves and matted grass, when those who delight in traveling through the country or fishing are visiting familiar haunts and when too many of such visitors to the fields and woods are scattering firebrands where they ought not to.

The grass and woodland fires every year, in spring and fall, sweep over many hundred acres, doing heavy damage to standing trees and threatening if not damaging or destroying dwellings and other buildings. Not all, but a large proportion of these fires, are preventable. It calls for a little care on the part of those responsible but no more than everyone can and should give, especially when they stop to realize that they are trespassing on the property of others and should assume some obligation to leave it in as good condition as they find it.

It is to be hoped that the February grass fire doesn't mean that such destruction of property is going to be as frequent this spring as that was early.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: February has adopted the tactics of spring.

The dark weather which scientists cannot explain in Europe may be the shadow of the flu epidemic.

There's a chance yet that you may be picked for a place in Mr. Hoover's cabinet, but don't tell anyone.

That is very considerate of Great Britain to lop off two of its cruisers. It is always pleasing to know that there's no competition in warship construction.

Auto accidents in 1928 numbered about 800,000 with 27,000 deaths. This was a gain of 5 per cent. over 1927 but in view of the manner in which humanity was involved there ought to have been more than a 5 per cent. reduction.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

How loathe we are to "take time by the forelock," or to seize upon opportunity when it presents itself! The writer feels that the young people of Norwich have let a golden opporunity pass in not making more of the icy sidewalks for skating. It would be hard to find more glare ice anywhere than our streets and sidewalks have presented recently. Just why the girls and boys preferred to go to Mohegan park, or to any other pond within easy distance of the city, when our sidewalks were equally good and more available. To be sure there were some old grouchers, out of spite to youth, who went to the trouble of shoveling off their walks, because of an old superstition that it makes traveling easier and safer to have the snow and ice removed. On the other hand it is a bit strange that youth did not seem to appreciate what advanced ideas were trying to do for them.

Speaking of advanced ideas reminds me of the revolution that has come to business by substituting some new things for the old methods of procedure. Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of the United States department of commerce, has this to say on the subject of business: "The greatest monument to American industrial and commercial achievement is the enormous junk heap of abandoned practices, methods and ideals, all of which were once termed 'normal,' but which today are among the most useless relics of antiquity." Another great figure in our present industrial life, no less a personage than Herbert Hoover, has said along the same line. "We are passing from a period of extremely individualistic activities." When some of us were in our boyhood did we hear anything about "mergers" or "mass production"? It was a little mill here and that little "one hoss" railroad there.

Another well-known writer, furnishing an essay in this remarkable symposium, is Aldus Huxley, who gives a reason for this fundamental change in our present conduct of business. Mr. Huxley, however, questions the stability of the change, and doubts whether we are building very solidly for future generations. This is what Mr. Huxley says: "The population of the United States has increased two and one half times during the 19th century, while coal production has grown 110 times, iron 80, cotton 20, the volume of the world's cotton 40, and so. But does this piling up of mass output mean a better civilization?" The writer then goes on to show that if all this vast fabric of business does not contribute to improving comfort and welfare for the masses, business cannot claim to have advanced in fundamental social values since the preliminary days of industrial revolution.

Does it ever occur to the reader that there is a maladjustment between animal life and its environment? Why is it there is a frantic struggle on the part of many animals to stave off actual starvation? It is wonderful what nature has done for the so-called lower animals. They are not troubled over the question of clothing, although sometimes they are found frozen to death. They are not broken-hearted because styles never change, and no departure from the usual dusky hues. But here comes the nub; if nature is so particular in giving them adequate clothing, why is it for the most part that they must put forth frantic efforts for food? Throw out some bread crumbs, or bits of meat, and then watch a flock of starlings. They gouge the food as though on the verge of starvation. It is a well-known fact that birds during some winters die by the million from starvation.

Suppose we carry this over into the human field and the question at once begins to broaden and deepen. Why is it that the human family supposedly to be under the love and care of a kindly Providence—and from every point of approach this is reasonable—should also suffer from the lack of proper sustinence? No this is is not a matter of mere supposition but of actual and even cruel fact. At this very time according to all reports there are great masses in China on the verge of actual starvation. Of course they are not responsible for the fact that they are here and in vast numbers. Their deplorable condition is not due to lack of effort. They simply cannot live because there is not bread enough to go around. It is pretty tough for little innocent children to be born just to starve to death!

The writer must confess that his opinion of the prince of Wales has risen immeasurably after reading his outbursts of indignation over the deplorable condition of the idle Welsh miners. He had looked upon him as a young man of pleasing qualities that were doomed by his unfortunate social position. But the real manhood in him came to the front to the admiration of the entire civilized world, when he expressed himself so vigorously when he saw the condition of men and women who had the same divine right "to live and move and have their being" as he had, living in a way that would be positively fatal to the lower animals. In the streets of these coal districts why should there be mud ankle deep? Nowhere on the British Isles should there be conditions that would disgrace the savages of equatorial Africa.

Between now and next Saturday's issue of The Bulletin we shall have passed another birthday of one of the greatest men in the annals of American history. The main distinction between real greatness and mere popularity is, that while the latter is the mere shouting of the masses and the blare of trumpets that soon die away, the latter is the persistent growing of the real qualities of the human soul that are absolved from death. Sand dunes often disappear under the touch of hurricanes and flods, but the Alps and Rockies defy the storms. There was did not attempt to attract the masses nothing of the ephemeral about the ruggedness of Lincoln's personality. He by appealing to their prejudices and passions. He built upon a surer foundation. He struck with a strong hand the injustice that kept from them their inalienable rights. America has produced no man surer of immortality than Abraham Lincoln.

Doesn't it seem good that Old Sol, following the excellent example of Mr. Hoover, is not making his permanent residence in the south—down in the territory of Chile and Argentina, but has again turned his smiling face, (which is always welcome) northward, and has given to the day a visible lengthening? As we are human we growl a bit in the torrid days of summer because of the torrid heat, but we are always glad that the sun never goes clear to the south pole. It is not easy to realize that spring cannot be a great distance away, when sand will no longer be needed on the concrete sidewalk. But the time will never come when you and I, frail mortals will not need to use sand because we are never entirely free from slippery places. It sometimes takes sand to run counter to popular opinion, because popular opinion is sometimes wrong. It will take sand to use the shovel and hoe.

Milk may be sold by the square foot or the lineal yard if dairymen adopt a new process invented by a Copenhagen (Denmark) milk producer. His machine rolls dried milk into sheets like tissue paper, and in this form, it is asserted that milk will keep for several years without any change in quality.

IMPRESSION MADE BY SENATOR BINGHAM IN SENATE DEBATE

An interesting light on the part played in the senate by the junior senator from Connecticut is given by the correspondent of the Kansas City Star as follows:

Now that the Kellogg multilateral peace treaty fight has ended, some reflections on the debate that has occupied the senate since the holidays may not be out of the way. Of the senators who have participated in the debate the greater number contributed to it nothing but obscurity, a few liveliness and a few information.

Borah was boriatory and sweetly persuasive, Reed of Missouri thundering and denunciatory, and Swanson of Virginia so legalistic that after listening to him for an hour I didn't know whether he was for the treaty or against it. I could have found out by inquiring, of course, but by that time I didn't care.

Blaine, Unfortunately, Was Heard

Bruce of Maryland was querulous, and though he has an historic background and some smack of scholarliness, his painful delivery rendered his effort ineffective. Barkley of Kentucky was casual, and Moses of New Hampshire flashy and flippant. Shortridge of California read an address that recalled to my mind a judgment of him pronounced by a fellow Californian of whom I had asked in the recent presidential campaign, "What has Shortridge done for Hoover?" The reply was, "Shortridge never did anything for anybody, including himself." Shortridge didn't do anything for the treaty. Brookhart of Iowa I failed to hear; I wish I had failed to hear Blaine of Wisconsin.

But while the effect produced by the forensic gifts of Borah and Reed cannot be denied, my notion is that if we were rational instead of emotional creatures we would have to concede that the most substantial contribution to the debate was made by Bingham of Connecticut. He is not an orator, but he has the great and rare quality of lucidity in thought and speech, an inestimable value in debate, and when joined to a sincerity and conviction as transparent as his, the combination is more effective than any of the mere oratorical arts that man has developed these last thirty or forty centuries since Orpheus drew tears down Pluto's iron cheek.

The Diffident Mr. Bingham

Bingham was almost diffident in this company of distinguished talents, though he has no reason to be, with his knowledge, his commanding presence and arresting voice; his diffidence (which is more a quietness of manner) may be just a part of his effective approach. He hopes he will be pardoned if he asks a question at this point, he is not a constitutional lawyer and would like to understand a phase of this question that, to his mind, has not been clearly brought out.

You feel sorry for him. You expect to see him crushed by the constitutional lawyers. But when they get through with their process of further confusing the issue, Bingham, uncrushed, is reaching for a book that happens to be on his desk (fortunate circumstance—one wonders how it happened to be there) and is saying quietly and with some natural hesitation at finding himself in disagreement with so much distinguished talent, that he finds in a rather favorably known work on constitutional law, which the senators are doubtless better acquainted than he (he regrets he is not a constitutional lawyer) a passage that seems to take an opposite view.

Has Been Around a Bit

All this goes with his character and attainments and with an experience of the world that explains his position on the treaty. He is a traveler, student, author, ex-service man, patriot—and he wants to know what this treaty means. He wants to know particularly if there is anything in it that will prevent the United States from protecting in their fullest rights American citizens abroad. He knows what the lack of that protection may mean to Americans in foreign lands—in China, in Central America and other places where American rights are recognized only as they are maintained by a show of force capable of exacting respect for them. He himself has been threatened with imprisonment in a foreign land where his own country had made no provision for his protection. He had to appeal to the British power, and because the British power was manifest there in a shape that was fully appreciated by the native authority, a word from that power was sufficient to secure his immediate safety.

Not being a constitutional lawyer, he does not understand why the United States, the richest and most powerful country in the world, with interests in every quarter of it, with its citizens furnishing the money and brains for its industrial and commercial and cultural development, should have the name, in countries ready to take advantage of it, of not protecting its nationals. Or, rather, he thinks he does understand it; it's because his country is too ready to substitute for cruisers such means of protection as this treaty is supposed to afford.

A Tower of Nationalism

With this feeling, with his knowledge of foreign lands and peoples, with his practical mindedness, his national pride, his sense of justice, his recognition of facts as they exist and his contempt for phrases offered to cancel facts, Bingham was the main tower of the strength of nationalism in the senate debate. Nor was he merely destructive of everything the treaty is supposed to stand for in the way of peace: he was ready to take the treaty for what it was worth, but he demanded to know first and always just exactly what it meant before he put his hand to it.

Bingham's quiet insistence, his good sense, his tolerance, fairness and unruffled temper, above all his Americanism untouched by any tawdry flourishes or flamboyance, were the steady refreshing breeze that alone redeemed the debate from weary and stale unprofit. In my corner, where I have often nodded with weariness, I sit myself up as straight as possible to salute him with a gesture of profound respect.

Arm Chair Journeys To Other Lands

Soviet People Carless of Dress

MOSCOW, Russia, Feb. 8—(AP)—If communism should be considered from a viewpoint of simpleness, if not shabbiness, in dressing, then soviet Russia surely is on the edge of becoming a true "socialist heaven."

The usual dress of an urban soviet citizen are cap, trousers and the so-called "Tolstoy blouse," sometimes with collar and tie. Complete suits are little worn and, if so, chiefly in winter. In summer time the younger soviet generation goes bareheaded, short-sleeved and wearing sandals. Hats, even in Moscow, are comparatively scarce; they are worn by foreigners, wealthy merchants and a small number of high soviet officials. Straw hats in summer are seen on rare occasions and invariably attract attention. Caps are seen everywhere. Walking sticks and summer gloves miss altogether.

It is true that during the last two years the general aspect of soviet citizens has grown better; youngsters in bathing suits are no longer seen in Moscow streets and there has disappeared the once much talked about league of "Down with Shame," whose members, chiefly girls, appeared in public places and tramcars completely naked, their only clothes consisting of a little satchel hung to their necks to carry documents and money.

Women and girls also dress modestly, western fashions being always a year late. The only thing to which Russian girls have answered readily are short skirts; they are sometimes two or three inches over the knee. Silk stockings and laced shoes are scarce and expensive, since the greater part of them are of foreign production. Lipsticks and face powder are used by everybody, beginning with girls of 13, and the state perfumery producers are leading the way in profits.

Prices for decent clothes in soviet Russia are exhorbitant and few citizens, with their average monthly salary of $40 to $50, could afford to pay for a yard of English cloth $25 and upwards. Russian cloth, although cheap, is of an inferior quality.

Modest as the picture is, it is luxurious compared to dress worn by peasantry. Owing to still smaller earnings, hard labor and deep ignorance, the Russian peasant hardly knows what cloth is. In summer and winter his dress consists of calico. Belts, socks, collar and tie are unknown.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Of the millions of taxpayers who will file returns for the year 1928, the vast majority are entitled, in addition to the personal exemption of $3,500 for married persons and heads of families, $1,500 for single persons, and a $400 credit for each dependent, to a further credit of 25 per cent of the tax on their earned net income. Correctly to determine this credit, the taxpayer first must compute the amount of tax which would be payable without the earned income credit, and from this amount of tax 25 per cent is to be deducted, the balance being the amount of tax due.

For example: A taxpayer, unmarried and with no dependents, with a net income for 1928 of $5,000, would pay without this reduction a tax of $52.50. His actual tax is $39.37. From his net income of $5,000 he is allowed a personal exemption of $1,500; the tax of 1 1-2 per cent on the remaining $3,500 is $52.50. One-fourth of this amount, or $13.13, may be deducted.

Sunday Morning Talk

The Beauty of the Lord

Let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us.—Psalm 19: 17.

Let us try to look at our life's work in relation to the Lord's beauty. Our work and divine beauty at first sight, how different, yet on deeper insight, how truly they should be one. There is light as beauty-giving, that nothing it touches is unattractive. There is also spiritual lights, so beauty-inspiring, that the plainest face within is illumined with singular loveliness, which wins its way with many a heart. Who of us has not marvelled at an unexpected light, in what we had always thought an uninteresting face? May we not take these facts as emblems, albeit faint and imperfect, of the "Beauty of the Lord" does for us and our work? You know what the natural light can do for material objects; you know what mental and moral light can work for the human faces; rise from these, and know what spiritual light, divine light can do for us mortal beings and our mortal works.

God is glorified and His work advances when His church is beautiful. "The beauty of the Lord" is the beauty of holiness—that beauty which in the Lord Jesus Himself shone with lustre so resplendent, and which ought to be repeated or reflected by every disciple. And it is toward this that all of us who love the Saviour, and who long for the extension of His kingdom, should direct our efforts. Nothing is sadder than the low ideals and unlovely lives of those who pass for Christians and do not try to have the beauty of character which is an essential part of all true Christianity. But how beautiful are the lives of those who are found faithful to their Saviour and bring only glory and honor to His name.

Competitive Athletics Blamed—Damage to Heart Muscle and Nervous System Claimed

By Horace W. Soper, M. D.
St. Louis, Missouri

The rigid course of training necessary to develop proficiency in football, rowing and track work results in splendid muscular development at the expense of the heart muscle. The great strain incident to competitive athletics has also a demoralizing influence on the nervous system. For the modern man, a system of exercises that would keep him physically fit without over-strain is the desideratum.

Francis Bacon, in his Essay on Studies, suggests that "impediment in the wit may be wrought out by fit studies; like as diseases may have appropriate exercise; bowling is good for the stone and reins, shooting for the lungs and breast, quiet walking for the stomach, riding for the head and the like."

We marvel at the splendid condition exhibited by lions, tigers and other carnivorous animals. Their mode of life is responsible for this good condition. Their muscles are exercised in pursuing their prey. Furthermore, after a gorge they rest for a long period of time, thus storing up energy. During these resting periods they are in the habit of indulging in a great deal of "stretching," a habit still followed by the domesticated cat and dog.

Observation of the jungle animals laid the foundation for the work of Edwin Checkley, a popular writer in the early nineties on the subject of physical training. Checkley emphasized what he called "the natural method" that one could use in his daily vocation without the employment of appliances. He stressed correct posture, formation of the habit of deep breathing and various exercises that tend to stretch the muscles and joints of the body. After a time this habit becomes fixed and one is unconsciously keeping his muscular system alive all day long. I can testify as to the great value of Checkley's method. Stratching and deep breathing exercises can be carried on by the bed ridden patient.

Baseball, tennis, swimming, skating and games of like character are best for the young. Horseback riding and golf are to be preferred for the older man or woman. Not many generations ago the man of sixty was relegated to the chimney corner, while today you will find him on the golf links.

Swimming is perhaps the best all round developer of all the exercises. It is impossible to swim well without breathing correctly. I have seen many a frail clerk attain a splendid physique and perfect health by swimming in our local natatoriums. Nor is this form of exercise limited to the young. Some years ago I prescribed swimming for a corpulent woman, aged sixty. She was sound physically but her muscles were soft and flabby from disuse. At the age of sixty-four she was the winner of the annual mile swimming contest in the Mississippi river.

I have been asked in what respect horseback riding differs from other exercises. In the first place the competitive element is eliminated in riding and the muscles in the body not used in walking are brought into play. Most riders experience a peculiar feeling of exhilaration not found in other forms of exercise. The exercise that one actually likes to do is apt to be more beneficial than those done under protest.

Stories That Recall Others

New Year Resolutions

A certain Sunday school teacher the first Sunday in January had talked to her class of nine year old girls about New Year resolutions, and each one decided to write one in a small notebook, and then try to make it come true.

The last small girl, brown eyed Gertrude, wrote vigorously for a couple of minutes and handed to the teacher the following resolution: "Resolved, that I will either go to my grandma's next summer, or have a birthday party."

Prompt

An energetic young lawyer had picked up quite a good practice in damage suits, personal injuries and so on with the inevitable result that some of his friends twitted him with being an "ambulance chaser."

"Are you really an ambulance chaser?" queried one of them smilingly.

"I should say not," responded the shining legal light. "If the ambulance wants to get there it has to follow me!"

Archaic Horns

The prefect of police in Paris, France, has recommended to the ministry of public works that all automobiles be equipped with horns emitting nothing but "low, dignified sounds."—News Item.

The prefect of police in Paris, France,
Suggested to the chief of public works,
That all who walk the streets should have a chance
To do so without leaps and starts and jerks.
He says, is motor-horns the danger lurks;
Their horrid hoots yoohooing day and night,
Sound like Armenians massacred by Turks—
'Tis known un-Christian feelings they incite,
That lead to words and actions impolite.

He thinks the note that motorists should blow
At intersections, or on rounding curves,
Should be restrained, and "dignified and low,"
So that it will not get upon our nerves;
At present, we confess, it only serves
To make us feel like heaving bricks and rocks—
From duty's path, a motor often swerves
Pedestrians, and their finer feelings shocks;
No wonder that they get so many "knocks."

We do not know just what they will decide
About this matter, but let's hope the note
They choose will not be one we shall deride—
Something less strident than a ferry-boat
Would serve the purpose and obtain our vote.
A blast that scares us stiff and "gets our goat,"
Making it far from easy not to show
Resentment, both undignified and low!

—C. E. Benedict, in Boston Transcript.

Winter Stars

Even on winter nights the stars are there,
The canopy of heaven is strewn with gold.
Aldebaran climbs up her ivory stair,
Polaris gleams the brighter for the cold.
They are a marching multitude above
Our little ways of circumstance; and we
Seeing them in their brotherhood of love
Can learn a lesson from infinity.

Since the first days they move in strict accord
With an almighty law; they do not fail
To still reflect the purposes of God.
Lo, bright Antares like a nightingale
Swings up the Milky Way, Polaris flung Against high heaven, is forever young.

Finland's building boom has resulted in consumption of the country's entire annual production of 100,000,000 bricks and the necessity for importing millions more. Some 35,000,000 were imported last year and it is estimated that the 1928 importation will be double that total, with Belgium supplying the largest share. A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—The theory of many good folk that a professional soldier is a "militarist" in the most unhappy sense of that word and craves battle, murder and sudden death as a means to professional advancement is a little hard to justify in this country.

On the contrary, Uncle Sam seems to find his soldier lads effective as peace emissaries. To a very considerable degree in recent years the regular soldiers have quite put the noses of the diplomats out of joint when it comes to peaceful adjustment of controversies.

The thought is inspired by the fact that General McCoy, fresh from his successful handling of the difficult Nicaraguan election matter, now has moved into the state department, bag and baggage, to try his hand at pacifying the Paraguay-Bolivia row. He has taken over one end of the huge diplomatic reception room.

Good Diplomat.

General McCoy is the American member of the conciliation commission set up by the recent Pan-American conference. He is quite likely to play a leading role in the diplomatic side of the effort to reconcile Bolivian and Paraguayan differences.

He is only one hard-boiled regular army officer whose life has been devoted to the profession of arms yet who has had highly unwarlike jobs to do. There were Pershing and Lassiter in the Tacna-Arica affair. There was Admiral Mark Bristol in Turkey. Even Gen. Smedley Butler managed the invasion of Shanghai in such pacific fashion that the marines are coming out of China without having fired a shot.

The Indian Pacifier.

The Bystander has had previous occasions to comment on the extraordinary anti-bayonet philosophy of General Bliss during the Paris peace conference. He recalls, also, Gen. Hugh Scott in pre-war days, when that fine old soldier as chief of staff functioned repeatedly as pacifier of disputes with or between his host of Indian friends.

It was a great sight to watch Scott discussing weather and crops and what-not in sign language with a ring of grunting, war-bonnetted Indian chiefs.

While that subject is up, also, it might be well to point out that Col. Harry Stimson, tranquilizer of the Nicaraguan row and governor general of the Philippines, might be regarded as "militaristic."

Having been secretary of war and never hooked up with the state department, he is a sort of army product, though not a professional soldier. So who are these bloody-minded professional war makers of whom there is so much talk? The Bystander does not know them.

TABLEAUX FEATURE MEETING OF BAPTIST WOMEN'S LEAGUE

With the president, Mrs. Henry H. Pettis, presiding, the monthly meeting of the Women's league of the Central Baptist church, was held Friday evening in the women's department room at the church. The devotional service was conducted by Mrs. Harold Johnson.

Following a brief business meeting an interesting program was presented by the Fellowship circle of the league. It was a valentine meeting, invitations having been issued to all the women of the church.

The program topic was Big Hearts and Little Hearts, the theme being, Religious Education. Starting with the tiny babe and his relation to God each succeeding age formed one episode, aiding the members in appreciating how the "big hearts" (fathers and mothers) can aid the "little hearts" (children and young people) in character forming.

The program was as follows:

Poem, Fatherhood (Guest), by Mrs. George H. Gildersleeve; episode one, The Legend of Golden Ball, by Mrs. Emory H. Davis; tableau by Mrs. John Lyman and infant son, John; episode two, The Five Year Old, Mrs. Harrison C. Noyes; episode three, Our Children's Toys, Miss Ruth Hamilton, with tableau by Mrs. William Chapman and Priscilla Chapman; episode four, The Fears of Juniors, Mrs. Harry Kromer; in connection with this the entire group sang Just When I Need Him Most; episode five, Dare I Tell Mother? Mrs. Emory H. Davis; episode six, The House of Truth, Miss Alice M. Dean; episode seven, tableau by Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Burt, Barbara Burt and Miss Helen Moore, following which Miss Harriet Williams sang When There's Love at Home.

After the program dainty refreshments of heart-shaped cookies and cocoa were served by Mrs. Walter Phillips, Miss Nellie Rathbun, Miss Belle Loomis, Mrs. Edwin Wigley, Mrs. Ada May, Miss Belle Ratmbun and Mrs. Clarence Sholes. The members of the Fellowship circle who gave the program were:

Anniversary of Trolley Service

With the month of February, this year, the electric street railway begins its fifth decade of service. In Connecticut, the first passenger trolley car was operated May 1, forty-one years ago, and the first electric freight car in the country began operation in this state exactly two months later.

Mechanical propulsion of street cars in the country began operation in this in this state was first attempted fifty-one years ago when, on June 13, 1878, Henry Bushnell, of New Haven, barely missed success in the use of a compressed air motor to propel a street car. It was calculated that the air reservoir of Bushnell's car would hold sufficient compressed air to run it for a distance of 16 to 18 miles. In practice, however, the air motor balked on a hill on the return trip, and financial difficulty delayed further experimentation. Before Bushnell had an opportunity to perfect his air motor, the electric street railway had proved its worth and had arrived to stay.

HEALTH BULLETIN TELLS OF PROTECTIVE MEASURES

With the increase in interstate and international travel and the extension of commerce throughout the world one is conscious of the possibilities for the spread of disease among such areas, says this week's issue of the Connecticut tate department health bulletin. On closer study, however, one is reminded of the health machinery which has been developed in the United States to ward against just such difficulties, while many other countries have efficient organizations for health protection.

To show how well protected our country is against such diseases as plague, yellow fever, typhus fever, cholera and even smallpox, all of which are more or less prevalent throughout the world, and many of which used to take heavy toll of life in this country, portions of the surgeon general's report for the fiscal year 1927-1928, will be of interest.

"In this work of protecting the United States from the importaiton of dangerous diseases, 21,631 vessels, 1,046,319 pasengers and 1,308,681 seamen were inspected at domestic and insular ports and 1,178,482 alien passengers and 928,423 alien seamen were examined by medical officers under the immigration law. Seven cases of smallpox, one case of leprosy, and two cases of typhus fever reached the quarantine stations and were detained. Among the more important causes of certification for disease in alien passengers were trachoma, tuberculosis, feeblemindedness, insanity and the venereal diseases, while the more important causes among alien seaman were the venereal diseases, trachoma and tuberculosis."

He states that while bubonic plague is confined to the eastern countries, with India as its world center, there is potential danger of this disease in this country from infected ground squirrels, two cases having been reported in California from this source. Because of this he advocates more extensive control measures against these rodents.

He emphasizes the fact that smallpox is still unduly prevalent in spite of its known method of prevention. Unfortunately, he not only does not exclude the United States in this remark, but further reveals the fact that more cases of smallpox were reported in the United States than any other country except India. "Nearly 34,000 cases of smallpox in the United States in the calendar year 1927, testify to the neglect of the people to utilize vaccination, the known means of preventing the disease."

This is a record not to be proud of—and to add to our chagrin it will be recalled that while Connecticut had no cases in 1927, it had 170 cases of smallpox in 1928.

To show how various parts of this country can be protected against disease in other sections of the country, one is reminded of the warnings sent out by the United States public health service against the spread of the recent influenza epidemic which started in the western states. Long before the disease reached the eastern coast, health officials were urged to take preventive measures against this disease. Probably the measures which ducing the number of cases of influenza in the country at large were promptly taken as a result of this warning helped very much in re-were more or less prevalent throughout the world, and many of which used to take heavy toll of life in this country, portions of the surgeon general's report for the fiscal year 1927-1928, will be of interest.

ITALIANS LEAD IN NON-ENGLISH SPEAKING CLASSES

Italians led in number among the pupils in non-English speaking adult classes throughout the state last year, according to a compilation by Robert C. Deming, director of the adult educational bureau of the state board of education. The Italian group numbered 2,141 in a total state enrollment of 5,832. The Poles seeking instruction in English ranked second with 1,105 and then came in order: Germans 919, Canadians 857, Russians 807, Americans 706 and Swedes 523.

Thirty-three nationalities in all are listed, and there are 1,047 others, regarding whom exact data is not given. The group listed as American was largely made up of colored folks who have come north in recent years. The influx of French-Canadians resulted in the relatively large Canadian total for the industrial towns.

Two Scotchmen made up the smallest group listed, preceded by three Latvians and six Egyptians.

As regards age: There were 1,629 under 21 years, and 40 who, while over 60, sought instruction in the language and customs of this country. The age span of 21 to 30 years showed 3,175, and between 31 and 50 years were 3,526.

The evening schools of the state had a total enrollment of 20,643 pupils, with 659 teachers.

During the past five years, says Mr. Deming, a specialized and technical and more efficient education has been developed for these adult classes. Some of the pupils hold European degrees, some are proficient in other languages and the majority have had previous education in their native lands. Only about 10 per cent. of the pupils in average attendance can be classed as illiterate under the United States census.

The smaller towns of the state are showing considerable interest in the establishing of rural classes for adult alien farmers, and another trend is in the unusual number of home classes for foreign born mothers in the larger cities.

CHAPMAN TECH OUTCLASSES N. F. A.

QUINTET IN WEIRD ENCOUNTER

Chapman Tech further bolstered her lead in the Eastern Connecticut conference basketball race by outclassing the Academy Friday night at Y gym, 41 to 9. After a very closely contested first quarter, at the conclusion of which the score was 3 to 2, Tech leading, the visitors then stepped out to an easy decision. The Baltic Methodist team won a Church league game in the preliminary from Phi Delta Nu, 29 to 20.

The Whalers resorted to long shots for most of their scores. They could not break through the Academy's five-man defense except on a few occasions. However, every member on the team seemed to be adept at scoring and, as a result the points were equally divided. Quinn, one of Tech's chief sharpshooters and one-time leading scorer in the league, was held to three foul points by Capt. Buck LaCroix of the Academy.

Banner Crowd

The largest crowd of the local season was on hand for the fray and there was plenty of enthusiasm on both sides. At New London, a few weeks ago, Tech had won from the Wildcats, 40 to 9.

Snoesky, at center and Johns, at right guard, led the winners in scoring with eight points apiece while Henschel scored four, or nearly half of the Red and White points.

Tech by winning goes a full game ahead of Windham, its nearest competitor in the race. However, Tech, by the victory, did not show any too much class and Conway's boys, it seems, face a tough task shaking off the Willimantic team in the home stretch. Tech leads the league only because she has played two more games than Windham. The defeat kept the Academy in a tie for last place with Stonington, both with .000 percentage.

The Academy lost plenty of chances to score, it seemed, by failures to attempt shots. The locals could probably have converted a fair percentage of these tries had they been made. Tech didn't get inside the defense but a few more times than the Academy did but on every occasion the visitors would let fly for the basket and generally it dropped in. The Academy also failed utterly on foul shots and fumbled passes repeatedly.

Eighth Straight Loss

This was the eighth straight defeat for the Academy and the ninth in eleven starts. Unless the locals uncork a decided reversal of form very shortly, as they did the other two seasons of the court game, then this season will go down as one of the most disastrous an Academy sport team ever had.

JIMMY QUINN WINS TWO BOUTS; FERRA LOSES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 8—Jimmy Quinn, of Norwich, Connecticut state amateur featherweight champion, won handily in his two bouts here this evening. Quinn's clever fighting won him an even stronger spot in the hearts of the large crowd of fans that filled the Arcadia arena. After drawing a bye in the first bout Quinn went against Young Carter of Worcester and handily beat him to the verdict. In his second bout he fought Al Gauthier of Lowell to a standstill in the final bout.

Patsy Ferra, another Norwich boy, lost a tough battle to Melville Howel of Brockton in the semi-finals of the welterweight class. According to many at the ringside Ferra got a bad break from the judges and should have been given the decision as he was aggressive and gave more punishment than he took.

SINGER WINS ON FOUL IN THE FOURTH ROUND

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—(AP)—Al Singer, young East Side featherweight, won on a foul in the fourth round of his ten-round bout with Bud Taylor, Terre Haute slugger, at Madison Square Garden, tonight.

The low punch came after 52 seconds of the round. Taylor driving the clever New York youngster before him, left fly a left hook to the body, apparently in foul territory. Singer dropped to the canvas, writhing in apparent agony. He was carried to his corner and Referee Patsy Haley, after consulting the judges, disqualified the middle westerner.

The decision, ending a fast and furious battle, created a terrific uproar among the crowd that packed the Garden to the rafters. Singer, however, appeared genuinely hurt, and in no condition to continue the battle.

The foul blow halted what threatened to develop into one of the fastest battles the Garden has seen in recent months.

They started out at a fast clip, Taylor, a blonde and smiling tiger, piled into his eastern rival at the opening bell, pouring lefts and rights into his head and body from all angles. Mid-way through the round, however, Singer clipped Taylor with a terrific right to the chin. The Terre Haute slugger, once generally recognized as the bantamweight champion of the world, was stunned temporarily and could offer no defense as Singer drove him into the ropes with a two-handed assault.

Refreshed by the rest between rounds, the middle westerner more than held his own in the second session, he constantly found Singer's body with heavy left hooks. The third round saw Taylor open up with both hands but he found Singer quite willing to trade punches. Taylor held a slight edge during this round but the New Yorker apparently was unhurt.

The fourth round had barely opened when Taylor, punching with both hands, drove Singer around the ring. His left darted out like a young thunderbolt and Singer, fouled, dropped to the canvas and the fight was over.

Taylor weighed 126; Singer, 127 1-2.

A capacity crowd of close to 20,000 saw the battle.

KIRKWOOD SHOOTS FINE GOLF IN PRO-AMATEUR

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 8—(AP)—Sinking a twelve foot putt on the eighteenth green for a birdie three, Joe Kirkwood of Albany, Ga., Australian trick shot artist, won the pro-amateur beet ball tournament at the Pensacola Country club today, held as a preliminary to the opening of $3,500 greater Pensacola open tomorrow.

Kirkwood, paired with Frank Country of Mobile, made the 18 hole round with a brilliant 65, six under par, to lead one of the greatest fields of golfing stars to invade Florida this winter. This score tied the new course record, established by Craig Wood, Newark, N. J., and Billy Burke, New York in a practice round yesterday.

Tied for third place with a 66 were Tommy Armour, Washington pro, paired with Lieut. W. G. Porter, Pensacola amateur, and T. H. Cotton of London, England, paired with John Dawson, Chicago amateur.

Ed Dudley, Los Angeles pro, paired with Addison Meade, Pensacola; Bob Stupple, Chicago, paired with G. B. Wright, Jr., Pensacola, and Gene Sarazen, New York, paired with Don Armstrong, local amateur, all negotiated the round in 67, four under par.

Four twosomes were tied at 68; two at 69; three at 70; and three were even par.

Those with scores of 68, were Tony Mix, New York, paired with F. W. Riley, Pensacola; Willard Hutchinson, Pasadena, Calif., and Don Wilcox Pensacola; Billie Burke, New York and Guy Vaste, Pensacola; and "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, winner of the recent south central open at Hot Springs, the El Paso open and the San Antonio open, who was paired with J. H. D'Alemberte, Pensacola.

George Christ, Davenport, Fla., paired with Captain Zogbaum, Pensacola, and Craig Wood, Newark, N. J., paired with Craig Bledsoe, Pensacola, tied with 69. Those with 70 were Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., and Torrton Adams, Pensacola; Floyd Johnson and Wright Reese, Pensacola; and Denemore Shute, Columbus, O., and F. S. Chow., Washington.

Kirkwood's round was by far the most brilliant of the day, although Tommy Armour, only one strike behind in a tie with Cotton, collected seven birdies.

The $3,500 tournament proper will get under way tomorrow morning and will go the 36 hole route. Sunday the players will go in seaplanes to the Valparaiso course, 75 miles away, for an exhibition round.

AGGIE BATTERY CANDIDATES REPORT FOR PRACTICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Feb. 8—The Connecticut Aggie baseball season swung into action here today with the appearance of the battery in its first workout of the year. Prospects look fairly good this year with the infield remaining intact, and with the outfield losing only Kennedy who captained last year's nine.

The pitching staff of McCombe, Mullany and Kolb, give the Aggies strength in the box that they have not had in some time. McCombe, who bore the brunt of the hurling last year, and Mullany, are the two veterans from the squad of last season. McCombs registered more wins than any other candidate last year, and played first base when not on the slab. Mullany is the only portsider to report, and should have a big year, judging from his improvement shown during the 1928 campaign.

John Kolp of Seymour, is the only hurling candidate to report from last year's undefeated freshman team. Kolb has a variety of hooks and shoul give the opposition heaps of trouble when the campaign gets under way.

The catching staff has Ryan, Connecticut's three letter man, who caught all the games last season, and was near the top of the individual averages in batting. He will be assisted in this department by Eddie Yuskevich, of Poquonock, who was on the receiving end of Kolb's slants with the 1928 frosh aggregation. Elmer Watson of Hartford will be another prospect for the backstop position. He has been a member of the squad for three years catching all of the 1926 frosh season.

Coach Dole will have the men working out each day until the weather improves, and the squad gets outside.

TILDEN IS REINSTATED AS AMATEUR BY U. S. L. T. A.

BOSTON, Feb. 8—(AP)—William "Big Bill" Tilden, former national tennis champion, was restored to good amateur standing by the executive committee of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association, which met here tonight. Tilden was suspended six months ago for violation of the association's player-writer rule.

Tilden's reinstatement tonight was merely a routine action, the executive committee having only to vote acceptance of the report of the associatino's amateur rules committee, which investigated the case and conferred with Tilden with a view to determining his present attitude toward the player-writer rule. The report was accepted by a unanimous vote.

The basis of the action which resulted in Tilden's suspension was his act in writing descriptions of tennis matches at Wimbledon, for an American newspaper. He did not, however, write on any of the matches or tournaments in which he participated.

His suspension, coming almost on the eve of his scheduled participation in the Davis cup matches in Paris, caused a furore in the sporting world. The association, upon the appeal of French tennis followers, lifted the suspension to permit Tilden to take part in the Davis cup matches, but immediately suspended him again when the tournament was finished.

KEARNS SAYS HE HAS SIGNED FOR LOUGHRAN BOUT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8—(AP)—Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, announced here today that he had accepted an offer for a fight between Walker and Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight king, in Paddy Harmon's new Chicago coliseum on March 17, provided Loughran agrees to defend his title.

Kearns said he came to agreement with Harmon over the long distance telephone. His side of the match is closed, he said, but Loughran as yet has not agreed. Kearns, however, expressed doubt that Loughran would favor a Walker match as he is under contract to open the new arena and he repeatedly has declared that he would fight only heavyweights at that time.

SHARKEY AND STRIBLING HARD AT TRAINING WORK

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8—(AP)—Principals of the fight here February 27, went through their training antics on two Florida coasts today and tonight, after they apparently had changed their mind about postponement of their adoption of training regimes.

Jack Sharkey, accompanied by his manager, Johnny Buckley, appeared in Tampa for an exhibition bout tonight. Jack Dempsey, promoter of Sharkey's scrap with Young Stribling in the heavyweight elimination contest was there, too, having left by automobile for Tampa this morning. Sharkey and Buckley went to the west coasts city by train late night.

Stribling put on several rounds of snappy work with the light and heavy bags in his training quarters at Hardie's casino and received a good hand from the crowd that watched him.

The Garden statisticians today denuied sarcastic but frequently voiced suspicions by ticket holders that the term "ring side seats" might be interpreted to mean any small surface within a mile or so of the ring.

ILLINOIS BARS WALKER AND LOUGHRAN FROM BOUT

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The Illinois state athletic commission today tossed a bomb into the proposed light heavyweight championship match between Tommy Loughran, titleholder, and Micky Walker, ruler of the middleweights.

Paddy Harmon, president of the Chicago Stadium corporation, was negotiating for the match to open the new $7,000,000 arena, March 12. He already has Loughran under contract, but the commission ruled that Walker must first fight a logical contender for the middleweight title.

Paul Prehn chairman of the commission and president of the National Boxing association, said the Loughran-Walker match would be impossible under present circumstances as Walker was under suspension by the N. B. A. for failure to defend his title. He said there would be no objection to a Loughran-Walker match after Walker had defended his middleweight crown.

Prehn named Ace Hudkins, Dave Shade, George Courtney, and Rene De Vos as the outstanding challengers for the middleweight title. He said any member of the four would be acceptable to the commission as Walker's opponent.

Walker has been clamoring for a light heavyweight championship match for two years. He invaded the division in two Chicago matches, knocking out Mike McTigue in one round and defeating Paul Berlenbach in ten rounds. Both are former light heavyweight champions.

SHEA LEADS SKATERS AT SARANAC LAKE

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Jack Shea, of Lake Placid, N. Y., went into the lead in the second day's events of the North American Amateur outdoor speed skating championshipe to-ta; when he won the one mile race and raised his point score to 60. The Adirondack flash also came near to capturing the final of the 440, but fell when victory was almost within his grasp. This is Shea's first year as a senior.

Allan Potts of Brooklyn nosed out Francis Allen and Wallace Mitchell of Chicago to capture the 440. Some of the heats in the preliminaries were skated in faster time than the final heat.

Today's races again were marked by numerous falls, due chiefly to condition of the ice.

The mile final provided a thrilling race between Shea, Valentine Blalis of Utica, N. Y., Francis Allen and Alex Hurd, of Hamilton, Ont., who finnished almost shoulder to shoulder. Eddie Searle, of New York skated his way to the lap prize in this evert.

Allen, former international champion now staging a comeback, showed great improvement in for mover that of yesterday, while Ross Robinson, of Toronto, appeared off-color.

Tomorrow's events will be the half-mile, three-quarter mile and five mile races.

FUCHS TELLS CUNNINGHAM THAT FIGURES MUST STAND

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8—(AP)—Bruce Cunningham, young pitcher purchased by the Boston Braves from the Los Angeles club of the Pacific coast baseball league, has found holding out for money far from an enjoyable pastime.

Cunningham, who last year won 17 games and lost 13 for the Los Angeles club, received a small increase over his Angel contract from the Braves this spring, but Cunningham sent his contract back.

Today he revealed that he had received a letter from Emil Fuchs, president-manager of the Boston Braves, who said that the figures the document quoted must stand.

CONGRESS OF SPORTS FIGURES TO BE CALLED

Rubien, secretary of the American Olympic committee, in the current issue of the official publication of the sportsmanship brotherhood, is a result of a recommendation from Maj. Gen. Douglas McArthur, president of the American Olympic committee. It will be held as soon as possible after America's delegates have returned from the meeting of the international Olympic committee at Alexandria, Egypt, March 31.

BOSTON COUNCIL HOLDS HECTIC SESSION ON BASEBALL QUESTION

BOSTON, Feb. 8—(AP)—Disorder and confusion attended a meeting of the Boston city council, sitting as an executive committee today, to receive information from officials of the Boston National league baseball club regarding their application for a permit to play Sunday baseball here.

Heatedly and with much sarcasm, members of the council assailed and defended Emil Fuchs and Charles F. Adams, president and vice-president, respectively, of the club. With the gallery in an uproar, councilmen time and again tried to outdo each other verbally as they strove to gain recognition from the chair in order to put queries to Adams and his counsel, Charles A. McCarron. They were the only representatives of the Braves present. Hisses and cries from the gallery many times added to the general confusion which followed inquiries.

The result of the meeting was that the Braves, through McCarron, promised to amend and resubmit their application. This action was taken after members of the council questioned the club title affixed to the application. It read: "Boston National League Baseball Association." They contended that it should read: "Boston National League Baseball Company." McCarron declared the error a technical one but members of the council declared it should be cleared up.

Adams' appearance before the council today was his first since he charged several weeks ago that a bloc of 13 councilmen led by William G. Lynch, had demanded a bribe of $5,000 each from Fuchs to assure favorable action on the Sunday sports measure. Fuchs had met the councilmen named in the charge at a hearing before the Boston finance commission, which yesterday reported dealings between councilmen and Braves officials to be "a suspicious array of circumstances."

Much of the questioning of Adams and McCarron today was done by Councilman Wilson. It was Wilson's voice that Adams had testified he believed he heard when a telephone caller told him that unless the Braves met the bribe demand, ratification of the Sunday sports bill would be indefinitely postponed. Today Wilson said he was sure that Adams never again would have trouble in recognizing his voice.

Many times Charles G. Keene, presiding, ruled out questions of councilmen. In almost every instance the body over-ruled him and allowed the questions. One question which caused an uproar was by Councilman Thomas H. Green, who asked Adams if that had always been his name. Adams replied that Adams had been the family name since 1600.

Councilman J. F. Dowd delivered an attack on Fuchs, saying among other things:

"Judge Fuchs, Braves president, again proved himself a deliberate liar in his recent letter to Mayor Nichols."

Dowd referred to a letter in which Fuchs said that unless the city council granted the permit last Monday, Boston would not get Sunday baseball. Dowd's charges created a furore among councilmen and spectators, with a few of the former coming to his defense.

Councilman Michael J. Ward at one time declared the meeting "a joke" and moved for adjournment. The motion was defeated. Councilman Frederic C. Dowling then appealed for order.

Adams replied to questions concerning admission charges on Sundays, saying that there would be no increase over week-day prices. He denied charges of excessive profits on refreshments sold at the park.

Asked about the legality of the Sunday sports bill, Corporation Counsel Frank S. Deland informed the meeting that they should consider it legal until the supreme court ruled otherwise.

SCHMELING TO BOX AT BOSTON AFTER HE RETURNS

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—(AP)—A compromise vote involving possible postponement of the engagement of Max Schmeling, sensational German heavyweight, to box Con O'Keelley, in Boston, Feb. 15, was reached today at a conference between the fighter's manager and representatives of the Boston Madison Square Garden. Schmeling will post $20,000 to guarantee fighting in Boston first after returning from a trip to Germany.

Schmeling advised Eddie Mack and Huntington (Tack) Hardwick, representing the Boston Garden, that he could not fight there Feb. 15, because of arrangements to sail for Germany Feb. 16 to visit his mother, who is ill, and also fulfill a theatrical contract. Under the compromise agreement reached, the German will fight O'Keiley or any other opponent the Boston Garden desires shortly after returning to the United States in April.

Meanwhile Schmeling will be under technical suspension in Massachusetts and probably also in New York, as a further penalty, pending fulfillment of his Boston contract.

SWARTHOUT DROPPED BECAUSE OF SCHOLASTIC STANDING

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 8—(AP)—Heinie Swarthout, regular forward on the Dartmouth basketball team, was forced to withdraw from the team today because of scholastic difficulties. He probably will be out for the rest of the season.

Ed Picken, a sophomore, who was ineligible during the first semester, was expected to take Swarthout's position. Picken was slated to start against the Harvard quintet here tomorrow night.

Swarthout's withdrawal was a heavy blow to the Green's court team which has run up a string of five straight victories, including an Eastern Intercollegiate league win over Columbia here, Wednesday night.

DANIELSON BEATS LITHUANIANS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 8—The Danielson Town team evened the series with the Knights of Lithuania of Hartford here this evening when they won 41 to 31 before the largest crowd seen in the town hall this season. In the last meeting these two teams played a nip and tuck battle which went into an overtime period in which the Knights won by a single point.

Tonight it was different. Danielson took the lead early in the game and held it throughout without difficulty but were continually pressed by the visitors. Godreau and Gallup starred for the Towners in basket-shooting but Young Adams, playing his first game with the Towners took the house when he performed very brilliantly. Shimkis was the high scorer for the visitors.

The Preliminary.

The C. L. A. A. quintet defeated the Pawtucket Yankees in a thrilling encounter in Danielson tonight by a score of 39 to 36. The game was the fastest preliminary to the Town team game to be witnessed this season. The Pawtucket team outplayed the Danielson basketeers in the first half through the good shooting of Mathieu. In the second half Hutchins and Gale of the C. L. A. A. opened up a fast attack sending them to the front. The visitors although putting up a great game could not overcome the lead. The high scorers were Hutchins and Mathieu, each scoring 17 points. The summaries:

Burgess Bedtime Story

Danny Is Taught A Lesson.

Knowledge may be dearly bought
When by experience 'tis taught.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny Meadow Mouse was growing more and more heedless. He thought it great fun to go up on the surface of the snow and scamper about there. When the snow was soft, he left little tracks. He forgot the sharp eyes would see these and would know what they meant. Now this is just what did happen.

There had been a light crust over the snow that covered the Green Meadows. Then there had been a very light fall of snow. It was just after this stopped in the night that Danny took it into his head to go up and look around. He climbed his favorite weed stalk and popped out. Then for a while he had a good time, scampering from one weed to another and helping himself to seeds from each. Finally he went down below again. Of course, he had left behind him little footprints all about in the snow. Very early the next morning Black the Crow visited the Green Meadows in quest of something to eat. Now Blacky is not only keen-eyed, but he is quick-witted. He understands what he sees. Blacky saw those little tracks in the snow. You see, he was flying low and as he looked down he could see all those little tracks of Danny Meadow Mouse. They interested Blacky right away.

"Aha" said he to himself. "A Mouse has been feeding here. If he has come once, he is very likely to come again. I see there are still some seeds on these weed tops. I think I'll wait a while and see what happens."

So Black alighted on the snow a short distance away. Then, in that stately manner of his, he walked over until he was among the weeds where Danny Meadow Mouse had been feeding and had left his tracks. He looked sharply at all the weeds about him. In a moment or two he discovered that he was looking for. He discovered that close to the stalk of one of those weeds was a hole in the snow. It was just about big enough for a plump Meadow Mouse to pass through. Blacky's eyes twinkled when he saw it. He moved over within striking distance of the hole. Then he prepared to be patient and wait. As he waited he studied the things about him. He soon discovered that there were two or three holes in the snow close by the weed stalks. This was rather disappointing. There was no way of telling which one of those holes the Mouse he was waiting for might use.

For a long time nothing happened. Blacky was beginning to lose patience. His feet were getting cold. He was just about to give it up for that day, when he saw one of those weeds a short distance away begin to shake. Blacky knew instantly that a Mouse was climbing that stalk. He knew too that that Mouse was heedless and careless. Otherwise, he would not have shaken that weed so. Blacky hurried to get over there. He wanted to be there to grab that Mouse the instant he should poke his head out of that little hole close beside the weed.

But Blacky was just too late. He was almost there when out popped Danny Meadow Mouse. Danny hadn't stopped to poke his head out and look around. He had grown so heedless that he had climbed right out. The instant he was out he saw his mistake. There was Blacky the Crow. With a frightened squeak, Danny started for the next hole. You see, Blacky was too near for him to turn and dart down the hole he had just come out of. Half flying, half running, Blacky started after him. It was only a short distance to that next hole, but it seemed to Danny that he never would get there. You see, he was very fat, and running even that little distance was hard work. Just as he dived down head first through that little opening in the snow, Blacky made a frantic lunge at him. He caught Danny by the very tip of his tail. Danny squeaked with fright and pain. He felt himself being lifted. He dug his claws into the snowy wall of his little tunnel and pulled. Was he to be caught at last by Blacky the Crow?

REFUSED TO DRINK WINE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: In the first place I want to thank the sender for the lovely calendar which I have received. I think we are all guessing who sends them out, but some of us think we know. I do not think I have any excuse to make for not writing as Santa Claus left me three nice boxes of writing paper, so with what I had on hand, I am well supplied. I want to thank Biddy for the surprise I had Christmas when a package was handed me from the tree in Bristol. It did not cackle, but I found out who sent it. Also for the gift I received at the same time from Practical Polly and the many cards which I found on my returning home.

I fully agree with Jennie as to smoking and dress. A dear friend of mine attended a banquet in the Bond hotel. When cigarettes were passed to all ladies present this friend refused, saying she guessed she was old-fashioned as she did not smoke. He answered her by saying, "Thank God there is one old-fashioned lady in the hall." She is not old by any means. Her daughter left home to accept a fine position and formed the habit of cigarette smoking. Her two brothers went to visit her. She persuaded the older one to try one. Now he likes his smokes as well as she. The younger one would not listen to her as he knew how his mother felt about it. He is 18 years old but he has a mind of his own.

While visiting during the holidays I was invited to a social Christmas gathering which took place the week before Christmas. At first I refused although I had met a number of the ladies before but owing to my age I thought I had better not accept. They would not take no for an answer. Well, when we sat down to the table which of course was loaded with good things to eat and which I dare not touch, I saw at each plate a little fancy basket filled with nut meats and candy, also a small wine glass, which held about two teaspoons of wine. I suppose I surprised them all, when I said I never drink wine and would prefer water. I was then asked if I would like a glass of milk, which I accepted. I noticed several ladies drank water instead of wine. I enjoyed the evening and really was not sorry that I went. I was given a seat at the head of the table. I suppose on account of my age. I am afraid we are going to see more wine drank since the cigarettes have such a hold on the young people. I may be called a crank on this subject, but I can stand it.

Well I think I have said enough for today. I do hope Marigold and the rest of the sisters are better. There has been so much sickness this winter. Was sorry to hear that Sis Hopkins and her husband had been so sick, but was glad to hear they were better. What has become of Olive? Would like to hear from you and many others who have not written for a long time. Do help to fill the Social Corner page. My what a long letter I have written. Hope to see a large number at our next gathering of club No. 1 in chamber of commerce hall. With very best wishes for all members of the Social Corner, will say good-night. LAVENDER.

MORE ABOUT SMOKING

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: I have been waiting for the spirit to move before taking my pen in hand to discuss the smoke question in compliance with Jennie's request. As the good man has a caller this morning and the two generous sized columns of smoke are now curling upward in the living room, it seems a fitting time for me to launch forth on my subject. I have asked the two gentlemen the question: Why do men smoke? and have received the evasive answer "Why do women ask questions?" So now, having acquired the correct atmosphere and local color I will begin.

I believe it is generally acknowledged that one can get used to almost anything. From babyhood we have been accustomed to seeing men chewing tobacco and smoking pipes and cigars and latterly cigarettes.

Most of us have not enjoyed it especially but we have had to make the best of it as we could not help ourselves. We have laundered the window draperies and washed the paint oftener than would otherwise have been necessary, cleaned up the litter, sometimes in silence and sometimes I confess, with caustic comment. Farm women have suffered nervous tremors while watching the men folks working in the barns with pipes going full blast like small furnaces. Experience taught them to be silent for what was the use of protesting but many a woman who reads these lines will call to mind no doubt, times when she has wandered through the barns after the men had left with searching eyes to see if perchance some flying spark had started a blaze. How many barns have been burned, taking toll not alone in hay and grain but also in horses and cows, the poor creatures perishing in the flames and smoke because of careless smokers. How many fires have occurred in homes because a man chose to smoke in bed?

When one puts on one side the benefits derived from smoking and on the other the evils accompanying it, I think there is no question about the latter far outweighing the former.

Few men, I think, could really give any good reason for smoking. It is just a habit they have formed. As boys they saw their fathers and uncles and men in general using tobacco and so they, too, took up the practice. A habit is so easily formed but broken with so much difficulty, if at all. The best remedy seems to be expressed in these two words—don't begin. There are men who are not worth half price to any employer, it takes so much of their time to attend to a pipe. I noticed an advertisement in yesterday's Bulletin for a farm helper. No cigarette smoker wanted.

But some of my readers are probably saying, "you were asked to write about smoking by women, not men." You are right, I confess that I am not so well informed on this. Seldom do I see a woman smoking. My life is very quiet and does not take me to places where women and cigarettes make close connection. If it did I should feel blue I know. A former contributor to this page, Mrs. Marinda Butler Robinson, who traveled extensively and had many opportunities for observing this growing tendency among women and young girls, was deeply grieved by it and sent many a letter to The Bulletin and, no doubt, to other papers, also regarding this habit and its attendant evils. I miss her letters. She looked ahead fearing for the effect on future generations if the time should come when smoking should be generally practiced by women.

A deplorable sight it must be to see a mother puffing on a cigarette while her little ones look on. I cannot understand how any woman can do such a thing. Those who do thus take the responsibility of motherhood far too lightly. They have the same spirit as did Louis XV when he said, "After me the deluge!" Thinking only of his own selfish gratification he forgot the duty he owed to his people. When the spirit expressed in these words of Paul, "If meat maketh my brother to offend I will eat no meat while the world standeth" shall fill the earth then there will no longer be a drinking or smoking problem. How far in the future this may be none of us know. I am confident the group of earnest women who make up the Social Corner will not fail to use their influence for the uplift of woman and against whatever tends to degrade her.

Last week our circle lost another valued member, Delilah Deal, Mrs. Della Soule Robinson. Before her health failed she contributed many helpful and interesting letters to our page, Olga and Theoda, I thank you. With best wishes to you all.

EVELINE BURR.

GREETINGS FROM HOPEFUL.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I feel almost ashamed to write after waiting so long, but have been, and am still, very busy. Where this is sickness in the home time is not much spare time. I do enjoy the Social Corner page, but there are many of the old writers whose names I look for week after week, but in vain.

Auntie No. 1: Was real glad to see a letter from you recently, also your poem which was fine, and thought I would go and do likewise. It was at your house many years ago that I wrote my first Social Corner letter. You surely have had your hands full for a long while, it seems a long time since I have seen you. Hope both you and yours escaped the epidemic colds.

Arrawana: Am glad you are off duty once more and back in your home again, and hope you don't get down sick. Will write later.

Eliza Jane: I often think of you and of the nice little visit auntie and I had with you the last time I was in Connecticut. Hope to see you again some time.

Fat Contributor: I haven't seen your name in the Social Corner page, or rather a letter from you, for some time, and I know how you like to write letters.

Theoda: I often think of you and the pleasant ride from Auntie's Social Corner picnic down town with you, which came to an end altogether too soon.

Grace: How are you? Are you still at the old stand where I have spent many pleasant hours with you? And especially the day we all went huckleberrying for the day. And my! weren't they thick!

Now, a sewing suggestion: Keep a small, inexpensive flashlight in the sewing machine drawer to save many precious minutes and eye strain in threading a needle on a dark day or at night.

To prevent linen from turning yellow when putting it away, wrap it in blue paper, or part of a worn-out sheet or pillow case that has been dipped in very strong bluing water. Or instead of wrapping it, enamel inside of the closet blue.

To prevent woolen blankets from shrinking after washing, put them on curtain stretchers to dry. Do not rub woolens, but squeeze them in the hands. Never use soda in the water as it will cause woolen goods to shrink. HOPEFUL.

DESCRIBES BIG BEN.

Dear Editor: One of the most conspicuous structures in London, Eng., is the tower of the houses of parliament that rises high above the pavement near Westminster Abbey. The inside of the tower contains a staircase of 360 steps and when one has climbed to the top one is in the room containing the mechanism of one of the largest clocks in the world, the clock known as Big Ben, and which has marked time for London for many a year. It is impossible to understand the size of this giant of a clock as one stands on the ground, but if one measures its four faces one finds them to be 23 feet across, which means a distance equal to that of four average men standing on each other's head. The minute hands are 14 feet long; the swinging pendulum weighs nearly 500 pounds. The figures on the faces are each two feet long and the minute spaces are a foot square. EVE.

(Stockport, England.)

JUST A CHATTY LETTER.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: First let me thank a Social Corner member for my dainty calendar. Some one must go to a great deal of trouble and expense to remember such a large family. I do thank you heartily. I can't imagine, Lee, how you came to choose such a pen-name but I'm sure I know who is who, even know your telephone number.

Ophelia Pulse had me guessing. I had forgotten you had another sister besides Heather. We never hear from her now.

I was by Alfara's house two or three weeks ago but as it was evening, failed to see any one. Went to the armory in Willimantic but saw no Corner sister that I knew, possibly if I had put on my pin I might have met several. I was so busy looking at the exhibits I forgot I had my pin with me.

Hope the cold is better now, Twice Twenty. My cactus is budded quite full again.

Was glad to see Tildy has been doing some missionary work. Do it again, for I do enjoy hearing that voice sing. I try not to be envious but I do wish I could sing like some Butterflies I could name.

Well, Gingham Girl, glad to see you carried the day. Do it again.

Theoda: Your cousin looks for your letters. I met her one night and she wanted to know if I read it. I see her nearly every day.

I hear Club No. 4 had a fine time at Moosup. Am glad of it, it will encourage Aries to try again. Just now is a bad time to get a big crowd, there are so many sick and bad weather.

Since you don't spend so much time threading needles, Tildy, you might write, before time for the chickens.

Noticeospretty's telling of the candy-pulls make me think of the ones we went to once, only it was called a candy daub and it was rightly named. Do you remember it Caro? I guess you were three years old and I was four. I can only remember three that were there. I think S. S. S. was one. How about it, Dido, am I right? Shan't tell what year it happened. Caro went to sleep, but no sleep for yours truly until after the festivities ended.

Hope the sick ones are on the gain. I extend my sympathy to the sorrowing ones. 1402.

SPRING CANNOT BE FAR AWAY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: This is the last day of January—one month of the new year gone. About this time we begin to realize that the days are growing longer since Christmas and Christmas seems to have vanished into the distant past. An actual breath of summer has been in the air and many persons looked up then and felt as if something charming and reassuring had happened to them. In many places the hand organs of spring are being tuned up for the days that are soon to be. Quite before we know it some one will write excitedly to the newspapers to report the arrival of the first robin. Some robins of this latitude are extremely conservative: they go only a short distance to the south, and they are the first to return to their favorite trees when winter is out of the way. Robins and hand organs are the first harbingers of spring. When once they appear you may know the worst is over. It is true that at this particular time we don't know whether to expect blizzards or robins. The great fact to remember is that we shall soon be well on our way through February, the one tall barrier remaining between us and the threshold of summer. There may be blizzards to come but they will be short-lived. Almost before we know it there will be whiffs of arbutus and Jersey peach blossoms on the warming air. ANN TENNA

PRAIRIE CHICKEN'S HOBBIES

Dear Social Cornerites: By the time this letter is printed it will be February and after Candlemas day and let's hope the ground hog didn't see his shadow.

It's a beautiful day but I am afraid such weather won't last. I read in Winter Robin's letter some thing about "hobbies," so will write of mine.

I never cared for dogs and cats, but that's my hobby now. We have two dogs. One is a very gentle, docile and knowing animal, part St. Bernard and part Great Dane. Their disposition is like the St. Bernard, so loving and patient. The other I am boarding for a relative. I will not attempt to tell you the breed as she is a mystery. No one has been able to trace her ancestry. She is on the Spitz type—small but noisy and as all around "Buttinski." When the two dogs are playing it reminds me of the picture I remember of—"Dignity and Impudence." Her name is Harriett, but as the name is twice as big as she, we call her Tut. So much for the dogs. Now the cats.

Some were wished on me, some strolled here on their own accord, while the others belong here.

They seem to know I'll take them in and feed them and when they have ailments I'll doctor them.

Last spring Tiger strolled in so sick with a cold he could not lap milk. So three times a day for a week I picked him up and rubbed Vick's Vapor Rub on his nose and on his head and in a couple of weeks he was feeling much better.

Dinah and Mary were wished on me, only a year apart.

Dinah was a proud mother of a pair of twins. They lived three or four months then went to a happy hunting ground.

Mary led me, one day last summer, across the road and into a pasture and there under the heap of brush were two handsome kittens, very wild at the time but now they have become so tame they are around the house every day. This winter the kittens, Peter and Bobby, had colds and I used the same remedy as with Tiger, and they are much better. Then there's Old Silver. He is ten years old and belongs here. So altogether there are five cats and the twins made seven and at night just before I get ready to lock up the doors I open one and take the broom, make a dart under stoves and couch and if you want to see a cat parade with the two dogs as helpers, just drop in any time.

But if you wish to know my pet hobby it's writing letters. It takes quite a while to set myself to it, but if I once get started I never stop until the ink is exhausted in the pen.

I am wondering why Stranger in the city doesn't write. Perhaps she has written but I have not read her letter. She is in a different city now. One time it was Newark, another time New London, now quite a distance. Am sure she can find something interesting to write about.

Now, I think I've written enough for this time so will go on with some sewing I take up at odd spells. My sympathy goes to those who are ill and to those who have lost their relatives or a dear friend. Best wishes to the Corner. PRAIRIE CHICKEN

APPRECIATED CALENDAR AND CARDS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I want to thank the Social Corner member for the pretty calendar which I have on my desk. I also thank the sisters who sent cards and letters at Christmas and the New Year, also for the many gifts. All these kind acts are appreciated as I have been shut in for some time. Hope to get out of doors soon as I am feeling much better. I am able to wish my friends health and prosperity in the New Year.

We all miss Kitty Lou. She was a nice friend and a good neighbor of mine. Also his dear mother, Mrs. Rogers, some years ago. Best wishes to all Corner members from Onondague 1902.

Try this fig and nut icing: One lemon (juice only) half a cup sugar, 1 cup chopped figs stewed with one cup sugar, 1-2 cup water, mix till soft 3-4 cup ground nuts. It is very nice with white layer cake.

ONONDAGUE 1902

DISGUSTING SIGHTS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I have been sick and do not seem to gain very fast. I get so tired and do not do very much. I hardly think I will feel like going to the next meeting.

I agree with some about the way women dress; it certainly is not modest. Just imagine how a teacher looks as she stands before a school with her dress made above her knees and she reaches up to write on a blackboard. Is it any wonder that the children laugh and refuse to tell her what they are laughing at? I think such things never ought to be allowed. I see girls smoking cigarettes quite often. I saw two girls and two young men come in a store smoking and all of them had been drinking. It surely was a disgusting sight. In my younger days we never heard of any such things. But what can be done to make things better?

My sympathy is with all that has sorrow or sickness.

A VISIT TO THE "DEVIL'S HOP YARD"

Editor and Social Corner Readers: Should one desire to see some of the wonders of nature, a visit to the Devil's Hop Yard would satisfy such a desire.

While entertaining a friend from Brooklyn, N. Y., who for many years had been accustomed only to sky-scrapers, the rattle and confusion of stuffy congested streets, and street venders hawking their wares, it was suggested that we give our friend a view of real rural life, seashore and inland, ending up at one of nature's mysteries. Why, when and how.

No doubt there is a legend connected with it, very remote. What may be the legend no one living today can tell. It is a most weird spot and it may have been where his Satanic majesty made his first landing, after being driven out of Heaven.

A friend knowing the route, and possessing a very roomy car, and who was to take his family for an outing, gave us three an invite to accompany them, leaving it to our friend from Brooklyn to suggest a place. She named the Hop Yard as the objective point.

We left New London at 10 o'clock, taking the shore road and following close to the Long Island sound shore for some 12 miles, when we turned sharp to the right, passing through the town of Lyme with its old style Colonial residences, now owned and occupied during the summer by noted artists, from all parts of the country.

We followed the state road until we reached the little hamlet of Hamburg, where we were refreshed with ice cream, soda and cookies for the little folks (his Thomas' two children) from a nicely kept country store. Passing Hamburg we came to the end of the state road, but found the country road very passable for quite a distance, until we entered a narrow gorge between almost perpendicular walls, to which clung large trees of spruce and hemlock. The undergrowth of laurel, rhododendron and witch-hazel formed an almost impenetrable thicket.

The larger trees formed an arch over the narrow gorge, nearly shutting out the light. For safety it would be best to light your lamps. Here the road is narrow, having been cut out of the side of the mountain. We are on the left bank of the rocky, rapid running stream. The mountains on the right bank rise abruptly from the stream, the same as those on the left bank, with the same forest setting, shelving ledges here and there, but the clinging roots of the large trees find soil and moisture, even among the shelving rocks. We stopped in the almost darkness to admire the wonderful and weird pictures of nature. Grandure and solitude are companions.

Leaving this scene, we made slow progress, as the ascent is short and steep like a series of terraces. Here the gorge narrows, and the sound of the rush of water over and around the boulders is plainly heard, for we are but a few feet away from the stream. The ascent grows steeper and for a few rods the auto seems to debate whether to continue the climb or die in the attempt. Our chauffeur steps on the gas and it seems again to feel the breath of life suddenly taking hold of it. We make the last steep ascent, then for a few rods a more gentle rise, and we suddenly come out of the gorge and a broad plateau of level land opens to our view. We cross the old rustic bridge, with a sharp turn to the right, and we are then in the Devil's Hop Yard. Our car was parked nearby and then came a scramble to unload our boxes and baskets of eatables and drink.

For a few minutes we stood on the brink of the shelving rocks, looking down into a gorge more than a hundred feet below us. As our ride had sharpened our appetites, we thought best to sample our eatables before making survey of the wild scenery. We seated ourselves on the rocks and with napkins and spreads laid upon ground, we soon unloaded our baskets onto nature's table and commenced to sample our medley of sandwiches, with relishes of pickles, sweet and sour. The pop of soda bottles told us that a drink was next in order. Cake and doughnuts followed, washed down with either milk or coffee. Fruit was not forgotten. Lunch finished, we were ready for a survey of the surroundings.

First we noticed the work of man, of many years ago; a relic of a dam by a mill site. But no mill by a dam site, for the charred and decayed timbers showed that fire had worked destruction to a grist mill, that once stood on the brink of a precipice. Far down the gorge we saw the large wooden shaft of a monstrous water wheel that had given away to a more modern iron turbine, that was standing nearly upright in the place where it last did duty. The large mill-stones for the grinding of grain, lay at the bottom of the wheel-pit some 20 feet below. From this scene we turned to other more attractive wonders of nature. We stand with awe and wonder what must have been the commotion that was created in the upheaval of nature thousands of years ago. Rocks of many tons in weight were cast upon one another at all angles, from perpendicular to flat and shelving, over which flowed the stream; now shallow for want of rain, but there was enough to give us an idea of its rapid descent over and around the sharp and jagged rocks; now being divided here and there as if to divorce itself from the main stream, only to unite near a shelving rock before it takes a plunge into a pool more than twenty feet below, where it rests awhile as if dreading the next passage over a smooth ledge at an angle of 45 degrees, dropping into another pool midst jagged rocks, where it is whipped into foam before another plunge. And so on it goes making rapid speed over shelving rocks, winding here and there as if to escape in some way the torture of coming in contact with the broken rocks before the final plunge into the gorge more than a hundred feet below, where we stand. For a small area, I saw no spot in "The Land of The Sky," more wild and interesting.

The antics of the stream are again shown in the numerous pot-holes varying in size from two to five and six feet in diameter, and of varied depth, formed by a small stone finding lodgement in a slight depression, where the action of the swift stream sets it in motion and for thousands of years it is whirled around and around, wearing deeper and deeper, and larger, into the solid rock, the sides of which, with itself, is worn as smooth as polished granite.

Nature has made this a wonder place; wild, weird and interesting.

Now for a stretch of imagination and thought. Were those pots formed and used by his Satanic majesty, long before the Volstead farce was imposed upon the people? At that time he had naught to fear, and so could proceed with hops of his raising; for a foundation, with possibly malt, with which to make home brew for self and his imps. If not so, were they pot pots; where, in Shakespeare's Macbeth the witches made their "Hell broth," while around the cauldron they danced; repeating "Double double, toil and trouble; Fire burn, and cauldron bubble, to cook Fillet of penny snake, In the cauldron boil and bake." Not so in this case, for these vessels were too primitive; modern articles of course were used.

Now one more thought. Were they not monstrous mortars, in which the ancient alchemist extracted from roots and plants, juices for medicinal use, or to compound the elixir of life, a panacea, a universal remedy for all the ills the human flesh is heir to.

If none of these thoughts or suggestions are feasable, we will have to admit they were one of nature's wonder works to show beyond question that the power of water, even to the tiny particle with constant dropping will wear the hardest stone, and by such they were made, and for no use, except to create wonder and surprise.

After the final drop into the lower pool, the stream starts on a more moderate descent, over and around rocks of monstrous size. For a mile or more it finds the same rocky bed, with an occasional drop of four or five feet, but on it goes whirling and twisting until it leaves the gorge, and passes into a beautiful meadow. How placid and still it flows, except now and then it ripples over a pebbly bed; now winding here and there doubling back upon itself, forming the letter S, and figure eight. Within a mile it mingles its waters with Connecticut's largest and beautiful river. On it goes through valley and mead, until at last, between the wave beaten rocks of Saybrook Point, it mingles with the salty depths of Long Island sound.

QUID NUNC.

THANKS FOR CALENDAR

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Many a full moon since I wrote to the Corner.

I thank Social Corner members for my calendar also I answer to the roll call.

I have been able to attend some of the meetings of Club No. 4 and always intend to write after each meeting.

I thank Aries for finding such pleasant rooms for our last meeting.

Also thank the ladies for singing my song.

I do enjoy the letters of Quid Nunc and the others on travel. I have been in Washington several times but hope to live long enough to go again; also New York and see Roxy's theatre.

I still enjoy Cheerio every morning; also Jolly Bill and Jane at night. One can always hear music any hour of day and night from some few dozen stations. I do like the band as it comes in so clear. Dr. Copeland is very good, only by that time in the morning I must do a little work, so I can hear Hester G. at Worcester and James McKennor in Providence and by this time you know I am a radio fan. I am right glad they did not invent the radio before with all the work I had laid out for me I could never have done good work.

What has become of Everready, 1492 and K. D., also Tip Biscuit and last but least No Name. Hope you all answer to the roll call soon.

I am glad to be able to tell you Avon is improving and hope she has a shower of post cards, as I did enjoy mine last winter.

Ann Tenna: I always enjoy your letters.

Olga: We miss you from our meetings but know you have so many clubs near you that we excuse you.

To all those that are sick or in sorrow, I extend my sympathy and good wishes for a gala New Year.

LAST ROSE OF SUMMER
(Club No. 4)

WISHES SHE WAS BACK

Dear Social Corner and Friends: It is a long time since I have been to a dinner with you all, as I moved away one year ago last September. I miss the Corner very much and the friends but Lo is kind and sends me the page so I can read if I don't see you all. I do not like it here, and hope to be nearer some day so I ran go to dinner. I hope Strawberry is not angry for not having a letter, as I have a lot to do. My daughter is here and her son. He is a fine boy and we love him very much.

I do wish to be remembered to all of the members of Club No. 2. It is cold here but we have been lucky not to have been ill. If you happen to go to New Bedford I live on the main road near Beulah's. When the weather is fine I sit on the front porch, so see cars from all over the country. I guess I will have to say so long, as it is getting time for bed. I am sending a recipe for a silver cake Hope you will all like it. Was sorry to see the death of Kitty Lou as I liked her nice letters.

How are you, Student? Did you receive your Xmas card? I thought you were ill as I did not hear from you.

Fannie M. K.: How are you?

Catnip: How are your eyes.

Red Rose: Hope you are still on deck. Regards to Scottie, Lo, Calla Lily True Blue, Chocolate, Black Eyed Susan, Maple Leaf, Nellie Bly, Strawberry, County Sister and all the rest of you. Here is the recipe for—

Silver cake: 1-2 cup butter, 2 tsp. baking powder, 1 cup sugar, 1-4 tsps. salt, 1-2 cup milk, 4 eggs' whites, 2 cups flour, 1-2 tsp vanilla or almond extract cream, butter and sugar. Gradually sift together flour, baking powder and salt, add to first mixture, alternating with milk, and beating all the time. Beat egg whites till stiff and flavoring. Pour in a butter and flour cake pan. Bake 45 minutes. It is very nice. Hoping some will try it I will close. My arm is getting stiff. From MITTIE

SAW WOMEN SMOKING.

Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Maybe it is too late to wish you a happy New Year but I can surely say, season's greetings. I thank you, most sincerely Social Corner member for still another exquisite little calendar. I dearly love to be one of the ones who receive them. Jennie's letter about women smoking makes me think of th first time I had ever seen women smoke. I went to Maryland to visit my aunt and she was showing me the house, and on the back porches, I have never seen any like them since or again, there sat two darky women chatting and smoking pipes! I was amazed and it is still a joke in the family—my expression when I saw them—then my aunt said that many of the older wenches smoked pipes. I thought, Hm! But I have never gotten over my prejudice—I always think "Wad nae power the giftie gie us to see ourselves as ithers see us." RICKETY ANN.

CLUB NO. 6 TO MEET FEB. 19

Dear Social Corner Members: What lovely days we have been having, perhaps it will help drive away the flu. There has been so much sickness for such a nice winter. I am so glad the ice men have been able to harvest some ice. It is so much better than the artificial.

Commuter: Was more than glad to see a letter from you and am looking forward to hearing that hello and a lot more with it.

Ravena: Have something to thank you for when I see you.

Rural Aunty: I tried your sponge cake recipe and it came out fine. Shall make it often.

Frances L.: Am glad to hear you are so much better. Too bad L. is down again.

Roma: Hope you are on the road to "Wellville" now.

White Dawn: Hope you are improving fast. Do you remember the hot day we were at a picnic at Versailles. Club 6 will have its next meeting Feb. 19 at Stonington. The place of meeting to be announced next week. Beers is to be the hostess.

MODERN DRESS AND PAINTED FACES.

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: When I read the late letters of Jennie and Clip on modern dress I thought, "Thems my sentiments tew." If the girls could "see themselves as others see them," I think they would be surprised. Years from now if they should see an old picture of themselves, perhaps they would think, "Was I ever that big a fool?" And some of them might have pretty faces, if they didn't plaster on the paint so thick—a bright red patch on their cheek bones, enough to shame an Indian, or a circus horse. Let us hope they learn wisdom as they grow older. As for the smoking, I don't see how a girl with any refinement can do it. Fashion makes slaves of lots of people, old and young.

At Christmas time, there's a hurry and scurry to get together a quantity of gifts to send away. Never mind if it can't be afforded, it's the fashion. Why not give to our own family, and let our friends wait till their birthday comes around. The Christmas message of "goodwill to men," doesn't seem to include the overworked mail carrier. So, not to tax them too much, I only sent one package, and one card this season.

Ann Tenna: My hobby is saving scraps of poetry, and making doll dresses. I have three small granddaughters, and they dearly love to have new dresses for their dolls.

I have read lately of the death of Corner Sister Delilah Deal, who was Mrs. Delia Soule Robinson. Poor woman, she must have been a great sufferer, and a great cage. I am a sort of shutin through the winter, but each day brings us nearer spring.

With best wishes from

SILENT PARTNER.

CHANGES WORK WONDERS.

Dear Sisters: Hope this month the number in attendance will swell a little as it did last month and I'm sure we all enjoyed ourselves at that time.

Black Eyed Susie: Do come and help us out. We will need your opinion. Have missed you.

Milly: I think your recipe for corn pudding is very good.

Mawb. Your description of your kitchen makes a mind picture of a very pretty room. A little good taste, a couple of cans of paint and a couple of brushes will make a new room. I know how it is. I'm always changing the color of things. My bedroom is French gray and rose with decalcomania transfers on the bureau and the children's is ivory with Dutch transfers. My kitchen is shades of green. I expect to change the kitchen this spring.

Here is a recipe for a good frosting:

Chocolate Frosting: Melt 2 ounces chocolate over hot water. Add two teaspoons butter and add slowly one-third cup of hot milk. Beat in enough powdered sugar to make it the right consistency. Add one-quarter teaspoon vanilla or almond.

GEORGETTE.

THANKFUL FOR CALENDAR.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I want to thank the Social Corner member who sent me the pretty little calendar. She keeps her or his identity pretty well hidden. I think all who read the Corner cannot fail to help find something useful.

Jennie, Club No. 1—Your letter expresses my opinion on the subject you spoke of. I think from what I have read it injures a person's health and nicotine gets into the blood and the poor children are sickly, but of course one's environment has a great deal to do with it. Many folks smoke that surprises us and think nothing of it. We expect men to smoke but it is hard to get used to seeing women smoke.

True Blue: Your idea of saving stitches is a good one. I wonder if there are that many in mine?

Brown Eyes: I tried recipe for cookies and they are good.

Olga: Myra and I passed your house last week but did not see anybody and we could not stop. We are having plenty of snow and cold weather. Best wishes to all the Corner. COSMOS.

SENDS FOUR RECIPES

Dear Social Corner: I am sending in some recipes this week:

Uncooked Fudge, delicious: 1-4 cake unsweetened chocolate, large size, melt with one tablespoon butter over hot water, one pound confectionery sugar, three tablespoons cream or evaporated milk, beaten white of egg, one tablespoon vanilla. Beat all well together, smooth out on buttered pan. Very delicious if black walnuts are added. Ready in half an hour.

Add whites last, frosting, two tablespoons orange juice, little rind, sugar to spread, piece of butter size of walnut.

Fruit Cake, very good: 2 cups brown sugar, 2 cups hot water, 2 tablespoons lard, one package seedless raisins. Boil all together for 5 minutes. When cold add 3 cups or trifle more of flour, one teaspoon soda, dissolved in hot water, one teaspoon cinamon and clove also one cup chopped walnuts. Bake in two loaves in moderate oven, little salt.

Home-made Syrup: One cup white sugar, one cup brown sugar, one cup water, hot or cold, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Boil 5 minutes.

HOUSECLEANING SUGGESTIONS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Although we are having cold and disagreeable weather now, spring will soon be here and we will begin to think of cleaning and perhaps rearranging rooms. I promised Palia some time ago that I would write her how I furnished my bed room and made it attractive, with a little paint and brush. How many of the sisters have young daughters who are just longing for a pretty little room of their own, yet feel that they cannot put the money into it just now, but with odds and ends that you may have and a pot of paint a cozy room may be accomplished.

When I moved into my apartment a few months ago, my rooms had all been newly painted and papered, so I did not have that part to think of. My bedroom was too small to hold my bed room set and it had to be placed elsewhere, so I used odds and ends. My mother gave me an old oak dresser. I sand-papered that and an oak writing desk, then applied one coat of water green knoxco enamel; water green is sort of a Nile green shade. The next morning that coat had thoroughly dried and I went over it with a little pumice powder on a damp cloth, then applied the second coat of enamel; when that had dried I trimmed them with a dark green. Forgot to say that I removed the mirror and after painting the frame, hung it on the wall directly in back of the dresser; also removed the brass handles on dresser and replaced them with glass knobs, purchased in the ten cent store. Between the knobs on the drawers I placed decalcamanias of pink roses. When on sale one day I purchased two chairs, one rocker and one straight, rush-bottom and ladder back; those I treated with the same color paint, also my single size bed. On the bed I used a pink and tan rayon spread which relieves the green and the window draperies I made of white scrim with a little pink figure in it. Red Rose made me a very pretty modernistic pillow, and that with another organdie one that I received Christmas, adorns my cedar chest. The floor covering which happened to be a necessity just at that time is linoleum, white background with pink floral design (bed room pattern). This with a pink boudoir lamp and a few pictures completes my room and not including the linoleum stood me less than seven dollars.

Some time if the sisters care to hear about my colorful kitchen, I will write about that.

Bay State: When are you going to make me a call.

Frank Lynn: Am watching the papers for your letter.

Best wishes to all who are sick or shut in.

LONE FEATHER.

MAKING BROWN BREAD

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: I think it is my turn to write. The Corner page has been so full of such nice interesting letters that I haven't written for a number of weeks.

Isn't it lovely to get out once again. I got up street yesterday for the first time since Christmas. My little girl has been sick with the whooping cough and is about well now although I've been told it takes three months to be entirely rid of it.

Aunt Susie: Yes, I've done some tatting. I did tatting for three handkerchiefs and two table runners for Christmas presents. I like to tat very much but it takes quite a while to do a little bit, no matter how fast your fingers fly. Now I wanted to make one for you, too. I even got the handkerchief, but not seeing any letters from you and my little girl was taken sick so I decided to wait. So if you would like to have me do some for that kerchief you spoke of I'll be only too glad to do it for you, if you will let me know how much you need. The tatting I did came from one of those books you so kindly sent me. I finished up some for a kerchief last night for a lady I used to work for. She's the one that taught me how, and will sew it on handkerchief when I finish this letter. Was very sorry that you were sick, but hope you are much better and gaining every day.

Several weeks ago I wanted to have some brown bread for supper with the baked beans and not having made any in such a long time I got my cook book and read over the recipe and needed some rye and Graham flour. I didn't have any and had no way to get it from the store, being alone with the sick child so here's what I did. I used enough corn meal and flour to make up for the missing rye and Graham flour and it was just as nice and light, and the raisins stayed just where I wanted them to, not one going to the bottom. I kept what was left till the next Saturday and put in a strainer and put that in bottom of double boiler and put a pan over to keep all the steam in and we couldn't tell that it had not just been made. I sliced it before putting it on to steam.

About plants. The later part of last summer I was at the hardware store getting some flower pots and got some plant food called Gro-fast (odorless) which I think is very good. It's good for lawns and vegetable gardens too. Guaranteed (analysis) ammonia, nitrogen (equivalent) phosphoric acid (from bone) and potash. They told me bone meal was a good plant food but very slow. I've used that too but like Gro-fast best. I paid 20 cents for a pound can. The directions say to use it every three or four weeks.

Wish all sick and shutins a speedy recovery.

LADY SLIPPER.

DRESS AND SMOKING.

Dear Social Corner Folks: The shortest month of the year is here but it is not too short for us to do our bit for the Corner and Sister Jennie has given us a good subject.

I have not seen many women smoking. I recall seeing one last summer sitting in a luxurious car waiting for her children to come across the street from Chautauqua. I could not help thinking,

"O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursels as ithers see us"

But probably to the young woman in question it would made no difference could she have seen herself or heard the remarks made about her. She could have cared but little for the opinion of others or the influence upon her children.

On the subject of dress, may I quote Dr. Poling whom many of you hear on the air Sunday afternoons. In reply to the question given him, "What is your candid opinion with regard to the dress of young women?" he says in part, I do think that in general they are much better dressed, much more healthfully clothed, and much more attractively, than they were a quarter of a century ago. That there are extremes, some of them thoroughly disgusting, I concede. You may have heard the story of a young husband who was asked by his wife to comment upon her latest gown. "Don't you think it very becoming?" she asked. He answered, "Well, my dear, it may be coming, but candor compels me to remark that mighty little of it has arrived."

Nema: In reply to your inquiry, shall have to say, I do not know. I quoted the verse from memory and cannot find it in any of my poems.

Thirty-Two: I must have heard the same sermon you did, only a week later. At the close of the sermon I asked several if they had the poem quoted by the speaker but no one seemed to know where to find it. Hope you can get it for our Corner page. Am sure there are many who would enjoy it.

Electa's Daughter: Did you go to "grand chapter" this year?

With many thanks to a Social Corner member for calendar and best wishes to all. PRIMROSE.

DO THE ELDERS INFLUENCE THE YOUNG?

Sisters and Friends of the Social Corner: Thought I would write a few lines to inform you I am still among the live ones.

Jennie: You sure threw a bomb into our peaceful crowd and I see you have, so far, had several letters in reply.

Aries: Your letter was a good one. They always are; you certainly scored a bull's eye.

Smoking is a disagreeable habit, "to the observer", still the one who is smoking seems to get a deal of comfort and satisfaction therefrom. Now the girls are getting the habit. And I am very, very sorry, and hope it will prove just a fad and not become permanent.

Sometimes I wonder if we older women are to blame for some of the extreme things these youngsters indulge in. Let me relate a conversation between two girls in their early teens:

"Say Rose, we must think of something new to do. Why did you ever stop and think and realize that when we began to wear short skirts the old dames did likewise. Then we adopted light colored stockings and garters and again the oldsters followed suit. In desperation we bobbed our hair; along came the mamas and grandmas and had theirs cut and curled. In fact everything we start they fall in line

FILLING STATION RAID
FINES OF $100 AND COSTS EACH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 8—A short session of the third district court, held by Judge Oliver H. Williams Friday morning, was followed by a juvenile court sitting of about an hour's duration. At the regular session new writs were entered as follows and all were continued one week: Westerly Lumber Co. vs. Antonio Negrelli, alias. Book account for $300, on Jan. 23rd. Westerly Lumber Co. vs. Antonio Gencarella. Book account for $300, on Jan. 24th. Wesley G. Whipple vs. Hiarry Littlefield. Book account for $200. Brown & Bigelow, Inc., of St. Paul, Minn., vs. Joseph Pickering of Union Taxi Co. Book account for $200. Robert H. Farnham vs. Munro, Inc., trespass on the case for negligence, $200 asked as result of auto collision on Watch Hill road.

Trial calendar—State, Fred T. Mitchell, sheriff vs. Thomas Bummer of Charlestown, R. I. Attorney C. E. Roche appeared for the defendant, charged with the unlawful possession of intoxicating liquors, seized in a raid on the Sea View Filling station by the sheriff and raiding officers Jan. 5th. A plea of nolo was entered.

William Gregson was arraigned on a similar complaint. Mr. Roche waived the reading and entered a plea of nolo. For the defendants he told the court that they opened a gas filling station. An adjoining house was occupied by Mr. Blummer and wife and in the cellar of that house the raiding officers found beer. Under the law of the state the condition of possession did not apply to a bona fide dwelling; but he did not press the point. He stated that neither defendant had been in trouble before.

Judge Williams found the accused guilty and fined each $100 and costs, which were paid.

Civil docket—Clarence E. Roche vs. Clarence M. Champlin. In this suit brought to collect attorney's fees. A continuance was granted to Feb. 15th.

Parents Warned Also

At the juvenile court session eight boys, from seven to fifteen, accompanied by fathers and mothers were in court. They were picked up by New Haven Railroad Officer Brown. Their appearance resulted from being in the freight yard, crawling under cars and between them while a swith engine was putting freight cars on the sidings. One of the boys was the owner of a gun and was questioned as to the smashing of several hundred dollars worth of glass in buildings of Walton Clarke,atthe corner of Dayton and Pleasant streets and at the Westerly plant of Armour and Co. The boys were directed by the judge to keep off railroad property and the parents were urged to keep a more careful watch over their children.

The following has been recorded in the office of Westerly town cerik:

Feb. 7—Easement. Abbie M. Potter, Long Beach, Los Angeles county, Cal., to South County Public Service compny electric light and power line cross lands in a strip 125 feet wide entering from lands of Nathan Saunders across land now or formerly of M. Louise Euell, crossing the highway.

Warning to Keep Off

"Station Drive, Other Uses Forbidden, N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. Co." is the inscription on two large metal signboards shortly to be erected on the approaches of the Westerly waiting station of the New Haven railroad. At present there is so much auto traffic through the station grounds that section men have been kept busy from time to time spreading trap rock to fill hoes and ruts in the approaches to the station. Many theatre attendants also use the station grounds as convenient parking places for their cars while they attend the theatre.

with. It isn't fair. They have had their youth; why don't they dress according to their years, etc.?"

Now they are taking up smoking, what is the answer?

When I look far back in the past I remember we young people had our way of dressing, and our elders did not copy. They dressed according to their years. Are we less wise, and a stumbling block to the younger generation?

Marigold: Was so sorry to learn of your accident. Hope the knee is doing well and that you will soon be walking. How lovely of Mary France to care for Betsy Bray, and my, what a good time Betsy will have visiting Mary F! Friends in need are friends indeed.

When I read the notice of Delilah Deal's death I felt like offering a prayer of thanksgiving that her long trial was over and she could rejoin the husband she loved so well. She was a very fine woman and so pleasant to meet, and when in health such a faithful Corner member.

Loretta: When I read your letter, where you told of being so cheated in your investment, I was so sorry for you. And I do hope the day will come when a law will be made whereby such swindlers can be punished.

I will close with best wishes for the new year.

Love and sympathy for the bereaved and sick ones.

OLD HUNDRED.

SLOGANS

To Editor and Social Corner Members: The Social Corner page was interesting last week.

E. L. M.: The sampler your mother made must be a treasure to you. We have one our mother made. To think those samplers were all made by little girls seven to ten years old. No child would have patience to make one now.

Rosary: I was interested reading about the iron basan in which you bake potatoes. It is a fine idea. I liked the poem "The Old Sampler" and recited it many times at entertainments. "Elizabeth, Aged Nine" appealed to me, and I loved her and Mrs. Sangster, too.

Bee True: Really, did you smoke a cigar? How is your father? Heard he is quite a traveler.

While extolling the good work of the two cent stamp do not overlook the value of the penny postal card. For one cent the postal department sells and delivers the card to its destination. It is the best feature in the service. Use it often.

Some one recently mentioned the present style of taking pictures of people with their mouths open. It looks idiotic. Years ago the photographer said, "Look pleasant." Now he seems to say, "Show your teeth." Another craze is the present style of dress. How any middle aged woman weighing 200 pounds, more or less, can appear on the street wearing a dress up to her knees, tan stockings, and a No. 10 foot crowded into a No. 2 shoe is past understanding. Just style! When she is seated the skirt does not cover her knees. Look at the pictures of groups of middle aged women, especially club women. It looks like "Say it with legs". If only the photographer would mercifully spread a lap robe over their knees or else just "take" their heads in the picture it would not look so disgusting and vulgar.

Of course trails or very long skirts are unsanitary, but why go to this vulgar extreme? Dresses can be made modest and neat. Considering where these extreme styles come from no respectable woman should wear them and join the leg show.

No longer are the family skeletons kept locked in the closet. They are on the street too, showing their long skinny legs that look bare in tan stockings.

It is the worst style ever known. It is gratifying to notice that members of Social Corner at the meetings are sensible women and not so very immodestly stylish.

We read the textile men are questioning how to improve their business. Why don't they look at the styles? If every woman wore more clothes business would greatly improve. You remember the slogan during the World war, "Anything to help win the war." Put up the slogan, "To help business, wear more clothes."

As to the question whether it is right for a woman to smoke, only a certain class would indulge in such a degrading habit. We know very well there are true gentlemen and true ladies even in these times.

A true gentleman wants his wife to be as good a woman as his mother was and I cannot believe he admires a woman who smokes, and no lady would smoke in public.

In closing will add the slogan: "A full Social Corner page every week."

NEMA.

ANTICIPATING THE NEXT.

Dear Sisters: Sorry to have to miss another gathering, but am living in hopes to be able next month to attend.

Hope each one enjoys themselves.

Scottie: Many thanks to you for your kind remembrance. Hope to see you at our March meeting.

CHRISTIANA.

GREETINGS FROM FAN TAN

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: Will try and write a few lines to help fill up our Corner page. Was glad to see so many nice letters this week. I always look for the Corner page first thing when my paper comes.

Aries: I want to thank you very much for the lovely birthday card you sent me. It is nice to be remembered.

Kentucky Wonder: Was very sorry to hear you have been so ill. I hope you will gain steadily every day. Keep up your good courage.

Balsam Fir: I thought you had forgotten me. Haven't heard from you in a long time. Hope you are feeling much better. I was in Portland, Maine, and stayed a week the last of August. Couldn't get time to get out and see you, my stay was so short. We went to Freeport and saw the Maine desert, called the largest natural phenomenon in the east. Over six miles in area and gradually growing larger, all of which cannot be accounted for. It is a spot tourists should not fail to visit. A wonderful sight to see. I have a lovely picture of it.

Thirty Two: Please accept my sympathy. Was so sorry to hear of your loss. I hope you will be able to carry on as you have before in the same beautiful spirit.

Sorry not to be able to attend the meeting at Moosup. I thought of you all day and am glad all had a nice time. Hope to be at the next meeting.

Best wishes to all the sick ones and hope they are all on the road to recovery.

"One swallow doesn't make a spring, but several of them are sometimes good for a fall."

Yours for the Corner.

Dear Social Corner Members: Very sorry not to be able to attend Club No. 4's meeting, at the Girls' club rooms in Moosup. Glad all had such a good time.

1920: Had such a pleasant visit with you. Never stopped to do shopping, it was so very cold, but took the bus and got home as soon as I could. Hope to see you again before long. Did you attend Club 4's meeting?

Twice Twenty: Sorry to hear you have been ill. Hope you are feeling much better. Have not seen you in a long time.

Aries: Hope you are better of your lameness. Will give you my donation when I see you. Sorry I could not attend Club 4's meeting. Better luck next time.

Have not written to the Corner page for a long time but hope I am not in the back-sliders list. Enjoy the letters so much; also the recipes.

My best wishes to all.

ADVOCATES DRESS REFORM

Dear Social Corner Members: In answer to the roll call will send a few words of greeting to all. I was much interested in the letters on modern dress and glad Jennie and Clip have opened a discussion on the subject and hope it may lead to a very necessary reform in the matters of women's and girl's attire.

A number of years ago when very low neck dresses were in style, Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, of Pasadena, California, toured the United States, lecturing against that style, and was instrumental in bringing about a change to the present very sensible neck lines of most dresses. If some person of her prominence and ability could become interested now it would no doubt, have the same effect.

I agree with Jennie that the present style is preferable to that of 30 years ago, with the long train or short train on even common dresses. I remember the clouds of dust that issued forth from the long dresses I wore when they were shaken at retiring, but as a very sensible man once said, "Wrong lies in the extremes. Right, between these two."

A dress half way from the ankle to the knee is a most becoming length for anyone over twenty. It gives good proportions to the form, it is sanitary, it embodies a sense of refinement, of self-respect, of ease and comfort. Some with the extremely short dresses have a look of discomfort and self-consciousness that something is not quite right about their appearance, and yet are enduring it as a martyr for "Queen Style". But why endure the unnecessary pain? No one is breaking a vital law if she deviates from present styles sufficiently to wear clothing for personal comfort and good health, and I sincerely hope that many will become convinced before it is too late and have become victims of tuberculosis.

In regard to smoking, I do not understand how any self-respecting woman can smoke and am sure that high ideals of character will be greatly hindered in their growth and development in the children in the home. The best of outside training cannot counteract the example of parents and everyday home life. As for girls smoking it is not only an expensive and unclean habit but it is also most unhealthful, many deaths being attributed to the excessive use of tobacco and in moderate use it will weaken the constitution and render one more susceptible to disease.

I have greatly enjoyed reading the letters by Quid Nunc, the last especially, which revived memories of my childhood and the sleigh rides not many in number, but each one filled with the keenest pleasure. No music was sweeter than the jingle of the merry sleigh bells on a frosty winter night. To such a ride of the present day gives quite the exhilaration that one received in a sleigh ride with a lively horse and cheerful companions.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: Should like to join the Social Corner and Club No. 6. Have enjoyed the letters so much. Would like a Social Corner button if there are any left.

I will take as my pen name

VIEWS ON MANY SUBJECTS

Dear Social Corner: So many interesting letters in the Social Corner for the past two weeks, and from those who like myself have not written in a long time, sets me to thinking that I must answer the roll call so to keep my name on the roster.

This has been one of the worst winters, cold all the time. I have to wear a sweater all the time. I have never done such a thing before. The sidewalks are a sight—I mean in this town. We can't have everything but when we look around and see others with many pleasures we are apt to say that "lady luck" is at their door.

I am much pleased with the calendar one of the Social Corner friends sent and send "thank you". May you have as much happiness as you send to others.

Who was it said winter was healthy? No one now-a-days.

It may have been a hundred years ago, before the modern inventions, for I think they have something to do with this epidemic of colds.

I would think just as much of going into a den of lions as to use a public telephone, and I think the company should disinfect them every day. That would be a good job for some one who is out of work.

Dear Aries: I am glad you had such a nice day and a good time, and hope when you plan for another I'll be there even if I have to walk all the way. You ask what I read. I read a little of everything. I am interested in science of all kinds. I like a story with a good ending, without a murder. I like something instinctive—history. At present I am following Mr. Byrd and would like to be where he is if it was a hundred in the shade.

Joan: I remember the song you refer to and find it more sensible than the modern moaning that is called tunes or melody. Would we sing Goo Goo Eyes and You Are My Honey Bunch of Wind?

Clip: You are right about the brief clothes the young are wearing. No wonder their noses are red. And when they are hurrying, for they are always in a hurry, you know they are cold and want to get in where it is warm.

Speaking about skirts being short. Well, I wear mine below my ankles. And when any of the Social Corner members come across a lady with a long dress you will know it is Pisces. I believe in red flannel petticoats, woolen stockings and high shoes. No new fangled fashions for yours truly.

To clean a white enamel sink put a little turpentine on a cloth with scouring powder. Rub on stains and they will come off immediately.

I have answered the roll call with these few remarks and hope we can arrange when it comes warm to have a big gathering of all the clubs.

Twice Twenty: We can all sympathize with each other for the grippe has spared none. Even if a person went into the woods the "old grippe" would follow.

Adam: You must keep up your spirits and think of the blessings away back in Connecticut in the house by the side of the road. Hope you can get across the continent without being robbed of spare tires. It's a cramping part of the world. Time to lay aside the pen and hope to do better next time. My friendship to all sick and in trouble.

CLUB NO. 2 MEETS FEB. 12

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Club No. 2 meets next week Tuesday, Feb. 12. As Cally Lily only solicited for beans don't think that you are not to bring anything. We are going to eat just the same and if you don't bring something we won't have anything. That is very plain. Last month we had a very nice dinner and some left which was sold and that added to our funds. I am happy to say we came out quite a little ahead, so much so that we sent a little sunshine to a sister that is ill. We haven't been adding anything to our finances of late, we have had to draw on it, but as all the sisters know it is nice to have reserve funds in case we want to use them.

So the sisters that have been bringing coffee, butter, sugar and other things please bring them just the same. You know we depend chiefly on the beans and we wanted to know we would have enough of them. So come, bring something to eat, something for the program and let us have a nice time.

Jennie asked what I thought of the way the young girls (and some of the older ones dress). Well I don't want to get started on that subject.

Ask my daughters and they will tell you "what mother says." I think I am rather old fashioned and I like to be comfortable. Not so many as to be burdensome but enough so the wind won't blow through.

We are not going to have Washington pie, but if everyone does their duty we will have something just as good to eat Feb. 12.

Yours for the Corner.

RED ROSE.

OLD-FASHIONED PARTIES

Dear Editor and S. C. Friends: We are having fine weather. Today it looks like rain and I hope it does and takes off this snow and ice. I was talking with an old schoolmate the other day and as we only had a few moments yet we had time to bring up to mind a few old-time frolics. One

Protect Children During Influenza

Heed Even the Slightest Cold As a Danger-Signal and Check It 2 Ways at Once.

Although the type of flu this year is not so serious as in 1918, health authorities are urging everybody to treat even the slightest cold at the start, as colds lower the resistance and make the body an easy prey to bronchitis or pneumonia.

Too much "dosing" especially in the case of children still further disturbs the digestion, and should be avoided except on advice of a physician.

Vicks VapoRub, just rubbed on outside, acts 2 ways at once to check the cold and prevent serious complications: (1) through the skin like a poultice, and (2) by means of its medicated vapors, released by body-warmth and inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages.

Kneads powdered sugar into steak

Famous cook gives his recipe for perfection in flavor

A FAMOUS cook and artist gives his recipe in McCall's Magazine for cooking a steak perfectly. Two inches thick, he says, and enough for four people. Get your oven hot. Now take powdered sugar and knead it into the steak with the heel of your hand until about one cupful of sugar is absorbed on each side of the steak. Use no salt. Place on hot broiler close to the flame for three minutes. Turn on the other side three minutes, back to the first side five minutes and turn every five minutes for a total of twenty minutes. Drop the steak down one slide from the flame and cook for five or ten minutes until the steak is BLACK. Serve on hot platter. Salt and pepper to taste. You will find that the glazed sugar has sealed in all the rich juice as no other ingredient could and made the meat unsurpassed in flavor and tenderness.

There is no substitute for sugar in fine cookery. Sugar makes so many healthful foods tasteful and enjoyable. Experiment with sugar in cooking all kinds of fresh vegetables and fruits. Sweetness is nature's perfect flavor. Don't overeat, but eat enough. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

SOCIAL CORNER

was a reading circle at Lord Hammond's. That was the place to go and have fun. We gathered about 7 o'clock and first there was a social hour with select readings, recitations of poems and speaking of the teachers that were there. It was all very nice and instructive. We learned many good things.

Then that's where the fun started. Lord H. had a wash tub of popcorn and it was the finest I ever saw. Beside it stood another tub of the nicest red apples. Well, the tubs weren't as full at midnight when we left. We had all kinds of party games. There was heaps of fun in the game of forfeits. To be sure I had a forfeit to pay. I was to kiss all the men. That was some job, there were so many. But I had my eye on a bachelor and a woman nodded towards him. Well, I just put both arms around his neck to be sure he did not get away and he did not. But when I started to run a boy tripped me; down I went, the bachelor on top, to be sure. In about two seconds there was a pile with me at the bottom, of course. My sakes, wasn't I squeezed. When I could get up I surely looked as if I had been through the war and been shot out of a cannon. Well, we got righted after a while, then came the run around the chimney. That was lots of fun. We carried on until midnight and the Mr. and Mrs. and daughter I went with said, "Goodness, I didn't know it was so late." So we went to hustle on our things.

Oh me, oh my, my brand new cloud was gone, an old one all full of shavings left in its place. Well, there was no use of saying anything about it, it was a thing of the past for me. Talk about ice, some of the way was all glare but the horse had on new shoes on purpose for that occasion. Those were in the good old-fashioned days when people had time to get together and have some good old-fashioned fun.

Well, I was glad there were so many visitors, but more the nicer.

Aries: Many thanks for the box and many thanks for the pretty cards.

Kansas Lilly: Hasn't your hand got so you can use it yet?

Velvie: Where are you? I hope you are not frozen up; come to the front once more.

Agile: Hope you are fine this winter. I often think of you.

Skipper and L. T. H.: Hello, hope you are fine.

L. C.: Don't you think Kochia has got frozen up, I do. Poor child, hope he can shovel his way out. There may come a rain and take off the snow.

Well, I hope and pray the sick ones are on the gain.

Ever the same,
NONESOPRETTY, Club No. 4.

CHATTING WITH THE STRANGER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: A feller come along here 'tother day, queer sorter chap he was, too. He come a-walkin', looked right spruce, an' talked like a feller right out of a book. I was a-splittin' wood. Randy's bin naggin' 'bout how there'd never be nothin' but green wood to burn 'til I got plumb mad and 'lowed as how I'd show her, but somehow splittin' wood's always been one of my 'avorite jobs an' I kinder feel like I was on vacation when I swing the old axe round my shoulder. Just to hit the big smooth logs plumb center and see the clear chips fly kinder sets my blood a-tinglin' and there ain't nothin' quite so satisfyin' as to see a pile o' nice clean-cut wood rising on 'tother side the ole block.

I was a-swingin' away with my coat off and my sleeves rolled up when this feller comes along and asks for a mill. Wal, I looked all argund an' he didn't 'pear to have nothin' to grind but I finally told him there was one on yonder stream about a mile an' a half along. Then he sat down on a chunk and talked for nigh onto an hour, real sociable sort of chap. I ain't much of e hand to talk to strangers but this guy was so friendly like an' he told me so much about himself he kinder got me started talkin' till I told him all about Cy Whitcomb who was so lazy he fed his hogs through a pipe. "Wal," he sez, "wouldn't that take an awful long time for the hogs to eet?"

Pshaw now, can you 'mazine anybody gettin' worried about that? What's time to a hog? An' ole Seth Rogers who we never even buried 'cause he walked into the barn with a stick of dynamite in his pocket an' the ornerest hoss ever lived just shoved his off hind foot right into the middle of it. Seemed sorter unChristian like not to give him a burial but we couldn't find nary a bone.

Wal, this feller 'peared mighty interested till he got out a little red notebook and began figurin' in it. Then he told me he was a-writin' a book. Wal, b'gosh, I'm not for gettin' myself mixed up in any book an' I told him so right then and there. "Oh no," he sez, "I'm only looking for a little local color." I told him it was a poor time to be lookin' for color, what with the leaves all off the trees and the ponds froze over. Then I saw Randy peerin' out the window an' I des to myself that it were much better for me to keep him entertained than for Randy to get hold of him. Lord knows what family skeletons she might dangle before his eyes. Our family is an honorable family an' there's little as can be said against it but there was old Uncle Ezra who never went to church after he was 21 till he died an' was carried there; an' Cousin Abigail who went abroad an' actually boasted of having made a dollar on one of those rowlyette wheels at that wicked Monte Carlo place.

So we got to talkin' about books. He seemed to have read quite a good bit, mentioned a lot of books I never even heard of. He said the trouble nowadays is that a publisher won't accept a book unless there's dirt in it. "Wal," I sez, "you ought to be able to find plenty of dirt around here, though, if you was to spend a day ploughin' you'd probably see more than you've seen in a long time." Oh yes, we had a real pleasant little chat fore he finally started on to find that mill.

VIEWS ON SMOKING AND DRESS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I think it time I answered the roll call, so I answer: "Here." Also, I want to thank the Social Corner member who sent me the pretty calendar. I received two others, one like the Social Corner member sent out last year and the other from a painting of an old home, covered with blooming roses. Surely, I ought not to get mixed up on the days of the week for a whole year. I have thought often of Sister Saunda and wanted to send her my sympathy through the Corner page, but there are so many by that name I wasn't sure it was her Lusoand until I read Olga's letter expressing her sympathy.

I, too, shall miss Kitty Lou's letters. She did much good by her letters to the Corner page. I like all the letters; one can get new ideas, cheer, comfort or some help from them all, and the letters of travel and describing old places are very interesting.

Jennie has asked us to write what we think of women and girls smoking cigarettes. I think it would be best for male and female to let them alone, but if someone must use them I would say, "Let George do it". And as to short and shorter skirts, it looks all right for little girls in summer time but I feel sorry for the poor little things standing waiting for the trolley to take them to school, standing shaking and shivering, their knees blue with the cold, and it's no fault of their own. But "it is to laugh" to see the mothers and grandmothers, some of them hardly have their dresses to their knees, their legs, some like fence posts, some like broomsticks and sometimes the backs of their stockings are where the fronts should be. But the high heels are the worst!

Many of the sisters have the calendar sent out by The Bulletin, showing the styles of 1868 which were as ridiculous as they are now, and in Washington's time they were no better. So I don't see but we shall have to let the bobbers bob, the flappers flap, the girls and women and grandmothers walk tiptoe and show their lean, fat, knock-kneed bow-legged propellers.

I saw a woman on the street last week with legs so bowed, I couldn't understand how she could keep her feet flat on the pavement. If she had had her skirt at her ankles no one would have noticed her deformity. I am often reminded of Robert Burns, saying, "O wad some power the giftie gie us, to see ourselves as ithers see us."

I would like it if some of the sisters could tell us how to keep mealy bugs off houseplants. I keep picking them off but more come from somewhere.

I think the Editor will think I have made up for last time so I will close and though late, wish you all a happy, prosperous new year.

LITTLE SISTER.

Johnny Margolies, 12, of Wildwood Crest, N. J., had a toothache, some and the friends had some advice. He decided to foll w the latter. So when a train came in one end of a fishing line was fastened to the rear coach and the other to a tooth. The train started. Johnny lost his nerve. He tried to overtake the train and and explain the situation to the conductor and was making a world record when he tripped and fell. The train took up the pitiable slack in the fishing line. Johnny let out a squeal and a tooth. Then came the bitterest pill of all. He still had the toothache — his well-meaning friends had attached the line to the wrong tooth.

PRICES OF STOCKS CONTINUED TO DROP UNDER HEAVY SELLING ORDERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—(AP)—Heavy calling of loans by the banks, and the bugaboo of a congressional investigation of securities speculation, caused further unsettlement on the stock market today.

A rather feeble rally from yesterday's low levels set in during the afternoon, but the introduction of bills in both the house and senate calling for an investigation of the federal reserve board's power to control credit, and suggesting legislation to control speculation, had a rather chilling effect on speculative confidence.

While the bills appeared to be directed against the federal reserve board rather than the stock market, Wall street would be loath to see another protracted investigation of stock speculation, the first in several years, as it would undoubtedly have a disturbing effect upon the market.

Stocks sold off rather generally from 2 to 10 points during the early afternoon, but many losses were reduced as supported orders came into the market in the final transactions. The late rally was attributed to short covering and ticker dispatches from Washington to the effect that congress would be unlikely to get to any investigation of the call loan situation at this session.

The jump from 8 to 9 per cent in the call money rate followed the withdrawal of about $40,000,000 in loans by banks.

Opinion as to the cause of these withdrawals was somewhat confused. While it was attributed in some quarters to week end requirements and the semi-weekly adjustment of positions at the federal reserve, others pointed out that the withdrawals were rather heavier than would be required for such purposes.

There was a tendency to attribute the withdrawals to drawing of funds abroad by the higher rediscount rate at London, or the heeding by member banks of the reserve board's warning regarding the use of the federal reserve credit.

Outside of the credit situation, there was little in the day's news to affect the market. The weekly trade and business reviews reported little change, and that largely for the better in the generally satisfactory commercial situation. It was reported that 24 chain store systems reported an increase in total sales of nearly 23 per cent over January, 1928. R. G. Dun & Co. reported commercial failures for the week as slightly in excess of the previous week and the corresponding week of last year.

As the market will be closed tomorrow to permit commission houses, whose forces have been depleted by the prevalence of influenza, to catch up with their work, much of the selling today was regarded as week-end liquidation.

The Associated Press index of 50 leading industrials was carried down 2.7 points, which with yesterday's 7-point drop, left it at a new 1929 low. The rails and utilities suffered less seriously. The pace of trading slackened considerably from yesterday, but heavy trading at the close kept the ticker running until 3:37 o'clock.

Coppers generally recovered 2 to 3 points in the early trading, with the red metal price at 18 cents a pound, but lost most of their gains. Radio rallied 11 points, fell back nearly 20, and rallied again, closing but 2 points off. Wright Aero lost 10 points, and rallied 5 from the bottom. Allied Chemical, Baldwin Locomotive, Ingersoll Rand, Otis Elevator and Safeway Stores lost 7 to 10 points.

U. S. Steel sold down 4 points at one time, but closed only about 1 1-2 points off. General Motors sold off about 3 points, then cut its loss in half. Chrysler, Goodyear, Commercial Solvents, Montgomery Ward, Simmons, Electric Auto Lite and Commercial Investment Trust were among issues losing 4 to 5 points.

Among the few strong points was Union Tank Car, which jumped 6 points to a new top in response to good railway equipment orders, and Atchison, which rose more than 3 points. International Combustion Engineering rose nearly 7 points to a new top, but lost much of its gain.

The commodity markets were generally steady. Wheat and corn were firm in response to good export movements, and cotton easily absorbed liquidation by stock exchange houses.

Foreign exchanges were again strong in response to the higher rediscount rate at London. Sterling and the Canadian dollar both rose to new 1929 highs. The peseta was again weak, losing about 1-8 of a cent.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

REBEKAHS.

The regular meeting of Hope Rebekah Lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., was called to order by the noble grand, Mary Louise Dow, Wednesday evening. The charter was draped in memory of two departed brothers, Sherwood Raymond and John Parsons. The regular routine of business was followed. KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

Major appropriations of the supreme council, Knights of Columbus, for the six month period, which ended January 31, included two items of $5,000 each for flood and hurricane relief work, in Florida and Porto Rico, according to the semi-annual financial report just completed and issued from supreme headquarters in New Haven. The Florida appropriation was the third made for relief work in the state since July 11, 1926. Membership statistics just compiled indicate that the order admitted 5,888 applicants during 1928 and that the net increase in insurance in force for the year was about $9,185,647, bringing the total insurance in force to $373,124,402. The order paid benefits of $5,500 to members and $1,966,353 to beneficiaries during the year. Benefits to beneficiaries since the beginning of the order now total $37,908,211 and to members $15,000. Relief appropriations thus far this year are not far short of the total for the fiscal year 1927-28, when $11,498.31 was turned over to workers in the Newfoundland and Florida hurricane areas, St. Louis, Mo., tornado victims and Massachusetts, Vermont and California flood sufferers. In the previous fiscal year, a total of $66,000 was appropriated for the disasters in Florida, Cuba, Maryland, Mississippi Valley and Poplar Bluffs, Missouri. A $50,000 appropriation fo rthe Mississippi flood sufferers was the largest single item that year.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

Members of Hourigan post, No. 594, V. F. W., are interested in the announcement made Friday that in an appeal broadcast to all post commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, National Commander Eugene P. Carver of Boston is seeking to mobilize America's overseas men in a final desperate effort to bring the proposed World war service pension for disabled veterans before the present session of congress for favorable action.

"This measure, known as House Resolution 9138, is now in the hands of the house committee on pensions," Carver delared, "and it will remain there indefinitely unless we impress our representatives in congress with the vital importance of this proposed legislation.

"Thousands of disabled ex-service men are lying in hospitals and in their homes, living off the charity of relatives or humanitarian organizations when they should be drawing due compensation from the government—the same recognition we have given to our incapacitated veterans of previous wars.

"I have just returned from a trip through 14 states and I visited veteran bureau hospitals in practically every state, making a personal survey of non-compensable veteran cases. I talked with ex-service men in the hospitals and listened to their stories of long drawn-out battles with government red tape that has cheated them out of their just dues by trivial technicalities and the lack of certain evidence.

"In some cases it is possible their claims are far-fetched. Yet we cannot ignore the fact that these same men served with valor and distinction, in the trenches and on the high seas. They sought no promises of reward when they went into the service. Now that they are home, suffering physical disabilities as a result of their service they must not be penalized by technical discrepancies in their service records.

"In Minnesota the government maintains one of its finest veteran bureau hospitals. Of the approximately 500 patients, at the time of my visit, more than half of these men had no sources of income whatever. They were without every comfort or little convenience, excepting those provided by veteran organizations or welfare societies.

"Of this proportion of non-compensable cases, so classed by present veteran bureau regulations, more than one-half were veterans with dependents, mothers, wives and children. With these men in the hospitals or handicapped by physical breakdowns, these dependents are living a hand-to-mouth existence, barely eking out a livelihood with the help of social welfare agencies.

"This condition is a disgrace to America. It will only be solved when congress is forced to recognize public sentiment in this regard. The veterans' bureau is impotent and our comrades can only look to us for succor. We offer this with the proposed World war service pension act that will give every disabled man a small monthly income, ranging from $30 to $50 per month, in accordance with his incapacity."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sale on Washington Street

Clarence Sholes, real estate agent, sold, for Mrs. Maria Spear, her handsome tract of land at the junction of Washington and Town streets, making 2 lovely building lots, to Edward Widerman. He intends to build soon.

Strand Theatre.

The motion picture which has caused a sensation in the past year is sometimes called (TNT) instead of the "Naked Truth." This feature film covers a dangerous theme but it is so well done that at no time is it offensive, and yet it accomplishes its purpose in driving home to the audience the dangers confronting modern youth. At no time does the picture intend to preach but it was done in such a masterful way, impressing the audience with the ultimate results of unclean living.

The "Naked Truth" is a powerful drama of every day life, in beautiful settings, exposing modern social pitfalls, and the much-heralded statement, "Society's Conspiracy of Silence." The picture shows the life of three boys and three girls, those that are warned at the early period of childhood grow into clean living men and women. However, those who have taken risks that are occasioned by the average youth get burnt and pay the penalty. The picture is frank and to the point. It shows everything and hesitates at nothing in order to get before its audience the bare facts and the naked truth. On account of the delicate subject and scenes, one can readily understand why it is impossible to admit both sexes.

In addition to the feature film, the management is running a special reel shown exclusively to men audiences.

"The Naked Truth" is a worthwhile picture and will be welcome to this and any community in which it is shown. The story is convincing and its cast containing Jack Mulhall, Helene Chadwick, Kate Lester, Bradley King, and Pauline Curley is affording evidence that it is a well acted and worthy motion picture. Everybody in Norwich should see it for the lesson it teaches. It is continuous Saturday from 1 to 11 p. m.

Palace Theatre

This week's vaudeville bill closes today at the Palace and it can well be considered a first class bill in every respect. The opening act, "Branin's Golden Horse" with "Belladonna" the bronze lady has been receiving big applause, and it is worthy of the applause. Miss Billie Richmond, who, to some might be considered a gentleman, is far from it she is no gentleman—but a lady of the finest entertaining ability. She sings her songs in a manner that gets the audience with her, and her personality is like the measles, catching. You should hear Billie do her stuff some time today before she leaves town. Miss Flo Mays and her ten girls do everything and it is a clever offering; these young girls have a very good band and amongst their number are clever dancers and acrobatic dancers. Sam Lieber & Co., do a sketch taken from Wine, Women and Song, which covers the range from pathos to comedy. Kay and Barr, a couple doing blackface are lively, with Miss Barr particularly clever. The picture "Power of the Press" is a fast-moving story of petty politics, crookedness and cub newspapermen. It's well made and entertaining. The news and comedy complete the bill.

Sunday night at 6:30 and 8:30 two shows wil be presented—a double bill of pictures one entitled "Domestic Meddlers" and the other "Two Outlaws;" this mixture proves a high class bill for the evening.

Herbert Hoover in Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

At 3:30 o'clock on the coming Sunday afternoon in the big gymnasium of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. what will doubtless be a most interesting moving picture feature will be shown in four reels.

The feature is titled, "Herbert Hoover, The Man of Destiny," and is an authentic and intensely interesting biography of the popular president-elect. The story follows him from early boyhood through his colorful and unusual career. Perhaps no man is more full in the minds of the peoples of the world today than Mr. Hoover, and the management of the local "Y" is most happy to arrange this timely service on the nearest Sunday to Lincoln's birth anniversary. The picture teaches its own lesson, and doubtless a very large audience will attend the meeting. In addition to the moving picture story, several wonderful slides on the life of Lincoln will be shown. To this service men and women are specially invited, and boys and girls fourteen and over will be admitted.

Lily Theatre

Al Jolson, famed as a blackface comedian, lays aside burnt cork for the greater part of his new Warner Bros. super special "The Singing Fool," and to a great extent plays his role straight. And he plays it not as a clowning, wisecracking comedian, but with an emotional power and depth of feeling that are remarkable.

Thus the screen production presents a new Al Jolson—a finished dramatic actor who in his new medium exercises an even greater sway over the hearts of his audience than before.

As a singing waiter in a New York night club, and later as master of ceremonies in the gayest of the city's cabarets, Jolson is seen as a man almost beaten down by the heavy hand of tragedy, following a beginning that seemed to promise him every human joy.

Heading the star's supporting company are two leading ladies in the persons of Betty Bronson and Josephine Dunn, and a host of other players, including Reed Howes, Arthur Housman, David Lee, Edward Martindel and Robert Emmett O'Conor.

"The Singing Fool" was directed by Lloyd Bacon, one of Warner Bros. directorial aces, and the scenario was written by C. Graham Baker from the play by Leslie S. Barrows.

Connecticut College Concert.

An incident which occurred on a recent tour of the Cleveland orchestra which plays in New London on the evening of Valentine's day illustrates the practical side of its great conductor, Nikolai Sokoloff. While giving a symphony concert in a Canadian town, the hall was suddenly plunged in darkness. No one knew what had happened. For a moment, a panic threatened, both on the stage and "out front." But the dynamic personality of the conductor split the Stygian darkness like a gleam of lightning.

"Keep your seats," he ordered audience and men alike. Then soothingly he said, "Ladies and gentlemen, I don't know what has happened here, but I am sure it is all right. Just be calm and know that the lights will come on soon. Meanwhile we will play for you."

Well, the lights did not come on for a long time, for a big dynamo had gone awry. But the orchestra kept playing, piece after piece. It was a thrilling scene—the manager, Adelle Prentice Hughes, had secured a flash light and made her way from the front of the house to the stage to give Mr. Sokoloff the news from the station about the dynamo. The conductor had been tapping with his baton to give the beat—not a very successful make-shift. When the flash light was handed him it speedily replaced the baton and the audience sat fascinated. It was amazing how every one relaxed and enjoyed the sporting event of a unique orchestral memory contest; thanks to the practical genius of the conductor and the skill of his musicians.

BRING DAMAGE SUITS AGAINST LEATHER CONCERN

Two damage suits, for claims totaling $20,000, have been brought in the superior court against the Schwartz Leather Co., of New London, by Victor Spinnato and Jennie Spinnato, minors, as the result of the recent celluloid fire in New London in which three persons died and several were injured. The suits are brought by Agostino, in behalf of the children.

Each plaintiff seeks $10,000. The suits are brought through their attorney, Dario DiBissi, and the papers were served by Deputy Sheriff Nelson C. L. Brown.

The complaints in each suit state that previous to the fire, which occurred on Jan. 28, the plaintiff's mother, sister and grandmother were employed by the defendant company in the manufacture of leather pocket books, bill folds and other leather goods and were furnished strips of celluloid for use therein by the company.

The plaintiffs claim that they did nothing to contribute to the undetermined cause of the fire and that the company was negligent and liable in that it did not warn the people of the inflammable nature of the celluloid.

Hagged Red Fox

A party of fox hunters, including Officer Michael Pounch, John Neale and Ripple Morgan, hagged a large red fox Friday morning near the Fairview reservoir, off Scotland road.

The brow of a hill may not be wrinkled, but it is often furrowed.

Think of us, dearest one, while over life's waters
We seek the land,
Missing thy voice, thy touch, and the safely anchored

Just on the other side,

STATE REFORM SCHOOL, BUT SENTENCE SUSPENDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 8—Cornelius McCarthy, 17, of 9 Howard street, whose case was continued in the police court yesterday on a charge of theft, was today found guilty. He was sentenced to the state reformatory at Meriden, but Judge John McGarry ordered execution of the sentence suspended in order to give the youth another chance to change his habits, principally stealing. The boy's father has assured Judge McGarry that the youth will be sent to reside temporarily with relatives in New Jersey in an endeavor to win him away from associates here who, it is claimed, were partially responsible for the boy's habit of stealing. The youth with another boy, a minor, was arrested Wednesday by Sergeant Samuel Hick after Samuel Shapiro, proprietor of the Mohegan Wrecking company, Division street, had detected the youths stealing metal from automobiles that it was intended to dismantle. Both boys have been arrested before for thieving.

An unfortunate woman about 50, was presented on a charge of intoxication, but her case was continued to next Monday. The woman was until yesterday a charge at the State Farm for Women. During the day she made her escape and came to this city where she succeeded in becoming drunk and was found down and out on Fremont street, where she was arrested by Patrolmen Walter Rehn and William Corcoran. Her filthy condition resulted in the court ordering the woman committed to jail in order that she might be given an opportunity to cleanse herself. Immediately following the adjournment of court, an official of the farm communicated with police headquarters, stating that the woman had escaped and requesting that she be arrested if found in the city. When informed that the woman had already been taken into custody, the official stated that the former would be returned to the farm Monday, providing the court would consent to that action. Two other cases of intoxication were tried, in both instances a suspended sentence of 10 days in jail was meted out.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"On Trial," Warner Bros. latest all-talking Vitaphone special, is being hailed as the first murder trial melodrama to be presented as a talking picture. Though this fact is undoubtedly one of the reasons for the sensation it is creating in theatrical circles all over the country, there are several other factors of even greater importance.

The first of these is the exceptionally brilliant cast, headed by Pauline Frederick, Bert Lytell, Lois Wilson and Holmes Herbert, and including Jason Robards, Franklin Pangborn, Johnny Arthur, Richard Tucker, Edward Martindel, Fred Kelsey, Vondell Darr and Edmund Breese.

The second is that "On Trial" was adapted by the versatile Robert Lord. The third is the fact that it was directed by Archie L. Mayo, one of the pioneer directors of full-length all-talking productions.

The fourth reason is the play itself, written by Elmer Rice, and with a record of forty-six weeks on Broadway and numerous revivals and road company presentations throughout the country.

"On Trial" injected a new and revolutionary idea into the theatre, the "flash-back," first influence of motion picture technique on the theatre. Because of this motion picture structure, it was ideally suited to Vitaphone, and the Vitaphone version makes possible qualities not attainable on the stage.

"On Trial" comes to the Broadway theatre tomorrow for a run of four days.

Yours sincerely,
JOHN J. NILAN,
Bishop of Hartford.

DRIVERS SLOW IN APPLYING FOR LICENSES

Unless there is considerable increase in the number of applications in the next two weeks, more motor vehicle operators will be in the rush for licenses at the end of February, than ever before, state motor vehicle department officials said Friday, after a study of license records. Applications to date are nearly 1,000 below a year ago. The number of licenses to be issued this year is also greater. It is expected that fully 20,000 more persons will apply before March 1, than applied in the period before March 1, 1928.

The department has issued about 32,000 licenses for 1929, or less than 10 per cent. of the number expected to be issued during the year, and about 16 per cent. of those expected to be issued before March 1. Mail applications are being made more promptly than personal applications at department windows, but the mail record is still below that of a year ago. Up to February 1, 26,649 mail applications had been received, while on the same date last year the number was 26,656.

Only one office reports that window applications exceed those of a year ago. This is the Stamford branch office where, up to February 1, 770 licenses had been issued, as compared with 741, on February 1, 1928. Applications at the Hartford office were 340 less than a year ago; at Bridgeport, 190; New Haven, 147; New London, 60; and Waterbury, 81.

The form of application is the same as last year. All mail applications must be sent to the Hartford office. Personal application mad be made both at main office and branch offices, and 1928 license should be ready for inspection when new application is presented.

AUTO DRIVER AND VICTIM WERE FINED

Samuel Pordlo of this city, charged with intoxication, and Marshall F. STATEMENT ABOUT STEWART BY ROCKEFELLER, JR., AGENT

A 72-Page Printed Letter Has Been Mailed to All Stockholders of the the Standard Oil Company of Indiana—Cites Stewart's Conduct of the Continental Trading Company—Quotes U. S. Supreme Court as Saying That the Company Was "Created for Some Illegitimate Purpose."

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Winthrop W. Aldrich, a member of the proxy committee which is directing the fight of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, today made public a 72 page printed letter which is being sent to all stockholders of the company reciting Colonel Stewart's connection with the Continental Trading company bonds.

"In view of the statement issued yesterday by Col. Stewart in regard to his connection with the Continental Trading company transaction,' the letter dated Feb. 8 says, 'this letter is mailed to the stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana for their information. The facts are all matters of public record in the minutes of the hearings before the committee on public lands and surveys of the United States senate. Colonel Stewart's relation to these transactions is to a large extent set forth in his own testimony before that committee.

"Certain portions of the testimony of Col. Stewart appearing in the published records of the hearings of the committee are herinafter set forth, together with such facts with regard to the surrounding circumstances brought out at the hearings of the committee or in the record in the Teapot Dome suit as are essential to an understanding of the subect matter of this testimony.

"In appendix 'A' at the end of this letter a quotation is made from the opinion of the United States supreme court in the Teapot Dome suit (Mammoth Oil Co., v. United States, 275 U. S. 13, at page 47,) in which the United States supreme court characterizes the transactions of the Continental Trading company ending with the statements that the facts 'made it plain that the company was created for some illegitimate purpose.'

"After Col. Stewart testified before the senate committee he was tried under indictments for contempt of the senate and for perjury in his testimony before the senate committee, and was acquitted in both trials.

"It was not, however, the charge of contempt of the senate or of perjury, but his conduct over a period of years in connection with the transactions of the Continental Trading Co., and his attitude toward his own company, toward the public and toward public authority, which caused loss of confidence in Col. Stewart."

The letter then lists all those who had any connection with the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada, which was formed to purchase oil from the Humphreys Oil companies at $1.50 a barrel and sell it to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company and the Prairie Oil and Gas company for $1.75 a barrel. This list included Colonel Stewart, Harry W. Blackmer, James E. O'Neil and Harry F. Sinclair.

Follows then in chronological order the events from the negotiations for the Humphreys oil in June-November, 1921, to May 1, 1923, when Sinclair, recalled by the senate committee admits receiving the same amount of liberty bonds of the Continental Trading company as Blackmer, O'Neil and Stewart."

Following this chronological listing is given a detailed description of the conferences leading up to the contract for the sale of the oil to the Continental, the contracts the Continental signed to sell the oil to the other companies and the fact that Stewart and Sinclair guaranteed the $50,000,000 transaction when A. E. Humphreys, Sr., asked for time in which to look into the credit of the Continental company.

It calls attention to the fact that H. S. Osler, Toronto, Canada, lawyer, who was the listed president of the Continental Trading company and its incorporator, refused to testify in the Mammoth Oil suit as to who he was acting for when he incorporated the company and that after the court had ruled he must testify the Mammoth oil suit had already been settled due to the refusal of the district court at Cheyenne, Wyo., to await the outcome of the Osler litigation.

The performance of the Humphreys companies in delivering the oil through the Continental, which received its $1.75 a barrel on the first of each month for the oil delivered and then on the 15th paid the Humphreys companies $1.50, is then recited. The profits from these transactions were put into the Continental liberty bonds, which were divided equally between Stewart, Sinclair, O'Neil and Blackmer. The letter relates that part of Sinclair's share of the bonds later were traced to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and the man who leased Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

"It should be understood," Mr Aldrich wrote closing, "that Mr. Rockefeller's request for Col Stewart's resignation was not made on the basis of any right to speak for other stockholders. Mr. Rockefeller did not and does not control more than a small minority of the stock of the company. The request for the resignation was based upon a personal promise of Col. Stewart that if Mr. Rockefeller manifested a loss of confidence in his management he would resign. The only legal power to determinate Col. Stewart's connection with the company resides in the majority in interest of the stockholders. More than a majority in interest of the stockholders, many thousands in number, have already sent their proxies to the committee which Mr. Rockefeller heads."

HOLDUP MAN ACCIDENTALLY SHOT PARTNER IN CRIME

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—A holdup man, firing through the door of a motion picture house in the Bronx tonight, fatally wounded his companion who was on watch outside and then, panic-stricken, fled without getting any money.

A crowd of between 400 and 500 persons was watching the finish of the show at the Tiffany motion picture theatre when a man grabbed Miss Ida Berg, the cashier, as she left the ticket booth with the night's receipts and shoved her into the office. Alexander Seigel, the manager, was in the office and as the struggling girl and robber fell through the door, he stepped outside and closed it after him.

The robber, regaining his feet, fired through the door, hitting his companion. He then released Miss Berg and followed his wounded partner out through the lobby to where a car, with engine running, was waiting, got in and made his escape. The wounded robber, who was identified by police as Thomas Darcy of the Bronx, was found dying in a nearby doorway.

Various Means Of Exploiting Marriage

Russell Sage Foundation Reports 57 "Marriage Market Towns" in 29 — Survey Made Public.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—The Russell Sage foundation reported today that study of marriage law administration in 30 states has revealed the existence of 57 "marriage market towns" in 29 states.

The report states that these towns constitute the most conspicuous though not the most serious, result of "the general neglect of marriage laws in this country."

The communities styled marriage market towns are those that have more than twice as large a marriage rate as that of their state, or which draw more than half their marriage candidates from outside license districts.

"We are so little inclined to advertise these places," says the foundation, "that we are suppressing their names throughout this report."

In one marriage market town the report says that social workers were told by the justice of the peace that his regular fee was three dollars but if the principals wanted their marriage kept out of the papers he charged three dollars extra.

In this town runners for the justices were found who went so far in soliciting business as to board moving automobiles if they thought the occupants looked as though they might get married if properly approached.

In another town two justices of the peace advertised in street cars running from a nearby city, displaying car cards reading, "Sweetheart: Be ready at four o'clock——we'll go to——just a short ride, and justices . . . and . . will tie the knot."

In a third town ministers rather than justices were found to be profiting by the business, splitting of fees with taxi drivers who brought them couples to marry having been charged against several.

In one marriage market town the chamber of commerce spoke in its printed circulars of the town's advantages for weddings and expressed its desire for "a legitimate resort marriage business."

The report includes a study of exploitation of marriage, which it says is by no means limited to marriage market towns. In one city where license applications may be received by any notary public a jeweller had himself appointed a notary and then advertised free marriages for all who bought rings in his store. Other means of exploiting marriage were listed as weddings at public expositions, on floats in street parades, in ferris wheels, in airplanes, theatres, swimming tanks and at midnight on June 1 to win prizes offered by merchants for the first June bride.

The foundation says that exploitation of marriage is rarely illegal and suggests that only public opinion can stop the "unseemly procedures" which the report says destroy the solemnity of the marriage vows and tend to eliminate a conscientious attitude among the officiating justices.

The study was made for the foundation by Fred S. Hall of the Russell Sage staff and the late Mary E. Richmond.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10—(AP)—The body of Jose de Leon Toral, executed by a firing squad yesterday for his assassination of General Alvaro Obregon, was buried at 5 p. m. today in the Spanish cemetery on the outskirts of the capital.

One person was killed, 30 injured and about 20 arrested, according to police reports, in the struggle of thousands of persons to see the cortege as it passed or to witness the brief services at the grave.

Only a few hundred persons were permitted by the police to enter the cemetery but probably 100,000 lined three miles of streets, shouting "Viva Toral" and throwing flowers on his casket as it passed. Several thousand policemen and soldiers were on duty to restrain them.

COMMITTED SUICIDE BY SHOOTING THROUGH RIGHT EYE

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Walter L. Chittenden, a member of the brokerage firm of Chittenden, Phelps & Co., of Binghamton, N. Y., was found dead today in his room at the Imperial hotel, at 32nd street and Broadway. Police said he had shot himself through the right eye with a rifle. He was 51 years old.

Police said an investigation disclosed that Mr. Chittenden had suffered from melancholia since the death of his wife a year ago and that he had been undergoing treatment at the Park West hospital since December.

Yesterday afternoon he left the hospital, presumably for a walk, but did not return. Instead, police learned, he purchased a handbag and a rifle and went to the hotel, where he engaged a room about an hour after he left the hospital.

Both Lindbergh and Merritt made beautiful take-offs. A small crowd was at the field at the time.

Lindbergh at Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 10—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying one of two mail planes which left Panama this morning, arrived here this afternoon.

Lindbergh swooped down on the landing field at 1:35 p. m. (2:20 p. m. E. S. T.), three hours before he had been expected. There was no one at the field to greet him except the marine aviation personnel.

Brief stops were made at David, Panama, and Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, after leaving France field, Canal Zone, at 6 o'clock this morning. The colonel had as a passenger Vice-President John Hambleton of the Pan-American Airways. Another plane accompanied them and shared the burden of 689 pounds of mail.

Colonel Lindbergh will spend the night here and depart at daylight for Tela, Honduras. He will be accompanied by Lieut. Christian Schilt, U. S. M. C., who is going to Miami on three months leave of absence to become temporarily district superintendent of the air mail route.

NEW ENGLAND IN THE MOST PROSPEROUS CONDITION EVER

STORRS, Feb. 10—(AP)—Agriculture in New England is now in a slightly more prosperous condition than ever before, according to the report of the New England council on marketing and food supply.

The report, prepared by representatives of the New England Agricultural colleges, departments of agriculture, farmers' organizations, the New England crop reporting service and the United States department of agriculture, is based on information gathered at a conference in Boston last week.

According to the report, the total gross income of New England farmers will be slightly higher in 1929, than in 1928, a fifth general improvement will continue. The report warns against a too optimistic view, however, saying there is nothing in the situation to warrant expansion of the production of any commodity except under the most favorable conditions.

It is pointed out that the demand in New England markets for fresh vegetables and high grade eggs is increasing rapidly. The per capita consumption of fluid milk continues to increase, although at a rate slightly lower than heretofore. The demand for cigar leaf tobacco continues stationary. Also, the report says, there has been no significant change in the demand for the rest of important New England products.

The report says that except for a decrease of 8 per cent in the expected planting of Maine potatoes, the outlook is for a continuation of a very slight increase in the present volume of the region's more important agricultural commodities. The statisticians deplore the fact that mid-western cream, central western eggs and fresh vegetables from the south and west are coming more and more into competition with the New England commodities.

PRINCE CHRISTOPHER WEDS PRINCESS FRANCOISE

PALERMO, Italy, Feb. 10—(AP)—Prince Christopher of Greece, husband of the late Mrs. William B. Leeds, and Princess Francoise were united in the civil bands of matrimony by the podesta of Palermo tonight in the Orleans palace in the presence of a royal and princely throng. The palace was where the Duke of Orleans, predecessor of the bride's father as claimant of the French crown, died in 1926.

The witnesses for the bride were former King Manuel of Portugal and the Duke of Aosta, brother of the king of Italy. The bridegroom had as witnesses Crown Prince Humbert of Piedmont and the former king of Greece, George II. These same witnesses will serve tomorrow at the religious ceremony in the Palatine chapel.

Tonight's ceremony was followed by a dinner with more than 100 covers at which gathered more royalty and blue blood of Europe than had been seen assembled since the wedding of the bride's younger sister, Anne, to Duke Aquila at Naples on Nov. 5, 1927.

The bride was given away by her father, the tall Duke of Guise, "heir of the kings who in a thousand years made France," as his royalist supporters proclaim him.

ATTEMPT MADE ON LIFE OF PRESIDENT GIL OF MEXICO

Presidential Train Was Dynamited—The President Was Not Injured—His Coach Did Not Leave the Track—Two Other Coaches and the Engine Were Derailed—One Fireman Was Killed.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10—(AP)—Provisional President Emilio Portes Gil today narrowly escaped the fate of the man to whose place he was elected. The train on which he was returning to the capital was dynamited, a fireman killed and two coaches and the engine derailed. Gen. Alvaro Obregon, who would have become president last December, was assassinated last July and his slayer was executed yesterday.

The president was returning from the state of Tamaulipas where he formerly had surrendered his office of governor to his successor. The presidential special, one of the finest in the world, was within 150 miles of the capital, between the stations of Comonfort and Rinconcillo in the state of Guana-Juato, when a terrific blast threw the leading cars from the rails.

The dynamite had been placed on the track at a point where it ran over a bridge. The fireman was killed instantly as the engine turned over. The first car was a Pullman containing several members of the official party and the second car was that of the director-general of railroads. Fortunately no one in these was injured although the cars were severely damaged.

The president calmly descended from his private car further back in the train and, accompanied by the secretary of war, walked forward to inspect the damage.

Portes Gil, when he saw the destruction, shrugged his shoulders and said, "The revolution is in luck." (The president is a member of the so-called revolutionary party.)

A scout locomotive which, as always, preceded the presidential train had passed over the bridge without incident. Just as the locomotive and the first cars ran upon the bridge structure it was blown to pieces beneath them. The remaining cars of the train remained upright on the rails.

Investigation after the explosion showed that another bomb containing two sticks of dynamite had been fixed to the track but had not exploded. About 50 yards from the scene was found the remains of an open air meal and a receipt for a telegram filed at Tampico, from where the train had come. A bottle of sulphuric acid was also found.

The president was accompanied by his wife and baby daughter and Secretary of War Amaro and Mrs. Amaro shared the private car.

There was a large group of congressmen on the train as well as newspaper men.

An immediate search for the perpetrators of the attack was begun by the military escort of the train and further troops were sent out from Mexico City. A relief train started to bring in the presidential party.

CROWD MADE DEMAND TO SEE SLAYER NORTHCOTT

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Feb. 10—(AP)—Gordon Stewart Northcott, convicted of slaying three boys on his Wineville, Calif., chicken farm, saw the shadow of an untimely noose cast on the walls of his cell here early today as 250 men surrounded the jail and N. R. Winslow demanded of Sheriff Clem Sweeters that he be allowed to see the prisoner to "get the actual truth."

Through a pall of smudge smoke at 2 o'clock this morning fifty-five automobiles suddenly appeared on the streets by the county jail.

Winslow, for the murder of whose sons, Lewis and Nelson, Northcott will be sentenced to be hanged tomorrow, walked to the jail door and rang the night bell. Sheriff Sweeters and three deputies answered. Winslow offered quit claim deeds to all his property as security that the men would not harm Northcott, and asserted that he wanted to get the truth from the prisoner concerning the burial place of his boys.

Five armed men had advanced from the crowd in the street, and followed Winslow into the jail.

"I know we are outnumbered fifty to one," Sheriff Sweeters said, "but you men can get Northcott only over our bodies. We are here to safeguard the prisoner. The same law which demands that we do that, will take Northcott's life. Bloodshed now would be foolish."

Northcott, who had been awakened by the noise, began shrilly pleading for protection.

"Sheriff, we believe you are right," Winslow said, after conferring with the others in the corner of the jail waiting room, and he shook hands with Sweeters and left the jail. The mob shortly dispersed.

Sheriff Sweeters summoned twenty additional deputies and a constant vigil was maintained throughout the night. None of the crowd returned.

YOUNG TO BE CHAIRMAN OF EXPERTS COMMITTEE

PARIS, Feb. 10—(AP)—Owen D. Young of the United States will be chairman of the experts committee when it meets at 2 p. m. tomorrow for its first official session to grapple with the great problem of reparations revision. Premier Raymond Poincare is quoted by the Journal des Debates as saying "We wish to extend to the United States delegates our most ardent wishes for success in their work."

This rather detached manner accentuates the American share in the work. With the approval of President Coolidge expressed there can no longer be any difficulty to prevent the chairmanship of Mr. Young despite his reluctance.

The French viewpoint, as either expert Moreau or Parmentier may put it tomorrow afternoon, is "France wants ten billion dollars; 599 millions for reconstruction of northern France and for pensions and two billions each for payment of war debts to the United States and Great Britain." This entails sacrifices of the original total amount demanded by France but he is entering the committee prepared to make these providing a similar reduction is made on her debit side by Britain and the United States.

PRESIDENT-ELECT HOOVER TO VISIT THOMAS A. EDISON

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 10—(AP)—President-elect Herbert Hoover tonight was on his way by boat to the 82nd birthday celebration of Thomas A. Edison, to be observed in a ceremony held here tomorrow.

Mr. Hoover was still in the Gulf of Mexico on the yacht Sauniterer tonight and was not expected to disembark at the Edison estate here until shortly before noon tomorrow for his participation in Mr. Edison's birthday fete. Accompanying him were Mrs. Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rickard and Jeremiah Milbank, eastern treasurer of the republican national committee and owner of the "Sauniterer" and Herbert Hoover, Jr.

VILLAGERS HAVE BARRICADED THEMSELVES FROM WOLVES

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslavia, Feb. 10—(AP)—Forced from their native lairs by extremely heavy snow, wolves continue their depradations in the rural sections and small towns, attacking both humans and animals. Reports from Galanta, near here, say villagers have had to barricade themselves in their homes in order to keep from being attacked. A nineteen year old boy was torn to pieces by a pack after he had exhausted himself in fight and used the last cartridge in his pistol. A woman also was killed and several persons badly mutilated

120 PERSONS KILLED DURING WEEK OF TERROR IN BOMBAY

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 10—(AP)—A week of terror from riots between Hindus and Pathans here has resulted in approximately 120 persons killed and 500 injured, as reported by hospitals, and with possibly hundreds more of injured who have hidden in their homes. Although the streets which the soldiers patrolled tonight were almost deserted, racial hatreds may break out afresh at any moment.

The present outbreak, one of the many that have occurred in India where many races and creeds are crowded together, had for its direct cause rumors that the Pathans were kidnaping Hindu children at Baroda as sacrifices to be buried under the foundations of a great bridge being built there. Native superstition is that such a structure would be unsafe without such sacrifice. These rumors, although apparently without basis, came at a time of great unrest here among thousands of mill hands.

ATTEMPT AT ALTITUDE FLIGHT RECORD FOR WOMEN

CLOVERFIELD, Santa Monica, Calif., Feb. 10—(AP)—Miss Marvel Crosson landed her Travelair plane here at 4:50 p. m. after an attempt to break the altitude flight record for woman. Officials immediately removed the barograph which recorded the flight. Miss Marvel was aloft nearly two hours and thirty minutes.

Miss Crosson said that the last time she looked at her altimeter, which was graduated to 20,000 feet, she had passed that mark, but that she did not know how much higher she had flown.

The official altitude record now held by Miss Louis McPhetridge of Oakland, Calif., is 20,270 feet.

The motor of Miss Crosson's plane developed trouble at the peak of her flight and she was forced to a lower altitude. She circled upward twice again, but said that she thought her first attempt was the best. The temperature was 16 degrees below zero.

MANY WINDOWS BROKEN BY AN EXPLOSION OF GASOLINE

INWOOD, N. Y., Feb. 10—(AP)—An explosion aboard tug 27 of the Standard Oil Company of New York at the docks here this afternoon set fire to a gasoline scow which in turn exploded, breaking windows in adjoining buildings and setting fire to the docks. Damage was estimated at $170,000. Only one person was injured.

The tug was destroyed, with a loss of $75,000 and officials estimated the scow, which cost $125,000, was damaged to the extent of $80,000. Damage to the docks and adjacent buildings was estimated at $15,000.

Firemen from Inwood, Lawrence and Woodmere responded to the alarm. Standard officials, however, said there was no danger to the big storage tanks.

The two explosions and the flames roused the southern Long Island shore for miles. Captain Ryan said he believed the explosion was due to an accumulation of gases in the boiler room.

FOR PRESERVATION OF BEAUTY OF NIAGARA FALLS

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 10—(AP)—The terms of the convention between the United States and Canada for the preservation of the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls insofar as they affect New York state have been approved by Governor Roosevelt.

The approval, however, was given only after recognition by a private power corporation of the right of the state to charge for the use of all water by the company, including a 10,000 cubic feet increased flow to result from the preservation undertaking. The vehicle for the governor's approval was a letter to Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, the text of which was made public tonight. The governor's letter was in answer to one written by the senator in which the latter sought the state's attitude toward certain phases of convention signed at Ottawa.

FREIGHTER ALLOWAY IN HELPLESS CONDITION

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 10—(AP)—Abandoning all hope of towing the distressed freighter Alloway to Dutch harbor or Davidson Banks, Alaska, the Bronnoy late today opened to take off the crew of the helpless ship. The Bronnoy was forced to give up attempts to tow the Alloway when the vessel became unmanageable in a ninety mile gale in the north Pacific, radio dispatches received here from Dutch harbor said.

ROMAN SETTLEMENT WILL BE SIGNED TODAY

ROME, Feb. 10—(AP)—This message will be read by Americans almost at the time of signature tomorrow of one of the most important treaties ever concluded by Roman Catholic pontiffs.

The pope in agreement with Premier Mussolini, has introduced a few last-minute modifications to the treaty. The railway station which the holy see, according to the agreement, has the right to have inside the Vatican territory and connected with the Italian railway system, will be immediately outside the limits of the Vatican. It will afford direct connection with the Vatican so that visiting personages may arrive without stepping on Italian ground. This station will be exclusively for papal purposes.

Since neither treaty nor concordat will be published before ratification by the fascist council and parliament, it was asserted tonight that Pope Pius has abandoned the idea of appearing Tuesday, after the ceremony in St. Peter's for the anniversary of his coronation, on the balcony of the cathedral to bless the troops and the people.

STREETS OF BERLIN DESERTED, DUE TO THE COLD WAVE

BERLIN, Feb. 10—(AP)—The cold wave from which Germany has suffered for weeks outdid itself today with a temperature ranging between 15 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit) in the environs of Berlin to 40 degrees below in the Silesian mountains.

Maritime traffic was paralyzed, railroads held for hours, international telephone and telegraph service so seriously disturbed that it became necessary to substitute radio service. More than 130 persons were in Berlin hospitals with frozen limbs. The majority of streets were deserted.

Hamburg reports that damage to the ice breakers attempting to keep open a narrow channel from the ice-bound North sea to the Baltic canal has stopped all traffic on this waterway. Communication between Nordstrand Island and the mainland is maintained by motor buses on the ice.

Danzig harbor rapidly was freezing. In Kiel Bight three battleships were keeping a channel free.

BELIEVES IN ESTABLISHMENT OF ISLAND CRIMINAL COLONY

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—John C. Maher, chairman of the New York city parole commission, believes the establishment of a island criminal colony, similar to those maintained by other countries, is the best solution of the problem of what to do with this country's habitual criminals.

Under this plan, outlined today the island would be under the control of the federal government, but would be open to the long term prisoners of all states. The prisoners would have no communication with the world, either by telephone, cable or letter, but would be given all possible freedom on the island itself.

The thought behind his plan, he said, was of removing from law-abiding society those who are anti-social and who, now in jail, do not reform so as to make themselves worthy of membership in a law-abiding state.

KING GEORGE INVIGORATED BY SEA AIR AND SUNSHINE

BOGNOR, Sussex, England, Feb. 10—(AP)—Already in the first 36 hours of his stay at Craigwell House King George is feeling the beneficial effect of the invigorating sea air and sunshine in contrast to the fog and the damp of London where he had been chained by his illness for eleven weeks.

Lord Dawson of Penn today motored down and, after consultation with Sir Stanley Hewett was able to issue a bulletin at 4 p. m. saying, "His majesty had a good night. The improvement continues." Lord Dawson drove back to town, leaving Sir Stanley in charge.

The weather today was an improvement over yesterday. Queen Mary was able to walk in the grounds of Craigwell House in the morning. The rain clouds of last night cleared away early and for a while in the afternoon the sun shone into the room of the king.

MAN'S BODY FOUND NEAR MERIDEN-BERLIN PIKE

MERIDEN, Feb. 10—(AP)—The body of an unidentified man was found tonight on Mount Lamentation, about one mile east of the Meriden-Berlin turnpike by two New Britain hikers. In the man's hand was a bottle of poison practically empty.

An express certificate dated Dec. 31, 1928, issued at New Haven, to R. Miller, who sent a suitcase to Mrs. Miller at Williamsburg, Pa., was found in the pocket of the man. The man appears to have been about 20 years old and about 5 feet 6 inches tall. He wore a grey suit, a grey felt hat and wore gold rimmed glasses.

The body, on the mountain for four or five weeks, is well preserved.

AGAINST EXPANSION OF BROKERS' LOANS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—(AP)—A legislative remedy against the continued expansion of brokers' loans from federal reserve funds will be sought this week by congress as a result of the warning issued last week by the federal reserve board against a further increase of loans in the speculative fields.

There is every indication that the senate tomorrow will adopt a resolution asking the board to submit a legislative corrective for the evil of which it complained. Also it seems likely that the house banking committee will turn to a study of this condition.

DIFFICULT ICE SITUATION PREVAILING IN DENMARK

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Feb. 10—(AP)—Denmark is experiencing the most difficult ice situation since 1893. All night traffic across the belts has stopped. An ice breaker tonight managed to bring in the passengers from an ice bound liner in the Kattegat but it was unable to free the ship or others which are fast nearby.

The powerful ferry Mecklenburg bringing passengers from Germany is imprisoned in the Baltic ice. Ice breakers tomorrow will attempt to bring it into port. Today two skaters crossed the sound from Denmark to Sweden.

RICE MAY BE ALLOWED AT GRAND JURY HEARING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 10—Interest in the progress of events involved in the murder of County Detective William E. Jackson at his home here Tuesday night, January 29, centered on the grand jury hearing at Putnam Monday. The fact that Attorney William L. King said Saturday that "in his opinion" a request would be made of the court to allow his client, Deputy Sheriff Trenor A. Rice to assert his right to hear the grand jury testimony has led to a general belief that the man accused of the murder of his benefactor would be seated in the grand jury session room when the witnesses, including Mrs. Jackson and her daughter, Juanita, 26, would be called to the stand.

The presence of the accused in the grand jury room would give him the same outline of the state's case against him as the prosecution will find it necessary to present to the jury in order to secure an indictment against Rice on a charge of murder. The accused has the privilege of hearing all testimony but cannot be present during the deliberations of the jury.

It was indicated today that while it is probable that not more than a dozen witnesses will be called into the grand jury room at least a score of them will answer a summons to be present at the court room in Putnam Monday.

The list of jurors will not be disclosed by Sheriff Charles A. Gates until the roll call at Putnam at 11 o'clock Monday. It is understood, however, that Attorney Sabin Russell of Danielson, law partner of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, is a member of the grand jury and inasmuch as he will be the only lawyer he is expected to be foreman of the jury, and to conduct the examination of witnesses.

Mrs. Edna Shorter Rice, wife of the accused deputy sheriff Saturday confirmed a report that she had withdrawn her divorce action from the Windham county superior court in which she charged her husband with intolerable cruelty. Asked why she took this step she said "Mainly to relieve the strain on him." Mrs. Rice, who shows noticeable strain as a result of worry brought on by the accusations against her husband, continued to affirm her belief in his innocence, steadfastly maintaining that "he could never have done a thing like that. He liked Mr. Jackson too much." She claims that her husband was secretive and that she never knew the circumstances of her husband's relations with the Jackson family. Mrs. Rice claims that she withdrew the divorce action solely of her own free will, upon consent of her husband's lawyers, Attorneys King and Harvey. She has not as yet determined whether she will resume the divorce proceedings at some later date.

Included in the probable list of witnesses who are expected to testify before the grand jury at Putnam Monday are the following: Mrs. Jackson and Juanita Jackson, County Detective Edward J. Hickey of Hartford, Policeman Arthur M. Hurley of Willimantic, Special Officer Rowe H. Wheeler of Monson, Mass., Dr. Fred M. Smith, Medical Examiner Dr. W. L. Higgins of Coventry, Dr. Henry W. Costello of Hartford, Gerard E. Loiselle, a reporter of Willimantic, J. Henry Fitzgerald of Hartford, Joseph I. Paulhus, Miss Eva Ellis, Miss Lillian Billings, Gilbert P. Flynn of Willimantic, and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton.

Provided they are called to the stand, Mrs. Jackson and her daughter will testify to circumstances surrounding their discovery of the dead body of their husband and father shortly after the murder. Detective Sgt. Hickey and Officers Hurley and Wheeler will testify in relation to the investigation and matters leading to the arrest of Rice. Doctors Smith, first called to the scene and Medical Examiner Higgins will report their findings while Dr. Costello will testify as to the autopsy which he performed. Loiselle and Flynn will testify as to certain discoveries made in the woods and fields lying between Quarry street and the general direction of Brown avenue where Rice maintains a poultry farm. J. Fitzgerald, a firearms expert, will testify that the fatal bullet was fired from a .32 calibre Colt police positive revolver. Paulhus will testify to receiving a telephone message from Miss Jackson to be conveyed to Rice, his neighbor on the night of the murder and probably to the real estate transaction in which he sold property to Detective Jackson which was to revert to Rice by quit-claim deed upon Jackson's death. Town Clerk Fenton may be called upon to disclose the nature of the transaction. Miss Ellis and her seven year old niece, Miss Billings, will testify to having seen a man in a lot at the rear of the Ellis home at 6:15 o'clock on the night of the crime.

E. W. AVERY, POSTMASTER AT SOUTH WINDHAM, IS DEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 10—Edward W. Avery, for over 30 years postmaster at South Windham village and widely known Mason, died at his home in South Windham Saturday night after a prolonged illness. He was born July 27, 1853, in South Windham, a son of William C. and Harriet Brewster Avery. He leaves two sons, Clarence W. Avery and Federal Prohibition Agent Harry W. Avery, both of South Windham; one sister, Mrs. Josephine Backus; four grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Mr. Avery was appointed postmaster of the village post office by the late President McKinley in 1897. He resigned owing to advanced years and ill health in February, 1928. Prior to his regular appointment as postmaster he had charge of the South Windham office for some five years, extending his service for the postal department to 36 years. He conducted the post office in connection with a general merchandise store which he operated for over 40 years, and which has become a landmark in that section.

Edward W. Avery was a 32nd degree Mason and he had served with credit many offices of honor in Masonic bodies. He was past master of Eastern Star lodge No. 44; past high priest of Trinity chapter, No. 9, a position he held for seven years; past grand high priest of the Grand chapter of Connecticut, serving in 1916; past commander of St. John's Commandery, No. 11, Knights Templar; and member of all the Scottish Rite bodies of Norwich. He was patron of Radiant chapter, No. 11, O. E. S., for nine years.

In his home village Postmaster Avery stood ever ready to give of counsel and material assistance and he was constantly sought out by men, women and children from all walks of life. His interest in South Windham and its welfare was probably second only to his devotion to Masonry in its several affiliated bodies. As a result of this work he commanded an extensive acquaintance that reached to nearly all quarters of the nation. As deputy grand high priest of the grand chapter of Connecticut he attended the general grand chapter convention in California in 1915. His health had been failing for some years but was seriously impaired by the death of his wife, Mrs. Minnie Woodworth Avery in November, 1927.

DOLLAR DAY SALE WAS HIGHLY SATISFACTORY TO ALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 10—The 83 merchants, affiliated with the Merchants' bureau of the chamber of commerce, who participated in Willimantic's first dollar day of the season Saturday were unanimous in declaring the event a tremendous success. An unusual amount of shopping activity prevailed from the first to the last of the 12 shopping hours and the amount of goods turned over and cash receipts exceeded the fondest expectations of the retailers. It is believed that when all the check up is made a new record for forenoon business on a special sales event will have been established. Shoppers from the city and hundreds from the several border towns who had received the announcement of the big bargain feast through these columns crowded into the business section. Other attempts of the success scored Saturday the merchants have definitely decided to stage another similar event late in 1929, although the next city-wide merchandising effort will be in the presentation of new spring merchandise.

WEDDING

Comins-Mathews

At a pretty wedding at the home of Mrs. Henry Mathews, 31 Walnut street, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, her daughter, Miss Myra M. Mathews became the bride of Raymond C. Comins. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of Norwich, who used the single ring service. Mrs. Walter C. Hammond of Winchester, Mass., cousin of the bride, was matron of honor and Charles W. Hill of this city, friend of the groom was best man.

The bride was gowned in white satin, bouffante style, trimmed with old lace. She carried calla lilies. Her attendant wore peach-colored georgette and carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas. The wedding took place in the living room which had been tastefully decorated for the occasion. A reception held at the house was attended by about 50 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Comins left later to spend their honeymoon at Atlantic City, N. J., after which they will reside at 33 Walnut street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Comins are widely known and popular here. Mr. Comins is an accountant for E. E. Kingston and company at Hartford while his bride has been a stenographer at the local office of the American Thread company. Groom came from New Brunswick, N. J., Hartford, Willimantic and other cities.

The town of Ashford, through its school committee, must pay for the transportation of pupils attending school in Windham or stand the expense of boarding these pupils, it was stated in a definition of the statute governing the matter given by Attorney George L. Sturgess of Hartford at a special meeting of the Ashford townspeople Friday night. The meeting, which was held in Knowlton Memorial hall at Warrenville, was the outcome of the refusal of the school committee to make a satisfactory arrangement with the parents of three Windham school pupils residing in Ashford. Ralph Goodwin and John Fesence are attending the trade school here and Louis Zalcek is a pupil at Windham high school. They are first year students and have had to board in Willimantic as has been the case with other pupils in the past. No transportation is provided for them and in lieu of this the Ashford school board has allowed the parents $40 a year toward the board of the children. In compliance with Attorney Sturgess' interpretation of the law the school committee will meet in the near future to decide whether to furnish transportation or pay the board of the three students. Attorney Sturgess spoke as counsel for the state board of education.

The continued case of John J. Haggerty, amended from one of reckless driving to one of not giving sufficient indication of the direction in which he was to proceed, was polled without costs in police court Saturday morning. The amendment and subsification of the charge were made on recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher on the grounds that there was no criminal intent on the part of the accused. The case was the outcrowth of a collision between cars operated by Haggerty and by Clarence McKenna, also of this city. Nolles without costs were also entered in the cases of Howard F. Jones, of Hartford, and Mariano Veneroso of this city, technically charged with reckless driving. A civil disposition of the case, which was also the aftermath of an automobile collision, had previously been made.

A drive for an increased membership and negotiations to secure the ownership or lease of suitable grounds, are the present incentives of the recently organized Willimantic Rod and Gun club. The club has a present membership of 22 and several interesting shoots have already been held at the Company C, C. N. G. rifle range off North Windham road. The new form of trap shooting known as "skeet" has been taken up. The officers of the club are: President, Clifford E. Williams; vice president, Donald E. Crane; secretary, G. Donald E. Crane; secretary, G. Donald Bartlett; treasurer, Raymond A. Parker; field captain, Carl E. Rice. A set of by-laws and constitution have been adopted.

An emergency mobilization was held Saturday by the Boy Scouts of Troop No. 1 of this city for the purpose of training the boys to gather quickly at an announced meeting place with the necessary equipment in order to render whatever service may be at hand. This equipment consists of a blanket, first aid kit, flashlight, canteen and food for one meal. The time records, roll call, etc., are submitted to headquarters in New York. As part of an anual program the scouts of Troop No. 1 attended the morning services at the First Congregational church in a body this morning.

DOG SHOT AT GOODYEAR AFTER BITING TWO CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 10—There was the prospect this afternoon—and not a pleasant prospect—that Killingly may have a mad dog scare on its hands, if a town may be said to have hands. In any event, Dr. Clarence L. Adams this morning took over the carcass of a large mongrel dog from Chief John McFarland, at the police station, and will forward the head of the animal to the proper state bureau for tests to establish whether or not the dog had rabies when it was shot to death at Goodyear yesterday. The dead dog was turned over to Chief McFarland by Dog Warden Charles E. Ayer of Dayville to await the attention of Dr. Adams.

The dog has been roaming about Attawaugan, Dayville and Goodyear for three or four days. Its death was the result of biting two children in Goodyear, and it is also reported to have bitten two or more dogs in villages in the northern section of the town—no one knows how many. The dog was without collar or tag and there was no information available in official circles today as to who may have owned the animal, which appeared to be at least part police dog. State Officer Elton Nolan of the Danielson barracks made an investigation of the case.

TWO LISBON MEN CAUGHT WITH STILLS IN OPERATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 10—State officers ranged the entire length of the territory within the jurisdiction of the Danielson barracks Saturday night picking off operators of illicit stills and raiding for illegally kept intoxicants. As a result Maciey Woznziak and Alex Boffin will be before a justice's court in the town of Lisbon Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock to explain, if they care to, how it happened that stills were in actual operation at their homes in that town Saturday night when State Officers Donald J. Geddes and Emil Castagne called to have a look around. The stills were seized and brought to the barracks here. The accused in each instance furnished bonds of $500, and are at liberty until the time for their hearing.

Some 30 miles separate the location of the Lisbon raids, on the Newent road, from where the state officers made their next haul—a quantity of moonshine and alcohol—at a place accredited to Edward Davleau, at West Thompson. Four state officers figured in this raid—D. J. Geddes, Emil Castagne, Royal V. Scranton and Theodore Strand.

Frequenters of the places at Lisbon and West Thompson were chased away by the officers, but not taken into custody. Davleau was not at home when the raids were made. However, a warrant for his arrest has been issued.

MOTHER OF FIVE CHILDREN DIES, FATHER IN JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 10—A death under tragic circumstances at 7 o'clock this morning at the home on Mechanic street was that of Mrs. Malvina Wilcox, 38, whose husband, Otis Wilcox, is serving a sentence of 30 days in jail for his deficiencies. The woman had been ill with influenza and pneumonia. What disposition will be made of the five children of the couple, the oldest 10, the youngest 2 years of age, had not been determined up to this afternoon. Meanwhile, a neighbor is caring for them. The past week has been a trying one in the Wilcox home. Mrs. Wilcox struggled until the last to supply food for her brood of little ones by working in a nearby shop. Her husband had been so lax and out of employment so long prior to his arrest and sentence to jail as to leave her the sole support of the family resting upon her. Sometime since the plight of the woman and her children was called to the attention of the selectmen. First Selectman C. A. Tillinghast has during the past week done everything humanly possible to help Mrs. Wilcox and her children, providing fuel, food and medical attendance, and, when Mrs. Wilcox's condition became desperate, a graduate nurse, who was at her bedside when she passed away. The case is one of the most pitiable this town has known for years. Mrs. Wilcox was a native of Canada, but was taken by her parents to New Bedford when she was a child, and it was in that city that she became acquainted with Wilcox and eventually married him. Some of the five children were born in New Bedford, others in Moosup and one here. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy and removed to his funeral home on Furnace street.

The lobby of the postoffice remained under the close scrutiny of Chief John McFarland today. There is materially less loitering in the lobby than was the rule on Sundays prior to someone opening a mailbox and extracting the contents about a fortnight ago. Watching the lobby on Sunday is to continue and idlers will not be allowed to make a hang-out of it.

Among various other matters claiming the attention of state officers here today was fixing the identity of a thief who stole a Sunday dinner out of an automobile that a woman left parked in Goodyear last evening. A leg of lamb and other essentials to a good dinner were taken by the sneak thief while the car was left unguarded for the time being.

F. E. Bitgood, who is a patient at the Charlesgate hospital in Boston, will undergo, it is expected, a surgical operation during the present week. At the week end Mr. Bitgood was reported as resting comfortably.

Nason (Doc) Oatley of East Killingly was so critically ill at the town farm this afternoon that it appeared his hours of life were numbered. Mr. Oatley was taken to the farm a few days ago after becoming ill and having suffered from exposure in the home where he lived alone in territory near East Killingly. Little hope of his recovery was held out today.

The prospect that the epidemic of influenza was abating a week ago has not been upheld. Many new cases have since developed, and every day brings reports of additional ones.

Ice-free highways and moderate temperature were regarded today as prime factors in bringing out myriad motor cars that rolled over the trunk lines passing through Danielson.

Tuesday is Mardi Gras, the eve of the Lenten season. In some of Danielson's churches special services will be held on Ash Wednesday.

PUTNAM

ALL PUTNAM ANTICIPATES GRAND JURY HEARING TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 10.—The next important step in the murder case of William E. Jackson, county detective, slain in his home in Willimantic on Tuesday evening, Jan. 30, will be taken tomorrow (Monday) morning in the little court room in this city, when the grand jury will sit to hear the testimony of witnesses so far involved in the case, relative to seeking an indictment of Deputy Sheriff Trenor Rice, also of Willimantic, now under arrest and being held without bail as a suspect.

Sheriff Charles A. Gates of Willimantic will open the session of court at 11 o'clock, with Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol, on the bench.

The only part Putnam will play in the now famous murder trial, unless a special session of superior court is summoned by Judge Jennings in the event a true bill of murder is returned, will be the grand jury hearing. This is true since the regular session of superior court is slated to be held in Willimantic in May.

It was clearly evidenced today that the little court room with a seating capacity of about 75 spectators and with ample space to allow about 20 onlookers a place inside the doors, will be filled to its utmost several hours before the opening of court, as Putnam and its neighboring towns are keenly interested.

HOSPITAL MEMBERSHIP TEA IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

(Special to The Bulletin.

PUTNAM, Feb. 10.—The first annual Membership tea of the Day Kimball hospital woman's board, which in reality is a continuation of events of former years known as the Valentine tea was held Saturday afternoon at Odd Fellows' hall on Pomfret street and proved to be a decided success financially as well as socially. The Membership tea which under its former name, was hailed as one of the most prominent pre-Lenten events of the year, was unusually well patronized by the residents of Danielson, Pomfret, Woodstock and Webster, in addition to the host of friends of the hospital in this city.

The serving of tea and waffles, was in charge of a committee directed by Mrs. Howard Sheriffs. This feature of the affair was highly patronized and netted the board a goodly sum.

The artistic decorations of past years were absent, but the bare appearance of the auditorium was cleverly offset by the many and numerous booths and stands. One booth which brought a vast amount of admiration from the patrons was that of Mrs. J. Arthur Atwood of Wauregan, prettily decorated with an elaborate setting of cut flowers. Mrs. Atwood's venture into the sale of flowers was highly successful. Another booth which was equally beautiful was one containing food and was conducted by Mrs. George Sampson of Woodstock. A third stall given considerable attention was the candy booth, managed by Mrs. George Vaughn, Jr., Mrs. Vaughn's enterprise, like the rest was instrumental in contributing to the success of the tea.

A delightful feature was a musical hour, during which three groups were featured. An instrumental trio consisting of Miss Gertrude C. Warner, Mrs. Fred Prince and Miss Elenor Irving rendered a number of classical selections. They were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Nelson Lown. A novelty dance number, featuring Miss Lauretta Mullan and Miss Frances Sharp, both pupils of Mrs. Hazel Ware Camwell was highly received by the audience. Following this, the "Collegians," a group of young and talented musicians, under the direction of Miss Edmaer Guy, made their first public appearance.

Mrs. C. Russell Bowen, general chairman of the Membership tea committee, said today that she was exceedingly pleased with the hearty co-operation of the members of the board who helped in making the affair a success, and in behalf of the Woman's board wished to extend to those of the community her thanks for the patronage given.

During the afternoon 100 members were subscribed. All proceeds derived from the tea will be devoted to the efforts of the woman's organization of the hospital.

Passage over May street crossing in the evening after 10 o'clock is no longer possible, William E. Sault, assistant superintendent of the New Haven division of the New Haven railroad announced today. The new ruling went into effect Saturday evening at the end one of the evening shift of the gate tender at the crossing.

Illuminated warning signs have been placed at the crossing since the gates after 10 o'clock are left in a horizontal position four feet above the ground, until the first trick gateman comes on duty at five o'clock in the morning.

The officials of the New Haven road have been contemplating the closing of the crossing at May street for several years, but have failed to do so for fear of a public protest which might arise. At a recent meeting of the common council the matter was brought up and Mayor Charles A. Richards recommended that the officials of the railroad and the chairman of the city highway committee conduct a survey of the amount of vehicular traffic passing over the crossing at late hours. This was carried out, resulting in a graph indicating an average of less than one car daily for a period extending over two weeks.

May street crossing is one of the most dangerous highways and railroad intersections on the New Haven road, since its darkened conditions at night and the presence of switching freight trains might have been the scene of many fatal calamities had not the drivers of automobiles been exceedingly cautious in passing over the stretch of roadway which is crossed by the train tracks.

A stag gathering was held Saturday evening at Eagles' hall on Providence street. The party was sponsored by the Albert J. Beault post, Veterans of Foreign Wars and was largely attended.

OBITUARY.

Charles Menoche.

Charles Menoche, 74, died at his home in North Grosvenordale Saturday following a short illness. Mr. Menoche was the father of Harris Menoche and Mrs. Victoria Pretude, both of whom died at the Menoche home in North Grosvenordale last week of influenza.

Mr. Menoche is a native of Montgomery, Vermont, but has lived the greater part of his life in Grosvenordale, where he was well known and highly respected by his fellow townspeople. Mr. Menoche was a devout member of the Methodist Episcopal church of that town, where funeral services will be held.

Allie S. King and Thomas Bell have returned from Hartford, where they attended a meeting of the Grand Masonic lodge. At this meeting Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city was elected Masonic lodge chaplain for this district.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Ross of School street have left for an extended visit to Washington.

Until a late hour this afternoon the investigation of the Putnam police in an effort to locate the ones responsible for the break at the Blanchette & Brodeur Furniture store and two other attempted breaks, had revealed nothing. A check of conditions in the store on Main street had been made by the owners with the co-operation of the police and it has been definitely learned that nothing had been taken.

Autocars in the department of Loire-Cher, France, and many motor vehicles in Paris are being operated on charcoal gas, a substitute costing about half the price of gasoline. The government is encouraging its use.

COLCHESTER

FATHER DIES WEDNESDAY, SON'S DEATH SUNDAY A. M.

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Feb. 10.—Colchester residents were saddened to learn of the death Wednesday of Charles Clark, 82, followed by the death Sunday morning of his son, Albert Clark, 43. Both were life-long residents of the neighboring town of Marlborough.

Charles Clark had been ill for a few weeks with influenza, which combined with the infirmities of age caused his death. He had broken his leg in a fall several years ago and since that time had gradually failed in health. His son, Albert Clark, who cared for him in his recent illness, was also ill with grip, but managed to get about the house to care for his father. The father, who died Wednesday, was buried Friday in the Jones street cemetery, Hebron. Late Friday afternoon the son's condition grew worse and he was taken to the Hartford hospital for treatment. This morning he died from pneumonia.

The death of Albert Clark marks the passing of the last member of the family which had resided in the old Marlborough farmhouse five miles north of Colchester for several generations. Charles Clark and his son, Albert, were both born and had lived all their lives in the homestead. Albert Clark was a member of Wooster lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Colchester, and the services at the grave in Hebron will be in charge of the local Masonic order.

NO EQUALIZATION FEE

Is the answer to the opposition to any action on the farm relief measure by the present congress to be found in the statement which comes from Florida that President-elect Hoover is in full sympathy with President Coolidge in regard to the equalization fee?

On returning to Washington from a visit with Mr. Hoover, it is reported that Senator Smoot is bringing home information that will clear up any uncertainty as to where the newly elected president stands upon that feature of farm relief. Mr. Hoover said much concerning farm relief when he was speaking during the campaign. There was nothing to indicate that he favored the equalization fee, but there are some seekers for such legislation who have gotten the idea that this might be accomplished at the special session to be called in the spring. There would be no chance to get it during this congress, and there is nothing whatever to support the impression that it might be crowded through the special session, but it is well that any who harbor such an idea should have it dispelled without further delay.

The equalization fee by any congress would be all that President Coolidge has said about it. It is in fact difficult to understand how any group of congressmen should get the impression that there is any better chances for such a feature in the next congress. That was one of the issues that was long since admitted to be dangerous and dead, and to bring it up next April would simply be wasting time trying to boost a hopeless proposition.

Whatever is done in the way of farm relief must be without the equalization fee. It is believed that the country has long since accepted this view and it is by no means surprising that Mr. Hoover has sanctioned the presentation of his present day attitude upon that point. The fact is that it seems a bit strange that any of the lawmakers should have gotten the idea that he could be gotten to give his approval to that very point on which Mr. Coolidge was so outspoken in his denunciation of the farm relief measure that failed. Whatever doubt there is should be cleared up by Mr. Smoot's message, and those who figured otherwise will be the only ones disappointed.

TOLL BRIDGES

When attention is called by Professor Finch of Columbia university to the increase in toll bridges and he points out that a third of the 233 structures of that kind in 1928 were built within the past decade he deals with what others have been noticing. Toll bridges are coming back. There were the days when they were fast going into the discard, but they have been found to furnish so many advantages that they are increasing and it is not surprising that a survey shows 29 new ones under construction and 163 more contemplated.

Toll bridges today are a vital part of highway construction. They are vital because they furnish advantages which cannot be obtained otherwise. There is a demand for quick transportation. The automobile traffic is not willing to wait for ferryboats and it doesn't want to take a circuitous route when it would be made unnecessary by the crossing of a river by means of a toll bridge. There is a demand for the elimination of as much delay as possible and the toll bridge does it.

The toll bridge today may be a state affair or it may be erected by private capital. In the former case it invariably means the collection of sufficient tolls to balance the cost of construction and maintenance after which it is frequently made a free bridge. Such contributions in the way of toll means, of course, that those who use and get the real benefit of the bridge are the ones who pay for it.

When toll bridges are built by private capital it is done with legislative approval and that should mean that the state has reserved the right to acquire such structures at a fair price whenever it desires. There are times when state funds are not available for such construction, but where private capital is ready and willing to back the venture. Naturally it is entitled to a fair return as long as the state is not interested. When that times comes it must be reimbursed and the state then finds it a wise policy to collect tolls until the cost is met.

As long as a toll bridge aids travel and does so at a fair rate under state regulation there can be little objection to it. With the use of the highways today it is not surprising that toll bridges are growing.

BUILDING CRUISERS

If we maintain that our policy of building cruisers should be carried out without arousing the suspicions of other nations and cause them to enter into competition, we ought to take the same view when other nations build more cruisers.

We are going to enter upon the construction of 15 more cruisers because our varied and scattered interests require them. We are going to use these ships, or part of them, for replacement purposes. We have old ships which are fast outliving their usefulness and by the time the new ones are done the navy will be ready to receive them. We are mindful of the fact that we are not going beyond our allotted naval strength in such construction and there is no desire to do so.

Thus when it is announced that the British are going to construct two new cruisers we cannot point to it as repudiating the Kellogg pact or building just because we are. According to first lord of the admiralty the plan of keeping the navy up to the proper condition requires the new cruisers, although for economic reasons and for the purpose of showing that the British were not competing with the United States in cruiser construction, Messrs Chamberlain and Churchill had recently urged that such construction be postponed.

Even when naval programmes are carried out independent of those of other countries it is difficult to allay suspicion that one does not hinge upon the other. For that reason it would be well if there was a more definite understanding in regard to cruisers as well as battleships. But as matters stand the British have as much right to build cruisers as we have. They have the same right of self defense even though there has been approval of the international peace pact renouncing war and they likewise have interests the same as this country and trade which are entitled to proper protection. Thus, even though there has been a difference of opinion among the British people and among members of the cabinet as to whether two cruisers should be built this year, they stand in quite the same position that we do relative to cruisers and must be so considered.

TILDEN'S REINSTATEMENT

William T. Tilden has been reinstated to his amateur standing in tennis ranks because he has accepted and will respect the rule which he violated in Europe last year.

For about a half year Tilden has been under suspension because he refused to abide by a ruling which prohibited him from writing articles. Regardless of the rule and his knowledge of it he continued to write and he attempted to justify his attitude by claiming that he wrote as an expert and not as a reporter. Just what the difference was the executive committee of the Lawn Tennis association could not understand and he has not been able since that time to convince them that he was right.

The disqualification of Tilden was a big disappointment to his friends as well as to himself, but from all indications it promises to be a very valuable lesson. Tilden has refused to enter the professional ranks and has repeatedly sought reinstatement. Not until he has acknowledged the meaning of the rule as understood by the committee and agreed to live up to it has his wishes been gratified.

His return to the game as an amateur will be heartily welcomed. He has been out of it through no one's fault but his own. He failed to realize that there were no special privileges to be had because of his prominence in the game and apparently overlooked the fact that the rule would amount to nothing just as soon as the greatest of the American players totally ignored it.

The lesson will not only be valuable for Tilden in the future but it should be particularly impressive for other amateur followers of the great outdoor game. It is a signal victory for amateurism.

EDWIN DENBY

It was a varied and interesting career that ended with the sudden death of Edwin Denby. He had served in congress, enlisted and served in the navy during the Spanish war, enlisted and served in the army with the marines in France and then became a member of President Harding's cabinet only to resign when certain acts connected him with the oil scandal.

Without a doubt he was imposed upon in connection with the oil case. He had no part in the negotiations that were carried on by Mr. Fall. As secretary of the navy he signed the papers transferring the oil reserves from the control of the navy department to the department of the interior over which Fall presided. This was not done with the knowledge that Fall was going to make any such deal as he did. Apparently he was convinced that it was the wise thing to do, for it is to be realized that opinions have supported the view that as long as the naval reserves were being drained by oil operations nearby it would be wise to have the navy get the benefit of the oil in the ground before actually losing it.

After it was all over it was possible to look upon the part played by Mr. Denby as negligent and to feel that he should have given more careful study to just what was involved as he was signing the transfer. It was one of those cases where an honest man evidently regarded all others as honest and where he was used by the other for the carrying out of his purpose. Even though it was declared that his honesty and integrity had not been impugned it marred an otherwise highly creditable and unusual career.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Whipping cream mixed with mayonnaise dressing makes an excellent dressing for fruit salads.

Nut size kindling charcoal makes an excellent fire on which to broil steak.

If hooks to be used in the kitchen and pantry are dipped in enamel paint they will not rust.

Boiled linseed oil rubbed into oak furniture will give it an excellent polish.

Never allow tea to steep more than five minutes lest you spoil the flavor and increase the amount of tannin.

To remove paint from cotton clothing soak the spot two or three times with equal parts of ammonia and turpentine, then wash in soapsuds.

Brass beds may be easily cleaned by rubbing them over with a woolen cloth moistened with olive oil.

Before filling an oil stove cut a round of muslin and place it over the tube of the oil tank. It will strain the oil and save much time spent in cleaning the stove.

Be careful to keep fruit and vegetables where they will not freeze during the winter weather. A dry, cool corner in your cellar is the best place.

Dried fruits, soaked over night, cooked the next day until soft, then pressed through a colander will make a delicious spread for sandwiches for the children's lunch box.

Keep ferns and palms away from draughts and gas.

To freshen old or wilted vegetables, soak them in cold water for two or three hours before cooking them.

If a quantity of silver is to be cleaned try this method: Mix sweet oil and whiting to a smooth, creamy paste. Apply with a flannel cloth. Allow it to stand until dry. Polish first with cotton flannel, then with chamois. This method will not eat nor injure the silver plating.

Chopped green peppers and caviar spread on toasted crackers make delicate conetizers.

A box of correspondence cards makes an excellent recipe file for the kitchen.

WHEN FRYING FISH

In frying fish, roll it in a little flour to which a pinch of salt is added to give the fish seasoning. Fry in oil, which may be heated to a higher degree than butter or fats without burning and gives off less disagreeable fumes.

When plucking a chicken or turkey dry picking is better than scalding. While scalding will remove the feathers quickly and easily, unless it is done very carefully it is possible to partially cook and harden the skin.

TO RESTORE UPHOLSTERY

To restore faded upholstery, beat the dust out, then brush. Apply a strong lather of castile soap with a hard brush, wash off with clear water, then wash off with alum water. On becoming dry the colors will look as well as ever. When colors are faded beyond recovery they may be touched up with a pencil dipped in water colors of suitable shade, mixed with gum water.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Sometimes it is difficult to stop the flow of blood after a tooth has been extracted. If powdered alum is applied to the cavity it will stop the bleeding.

Hands will not chap, if wet with vinegar and dried well before hanging out the clothes. A little cornstarch rubbed on the hands will also help.

Nothing is more efficacious in clearing throats mornings and hardening them against infection than the habit of hot salt gargles upon rising. Salt is also excellent for cleaning the teeth.

In rooms where it is important to have fresh air and yet be protected a window ventilator, removable for cleaning, is a convenient arrangement. It allows much fresh air to enter the room without danger of drafts. It also protects from snow, hail, rain, etc.

TRINKETS SHOULD GLISTEN

Ten strings of beads in a casket, and not one fit to wear! How many girls find themselves in that predicament? The luster has gone from some of them; the silver catches have tarnished on others. Rings, bracelets, shoulder ornaments and the other trinkets that adorn the young girl and the older woman as well lose their freshness and brilliance, especially if they are worn only at intervals.

It is a simple matter to restore them to full beauty. Wash them in warm, soapy water, using a soft brush to get at small crevices. Rinse them in a second sudsy water, and then dry. Bring back the gloss by rubbing with a soft cloth. Use silver polish on chains and remove it in sudsy water. Dry thoroughly.

RIPPING SEAMS

Many of us use razor blades for ripping seams. They can be rendered more safe if the blade is wrapped with adhesive tape to within a short distance of the end, thus providing a place where it can be held firmly without fear or danger.

MATCHING TOWELS AND MAT

A bath mat and towels which match do much for the looks of the average bathroom, particularly when they are designed in a modernistic manner.

UNPAINTED MAGAZINE RACKS

The woman or man who likes to bain will be glad to hear of an unpainted magazine rack, which can be colored to suit one's temperament or color scheme.

MUCH IN LITTLE

The man who travels much appreciates the gift of a small pigskin case containing a tooth brush holder, brush, comb, and clothes brush, all very compact and neat.

PANCAKES

To bake pancakes without smoke or odor make a little salt bag and rub the gridiron with it in place of grease. The cakes will not stick and there will be no smoke or odor.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Looking over the fashion field coat lengths seem to decide their own fates. But there's a difference between them for the discerning woman.

Very short jackets and boleros are excellent for the very young.

Cardigans are for suburban wear, for sports and for utility, such as shopping suits.

Finger tip jackets are best for the older or larger woman.

Three-quarters coats help shorten the tall woman's figure.

Long coats slenderize.

Luxuries indeed are two-toned wool blankets that are bound in velvet of a shade which corresponds with one side.

Very amusing and French are handkerchiefs or colored linen, each one a different color and each having the day of the week embroidered across the corner.

A smart little silk crepe frock has a small collar with scarf ends which tie in back and a brand new skirt, which is slashed so often it gives a fringed effect.

Flat, smooth, white fur is made into attractive jackets with tailored fur scarfs for wear in the south.

Crocheted bands done by hand in two or three colors serve as the new contrast trimming at neck and wrists of two-piece silk sports dresses.

Sterling silver jewelry in both gold and silver finish and simulating baguette cut stones is a new and smart fashion for spring.

Black satin mules with colorful petit point embroidery adorning the toes are among the most attractive styles. Metal brocade mules are also shown in every conceivable color.

One of the smartest jersey dresses is termed the tee shirt frock, after the athletic tee shirt. This is a two-piece model and is shown in the smart winter shades and pastels.

An unusually pretty evening bag from Paris is in pouch shape of colored faille in soft shades embroidered with glittering beads in floral design. This bag comes in white, beige, pink and green.

A black crepe back satin frock has a handsome cut steel and paton blue belt embroidered on it at waistline. The steel beads embroider a belt buckle. The bodice of the frock blouses slightly.

SPRING LINGERIE COLORS

Pastel silks tinted to harmonize with sunburned skins shown to a marked degree in spring outer apparel are influencing the colors chosen for lingerie. These softened hues are in very beautiful tones, embracing the various pale shades favored for silken underthings. Greater harmony is thus possible between lingerie and the sun-tanned skin. Ecru lace affects a nicer blend than white or cream.

NEW ANGORA HATS LEAD

The sport hats are still of felt and they are still smal and close-fitting with just a hint of front brim, but they are no longer of the smooth felt materials. They are hairy with angora plainly written down as their place of origin.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Wash shields by laying them flat and scrubbing them with a brush dipped in ammonia suds. Rinse by pressing flat between the hands.

When covering an ironing board tack the cover on while it is wet. It will then dry gradually and be absolutely tight and smooth.

Add one teaspoon of borax to the starch and this will not be so apt to freeze out of the clothes.

Boil clothes pins in salted water (one tablespoon salt to one quart water) and clothes will not cling to line. Warming the clothes pins in the oven before hanging out the clothes is a further precaution against freezing, also against their splitting.

WOODENWARE CLEANER

It's all right to touch wood if you think it will prevent bad luck, but you've got to exert a little more effort than that to keep your wooden kitchen utensils in good condition. Such articles as salad forks, rolling pins, bowls and mixing spoons are likely to become musty and discolored unless they receive extra attention occasionally. Scrub the wooden pieces with hot soapsuds to which a little washing soda has been added, rinse in clear water and dry thoroughly. Next time you roll a pie-crust with a fresh, spotless rolling pin, see if your luck in baking doesn't improve.

SPACE-SAVING DEVICE

A large wooden box which could fit under a window or in a corner, is delicately painted and finished with quaint prints. When the top is lifted, a sliding drawer, divided to hold a dozen pair of stockings, is revealed. Under this drawer there are two metal racks to hold shoes firmly in place.

COLD-WEATHER SERVICES TO BE HAD FROM ELECTRIC FAN

Many people tie up their electric fans and put them at the back of a high shelf when winter comes. There are many cold-weather services to be had from a fan. Here are some of them:

For distributing the heat from a radiator through a room quickly.

Hastening the drying of wet shoes or gloves and stockings after cleaning or washing.

Quickening the cooling of fresh cake and pie.

Hurrying the dehydration of fruit and vegetables.

Removing the dampness from clothes after ironing.

Furnishing a draught for the furnace when it is slow in warming up.

Spurring the heat register or sluggish radiator to activity by turning a breeze on.

Vitalizing air in a closed room when it is impracticable to open a window.

Drying delicate garments quickly so as to prevent running of colors and so as to permit wearing within a few hours.

Blowing air into a closet where coats and dresses are stored, thus making life miserable for moths and prevent the collection of moisture.

LINEN ROLLS

Heavy cardboard tubes, covered with chintz, gingham or any white material, make useful rolls for table linen.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Fifty girls are employed on a street car system in Mantanzas, Cuba, who act as conductors.

Young widows in China have been given the right to remarry.

There are 16 women pilots licensed to operate airplanes in the United States.

"Aunt Sarah" Larrabee, of Portland, has been selected as the champion knitter in the State of Maine. She is now past 80 years of age.

Mrs. Gerald Beaumont, governor of the Isle of Park, in the British Channel, is the second woman in the history of the island to have the honor of being its governor.

Mrs. Charles J. Fish of Buffalo, N. Y., member of the Society of Women geographers, has discovered the first eels' eggs known to science. She is a specialist on the early life history and distribution of fishes.

DAMP SHOES

Sweet oil rubbed on damp shoes will keep them from cracking.

FOR MAN TRAVELER

Traveling accessories for a man, which take up little space, consist of a small pigskin case containing two military brushes and a small comb.

RECIPES

Buttermilk Waffles: 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 1-2 cups buttermilk, 6 tablespoons melted butter, 3 eggs beaten separately. Mix and sift dry ingredients together. Separate eggs, beat yolks and add to milk. Combine mixture, add melted shortening and beat thoroughly. Fold in stiffly beaten whites.

Raisin-Pineapple Cake: Plump and cool three-fourths cup of raisins. Cream one and one-fourth cups of sugar with half a cup of shortening, add two egg yolks, the raisins, and three-fourths cup of crushed pineapple and juice. Mix thoroughly, then combine with two cups of flour sifted with four teaspoons of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, and one teaspoon of vanilla and when well mixed fold in the two stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a greased loaf pan and bake for 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Length Of Hoosac Tunnel.

Mr. Editor: Will you kindly print in The Norwich Bulletin how many miles long the Hoosac tunnel is in Massachusetts? We have had a discussion over this. I say five miles long. Is it so?

AN INQUIRER.

Occum, Feb. 8, 1929.

Hoosac tunnel is 4¾ miles in length.

Dirt Roads.

Mr. Editor: For the past few weeks much has been printed in Connecticut papers in regard to the dirt roads in rural districts. All the different theories that have been brought out are interesting. I also am a dirt road resident, nearest state road is two miles away. Believe me, some road to go through, when the frost is working out of the ground in the spring time. There is much in the why-fors to obtain and make this road passable when it is in the worst condition. I have suggested it (as will others) at town meeting, and have had personal talks with selectmen to better the conditions of this road to make it passable. There have always been excuses. When the road is deep with mud, the work would be difficult to do, or may be lack of funds, or some other obstacle. There are nine families directly on this two miles of dirt road, say nothing of several other families that are obliged to travel over this road to reach Willimantic. A rural mail carrier travels over it every day to deliver mail. Now to get down to brass tacks, during the time when road beds are dry and hard, plenty of stones can be had by hauling and placing into piles. The stones could be the size of a peck measure. These stone piles could be placed at the side of the road convenien and where there are mud holes in muddy times. Now is the time to use the largest stones on the bottom, gradually levelling off with smaller stones. As the roads become settled, top dress with gravel. This type of road will allow automobiles to pass over without going out of sight in mud. This method would not require any excavating. I have built 200 foot in lenth of this sort of road directly in front of our home at practically my own time and expense, and with the exception that there is no gravel, autos pass over without any trouble. I am a tax payer and cannot afford to build roads, even for my own convenience. Am pleased it was done. I am heartily in favor of the state doing their bit, in making passable roads at all times.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—Gossip in Washington commercial circles seems satisfied that Secretary Jimmie Davis is to succeed himself in the labor department when Mr. Hoover organizes his cabinet. Admittedly, filling that job is one of the most troublesome decisions the new president has to make.

There are wheels within wheels in its political aspects. The folks now declaring that Davis is to be retained however, act on very practical information, not upon political calculations.

As the Bystander hears the story, Secretary Davis is looking around for some 20,000 square feet of office floor space for enlargement of the labor department. He is said to have sounded property owners or promoters with options on land in the vicinity of the rented quarters of the department with a view to inducing the erection of a new structure for this purpose.

A Practical Question

Naturally, about the first question these individuals would ask would be whether Mr. Davis were going to continue in the cabinet after March 4. If not, quite obviously they could not embark on building investments based on prospective labor department lease of the structure. A new labor secretary might not approve the project.

And according to men approached in connection with investment in the project, assurances that Mr. Davis was to continue as labor department head were forthcoming. It is on that intensely practical view of the situation that they rest their belief that this cabinet post of the Hoover regime is virtually filled already.

A number of names have been suggested for Hoover labor secretary. The outstanding ones were John Lewis of the coal miners and Doak of the railroad brotherhood. Some folks even have thought Chairman O'Connor of the shipping board might have a chance because of his connection with the stevedores' union, on which his present political preferment rests to a degree.

Might Be a Row

It is generally held that any one of these three appointments would involve Mr. Hoover in considerable controversies with union labor circles, a situation he probably would like to avoid.

In view of all this, the commercial gossip about Davis's probable retention may be highly significant. It implies that Mr. Hoover plans to get out of the difficulty with the least possible friction by making no change.

Yet the thing has another aspect. Senator Smoot has long been virtual dictator of the renting of quarters for government activities in Washington. He fills a dual legislative and administrative role, in a way. And how does he look on the Davis labor department expansion? Probably the prospective investors would do well to find out.

YOUR HEALTH

Appalling amout of deafness prevalent machine invented for testing children's hearing.

By Harold M. Hays, M. D. New York City.

There is a great deal of truth in the saying: "Little pitchers have big ears." Fortunately the child is presented with very acute hearing, which he could maintain if environment and improper hygiene did not interefere with Nature.

The connection between the throat behind the palate and the ears is through a small, narrow tube (Eustachian) which makes it possible for air to reach the ears with every act of swallowing and yawning so that there is a constant massage of the little bones. If this tube becomes clogged, as it often does when the child has a cold, the ears become "stuffy" and eventually with repeated colds, the stuffiness results in deafness.

The prevalence of deafness in children in the United States is appalling. Until the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing investigated the matter, no one would have believed that there were over 3,000,000 deafened children in our country. Yet such is the fact and parents should be held responsible and made to see that as much attention should be paid to the ears as to the teeth and to the eyes.

How can this deafness in children be prevented? Parents should realize that repeated colds in the head, recurrent earaches or discharges from the ears will, sooner or later result in an impairment in hearing that it will be difficult to overcome.

Much of such trouble can be avoided by the thorough removal of tonsils and adenoids. The tonsils have a tendency to cause repeated infections, and adenoids among other things cause a direct blockage of the tubes going to the ears, thus interfering with proper massage.

How can one tell if little ears are growing deaf? Inattention of the child should not be treated with punishment but by having the ears examined by a competent otologist. In this age of miracles, a combination phonograph and ear testing machine has been invented for examining the ears of school children so that forty children can be examined at one time. So, it is possible today for a teacher in the school or a school nurse to examine children at periodic intervals and weed out those whose ears show a definite hearing defect. Correctional treatment at this time may mean that your child will be kept from leading a life of needless misery—be kept from isolating himself from human contacts that come only from intellectual companionship and hearing the other person accurately when he speaks.

Stories That Recall Others

A Social Aspirant.

Six year old Don appealed to his mother. "Mother, the next time we go on a train to visit grandma, I wish you'd put it in the paper."

"Why do you wish to do that?" questioned his surprised parent.

"Because," the child explained eagerly, "I've only had my name in the paper once, and that was when I was born."

At The Bridge Party.

Timmy, four years old, was a tired and indifferent spectator at the afternoon bridge party, although he did display interest when mother won the first prize. After the game mother was relating to a group of intimates that she faced some "tough" players. Timmy was proud of mother's achievement and on arriving home he related to dad that mother had won the prize and that she had played with "rough necks."

CHILD TRAINING

Auntie Makes a Helpful Suggestion

Pauline Herr Thomas.

Auntie May was spending the day at Jeanne's house. The two had just stepped out for a walk when they met Baby Louise and her mother. They were about to start on after chatting a moment when Jeanne asked Auntie to wait a few minutes. She ran back into the house to return presently with her brand new "bye-lo" doll in her equally new carriage.

She had a moment of indecision when she saw Louise, her face beaming, running joyfully to it, shouting "Louise push, Louise push," but she came on toward the group with her prize possession, and though looking somewhat rueful, allowed Louise to catch the handle of the carriage. In a moment Louise had abandoned the idea of pushing and had taken the doll in her arms, but as quickly Jeanne took it from her, anxiously, and carefully replaced it while she warned, "Mustn't touch the dolly, Louise, only push."

Louise's momentary joy of possession made her eager for more, so again she dragged the dolly from her covers and again Jeanne recovered her, this time to rush into the house with her treasure, leaving only the carriage, which of course no longer satisfied Louise. There followed shrieks of dismay while her mother, the unspoken words, "How selfish!" plainly written on her face, tried to comfort her.

Auntie May said nothing, as she felt that a discussion of the conduct and traits of her niece was imminent, and she objected to discussing them with a neighbor.

Because Jeanne was an only child and because she had always been showered with beautiful toys, everyone predicted selfishness except Auntie May. For the moment, however, Auntie May became a bit troubled. "It did appear selfish," she thought, "but then, Jeanne has always been painstaking, quite beyond her years to keep her toys in good condition. I can't believe it was pure selfishness."

When they were once more at home and Jeanne was playing happily with her doll, Auntie May said, "You love your dolly, don't you, dear?"

"Oh, yes! better than all my other toys."

"She is such a lovely dolly. Baby Louise loved her, too, didn't she?" continued Auntie May.

"But Auntie! I was so afraid she would let her fall!"

"Well, of course, Louise is too little to think of being careful. She could play better with Raggedy Ann could'nt she?" suggested Auntie May.

"Oh, yes! she can have Raggedy Ann any time. I don't mind who plays with my toys if they will only be as careful as I am. You know Arlene broke my big dolly and Jackie smashed my washing set, and—"

"Of course, Arelen was too little to play with your big dolly and Jackie was a boy and did not know just how to play with a little girl's washing set."

"Well, I just won't take dolly out when Louise is there, any more. She can have my balls and blocks and such things, and I'll let Evelyn and Ruth play with my 'bye-lo' dolly—they're bigger, you know."

"Hardly a selfish decision and surely a justifiable one," though Auntie May. "It's just as easy to be sympathetically suggestive as to be hastily condemnatory, and very much more profitable."

YOUR INCOME TAX

Under the revenue act of 1928 the maximum amount which may be claimed as earned income to which a credit of 25 per cent applies is increased from $20,000 to $30,000. To claim this credit on the tax due on net income in excess of $5,000, the income must actually be earned by the taxpayer as "wages, salaries, professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services."

The tax on an earned income of $30,000 is computed in the case of a married person, without dependents, as follows:

Net income	$30,000.00
Less personal exemption	3,500.00
Balance taxable	26,500.00
1½ per cent tax on first $4,000	60.00
3 per cent tax on second $4,000	120.00
5 per cent tax on remaining $18,500	925.00
Surtax on net income of $30,000	880.00
Total normal and surtax	1,985.00
Less 25 per cent of $1,985.00, earned income credit	496.25
Balance of tax payable	1,488.75

A taxpayer may have earned during the year a salary of $100,000 or more, but the 25 per cent credit applies only to $30,000 of such amount.

AGAINST WHOLESALE REVISION OF TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—(AP)—With opinion solidified more than ever against a wholesale revision of the tariff at the special session of the new congress, the house ways and means committee tomorrow will enter its sixth week of hearings on the subject.

Silk, paper and books, and sundries will demand the attention of the committee for the next five days. Next week will be devoted to sundries and the free list, with the administrative provisions coming up for consideration Feb. 25. This will conclude the open sessions at which, to date, 650 witnesses have pressed hundreds of proposals for changes in the import duty structure, mostly increases.

That a majority of these suggestions will be ignored is the opinion held rather generally among republican congressional leaders, they hold that only in isolated instances outside the agricultural rates will there be a necessity for upward revision and openly declare that many of the witnesses recommend higher duties, not expecting them to be granted but in the hope that present rates will not be lowered or that compromise higher duties might be agreed upon.

Many interior towns of the West Canary islands do not have electric light and offer a good market for candles. Present importations are largely from Europe.

TOLLAND IS NOW IN THE AREA TEST LAW

In his biennial report to the governor, James M. Whitlesey, state commissioner of domestic animals says:

There is every reason to believe that the eradication of bovine tuberculosis in Connecticut can be carried to final success within a few years as the work is already half completed, declares James M. Whitlesey, state commissioner on domestic animals, in his biennial report, submitted to Governor Trumbull. With the elimination of this disease one of the serious handicaps of the dairy industry will vanish, he adds, and the source of infection of bovine tuberculosis to the human family will disappear.

The fight against the disease "continues to be the major activity of this department," says the report, and at the present time there are 6,687 herds under supervision, comprising 75,968 head of cattle and 70 per cent of which have been found free on the last test or are fully accredited free from tuberculosis. Approximately one-half the neat cattle of Connecticut are under supervision of the state and federal governments for eradication purposes.

The outstanding feature of the eradication program is the area test law, passed by the 1927 legislature, and now also in force in every state in the Union and in Canada. The testing of all the cattle in such an area can only be made after owners of 85 per cent of the cattle in it have signed up for the test.

At present 37 towns in Connecticut are under the area test law. They include Bethlehem, Morris, Thomaston, Waterbury, Watertown, Middlebury, Bloomfield, Bristol, Burlington, Cornwall, East Granby, Farmington, Hartford, Meriden, Middletown, New Britain, Newington, Plainville, Rocky Hill, West Hartford, Manchester, Litchfield, Torrington, Harwinton and New Hartford. About as many more areas (townships) are now ready to come under the area test law, including Canaan, Cornwall, Norfolk, Colebrook, Simsbury, Avon, Suffield, Winchester, Hartland, Barkhamsted, Granby, Canton, East Windsor, South Windsor, Ellington, Tolland, Vernon, Bolton, Coventry, Mansfield, Andover, Glastonbury, Portland and East Hampton.

In 1928 the average cost to the state for indemnity was $29.89 per head. In November, 1928, the average cost was $49.40. The records of the department show that the average percentage of infection in Connecticut found at the time of the initial test of herds is 22 per cent.

Statistics in the report show that in 1927 the number of cattle tested in Connecticut in the federal and state co-operative tests was 30,013, of which 6,460 were condemned and slaughtered. The state paid $221,652 for indemnities, the federal government $103,812, and the owners received $177,042 for salvage, a total of $502,006 here paid to owners. In 1928 102,678 cattle were tested, 9,257 condemned and slaughtered, and a total of $852,218 paid owners. There are 122,412 neat cattle in the state valued at a total of $3,587,667.

McCOOK CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

An appeal to the supreme court of errors has been taken by attorneys for the McCooks in the condemnation suit brought against them by the state of Connecticut to secure land at Niantic as an addition to the Seaside sanitarium. The appeal is taken from a decision of Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court. The notice of appeal filed Saturday with the clerk of the superior court in this city, says:

"That the court erred in overruling the demurrer to the writ and petition and motion to quash dated March 11, 1926, and in sustaining the demurrer to certain paragraphs of the defendant's answer.

"That the court erred in overruling the defendant's objection to the making of any order appointing a committee on the ground that the special act in question prescribed no method or procedure for acquiring the land by condemnation and confers no jurisdiction on the superior court for that purpose.

"That the court erred in appointing a committee against the defendant's objection to examine the property proposed to be taken; ascertain the value thereof and assess in favor of the owners of the property such sum as would justly compensate them therefor.

"The petition does not warrant the judgment because the superior court has no jurisdiction or authority to enter the order, dated Feb. 1, 1929 appointing to determine the amount to be paid for the taking of the land described in the alleged special act."

The opponents ask the higher tribunal for such relief as is provided by law in the premises.

The defendants taking the appeal are John B. McCook, Anson T. McCook and Philip J. McCook, individually and as executors of the estate of John J. McCook and as administrators of the estate of Eliza S. McCook, Frances A. McCook, Lucy E. McCook and Eliza I. McCook Roots.

NEWARK PASTOR OPENS SERMON SERIES AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. M. Joseph Twomey, D. D. pastor of the Peddie Memorial Baptist church of Newark, N. J., gave a stirring sermon on Who Is a Christian at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening. The auditorium of the church was almost filled with parishioners, representatives of various churches in the city and the general public. This service marked the opening of a series to be conducted by Rev. Dr. Twomey at the church this week.

Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, who presided at the service, led in the scriptural reading and offered prayer, after which Rev Dr. Twomey was introduced. In introducing the speaker Rev. Dr. Pitt stressed the fact that these gospel services are not only for the members of the Central church, which is sponsoring the series, but are open to members of all city churches and to the entire community.

Rev. Dr. Pitt emphasized the time, which Rev. Dr. Twomey is devoting to these series, pointing out that today (Monday) he will speak at a meeting of the ministers at 11 o'clock in the morning at the Third Baptist church to the men of the Central church at 6:45 o'clock and again at 7:30 at the regular evening service at the Central church.

In opening his sermon Rev Dr. Twomey announced as his subject, Who Is a Christian, and then read from the third chapter of St. John as follows: "Now there was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: the same came unto him by night, and said to him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God; for no man do these signs that thou doest, except God be with him. Jesus answered and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born anew, he can not see the Kingdom of God, etc.'

At the conclusion of the reading Rev. Dr. Twomey enumerated the requirements of the Jewish preacher 'He must know two languages, he must be well to do and he must be a popular man. He must be physically fit, dignified. Nicodemus was a broadminded man. He was charitable. He went to Jesus and asked, Who is eligible to the Kingdom? This man had a great creed. You can never have a creed until you have had an experience. Religion forces you into a creed. This man believed that there was a God. There is a God. I believe it. I believe in Him. He believed that death is not the end of things. He believed in the continuity of life. He believed in a future reward. That there was a place for the good and a place for the bad. That man believed in a future reward. That is a splendid thing.

"When he asked Jesus how he could enter the Kingdom of God, Jesus said that 'You must be born again.' There is something bigger than the creed. You of Norwich in order to enter the Kingdom of God must be reborn. What does He mean? You must give yourself wholly to Him. He comes into your life and dwells with you."

At the regular Sunday morning service at the Central Baptist church, Rev. Dr. Twomey spoke upon, Why Christ was not Forgotten, in reply to a letter sent to him asking that question. At the Sunday school hour he told the story of his conversion.

Miss Kirstead was discharged Sunday morning from the W. W. Backus hospital where she had undergone an operation for appendicitis.

She was riding with Lawrence Desmonde, of No. 40 Main street, New London, in his Nash roadster, towards New London, when the roadster crashed into the Overland and upset. Both Desmonde and Miss Kirstead were thrown into the highway and his machine was badly wrecked. Desmonde, who received lacerations of the right leg, was arrested by State Police Officer Peter Busch on a charge of reckless driving. He will be presented in court today (Monday).

Both machines were headed toward New London and the driver of the New Britain machine turned to the left to enter the driveway of the Royal garage when the roadster crashed into his machine. Mr. and Mrs. Ference, Edmund Ference, and Mrs. Nellie Zabawar of New Haven, who were riding in Mr. Ference's machine, escaped injury. INTOXICATED MAN WAS LOST IN SWAMP

An intoxicated man, bewildered and lost in the swampy meadows at Plain Hill, was rescued from his predicament during the wee small hours Saturday morning by Constable Lucius A. Fenton, Robert Stott and a Mr. Rowley. The man had been wandering aimlessly about the swampy land for fully four hours.

About 10:30 o'clock Friday night, as Mrs. Larkham, who resides at Plain Hill, was preparing to retire, she heard someone yelling for help. Mrs. Larkham called her brother, Robert Stott, by phone and told him of the incident. Mr. Stott, who resides within a short distance of his sister's home, had also heard the calls for help. Constable Fenton was informed by phone and made a rapid run to the vicinity. He, Mr. Stott and Mr. Rowley, searched the meadows and shortly after midnight found the much bewildered man who had accidentally walked into the swampy land and couldn't find his way out.

CHRIST LAID A BURDEN ON CATHOLICS, SAYS PRIEST

In a concerted movement the coming Sunday, Feb. 17, the over 500,000 Catholics of the state of Connecticut are to join in the gigantic national effort to increase the funds for mission work about the globe. At the four masses in St. Patrick's church Sunday Bishop Nilan's letter explaining this project was read. Hereafter the annual offering for Negro and Indian missions will be included in that made on this same Sunday—the first Sunday in Lent—from now on to be designated "Catholic Mission Aid Sunday." Ordinary members will contribute $1, special members will give alms of $6, while life members' donations have been fixed at $40.

Preaching to a crowded church at 9 o'clock mass Sunday, Rev. John J. Reilly, after reading the gospel for Quinquagesima Sunday, Luke 18:31-43, narrating the restoration to sight of the blind man of Jericho, directed attention to the fact that our Divine Lord spent but three years in public life, never left the Holy Land, yet frequently declared that He had come to save the souls of men. How was He then to accomplish this? He has laid this burden on the shoulders of every Catholic. We cannot all be missionaries, yet each can aid in sending assistance to those who are in the mission fields in India, China, Japan, Africa and elsewhere about the globe. Each can assist by helping give to others the peace, joy, strength given to all by faith. The ordinary Catholic loves God, loves his neighbor; but he should do more, expanding the fire of faith in his own heart by igniting the hearts of others, not content with mere belief which at best is but dull, stale and unprofitable. "Christ has need of you all," declared the preacher. His command, "Go, teach all nations," has been well carried out by the church; but although the church has done well, there are still millions who do not know Christ. Other denominations have done more—yet frequently the Catholic penny achieves more than the oil man's millions. Those in the fields are saying to us, "Help us and we'll match what we accomplish against these millions of the oil man." A study of the crucifix is a reminder of Christ's love for men's souls even in death; yet He died not for us—but for the world. His words, "I thirst," meant no merely physical thirst; it was His thirst for the souls of all men.

How we would have wished to share the happy lot of Saint John, who actually rested upon his Saviour's heart, later was privileged to remove the cruel crown of thorns, to restore the body of the crucified Christ to His Mother! Yet it is in the power of each to lift the crown from some heathen, to restore his soul to the Mother of Christ. "All can have a part in spreading around the world the name of Christ, until there shall be praise to the Divine Heart which bought your and my salvation—to it be honor forever and ever," was Father Reilly's eloquent peroration.

He remained to aid Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low mass, in giving holy communion to a great number of penitents. These two priests, who have so well cared for the over 4,000 members of the parish, have heard an exceptional number of confessions every Saturday afternoon and evening, so that at the 7:30 mass Sunday, read by Father Reilly, nearly every person in the church received the Eucharist.

The rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, has reached Atlantic City on his return from his annual three weeks' vacation and will be home this week.

NORTON SMITH SHOOTS BRILLIANT GOLF TO WIN PENSACOLA OPEN

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 10—(AP)—Brilliant putting enabled Horton Smith 21-year-old Joplin, Mo., professional, to emerge the victor from a duel with "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn today in the Greater Pensacola Open Golf tournament. Smith won with a 274, ten strokes under par for the 72-hole grind, while Mehlhorn was five strokes behind.

Gene Sarazen, New York, shot a 282 to rank third, and Henry Cotton, British professional, was fourth with 283. Tied in the next group with 284's were Al Espinosa, Chicago, Bobby Cruickshank, New York, and Tommy Armour, Washington.

Denamore, Columbus, Ohio, with 285 and Ed Dudley, winner of the Los Angeles open, with 287, ranked next while William Burke, New York, 289, completed the list in the 280 class. The rest of the heavy field found the going harder and such luminaries as Joe Kirkwood, Albany, Ga., Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y. and John Dawson, Chicago amateur, fell into the 290's.

It was a see-saw journey to the crown for Smith. After seeing Mehlhorn lead the procession with a snappy 66 on the first 18 holes, Smith came back to take leadership with 136 at the end of the first 36, Mehlhorn carding 138. Today, at the 54th, Smith and Mehlhorn were tied with 206 strokes and Mehlhorn who turned in a 68 for the third 18 to clinch the title appeared headed for the crown.

Then, Mehlhorn's putter failed and the young Missourian went one stroke up on the first hole of the last round. Smith was two up when they finished the fourth, taking a par four while Mehlhorn missed his putt for a five. "Wild Bill" missed another putt on the fifth and Smith's par four brought him the 3 stroke advantage. On the long sixth, Mehlhorn looked good with a birdie four but Smith calmly laid down an eagle 3, sending him four strokes ahead. On the ninth and eleventh the youth added two more strokes. Thenceforth Mehlhorn was unable to do better than play even until the 18th, when he gained back one stroke with a birdie three after Smith missed a short putt.

The money finishers:

Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo.—68-68-70-68—274—$1000.

William Mehlhorn, New York—66-72-68-72—278—$600.

STRIBLING PERFORMS FOR CROWD; SHARKEY PLAYS GOLF

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 10.—(AP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling, on whose broad shoulders and flying feet rests the south's hope for a heavyweight champion, today topped off his training preparatory to a rest and taking trip with a snappy workout.

Stribling's training quarters at Hardie's Casino was thronged with a crowd as he went through his training for his bout with Jack Sharkey, Boston sob, at Flamingo park here the night of February 27. The Georgian had announced he would interrupt his training after today for a rest tomorrow and a fishing expedition to the Everglades.

While Stribling performed in the casino, Sharkey contented himself with a round of golf and otherwise took things easy. Both contenders have announced their intention of going slow in training. Each claims to be in top physical condition and needing only sufficient workouts to keep himself on edge.

Promotional activities under the guidance of Jack Dempsey and his corps of Madison Square Garden associates have progressed smoothly.

Sharkey's training program for the week has not been announced, but he plans to mingle training in some golf with his activities on Miami territory golf courses.

Tossing in four field goals and a foul against Cornell last night Schaaf ran his league total to 40, seven more than Carey and Cheney of Dartmouth. Klasna, of Yale, holds fourth place with 30 points.

Schaaf leads in field goals with 17 and Carey in fouls with the same number. Weiss and Wittmer of Princeton, and Spaeth of Dartmouth have the doubtful honor of leading in personal fouls. Each has committed an even dozen.

THUNBERG DECLARED KING OF WORLD'S SKATERS

DAVOS, Switzerland, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Clas Thunberg, of Finland, was proclaimed unofficial world's speed skating champion today at the conclusion of a series of elimination races at 500, 1,000, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 meters. Harbludsvid, of Norway, was announced as the runner-up. Thunberg finished no worse than second in any of the events.

The speedy Finn won the 1500 meters, great Indian, while Skarrud of Norway captured the 5,000 meters.

THREE REMAIN IN RACE FOR BILLIARD TITLE

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—To all intents and purposes the field still in the running for the world's 18.2 balkline billiards championship has been reduced to three—Kinrey Masuyama of Japan, and Welker Cochran and Young Jake Schaefer of the United States.

Of the other three participants in the round-robin tournament in progress at the Level club, Felix Grange, the French champion, has completed his schedule and failed to win one of his five starts. Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, and Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, the defending champion, still have a mathematical chance of figuring in the title chase but it is nothing more than that.

Theend of the first six days of the eight day tournament today found Matsuyama learing the field with three victories in as many starts. Schaefer and Cochran, two outstanding favorites, were in a tie fo second place with a brace of wins and one defeat. Horemans and Hagenlacher were in another deadlock for fourth position with an even break in four games.

With four matches yet to be played, three of them involving the trio of contenders, the championship still hangs in the balance. Matsuyama, the little Japanese sensation of the tournament, of course, holds a decided advantage even though he still must play Cochran tomorrow night and Schaefer probably on Tuesday night.

The standing:

	Won	Lost	Run High	Ave.	High
Matsuyama	3	0	220	50.10	12
Cochran	2	1	148	44.4	22
Schefer	2	1	203	40
Hagenlacher	2	2	164	40
Horemans	2	2	193	36.4	11
Grange	0	3	120	21.4	9

ACADEMY HAS THREE HOME GAMES THIS WEEK

The Academy basketball team plays three games this week, all at home. All are of more or less importance and the locals, now in the throes of an eight-game losing streak, will be facing a tough problem in each tilt.

Tuesday night Windham comes here in the first of the annual series, the objective series of Academy basketball. Friday night, Torrington is the opponent at the Y gym, playing this game as part of a three game trip into Eastern Connecticut. Saturday night, Stonington, at present tied with the Wildcats for last place in the Eastern Connecticut Conference race, will battle it out.

Windham lost its captain, Walter Monast, last week when he withdrew from school and expects a tough battle from the locals. This is a Conference tilt and Windham needs it to stay in the running.

Torrington will be quite a heavy favorite to win Friday evening because of a 52 to 11 victory earlier in the year at Torrington. Torrington is also meeting Windham and Chapman Tech on their trip into this section.

Stonington and the Academy should furnish a real contest Saturday night. This is the second and last of the Academy's Saturday home dates and is expected to draw a banner crowd. Stonington, like the Academy, is having a disastrous season. Both teams lost heavily by graduation.

FIELDS FIGHTS HIS FIRST BOUT IN GARDEN FRIDAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—The east gets its first look at Jackie Fields far western contender for the welterweight title, this week.

Fields, with a brilliant record compiled at the epenxse of many of the leading 147-pounders of the day, meets Baby Joe Gans, Negro star also developed on the west coast, in a 10 round match in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Perhaps Fields' most important victory in recent months was that he recorded over Young Jack Thompson after the Negro had knocked out Joe Dundee, welterweight title-holder, in a non-championship bout at Chicago.

Gans has been campaigning in the east since last summer and with almost universal success. His opposition, however, has not been particularly high class and Fields probably will enter the ring a decided favorite.

Johnny Dundee, the veteran featherweight, returns to the ring again for a ten round engagement with Lou Moscowitz, of the Bronx, at the Lenox club on Tuesday night.

CHAPMAN TECH HOLDS COMMANDING LEAD IN LEAGUE

Chapman Tech still holds the lead in the Eastern Connecticut Conference court race as the teams turn for the home stretch. Tech has won five and lost one game while Windham has three victories and one defeat. Of course, the only difference here is that Tech has played two more games than the Thread Cityites.

Putnam is in third position and still holds a possibility of figuring in the race. The Academy and Stonington bring up the rear.

Tuesday night Windham meets the Academy here and Chapman Tech plays Stonington at New London.

The Conference standing:

	W	L	Pct.
Chapman Tech	5	1	.833
Windham High	3	1	.750
Putnam High	3	2	.600

Stonington High	0	4	.000

BASKETBALL TALK

Big Week For Basketball.

This week promises to be the "peak week" in local basketball. The sport has not been having such a good season to date but now, past the halfway mark some good attractions can be expected. The Academy is playing three games this week, all at home. Tuesday for the holiday, with Windham, generally regarded as the objective one of the court season (because there is no Bulkeley on the sch dule and Windham is the Academy's greatest rival next to Bulkeley); Friday Torrington with Torrington as past of that team's invasion into eastern Connecticut and Saturday with Stonington. The Y Seniors are facing the acid test of their campaign in the New London Y state championships clash Thursday. And then, there are the games in Plainfield and Danielson to say nothing of the numerous high school clashes. Basketball sure has its big week during the next six or seven days.

Tourtelotte Is Good.

Windham and Chapman Tech, and even Putnam, may con the Conference basketball championship this year and therefore be adjudged champs of Eastern Connecticut, but in the minds of some there will be a doubt as to whether Tourtelotte High of North Grosvenordale couldnt have given all of them a real battle. Tourtelotte has beaten Putnam, Stonington and Willimantic among others and in most of the clashes the score has not even been close. They say that Sherry, the center, is just as good as Dan Chubbuck, the present Connecticut Aggie star and who, until two years ago, was practically the whole Tourtelotte outfit. Chubbuck, although only a sophomore at Storrs, is one of the mainsprings of Lou Alexander's five. Sherry is sure to be a much sought-for boy if he can compare with Chubbuck for college coaches do not get players of the tall boy's ability every day. Tourtelotte doesnt play the Academy this year.

Wiljmantic Emps Win 12.

Willimantics Y Emps, with 12 straight victories, will have a lot to say about the Eastern Connecticut Intermediate title again this year. This team, which bested the local Y for the title last spring, is going great guns. The local Emps have had some tough luck this year. The team was torn apart after the Academy's season opened and Coach Conklin is rapidly rebuilding. Their victory over the Noank Whirlwinds last week was a feather in their cap. The Whirlwinds are a hard team to beat, especially in Noank, where they still remain undefeated this year.

N. F. A. Crowd Improves.

The crowd at the Academy-Chapman Tech tilt last Friday night looked somewhat like old times. There were about 250 paid admissions, which is by far the banner gathering of the season. However, it is still somewhat of a far cry from the crowds of '27 and '28. The lack of Saturday dates is making a big difference in the attendance figures. Saturday night, however, Stonington, which looks like the Academy's equal in the conference race, should draw a good attendance.

Umpires Have It Soft.

Referees have an easy time in Norwich generally because so few attend the games and also because so few understand the game of basketball. New London outnumbers Norwich in officials considerably because theer is a City league in New London and therefore a call for men to call fouls and toss up the ball at center. Mr. Guyer from Storrs came in for a lot of booing Friday night at the Y in the Academy-Tech game, but most of it was of the good-natured sort. The crowd was in a cheerful state of mind all the way and gave vent to their emotions by booing decisions when there seemed to be no cause. Mr. Guyer's work Friday night was among the best seen here this season.

A Lot Of Baskets.

One of the highest scoring marks of the season came when Lehigh beat Susquehanna Saturday, 81 to 24. The Sub-Base and Newport Training Station fives also had a high-scoring affair in a bit different sense Friday night in New London when Newport won, 68 to 53.

Time For Rejuvenation.

Its now about time for the Academy to show something of that reversal of form so prevalent in the 1925 team. It was just about this time a year ago that the locals suddenly jumped from defeat after defeat to wind up the year in seven glorious victories.

PUTNAM HIGH WINS EASILY FROM ALUMNI

(Special to The Bulletin.

PUTNAM, Feb. 10.—Putnam High school five downed the Alumni five Friday evening at the local gym in a one sided contest 46-25. The game was more interesting that the score indicated. Shann and Leo, bulwarks of strength on the Noyes coached five forward line found the Alumni basket with considerable facility. Leo accounted for 12 points, while Shann in addition to displaying remarkable court action dropped the leather through the net for three field goals. Captain Dominick Bove pilot of the 1928 high school aggregation returned to his first amateur contest since graduation, with flying colors, his sharp eyes and rangy arms sinking the ball through the basket for four field goals and making good seven foul tries.

Shann opened the scoring when he chalked up a foul, followed by Leo with a remarkable shot from in under the basket, followed by other shots made from all angles of the court. Capt. Bove of the "has beens" was an able leader and within a few moments of play he soon had his old teammates moulded together into its real form of other days. The excellent passwork of Donovan, Wheaton and Alvord kept the Noyesmen on their toes every minute of the fray to prevent a rally on the part of their former teammates. The score at half time was 25-20 with Putnam on the better end of the count.

The last half was played by Coach Noyes' second string men, who furnished some stubborn opposition for the Alumni, they being able to poll but five points during the half. While Captain Walt Cody and his crew were benched, they were afforded an opportunity to glance over the aggregation they will match strides with a year hence, when they take the floor wearing the colors of the alumni

COUGARS BEAT PRIATES IN THIRD PERIOD RALLY

DETROIT, Feb. 10—(AP)—A third-period drive won a National Prohockey game for the Detroit Cougars 3 to 0 here tonight at the expense of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Nearly 8,000 persons saw the game.

Two of Detroit's scores came while the Pirates were two men short, penalties having been exacted. George Hay, veteran Cougar wing man, accounted for two goals unassisted, while Carson Cooper scored the other on a pass from Sailor Jimmy Herberts.

Joe Miller, Pirate goalie, was given a hard night in the net, the Cougars breaking through for many shots at him. The Pirates found "Dollie" Dolson, Cougar goalie, unbeatable.

NURMI ABOUT THROUGH AS MILER BUT IS KING OF DISTANT RUNNERS

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Paavo Nurmi, once the "Phantom Finn" at almost any distance you could name, may have run his last mile.

His defeat by Ray Conger, Illinois A. C. flash, in the Rodman Wannamaker mile at the Millrose games last night seemed to demonstrate conclusively that the flying Finn no longer has the speed and stamina every good miler needs for his finishing spurt.

At the longer distances there is little doubt that Paavo will outrun any rival on this second American invasion unless his arch-rival from Sweden, Edvin Wide, be excepted. But at distances under two miles Paavo no longer is the flying Finn who made track history on America's indoor tracks four years ago.

There could be no alibi for Nurmi's decisive defeat. He ran his own race but it was not enough—not by some yards. After setting the pace from the start, Nurmi found he did not have the "kick" left to match Conger's whirlwind spurt, half a lap from the tape. Past the fading Finn Conger swept, widened his lead with every stride and won, going away, by a dozen yards, while 15,000 spectators roared acclaim.

Conger's time of 4:17 2-5 was more than five seconds back of the world's record Nurmi set four years ago in winning the same event. That record—four minutes, 12 seconds— still stands although Paavo is forced to share it with another great miler, Joie Ray, now turned professional marathoner.

It was only the third set-back Nurmi has ever suffered in the United States. In 1925 he was beaten, outdoors, in a half mile effort by Alan Helffrich, and he dropped a decision to Willie Ritola and a veal pie in a 5,000 meters run, indoors, the same year.

Aside from Nurmi, foreign entrants fared exceedingly well at the meet, high spot of the season thus far, Percy Williams, Olympic sprint champion, conquered a crack field of American rivals in the sprint series, pulling out a close victory in both the 60 and 50 yard dashes by virtue of a terrific burst of speed just before the tape was reached. The Canadian team of girls printers, led by Myrtle Cook, swept the first three places in the 50 yard dash finlas.

In the relays, however, the United States got an even break. Williams Jimmy Ball, W. A. Wilson and Phil Edwards formed a Canadian medley relay team that downed the United States four—Frank Hussey, Johnny Gibson, Frank Burns and Sam Martin—in a thrilling race. The Canadian girls team, however, bowed to a United States quartet in a 440-yard relay. A dropped baton on the last leg cost the Canadians apy chance of beating their rivals from below the border.

The Millrose 600 yards run saw Bernie McCafferty, of Holy Cross, register his fifth straight indoor victory of the season. Phil Edwards, New York university Negro, ran second. McCafferty's time, 1:12 3-5, was the fastest the Millrose 600 has seen and was only a second short of the world's indoor record.

PENN UNDEFEATED IN COLLEGE BASKETBALL RACE

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Pennsylvania's cage stars still are undefeated in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league but they're just as glad they don't have to pay another visit to Ithaca, N. Y., this season.

The Red and Blue team, coached by Eddie McNichol, barely managed to nose out Cornell's gamesters at Ithaca last night and run their league string to four victories without a defeat.

That record is more than enough to give Penn a commanding lead in the standings. Dartmouth, which won from Columbia on Wednesday in the only other league engagement of the past week, holds second place with three wins in five starts. In third place is Columbia with an even break in two games. Yale, Cornell and Princeton trail the Lions in that order.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Bulkeley of New London has just announced its baseball and football schedules for the coming seasons. As usual, the Academy occupies the feature games, but the Orange and Black this year plays Chapman Tech in both sports, thus renewing relations with this school after a break of some years.

The schedules:

Stonington High, like the Academy, is finding it quite a job to win a basketball game. Stonington has only won one. The down-staters dropped a 20 to 19 decision to South Kingstown (R. I.) High Friday night.

HARTFORD AFTER HOCKEY FRANCHISE IN CAN-AM LOOP

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 10—(AP)—Three different interests are seeking to obtain a Hartford franchise in the Canadian-American Hockey league, it was disclosed today, when the league directors met in this city for the first time in history. Representatives of other teams were present and after a special committee, headed by President Charles C. Clapp, had heard propositions, it was voted to make a decision in two weeks.

The session developed into a discussion of probable new cities for the circuit next season. The Boston Garden, where the Bruins of the National league play, wants to enter a team, it was said. In addition, a committee was appointed to investigate a situation in Baltimore, which also would become a member of the popular minor league.

Observers see a ten-team league in prospect for next season.

Y Emps Vs. Finishers.

The Y Emps and Peerless Finishers will meet in the preliminary to the Y Seniors, New London Whalers game Thursday night at the Y gym in the second of the state Y championship games between these two clubs. The Emps should give the older Finisher team a stiff battle for honors and possibly Coach Conklin's boys can pull out a victory.

The main game promises to be one of the most exciting tilts seen here in many a moon. It is the first time in years that Norwich has competed for the state Y championship.

MISS NEITZEL WINS OVER MRS. POTTER IN RACE

DETROIT, Feb. 10—(AP)—Loretta Neitzel, Detroit's speed skating school teacher, decisively demonstrated her superiority over Mrs. Leila Brooks Potter of Toronto, in their unofficial world championship series by winning today's three events.

Trailing after the 220-yard and three-quarter mile races yesterday, Miss Neitzel came back today to win the 440-yard, half mile and mile events for a point score of 110.

Following her in points were Mrs. Potter with 80; Miss Rose Marie Brady, Detroit, 69; Miss Margie Minneapolis 30, and Miss Jean Bolliotat Detroit, 10.

In winning the 440-yard race, the Detroit skater covered the distance in 44 seconds, bettering the recognized mark of Mrs Potter, 44 3-5 seconds, established here in 1926. The time, however, did not approach Miss Neitzel's 39 1-5 made at Minneapolis two weeks ago.

James Webster, St. Paul, Minn., won the senior men's trophy with 80 points.

GOLDEN ARROW CAPABLE OF 240 MILES, AND HOW!

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Major H. O. D. Segrave, American born British challenger for the world's automobile speed record, today said the car he intends to drive at Daytona Beach, Fla., next month, is scapable of attaining a speed of 240 miles an hour.

"I want to say now," the major asserted in an address at a luncheon of the Advertising club, "that 240 miles an hour is darned hard to do. Many factors enter into it, including the human factor, and when I say that it is possible with this car, I do not mean to assert positively that it will be attained.

"The engine isn't cooling properly until it is doing around 150. We will have trials at Daytona and a special system of steering will be devised which will call for having the car sighted as sensitively as a fine gun and aimed at an object in the distance.

"We hope to learn from such tests data that will be of value to the motor car builder of the future. Also we feel we are keeping up the old English tradition that calls for clean sportsmanship and although the present record of 207 miles per hour is held by the United States, we hope to give you a new mark to shoot at."

Major Segrave, who was introduced by Sir Charles Higham, British advertising man and toastmaster, as a native of Baltimore, was received after the luncheon by Mayor Walker, at City hall. The major and his party of 18, will leave New ork Mond afternoon for Daytona Beach. The automobile, called the Colden Arrow, and a speedboat which the major intends to test at Daytona for possible entry at the Miami regatta in March, were shipped south today.

Major Segrave, who is 31 years old, moved to England at the age of four and has lived there since that time. His father was English and his mother American.

During the World war Major Segrave served with the Royal Air force. He was wounded three times, but despite this he has won every grand prix race in Europe in the past seven years.

MONTVILLE

The regular monthly meeting of the Montville Community association was held at the Community house in Uncasville, Feb. 4. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. R. H. Meiler, and was attended by many of the townspeople. Several matters of interest to the town were discussed and assigned to the different committees. The music was in charge of Miss Alice Ramage, and after several songs were sung, the president introduced James L. Case of Norwich, who spoke very interestingly along the lines of community needs, and advised the way they could best be brought to the notice of the people. At the close of his remarks, he was given a rising vote of thanks. As soon as the ground is in condition, the publicity committee announces that signs will be placed at all entrances to the town, informing the public when they enter Montville. The next regular meeting will be held at the Community house in Uncasville.

BEGGARS IN HUNGARY MUST PAY TAX ON INCOMES

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 10—(AP)—All beggars in Hungary must henceforth pay taxes on their incomes the same as all other citizens, must register their name and address with the police and prove their inability to work.

It all came about when the government discovered that the president of the National Association of Hungarian Beggars had called a meeting of the association to be held at Szegzedin today. The meeting was promptly banned and dissolution of the organization demanded.

BOYS RAN AWAY BECAUSE THEY DIDN'T LIKE TEACHER

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Feb. 10—(AP)—Three runaway boys from East Cambridge, wet hungry and exhausted after tramping through snowdrifts over Florida mountain, were picked up today by local police. The boys are Gerald Mahoney, Michael Citro, and Joseph Intoske, all 14. They told police they decided to leave home yesterday because they did not like their school teacher. They rode from East Cambridge to the Hoosac tunnel in an empty freight car. After clughing trainmen they started their tramp over the mountain.

After one look at the "potatoes" the policeman slipped a pair of handcuffs on Ajonay.

$1,750,000 TO SECURE A SITE IN NEW LONDON

Addison Grant Fay, 63, Chicago explosive manufacturer and a native of Xenia, Ohio, died at Winter Haven, Fla.

"The fact that we were not permitted to smoke from the time the Graf Zeppelin left Friedrichshafen until we landed at Lakehurst only increased my appetite for a Lucky Strike. Oh, how good that first one tasted! I'm really keen for Lucky Strike—the toasted flavor is delightful. I smoke a Lucky instead of eating sweets—that's what many men have been doing for years. I think it high time we women smoked Luckies and kept our figures trim."

GRACE M. HAY DRUMMOND HAY

The modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet. Everyone is doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure. Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skilfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

"It's toasted"

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Gray Squirrel.

I always see him on my morning walk,
Were prisoner in a cage of strong wire net;
He comes and claws the wires and wants to talk—
Somebody's darling furry little pet.

"You look so sad, gray prisoner," I said,
"And yet your master must be kind and good."
He curved his bushy tail and cocked his head:
"I'm lonesome for my tree-home in the wood!"

—Marie Barton.

A Little Prayer.

Father of every living thing
In ocean deep, on earth so fair,
Of every bird on soaring wing
And myriad creatures of the air:

Give us, we pray, the willing mind
Our wondrous world to understand,
We would be merciful and kind
To bird and beast in every land

As to Thy creatures care we give
One thing we know will surely live,
Nearer to Heaven we all shall live
And all more truly worship Thee.

—Annie Starr.

Mocking Birds.
(At Night)

The mocking birds that love my laurel trees
Pour forth a glittering song upon the night
That sparkles like a spray of diamonds.
I marvel that my ears take not of light
And love this sudden shower of topaz stars,
This skyward rocketing of ruby notes.
These garnet jets that flash like meteors.
I wonder what inspired their little throats,
And if, in watching fireworks gem the sky,
They took this theme for imitating art.
Interpreting each flaming spark in sound,
That I might have this song to fire my heart.

—Hazel Harper Harris.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Have you ever heard the notes "Twee-seep." Undoubtedly they come from the Cedar waxwings or cherry-birds. The notes are quite unlike those of any other birds you are likely to meet. When you hear the notes look carefully about the tops of the neighboring trees and you will be quite sure to see a few of them. If the trees are in full leaf, the birds are hard to see, as they often sit quite still among the leaves. Still, the chances are that you will discover at least a few in the very top of some tree raising their crests and watching you. Or you may catch sight of a bird or two darting out after insects. When the trees are bare the whereabouts of the birds are quickly ascertained. The whole flock will then be discovered in some tree, the birds being perched near each other raising their crests from time to time and uttering their soft notes.

Cedar waxwings or cedar-birds are great fellows to roam around wherever their fancy leads them. When they find a tree loaded with berries, they are to be seen there from time to time until the berries are all eaten, then the flock moves on and hunts up another tree. Cedar-birds eat cedar berries, elder-berries, tame and wild cherries, the berries of the black haw and many other trees. Because of their fondness for tame cherries, they are often known as cherry-birds.

Cedar wax-wings are seven inches long, as large as our friend, the bluebird. They are a soft, grayish-brown in color, which shades to gray on the lower-back and yellowish underneath.

STORIES WRITTEN BY THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Making An Aeroplane.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you before. I hope you enjoy reading my story. The name of my story is Making An Aeroplane.

One day I did not have anything to do. I decided to make an aeroplane. We got some wood instead of iron; and some tools. We started making the aeroplane. We did not have enough lumber. I went down to the lumber mill and bought some lumber. I then made the motors, gas tank, oil can and propeller. I painted it a silver color. I printed on it, The Shooting Star.

I dressed up as an aviator. I got into the aeroplane. I soon was up in the air. The aeroplane worked O. K. A few days later I got a job in an aviation field for $40 a week.

Skating and Coasting.

Dear Uncle Jed: My most favorite winter sports are skating and coasting. Every pleasant day we girls gather and bike to a lake a mile away from our homes. To warm up a bit we skate awhile around the lake, then play our favorite game of hockey. After the hockey game is over we have our usual winter race, to find out who will be the champion skater of our group. Hailing, and giving the usual three cheers, to the winner, we're ready to start on our way to coast. When all are grouped on top of the hill, we choose one to time us. After the first leaves, three minutes between, others follow to avoid accident. Oh! such fun. Tired but happy we return to our homes, eagerly awaiting our next winter season.

Turkey Likes Cake

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first letter I have written to you. We take the Norwich Bulletin and I read the Wide Awake circle and enjoy it very much. I am going to tell you about my pet turkey. It was hatched in July. There were five female turkeys but none of them would take to the little one. My father found it almost dead one rainy day when it was about four weeks old. He brought it in the house and put it into a basket. The next two mornings when I got up I asked my sister if it was still alive. My sister said, "Yes." He is six months old now.

Every morning we have oatmeal for breakfast. One morning my sister gave it some and it took quite a few mouthfuls. Ever since it has had oatmeal. It also is very fond of cake. I went to it with cake in my hand. I wanted to see if it would like it. It sure did. It almost ate the whole piece of cake. Yesterday my sister had a piece of cake, went to it and turned her back, not thinking the turkey would take it. It went slowly over her shoulder while her head was turned and took a big bite. Then my sister put the cake from one shoulder to another. He could not get bite but finally succeeded in getting a bite.

The Forget-Me-Not

Dear Jed: I am writing the first time to the Wide Awake circle and will tell you about The Forget-Me-Not Flower.

The Forget-Me-Not is a bushy plant growing from six to eight inches in height. The flower grows in fields and in most places. The forget-me-not has five petals and a little eye in the center. The collar of it is yellow. It blooms in April, May, June and July. The color of the blossom is light blue. The blossom is the shape of a star.

My Pet Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide Awake circle. I will tell about my pet cat.

It is black and white and is very curious.

When the cat sees me going to the meat market Friday afternoons it follows me and says meow, meow. When I return from the store it gets on its hind legs and tries to get the piece of meat. I got it from the store. My cat only likes milk and meat. It always sleeps under the rocking chair on a rug.

I like it very much. It is my only pet.

My Visit to the Farm

Dear Uncle Jed: Today I will tell you about my visit to the farm.

Last summer about August, I went on a farm. I had a lot of fun. In the morning I saw the farmer milk the cows. After she milked them he told me to drive them out to the pasture. When I came back I ate my breakfast. After breakfast was over I went huckleberrying with a couple of boys who lived there. We stayed there until each of us had our two-quart pails full. On the way back we saw on a bush, a nest. We looked in and what do you think we saw? Two baby birds. One of the boys wanted to take them, but I told him not to. So we went on without disturbing them. When we reached the farm, they had already eaten their dinner. So, as soon as we finished washing our face and hands we started to eat our dinner.

After dinner, washed by berries to be ready to eat with milk at supper. After everything was done, we went fishing. We just caught two little fish so we threw them back in again. When we came home, it was quite dark, so I ate my supper and went to sleep in the hay, which was in the barn.

Likes Roller Skates

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about my roller skates. This Christmas I got a pair of skates and many other things. The best thing that seemed to me were my roller skates. When I woke up Christmas morning, I opened the door and saw under the Christmas tree a pair of skates, some handkerchiefs, perfume and many other things. Best of all I liked was my skates. I will close my story hoping to get a book.

What I do

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I am writing to you and I hope you will enjoy my story. When I get up I dress myself. Then I feed the chickens and get a little fresh air. I eat my breakfast at 7:30. I go to school at 8:30. I am in the fourth grade. When I come home it is 3:30. I feed the chickens at 4 o'clock, then I do errands. At 5 o'clock I go skating. At 6 o'clock I have my supper and at 7 I go after the milk. When I come home I get some small wood to light the fire in the morning. Well, I guess this is all I can write to you today because it is time to bring wood.

Helps Mother

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the third letter I have written to you and have received no books. I am going to tell you about my sliding.

Every night after I come home from school we help our mother with the work and then I go sliding. My sister, Alice, and Emma, go with me. We have a very good time and a good place to slide. Each one has a sled. When the snow is fit to make snow balls, we have a snow ball fight and we try to hit other things. This is lots of fun. When it gets dark we have to bring the wood into the house. Then we go in for the night.

Learning to Skate

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. I wish to tell you about my new skates I got for Christmas. I am learning to skate on a pond near our house. They are very easy to learn on, as they have two runners. My brother and I go skating every night after school when the weather is good. I can skate very nice now. I hope to skate as well as my brother before winter is over. This is all for this time. Will write again soon.

My Pets

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written you a letter. I want to tell you about my two calves. One is red and white. Her name is Pet. The other one is black and white. Her name is Daisy. She is the one I like best. I have lots of fun playing with them. Daisy likes to lick my face and chew my hat. I like my two pets.

I am in the fourth grade in school. I hope you will like my letter.

My Summer Vacation

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my fourth letter I have written to you. I thank you very much for my two books I have received. I am going to tell you about my summer vacation.

At the end of the year Miss Connolly said that she would take us to Ocean Beach. The children were very happy. We hired Mr. Minsk to take us to Ocean Beach. We each paid fifty cents to have him take us down there. It was a very nice day and we left Westchester around 8 o'clock in the morning and reached there about 9:30. The first thing we did was to go and see if the water was warm. At last Miss Connolly said we could go paddling, so we went. Then we went to the merry-go-round. I was the first one on the horses. We paid .04 for 40 rides or more around.

We stayed there for two hours or more. Then Miss Connolly said that we had better start for home. We left at 4 o'clock and reached Westchester around 5:30. We told our mothers all about our trip. She was very glad when bedtime came.

A Visit to the Zoo

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to you. I am going to tell you about a visit to the zoo.

One evening I asked my father if we could go to the zoo in the morning. He said yes.

We were up early and mother got a good lunch ready. We were soon riding to the zoo. In about three hours we were there. The first thing we went to see were the monkeys. Mother told us to come to the car in a little while and if they were not there my sister and I should wait awhile. We told her we would when came to the monkey my sister gave him a small cocoanut. Instead of taking it he started to jump around. We got scared and started running. We thought we were running to the car but we were not. We soon realized that we were far from the car because we looked all over and we could not see it. All of a sudden I looked up and I saw father and mother. I quickly grabbed my sister and ran toward them. Father said he was looking for us. We told him the story as we were talking back to the car. We soon reached the car and were having lunch. After lunch we enjoyed ourselves without any more excitement.

Two Crows Die

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. I thought you would like to hear about my wild crows. I got them in the fall near our corn field. I brought them home and put them in a wire yard and was going to tame them. I gave two of them to a boy friend and I kept two for myself. I took too much care of them. I fed them too many worms and they died. I was very sorry indeed. If I should get any more I will know better than feed them too much.

My Kind Act

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the fourth time I have written to you. Now I'm going to tell you about My Kind Act.

One evening as I sat gazing out of the window I saw the most pitiful sight. A car ran over a little pussy cat. Car by car ran over it, but not one of them took pity on the poor little creature. I ran out of the house and rescued it. One of its legs was broken. It also had a cut on its ear. The wounds are healed now and the cat is a very nice pet.

My Pet Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written before and I like to write to you and the Wide Awakes. I am going to write about my pet dog. When he was only a week old he started to jump around. He was smarter than any of the other puppies. I had five of them, but he was the best. When I would go to school he would follow me. Sometimes I would be late trying to chase him home, as he would chase to go back. When he grew older I had to give him to a boy friend of mine. I gave the dog to him because I live in the city and he lives where there is not so much traffic. I don't like to see dumb animals hurt because I like them very much.

Coasting A Delight

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to you and I will tell about how I go coasting on my sled. Near my house is a big hill and all my friends and I go sliding on it. Sometimes our sleds don't go straight when we come to icy places and we fall off of our sleds, but we have lots of fun just the same. I like to coasting and I would like to skate, too, only my mother says I am too small yet.

The Landslide

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you and to the Wide Awake circle. As I have received a very nice present for my first story, I thought I would try to get another book for the story on The Landslide.

As Teddy and I were riding along on a grassy plain shadowed by a large mountain, we came upon a porcupine sleeping soundly in a little gap by a brook. It was hidden so good that "Flash," my horse, nearly stepped on it and thereby waking it from its peaceful sleep. It looked at us meaningly and watched every action we did. Teddy wanted to take it home to his sister but as its back was covered with quills as its means of defense, he could not gather it up. The animal brushed against my horse's leg and the horse snorted in fear as it felt the sharp quills. "Hey, Porky, get away from there," roared the disgusted Teddy. As if it had understood, it moved away into the bushes. "Gee," said Teddy, "I wish there would be some excitement around here." As if in answer to Teddy's wish, afar away a rumble was heard up the side of the mountain and a shower of dirt fell upon us "A landslide!" I shouted and spurred "Flash" with my heels. "Come on," I called, but could hardly be heard over the roar. Teddy likewise spurred his mount and we dashed madly over rocks and branches. We had left the landslide behind and we were going top speed when we came to a yawning chasm. We could not stop our horses at times so we let them go never hoping to be able to jump across. We somehow did it for we were standing safely on the other side. I am thankful for that.

The Unfortunate Bird.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you how I once saved the life of a bird. One winter day, having nothing to do, I decided to take a walk in the woods. The day was very sunny and my heart was joyful, so I began to hum as I walked along. As I walked along I heard a slight sound in the undergrowth. I went over to the place whence came the noise and listened. I heard the noise again. When I looked down I saw a small bird. On closer inspection I found that the bird was a wren and it had a broken foot. I felt sorry for the lonesome soul and took it home.

As soon as I reached home I got some bandages and after washing the bird's wound in lukewarm water and disinfectant, I placed the bone in position as well as I could, and bandaged it. I then put the bird in a safe place and got a box. From the latter I made a cage for the bird. I gave the bird some crumbs but he did not eat them, so I obtained some chick feed and the bird ate it.

I nursed the bird for three days in this way; occasionally changing the bandages. At the end of the three days I saw that the bird could use the injured foot, but it was not happy. I knew that it was captivity that saddened the bird. That afternoon I took the now healthy bird and threw it into a tree gently. It sat on the branch for about a minute. Then it flew off. I was happy because the bird could fly once more.

In that way I helped and perhaps saved the life of an unfortunate bird. The kind deed cost me nothing but a few minutes of work.

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Price Of Heedlessness.

When you've been heedless once or twice
You've learned you always pay a price.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse has had many narrow escapes and many great frights, but never was he more frightened than now. Blacky the Crow had him by the tail. It was only the tip of the tail, but that hurt. However, Danny wasn't thinking of the pain. He wasn't suffering from the hurt, but from fright. Blacky the Crow was trying to pull him out of the snow. You see, Danny had dived headfirst into one of his little tunnels leading down from the surface of the snow on the Green Meadows. Now he dug his claws into the walls of that little tunnel and held on.

Danny knew perfectly well that he was paying the price of heedlessness. Had he heeded the advice of Nanny

Blacky the Crow had him by the tail

Meadow Mouse he wouldn't be in any such difficulty now. No, sir, he wouldn't be in any such difficulty now. But he hadn't heeded Nanny's advice and he had been careless and heedless and now Blacky the Crow had him by the tip of the tail.

The tail of Danny Meadow Mouse, you know, very short. That meant that if Blacky could just pull him out of that hole, let go for just a second and strike again, it would be the end of Danny. Danny felt his claws slipping. It was a dreadful feeling. He dug them in frantically. It was no use. They were slipping, slipping, and in a second or two they would let go altogether.

Blacky the Crow braced himself and gave an extra pull. This was too much for Danny. Out he came! And then a funny thing happened. Blacky was pulling so hard, and Danny let go so suddenly, that Blacky half lost his balance and he let go of Danny's tail. He had jerked Danny out so suddenly that when he let go, Danny went flying over behind him.

Now, despite his fright, Danny didn't lose his wits. This was all as unexpected to him as it was to Blacky the Crow, but Danny didn't waste any time. The instant he touched the snow he was on his feet and scurrying for another little hole. With a hoarse "Caw! Caw!" Blacky was after him. But Blacky wasn't the only one who was after him. Roughleg the Hawk had discovered that something was going on and he had come over to see what it was all about. He had arrived just as Danny was pulled out by Blacky, but he wasn't set to swoop instantly.

Blacky the Crow hadn't noticed Roughleg. He had but one thought and that was to catch Danny Meadow Mouse. So he started after Danny half-flying, half-running, just as Roughleg made a swoop to try to pick up Danny. The result was that Blacky got in the way. Blacky was knocked flat and Roughleg, of course, failed to catch Danny. My, my, such angry birds! Roughleg blamed Blacky the Crow and Blacky declared that that was his Meadow Mouse, anyway, and he called Roughleg a robber and a lot of unpleasant names. But he took pains to do it from a safe distance. You see, Blacky had no desire for a fight with Roughleg. He knew he was no match for him. Roughleg looked at Blacky as if he were thinking of attacking him. Then he changed his mind and looked around for Danny Meadow Mouse.

Meanwhile, Danny had made good his escape. By the time Blacky and Roughleg were through quarreling, Danny had joined Nanny in their snug little home down under the snow, and was telling her all about his terrible experience. Nanny didn't say a word until Danny was all through. Then she said, "It served you right," and not another word more. Danny nad looked for sympathy, but when he thought it all over, he had to admit to himself that he didn't deserve any.

BUSINESS GENERALLY CONTINUED SATISFACTORY DURING PAST WEEK

WEEKLY BUSINESS REVIEW

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Several major industries showed expansion of activity during the past week and business generally continued satisfactory. The federal reserve board, however, called attention in decisive language to what it regards as a rather precarious condition of the credit structure.

While the large corporations still showed no effects from the persistently high credit rates, building permits fell off considerably in January, save for New York city and the far west and there was a growing tendency on the part of bankers to believe that the high rates are imposing an increasing restraint upon smaller businesses.

The federal reserve board, in a statement declaring that the absorption of federal reserve credit for speculative purposes must cease, pointed out "the extraordinary absorption of funds in speculative security loans deserves particular attention lest it become a decisive factor working toward a still further firming of money rates to the prejudice of the country's commercial interests."

Federal reserve brokers loans however, mounted another $110,000,000 to a record total of $5,669,000,000. The board's statement caused a severe reaction on the stock market late in the week, but whether liquidation on the market will continue, or whether the reserve board will be able to restrain the further absorption of credit in the stock market, remains to be seen.

Several economists have defended brokers' loans as permitting a new and more desirable form of financing through stock rather than funded debt. The U. S. Realty and Improvement company, announced during the week a plan of extending stock financing to building, now largely financed through mortgages. Stock financing, however, is not often available to the small business.

It had been hoped in some quarters that the solution of the problem might be the broadening of the credit structure through gold imports, but this solution was eliminated by an increase in the Bank of England's discount rate from 4 1-2 to 5 1-2 per cent. Commercial credit rates during the week held from 1½ to 1 1-2 points above their levels of a year ago.

The metal industries still held the lead. The price of coper was boosted a full half cent during the week to 18 cents a pound, domestic, which is five cents above the price at this time two years ago. The demand for the red metal, both foreign and domestic, has held a high level, with the automobile, radio and electrical equipment industries operating at or near capacity.

The demand for steel, particularly for automotive, railway and structural products, showed some increases bringing mill operations generally near 90 per cent of capacity. Steel prices held steady. U. S. Steel reported unfilled tonnage January 31, 132,775 tons higher than December 31, a somewhat more moderate gain than is expected.

Automobile production continued to gain. January production is estimated at 400,000 cars and trucks for the United States and Canada, a record for that month. Machine tool, farm implement and silk manufacturers, were unusually busy. Shoe manufacturing was also accelerated, although the hide market was still unsettled. Cotton textile prices were rather unsettled, and there was further talk of cutting down production.

Crude oil production continued to gain, and the trade was rather pessimistic over the immediate prospects of control. Consolidations within the industry were seen as the most likely means of bringing production into line with consumption.

The January insolvency record showed a decline numerically, but a gain in total liabilities. For the first week of February, the record showed a slight increase. Freight car loadings declined slightly from the previous week, but were well above the like week of 1928.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—With four and five million share days becoming common on the New York stock exchange, some of the larger brokerage houses are considering asking the exchange to approve the so-called skip-delivery plan as a means of facilitating delivery of securities. Under this plan, stock bought Monday would be delivered and paid for on Wednesday, instead of Tuesday as at present. Tuesday transactions would be deliverable Thursday and so on.

The new telephone quotation system of the New York stock exchange is scheduled to become operative tomorrow at all except one post. Later facilities will be available for installing private wires from main offices of exchange members to the telephone quotation room, enabling them to obtain quotations direct from the floor when the ticker fails behind the market.

A new coastwise, Diesel-electric tanker, with a capacity of 20,000 barrels of gasoline and 55,000 gallons of lubricating oil, is under construction for the Tide Water Oil company. It will ply between Portland, Me., and Hampton oads, a.

Mid-west steel circles are expecting higher prices on flat rolled steels.

The Walthall's Radio Stores, New York, and Wextark Radio Stores, Chicago, have been merged as the nucleus of a wider chain of radio stores.

The National Lumber Manufacturers association and the Canadian Lumbermen's association have agreed to co-operate in promoting the interest of the whole North American lumber market.

Corporation annual earnings reports published to date for more than 500 companies show combined 1928 earnings increased about 11 per cent. compared with 1927, says American Bankers' Association Journal. Industry and trade, the journal adds, have made a promising start this year, with indications that the year will not differ markedly from the two preceding years.

GALES FERRY

FUNERAL SERVICE SUNDAY FOR REV. GEORGE H. WRIGHT

Funeral services for Rev. George Henry Wright, who died at his home in Gales Ferry, Friday, at 10:45 a. m., were held at Gales Ferry Methodist Episcopal church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and were conducted by Rev. Jerome Greer, pastor of the church, and the district superintendent, Rev. Myron E. Genter, of Norwich. Favorite hymns were softly played by Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt on the organ preceding and following the service. Relatives and many local and out-of-town friends were in attendance. A delegation of 12 from Fairview lodge, I. O. O. F., of Groton, was present and conducted their ritual at the grave, preceding the final service by Rev. Mr. Greer and District Superintendent Genter. Local friends, D. R. Povey, C. E. Colver, Carroll S. Hurlbutt and Walter M. Buckingham, were the bearers, burial being in the village cemetery.

Rev. Mr. Wright was born in Gaysville, Vt., Feb. 18, 1854, the son of George H. and Lydia Jane LeBarron Wright, and lacked but 10 days of his 75th birthday. He is survived by his wife, with whom he observed their 48th wedding anniversary Jan. 9th, by two sons, Warren Henry Wright of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and William K. Wright of Gales Ferry, a daughter, Mrs. Mae Pike, of New York city, by five grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Rev. Mr. Wright was pastor of Gales Ferry church during 1920 and 1921, coming here from the Niantic church. He served several pastorates on the New England southern conference, although retaining his membership in the Vermont conference. His last charge was in Sterling, Conn., in 1926. He came here to reside in his new home the following year, on his retirement from the active ministry. His health became impaired during his last pastorate and an acute condition of the heart developed last November from which he failed to rally. His passing is deeply regretted by a large circle of friends and former parishioners.

DEFENSE GATHERS EVIDENCE FOR GINGERELLA TRIAL

Plans for the defense are being made by counsel for Louis Gingerella charged with the slaying with a shotgun of Santo Gaccione Jan. 21st as Gaccione lay asleep in bed at his home, 4 Marion street. Sunday afternoon Wilbur F. Turner of Boston came before Judge Oliver H. Williams in the Third District court and made an examination of the shotgun and shells which were introduced as evidence in the district court on Feb. 1 and 2, during the trial of the case. Capt. Charles Van Amburg, a firearms expert from Boston, was one of the state's chief witnesses at the examination in the third district court, and he was present during the examination conducted by Mr. Turner Sunday. Tests were made by firing blank shells in the shotgun alleged to have been taken from the Gingerella house. Attorney Anthony Pettine of Providence and Attorney W. Walter Flynn, of Westerly, counsel for Gingerella, were present. At the close of the examination through an agreement by Attorney Louis V. Jackvony of the attorney-general's department and Attorney Pettine, the exhibits which were impounded in the district court, were placed in the custody of Chief Thomas E. Brown. It is understood further examinations of the gun and shells will be made in Boston, someday this week. The case goes to the grand jury of the superior court for Washington County at South Kingston, Feb. 18. Sunday afternoon an examination was made by the defense of the hole in the side of the Gaccione house, 4 Marion street, said to have been made by a bullet which killed Gaccione. Engineer Louis J. Rossi has been engaged to present the defense as engineer. Engineer A. L. Leon made measurements at the house and was one of the witnesses of the state at the examination in the district court Feb. 1.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Elmer Rice's stage play, "On Trial," as everybody interested in the theatre remembers, was one of the phenomenal successes of recent years, and the all-talking version is even more intensely spellbinding than the original.

The cast is headed by one of the greatest emotional actresses of the generation, Pauline Frederick whose screen characterizations of "Madame X," "Zaza," "Fedora," and similar parts have made her a unique place. In "On Trial" Miss Frederick plays the wife of the murdered man.

Bert Lytell gives one of his finest performances as the man accused and finally acquitted by the unwritten law. This part is a worthy successor to his portrayal of Lord Windermere in Warner Bros.' "Lady Windermere's Fan."

Lois Wilson, as the young wife and mother, entrapped in the grim trial without the ability to cast off the entanglements of an early indiscretion over which she had no power, also gives a performance of moving simplicity.

Vondell Darr, the little blonde child, who, if we are not mistaken, is the first little girl to play in talking pictures, is charmingly ingenuous. It is she who when called to the witness stand, unwittingly brings about the truth—and turns the attention of the defense to the man who really committed the robbery, which is also a part of the complicated case.

Johnny Arthur is convincing as the conscience-haunted thief who finally confesses in response to a question shot at him by the defense. The cast of "On Trial" is made up of people who have both stage and screen experience and whose voices record perfectly on Vitaphone. There is, also of course, the symphonic accompaniment which interprets the changing moods of the tense melodrama.

Last night's audience was held spellbound and there was the spontaneous applause which marks only plays which have fired the imaginations of the onlookers.

"On Trial" is a brilliant picture, brilliantly done—it is the greatest of the all-talking pictures. See and hear "On Trial".

Breed Theatre

Our own gorgeously beautiful Billie Dove never appeared to better advantage than in "Adoration," her newest First National picture which is the present attraction at the Breed theatre.

In exquisite garb, with a role that calls for stirring emotional acting, and supported by a superb cast, she has a splendid opportunity for again proving her ability as well as once more assuring us that there is no lovelier woman gracing the screen today.

The story is by Lajos Biro, adapted and scenarized by Winifred Dunn and directed by Frank Lloyd, who recently made "The Divine Lady" starring Corinne Griffith. It deals with the plight of Russian royalty and aristocracy following the revolution. They flee to Paris and there their destinies are worked out. The theme of jealousy forms the basis of the story and involves the lovely Princess Elena and her consort, Prince Serge, played by Antonio Moreno with great skill.

Several arresting types are found in the picture. Lucy Doraine in the part of the maid to the princess, a good role, is a former UFA star, known as "the girl with the million dollar legs," a genuine beauty from Budapest. Nicholas Soussanin, a native of Crimea, and former Russian stage star, is the villain; Nicholas Bela, of the Comedie Francais, in Paris, and the Gaiety stock company in Budapest, is the valet, Ivan; Emil Chautard, former well-known director, is a Russian general; Winifred Bryson, Lucien Prival and others complete an admirably selected cast.

Palace Theatre

The program which opens at the Palace theatre today brings to the stage of this theatre as the headline attraction Princess Watawasa Revue with her all American Indian company in an Indian revue with Little Bird and Old Wolf and Young Chief Poolan. This is the only act of its kind on the American stage today. McGill and Bigelow in "The Silent Fool" will hand you more than your share of laughs. Nina Canont, the cute little girl with the golden voice, Rathburn Four featuring Master Vernon, world's greatest triple tounged saxophonist, and opening this well balanced program is The Great Johnson in a De Luxe Novelty.

Ricardo Cortez, starring in Tiffany-Stahl's "The Gun Runner," the feature until Wednesday at the Palace theatre, doubled — or rather, tripled—in brass, as the saving grace by serving as interpreter during scenes in which some Mexican extras were used, and also furnished several thousands of dollars worth of Indian blankets for decorating the inn used as the principal setting of the film.

The Mexicans were supposed to have some knowledge of English but it proved so fragmentary that the director was in despair until Cortez offered his interpreter. Long periods of travel in South and Central America had made him familiar with the varied patois of the countries there. It was also during those pleasure trips that he began his collection of Indian art which comprises many valuable items besides the display of blankets and rugs which appear to such advantage in "The Gun Runner."

"The Gun Runner" was suggested by Arthur Stringer's thrilling adventure yarn, directed by Edgar Lewis. Nora Lane, John St. Polis and Gino Corrado complete the cast.

COURAGEOUS NEW LONDON WOMAN GETS ANNOYER FINED $50 AND COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 10—Leslie Young, 32, residing at 230 Connecticut avenue, an electrician, appears to have a mania for annoying women, but not until Saturday did his practices bring to him a penalty in the police court, although he has been there before, only to escape without being fined or sent to jail. Young went to the Capitol theatre Friday night and was particular to seat himself beside Mrs. Michael J. Connelly. Hardly had Young become seated than his hands began to wander and in a way which Mrs Connelly strongly objected, for she immediately manifested her annoyance by the ugly looks directed at the male at her side persisted in mauling the woman and when the young man's actions were no longer bearable, Mrs. Connelly arose and as she did so she dealt Young a vicious blow on the face. Mrs. Connelly then went to the street where she made complaint to Patrolman William Riordan, who arrested Young in court Saturday. Young entered a plea of not guilty, but Mrs. Connelly, upon giving testimony, so convincingly related what had occurred that Young was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail, but execution of the jail sentence was suspended. Young was arrested some time ago for placing obscene literature in the automobile of a young woman while the machine was parked on State street. He has also been accused of annoying students at Connecticut college.

The parents has not reported the disappearance of the girl or money at police headquarters, but is pursuing personal methods in trying to locate her daughter. The disappearance of the girl is said to be the result of the mother constantly censuring the latter because she absented herself from home after 8 o'clock at night and the girl becoming humiliated because she was compelled to return home at that early hour decided to go away. She is known to have been on friendly terms with a member of the crew of the United States Coast Guard cutter Downes, but that young man is still aboard the boat, showing that he did not go away with the girl.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 10—Leroy Vanderhorst, colored, a cook on U. S. S. Monaghan, Coast Guard service, made complaint to the police this afternoon that early this morning he was brutally assaulted by C. Vanderhorst and Jones were at the residence, 11 Pearl street, Saturday night, and there became involved over the genuineness of a bill of $20 denomination, which Jones possessed. It is claimed that the bill was spurious and that Vanderhorst was aware of the fact. When Jones attempted to secure change for the bill, and it was denied him, Jones accused Vanderhorst of making it known that the bill was a counterfeit. A row followed and when Vanderhorst ran from the house he was followed by Jones with a stove poker. Overtaking Vanderhorst in the yard, Jones dealt him a blow on the head which opened the scalp. The wound was dressed by a physician. Jones is now under arrest aboard the Monaghan. ROSE OF NEW ENGLAND LODGE HOLDS SEVENTH ANNUAL BANQUET

About 100 B'nai Brith members and guests, including the president of the Ladies' auxiliary of New London and members of Fraternity lodge, No. 742, I. O. B. B., of that city, were present at the seventh annual banquet, held by the Rose of New England lodge, No. No. 898, I. O. B. B., in conjunction with the Ladies' auxiliary, No. 40, held at the B'nai Brith rooms, Uncas Merchants bank building, Sunday evening. Max Hanover presided as toastmaster and the guests were Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Leo J. Lyons of the Boston Globe staff, Dr. George H. Cohen, Ph. D., assistant United States district attorney of Hartford and B'nai Brith general committeeman and District Deputy Nestor Dreyfus of New London.

The toastmaster opened the meeting at 7:15 o'clock and welcomed the guests and speakers. He spoke of the new enthusiasm of both men's and ladies' lodges and the new Norwich B'nai Brith home. Mr. Hanover spoke of the work achieved by the B'nai Brith of Norwich up to the present day congratulating the members and wished them success for the future. The toastmaster then called upon Mayor Robbins for a few words of greeting, which were received with enthusiastic applause. Leo J. Lyons acted as installing officer.

After the installation Mr. Lyons gave an inspiring address telling about the contribution of Jewish men to the things which make America the greatest country in the world and stressed especially what the B'nai Brith is doing in the process of Americanization and good will between all people. Mrs. Alex Pasnik, who has the honor of being elected for seven consecutive terms to the office of president of the auxiliary, was called upon for a few remarks. In introducing Mrs. Pasnik the toastmaster said that if one would ask him what was the outstanding contributing factor which conduced to the maintenance of the B'nai Brith of Norwich he would say without hesitation that the enthusiasm of the organization was renewed from time to time by the untiring effort and enthusiasm of the auxiliary president.

Mrs. Pasnik, in her address, pledged the members for co-operation in the work of B'nai Brith, both in Jewish lore and in Americanism. Oscar Silverman, newly elected president of the 898, was the next to be called upon for a few remarks and he promised that he would serve the organization to the best of his ability. Nestor Dreyfus of New London followed. In introducing Mr. Dreyfus, the toastmaster said that it was due to Mr. Dreyfus' activities that Norwich is enjoying the pleasures of a B'nai Brith organization. Mr. Dreyfus spoke of what a B'nai Brith member must do to make himself worthy of the organization.

The speaker of the evening Dr. George H. Cohen, Ph. D., who is a noted orator and a man interested in patriotic and civic activities of all kinds, gave a thrilling address, citing by many illustrations how good will is being brought about by people of advanced intelligence who know that the greatness of the United States of America lies in tolerance of its citizens, that all unfriendly barriers between people of different races and denominations are being broken down, and he urged the members that each one constitute himself, a committee to work for this better friendly relation among all people.

The speaker assured his listeners that this effort will contribute greatly to the glory of the United States of America. Before adjourning the proceedings the toastmaster presented to Mrs. Alexander Pasnik a gift provided by the sisters of the organization, which consisted of an opal and gold mounted past president's B'nai Brith charm, representing the emblem of the order, a seven armed candelabra and the seven lights are represented by seven jewels illuminating the charm. Mrs. Pasnik accepted this token of good will with very fitting remarks. Jacob Wechsler, the outgoing president of the Rose of New England lodge, No. 898, was presented a traveling bag for his service rendered. A social hour followed:

COMMENDS ACTIVITIES OF COUNTY FARM BUREAU

Development of proper loyalty to the institutions that encourage and strengthen home ties and educational and spiritual advantages is an immediate task of first importance in every community, declares S. H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in a message received by W. W. Service, of Norwich, president of the New London County Farm Bureau, and secretary of the state farm bureau organization.

Unless these local agencies are properly fostered and supported, Mr. Thompson declares, "their lack will result in the development of other activities that tear down rather than build up strong character and an everyday life unbalanced by discontent and unhappiness.

"It therefore becomes the duty of every county farm bureau to co-operate with all the forces of good to help direct community life in channels that build strong character so that men and women when they go from the farm may continue to be fit for places of leadership in the affairs of the state and nation. We must work to bring contentment to the farm home, without which there can be neither peace, happiness nor prosperity.

"The farm bureau should help farmers with their community problems. Our goal must be better churches and schools, roads and homes, so that the boys and girls on the farms of this country may have as good a chance for a clean, hopeful life as boys and girls in the most favored cities. This means more to us than money in the bank.

"What is the farm bureau and what does it do? is a question often asked," Mr. Thompson's message continues. "It is a vast organization with more than one million farm families behind it in 15,000 communities located in 45 states. Its aim is to advance agriculture and in that it is rapidly becoming a clearing house on which the thinking farmer depends for information to help him to better understanding of his own business and which enables him to co-operate with his neighbors to solve many problems that cannot be solved by the farmers as individuals. To an increasing degree it is becoming the voice of the farmer in these problems."

Mr. Thompson commended highly the various activities carried on by the Connecticut state farm bureau federation and the New London County Farm Bureau.

"It is a splendid evidence of your organization's standing," he said, "to see your state president, S. McLean Buckingham, of Watertown, serving as your state's commissioner of agriculture.

"Your program of service to the agricultural interests of this state has also been called to my attention and certainly it is a practical plan and not impossible of achievement if every farmer gets behind it and gives it the moral support it should have. For future generations of farmers and for Connecticut in general it perhaps means more than your estimate of present benefits.

"It might be well to bear in mind that not all the results of this campaign can be measured in dollars and cents, for while the farmers of New Haven county are being taught how to improve production and thus increase their incomes they are also learning the value of working together.

"Community consciousness is no doubt being awakened and rural isolation is being broken down. If the farm bureau does nothing more than to bring to Connecticut farmers a vision of a permanent, profitable, contented agriculture, supported by an intelligent and sympathetic rural citizenry, then the existence of this organization is fully justified. Line up, farmers of New London county, behind your local farm bureau and help it to help you."

FRANK DENESI FINED AND GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

Frank Denesi, 50, alleged proprietor of the Commercial house, Railroad avenue, was fined a total of $500 and costs on three charges, when presented in the city court Saturday morning. He received a fine of $200 for having made an actual sale, $200 for keeping liquor with intent to sell and $100 for having a gambling device in his possession. The three men were arrested by the state police after a raid at the Commercial house, where a quantity of liquor was found. Sullivan and Carbray were in the place at the time and were arrested. A warrant was then issued for the arrest of Denesi, alleged proprietor, who gave himself up a week ago Saturday.

TAFTVILLE

MRS. JOSEPH JODOIN DIES AS RESULT OF SHOCK

Mrs. Malvina Lambert Jodoin, aged 70, wife of Joseph Jodoin, passed away early Saturday morning following a shock, at her home on Jewett City road. Mrs. Jodoin was born in the province of Quebec, Canada, but came to this country when a young child. She had been a resident of Taftville for over 50 years. She was the daughter of David and Emily Lambert. During her long residence in the village she had won many friends who deeply mourn her loss. She was a member of the Sacred Heart church.

Mrs. Jodoin is survived by her husband, three daughters, Mrs. Charles J. Bolduc of Broad street, Norwich, Mrs. John Lee of Huntington Beach, California and Miss Nolia Jodoin, at home, one son Arthur Jodoin also of Taftville, and a brother Thomas Lambert of North B street.

The thirty-fifth annual masquerade ball of the Taftville Maennerchor club was given Saturday evening at the club house on Mannerchor avenue. There was a large crowd in attendance and the costumes were novel and varied. The Maennerchor orchestra played for the dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laramie of Plainfield have been visiting Mr. Laramie's brother-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith and Miss Lillian Laramie of North B street.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Whitehead and little daughter Arline have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue.

The carnival being given by the Taftville Athletic association came to a close Saturday evening at Parish hall. Many novelties and attractions were introduced and the booths enjoyed liberal patronage. Humphrey's orchestra played for the dancing. The proceeds are to be used for the support of various athletic sports in the village during the coming season. James H. Troland was chairman of the committee which had the event in charge and the secretary was Thomas F. Labbee.

While the pre-lenten celebrations which used to take place in the village years ago on Shrove Tuesday known as Pancake Tuesday were more elaborate than they have been in recent years, the day before the beginning of lent will be celebrated to some extent. A number of parties have already been planned, and bands of costumed and masked revellers will roam the streets, later going to dances. At these events prizes are awarded each year to the masker having the most unique or original costume.

Taftville people were saddened to learn of the death of Mrs. Helen Bjurstrom of Norwich. For many years Mrs. Bjurstrom was a resident of North Third avenue, having made her home in this village since coming to this country from Sweden

INTERESTING SERVICE AT "Y" SUNDAY AFTERNOON

A service of real interest was held in the gymnasium of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. A very large audience was present. After the singing of America the reading of the scriptures and the prayer, several fine slides on Abraham Lincoln were shown.

A four reel feature picture titled, "Herbert Hoover, the man of Destiny" was shown, and this portrayed very vividly and true to the facts, the early part of his life, and particularly his unequalled success as food administrator, both during the war and after the war was over. The large audience frequently applauded the wonderful relief work of the president-elect. The pictures portrayed Hoover's leadership in relief work on account of the Mississippi flood. In all of his efforts Hoover demonstrated his foresight and marvelous ability as master of very difficult situations.

During the service a brief talk was given by Secretary Edwin Hill, and he spoke in part as follows: "Herbert Hoover, the man of destiny." It is evident that from his birth he was destined to be a great man. Every one here has a destiny, and let us hope that we all may fulfil our destinies as God purposed that we should.

Mr. Hoover lost his father at a very early age, and his blacksmith shop was sold, and the small amount was put away to help educate the three children. When Herbert was about ten years old his mother who was a sort of preacher on the Friends denomination, had been away from home holding meetings, and she was stricken in the meeting and brought home very ill. During two nights Herbert heard whispers that made him anxious. His mother died in the night and through the next morning the relatives filled the house of the dead, yet it was empty to Herbert because mother had gone.

Soon after Herbert left home to live with an uncle on a farm. He took with him his scanty clothes, and also two framed mottos his mother had given him beautifully worked in wool: one read "Leave me not, neither forsake me, O God of my salvation," and the other read, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." In due time Herbert determined to secure an education, and we know how thorough his education was. He graduated from Stanford university. We all recall the words connected with the pictures of the great man, "Hoover fed the world." He certainly has performed remarkable tasks for the blessing of humanity, and he is surely a safe man for the presidency. He will with doubt have a very successful administration, and in my humble judgment there are three reasons why he will be successful as the nation's leader; first he has ability; second and third, and most important of all, he and, he faces his tasks with courage, believes in God and in Jesus Christ and his trust in divine leading is undoubted."

Hugh Kinder furnished appropriate music for the service. Three members of the Boy Scout Troop No. 1 acted as ushers and gathered the offering. The beautiful slides used in the service were a part of the fine donation of lantern slides to the "Y" by Miss Farrington of Oneco street, whose brother, recently deceased, had a rather unusual selection of beautiful slides.

NORWICH TOWN

TROOP 2 CELEBRATES SCOUTS' ANNIVERSARY

The Boy Scouts of Troop 2 of Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church celebrated the 19th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America with a special service Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, gave an address on "The Value of Scouting." He said in substance, "What shall it profit this church if it gain in temporal prosperity and lose the interest and attention of its boys? The Boy Scouts of America was incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, Feb. 8, 1910. The movement was brought over from England by W. D. Boyce, a business man who became interested in the organization because an English Boy Scout did him a good turn while he was on a business trip. In the Boy Scouts we mix common sense with religion. We take what the boy likes and on to it we graft what he needs. We approach boys as personalities not as human animals or just kids. We take them into partnership. We value and respect the good will of these boys just as much as we value the good will of successful business men. We enroll these boys under a Christian standard as they take this oath, 'On my honor I will do my best, to do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Laws. To help other people at all times. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

At the beginning of the service the Boy Scouts, who sat in a body, stood and repeated the Scout oath and Scout laws after they had saluted the flag. The Wolf Cub Pack of scouts, also seated in a body, gave their promise and laws and joined in the salute to the Flag. At the close of the service the Scout benediction was repeated by all. The Junior choir sang. The soloist of the evening was Lloyd Thompson, who gave in a pleasing voice, "Close to Thee." Miss Natalie Service was accompanist. There was an attendance of 93 at the service.

At the morning service the pastor preached on "Behold The Man, Lincoln." The Junior choir, under direction of Mrs. Lewis Aldrich, sang an anthem. The children were told a story by Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter. Virginia Ward was the speaker at the Junior Epworth league service, the topic, "How Large Is My Church." The meeting was in charge of the pastor. Mary Waters was pianist, in the absence of Doris Rose. Miss Florence M. Bennett gave a most interesting talk on "Jesus Teaching Us To Serve," at the meeting of the C. E. Virginia Ward and Florence Gembel sang a duet.

Marching instructions were given by Patrol Leader Charles Ryan, assisted by Walter Starback. Music accompanied the marching also the songs by the boys, which included, Sonny Boy, There's a Rainbow Around My Shoulder, and other popular song hits. Ping pong, was the favorite game during the game period. The boys decided to hold a meeting every two weeks. The meeting closed with the Scout oath and law, salute to the flag, and Scout benediction.

POETRY

A Deeper Life

The Master stood upon the mount, and taught.
He saw a fire in His disciples' eyes;
"The old law," they said, "is wholly come to naught.
Behold the new world rise!"

"Was it," the Lord then said, "with scorn ye saw
The old law observed by Scribes and Pharisees?
I say unto you, see that ye keep that law
More faithfully than these!

"Too hasty heads for ordering worlds alas!
Think not that I to annul the law have willed;
No jot, no title from the law shall pass
Till all have been fulfilled."

So Christ said eighteen hundred years ago.
And what shall he said to those today,
Who cry aloud to lay the old world low
To clear the new world's way?

"Religious fervors! ardor misapplied!
Hence, Hence," they cry, "ye do but keep man blind!
But keen him self-immersed, preoccupied,
And lame the active mind!"

Ah! from the old world let someone answer give:
"Scorn ye this world, their tears, their inward cares?
I say unto you, see that your souls live
A deeper life than theirs!"

—Matthew Arnold.

To the Modern Man

From mysteries of the Past
The future is prophesied.
The Actual comes and goes
Like shadows on a tide.

Realities come and go
Like shadows on a pool—
The leaves are for the wise man,
The shadows for the fool.

Out of the moment Now
Rises the god To-Be.
The light upon his brow
Is from eternity.

Leave dreaming to the fool
And take things as they are;
All things are in yourself,
Who stands upon a star.

And look upon the stars,
And yearn with deepening dream—
All things are in yourself—
Love and Life and Death.

Some folks lose sleep from worry, and some at times from pains; and others lose it from cold feet or overactive brains.

And there are those who lose it because of heavy cares; while some lose sleep from dancing, done by the folks upstairs.

Yes, there are many reasons why sleep is lost, 'tis said; but many lose it just because they hate to go to bed.—R. C. B. in Judge.

Rudyard Kipling often gets heartily sick of hearing some of his own songs and poems. On one occasion, while out walking with a friend, he heard a barrel organ roll out his South African War Ballad, "The Absent-Minded Beggar," long after the whole thing was over.

His companion made some comment to which the poet replied, "Do you know, if it was not suicide, I'd like to murder the man who wrote that."—Boston Transcript.

JURY INDICTS RICE FOR THE MURDER OF JACKSON

Judge Jennings Immediately Issued a Bench Warrant and the Accused Was Remanded to Brooklyn Jail to Await Trial —After the Jury Had Returned a True Bill, Mrs. Jackson and Her Daughter Grasped the Hand of Rice—The Accused Showed No Emotion When His Indictment Was Returned.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 11—After a 27 minute deliberation the Windham county grand jury, which convened here today, returned a true bill of murder in the first degree at 6:50 o'clock against Deputy Sheriff Trenor A. Rice, charging him with the murder of County Detective William E. Jackson. The indictment which followed the questioning of 18 witnesses was immediately followed by a court order for a bench warrant to which Rice waived the reading and which remanded him to the county jail at Brooklyn without bail.

Rice was put to plea and under the coaching of his senior counsel, Attorney W. A. King, he pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by jury. Judge Newell Jennigs of Bristol recessed the January criminal term of the Windham county superior court without date. Rice will probably come to trial at the next criminal term of the superior court scheduled to be held in Willimantic in April, unless a special session is called.

Rice Expressionless

As Rice stood expressionless beside his lawyer while Foreman of the Grand Jury Attorney Sabin S. Russell, presented the indictment to Clerk of the Court Dean, Mrs. Jackson, her daughter, Juanita, and their friend Mrs. Merton A. Andrews, stood with partly averted faces at the rear of the court room. Mrs. Jackson appeared to be the most affected of the three women by the decision of the jury.

As soon as court had been recessed the three women hurried to Rice and Mrs. Jackson and her daughter were seen to grasp his hand. There was no other demonstration of emotion, however, except for blanched faces and an apparent nervous tension on the part of the small group. The conversation might have well been one of a passing nature. Rice smiled as the two women stood before him and it was indicated that Miss Jackson attempted to ease his mind by smiling encouragingly.

Rice arrived at the court room from the county jail at Brooklyn at 10 o'clock. He was in custody of Sheriff Charles A. Gates and Deputy Jailor Walter S. Tripp to whose wrist he was handcuffed. The car that brought Rice to Putnam was driven by Theodore Marrotte, chauffeur for Sheriff Gates. Although he continued to display the unusual stolidness and outward calm that has not failed him at any time since the beginning of the ordeal he has faced, Rice loked tired and pale. As he and the deputy jailor stepped from the car a newspaper camera was thrust through the small crowd gathered around and Rice turned his face and stepped back to avoid the lense. Police officers admonished the camera man for his action. Rice was led into the courtroom and then escorted into the adjoining law library where the grand jury was to convene and where he was to sit during the day to hear the state's evidence presented against him. Inasmuch as the law does not allow an officer to be present at the grand jury and Rice was to remain virtually unguarded during the hearing the building was well surrounded by a cordon of police. During the entire day Deputy Sheriff John H. Fitts, Deputy Sheriff Chappell remained on guard near the outer entrance to the law library and a uniformed officer patrolled the flat roof in the rear of the court chambers which are on the second floor.

Mrs. Jackson and her daughter Juanita had already arrived at the courthouse having been taken there early to avoid the curious by County Detective Edward J. Hickey, who is leading the investigation into the murder. Detective Hickey was accompanied by Investigating Officer Hurley of the Willimantic police department and Special Officer Rowe H. Wheeler of Munson, Mass. Officer Wheeler has volunteered his services to the investigation by reason of a life-long friendship which he held with the murdered detective.

Judge Newell Jennings arrived at the court shortly before 11 o'clock and the doors were then opened for the first time to the spectators, 75 or 80 of whom sought entrance, the majority remaining for the entire proceedings.

The following is the roll call of the jury: Clarence H. Barlow, Ashford, farmer; Oscar F. Atwood, Brooklyn, town clerk; Frank D. Spaulding, Brooklyn, auto livery; Christian Kerr, Canterbury, farmer; Clinton E. Frink, Canterbury, merchant; George A. Reed, Chaplin, retired; Archa S. Walker, Eastford, merchant; Jesse L. Burnham, Hampton, farmer; Sabin S. Russell, Killingly, attorney; Alfred D. Briggs, farmer; Edward F. Perry, Putnam, physician; A. J. Brodeur, Putnam, merchant; Irving E. Frink, Sterling, mechanic; Frank N. Knight, Thompson, retired; Robert O. Snow, Windham, clerk; Weart G. Healey, Woodstock, farmer. Attorney Russell was elected foreman of the jury.

Instructions to Grand Jury

The roll call completed, Judge Jennings delivered for the second time his "abbreviated" but concise instructions to a grand jury. The charge lasted but four minutes, the first delivery of this novel charge having been made at Willimantic when the grand jury sat on the case of Thomas Mazzola. In the brief charge Judge Jennings struck a note of interest when he made final elimination of the suicide theory, asserting that first degree murder had been committed in this case and that the jury had the right to present for trial the accused or some other person or persons whom they deemed sufficiently culpable. He then defined the murder degrees and closed by reminding the jury that "evidences of an affray, or a killing in the heat of passion, or suicide must be considered in their deliberations."

18 Witnesses Called

The first of the eighteen witnesses called in by the grand jury was Dr. Henry N. Costello of Hartford who performed the autopsy on the body of Detective Jackson. The second witness was J. Henry Fitzgerald of Hartford, ballistic expert who testified relative to the bullet that caused the death of Jackson was a .32 calibre and was fired from a Colt police positive revolver. Two such revolvers have entered the case, one owned by Detective Jackson and the other owned by the accused.

Dr. Fred M. Smith of Willimantic was then called to testify as to his finding at the scene of the murder to which he was the first one summoned by the Jackson family. When called on the telephone he was told by Miss Jackson that her father had committed suicide.

At 11:55 Juanita Jackson was called into the jury room. She and her mother remained during the day in the private office of State's Attorney Bradford, adjoining the court room. It is presumed that her testimony was to the effect that her mother called for her at the Quality Shop in which business Miss Jackson is a partner and that the two returned home in their car at 6:20 on the night of the murder, finding the body of her father lying on the floor of the kitchen. She was very lightly questioned as to the relations of Rice and members of her family. Miss Jackson came out of the courtroom after 36 minutes of questioning. Other than a flushed face she was quite composed.

Mrs. Jackson Self-Controlled

Miss Jackson was immediately followed by her mother Mrs. Gertrude Jackson who remained 26 minutes. Mrs. Jackson was self controlled on entering and although care-worn appearing displayed no emotion as she returned to the courtroom. As the door was opened for her to return she smiled gently at an old family friend and walked back to the private office of Attorney Bradford. Mrs. Jackson corroborated her daughter's testimony and reiterated statements previously made as to her doings on the night of the murder.

After Mrs. Jackson's testimony the hearing recessed at 1:03 for luncheon.

After a slight delay the questioning was resumed at 2:26 p. m. with Captain Frank P. McLean of the Willimantic police department as the first witness of the afternoon. Capt. McLean was one of the early arrivals at the Jackson home on the night of the murder. That night McLean went with Rice to question relatives of Thomas Mazzola who had been arrested by Jackson for the murder of Mazzola's mother-in-law. This questioning was in running down the revenge theory of the murder.

The next and seventh witness was Police Officer John Shea, a supernumerary of the department, who was on duty protecting the coasters on Mansfield avenue on the night Jackson was shot. Mansfield avenue is part of the logical route by automobile from the Jackson home on Quarry street to the Rice home on Brown avenue.

Miss Eva Ellis, poultry woman, of Mansfield avenue, and her niece, Lillian Billings, aged 7, of the same address were the next two witnesses. Their testimony was that they had seen a man standing in the pasture in the rear of the Ellis home on the night of the shooting at about 6:15 p. m. They also stated that they heard a shot prior to seeing the man. Both described the man as wearing a dark overcoat and being slight of build. The Billings girl claims that the man wore a soft hat.

The tenth witness was Gerard E. Loiselle, Willimantic correspondent of the Norwich Bulletin. His testimony was as to footprints in the snow leading in a southerly direction from Quarry street to the Ellis property and thence westerly through woods and fields o a point near Holbrook avenue a hort road connecting with West Main street. Testimony also was given as to the finding of certain articles along this trail of footprints.

Miss Billings was recalled for a moment and was immediately followed by Gilbert P. Flynn of Willimantic who accompanied Mr. Loiselle when the footprints were followed. Mr. Flynn corroborated the previous testimony of the newspaperman.

The twelfth witness was Roger Paulhus, son of Joseph F. Paulhus of West Main street. The younger Paulhus was the one who received the telephone call placed at about 6:40 o'clock on the night of the shooting from Miss Jackson asking that Rice, a neighbor, be requested to come to the Jackson house to milk the cows.

His father Joseph Paulhus, substantiated his testimony. The elder Paulhus delivered the message to Rice finding him according to previous statements comfortably seated at his desk writing. He had told previously of Rice's car being in the garage at the time Rice secured it to drive to the Jackson home.

Otis Fairbanks of Mansfield avenue was the fourteenth witness. Fairbanks, who resides in the neighborhood of the Jackson homew as out in his (Fairbanks) back yard up to 6:15 o'clock but did not hear the Jackson watch-dog bark.

Maurice F. Leonard, member of the firm of Leonard Brothers garage, who has had considerable dealings, financially and otherwise, with both Jackson and Rice testified on matters relative to the relationship between the two men.

Stanton L. Briggs of Willimantic, chief of the Connecticut field force of the prohibition department of the state, was the next witness. He was among the early arrivals at the home of Jackson on the night of the shooting.

Investigating Officers Called

The three investigating officers were called in turn, Officer Hurley being the first. Hurley read a statement within the jury rooms which took up over half an hour. Special Officer Rowe H. Wheeler submitted statements for 38 minutes. The last witness was County Detective Hickey who was in the grand jury room for over an hour. He concluded his testimony at 6.10. After a recess the jury tok the case at 6:23.

As near as could be learned Rice did not question any of the witnesses during the hearing of their testimony. Rice was seated alone back of a table

DEATH OF PRINCE JOHN OF LICHTENSTEIN, AGED 88

IROPPAU, Czecho-Slovakia, Feb. 11—(AP)—The grand old man of the world's rulers, Prince John of Lichtenstein, died today at the age of 88 in his palace here. For more than 70 years he held gentle sway over his tiny principality of 11,000 souls which snuggles like a child between the parent states of Austria and Switzerland.

Louis XIV of France was the only European monarch of historical times who exceeded the length of reign of Prince John. He won the added title of "The Good" for the intimate contact which he maintained with his subjects and the considerable portion of his income which he devoted to their welfare. He also was munificent in gifts of oil paintings and objects of art to the Austrian nation. The value of these gifts was said to exceed $20,000,000.

For some time Prince John had been failing in health and it appeared that he was destined to become blind despite the operations performed by the finest Vienna surgeons. On this account he was unable last November to be with his "household," as he preferred to call his subjects, when they celebrated the completion of the 70th year of his reign.

Tributes For Edison On 82d Birthday

President - Elect Hoover Brought Personal Greeting to Famous Inventor.

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 11—(AP)—Thomas Alva Edison, snowy-haired creative genius who turned night into day, through his invention of the incandescent lamp, became 82 years old today, and was visited by President-elect Herbert Hoover, who made a 48-hour journey by automobile and boat to bring his personal greeting.

Henry Ford, and Harvey Firestone, old cronies of Mr. Edison, joined in paying tribute to their famous friend of nearly 40 years.

In high spirits, the octogenarian, who walks with a firm tread and maintains a keen sense of humor despite the weight of his years, went through an elaborate program in celebration of his birthday.

Arising shortly after daybreak, as is his custom, he faced a squad of writers and cameramen for his annual interview in the morning and then at noon took the next president, Ford and Firestone, on a motor tour of this city. During the automobile trip, covering five miles, Mr. Edison and Mr. Hoover received the acclaim of some 20,000 persons, who lined the streets.

Mr. Edison, a winter resident of Fort Myers for 16 years, and his distinguished guests retired to his tropical estate for a birthday luncheon and several hours of conversation before Mr. Hoover boarded his yacht late today to embark on a fishing trip.

Tonight the inventor brought the day to a close with a short radio talk over a coast-to-coast hookup.

When the corps of reporters finished with the electrical wizard at the morning interview they had learned that he foresees a greater era of national prosperity under the Hoover administration, but predicts an "ultimate panic" unless the increasing stock speculation is checked.

For the first time since he concentrated his energy three years ago on the problem of finding a plant capable of producing within the United States the nation's rubber supply, Mr. Edison admitted that "it might be possible in the future to grow rubber and compete with the tropics."

At the inception of his experiments he insisted that he had undertaken the task for the sole purpose of giving this country an emergency supply of rubber in time of war. He has reiterated this intention several times, explaining that manufacturing costs in the United States would in his opirion prohibit the production of a rubber supply in peace time in competition with tropical countries.

His complete statement today was: "I believe those states bordering on the Gulf of Mexico can grow plant rubber with profit to the farmer in case of war prices, but it might be possible in the future to grow rubber and compete with the tropics."

After this unexpected expression reporters, who had heard rumors that the inventor already had found a plant he believed would solve the rubber problem in time of war and in time of peace, asked him the direct question:

"Is it true that you have found a plant that promises to solve the rubber production problem in the United States and do you hope to develop it this winter?"

To this Mr. Edison replied:

"I have found over 1,200 plants to produce rubber. About 40 of them will be cultivated on a large scale."

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF KILLING RUM RUNNER

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 11—(AP)—A jury in federal court here in 20 minutes today acquitted Joseph Sobloski, United States immigration officer, charged with murder, second degree, and manslaughter, first and second degree, for the fatal shooting last September of Richard Pelkey, Lake Placid, alleged liquor runner. Pelkey was shot near Duane Center, 26 miles south of the Canadian border.

Judge Frank Cooper, in his charge to the jury, said he did not consider that the prosecution had established a second degree murder case.

The jury retired with the words of the defense summation that the northern border was infested with bootleggers all of whom were watching the outcome of the trial, and the declaration of the prosectiuon that Sobloski could not have recognized Pelkey when he ordered him to stop, as the defense had contended.

The bootleggers, said the defense in its summation, were hoping that Sobloski would be sent to prison "so that he could no longer thwart their business."

STRIKING GARMENT WORKERS ARRESTED AND RELEASED

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—A majority of 250 striking garment workers, arrested this morning as they attempted to carry on mass picketing in the crowded garment district, were discharged or let out on suspended sentences later in the day. A few were given small fines. Ben Gold, radical leader and secretary of the strikers' organization, was among those discharged.

All day they filed through old Jefferson Market court, to which they were taken in relays of patrol wagons. They sang the "Internationale" and other radical songs, as they rode to court. About 40 per cent of the arrested strikers were women, among them many young girls in fur coats.

Public Uneasiness Prevails In Mexico

Letters Threaten Life of Director of the Federal District Penitentiary.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11—(AP)—News that Col. Felipe Islas, director of the federal district penitentiary, had received more than a dozen letters threatening his life tonight added to the public uneasiness caused by the dynamiting yesterday of the presidential train and the discovery early this morning of a bomb in the office of Governor Saenz.

Colonel Islas had no more to do with the execution on Saturday of Jose de Leon Toral, slayer of President-elect Obregon, than to carry out the court orders as head of the penal establishment. The letter writers, however, warned him that unless he resigned his post before the execution he too would be killed. Crowds yesterday stoned the home of the colonel's mother and sister, breaking windows.

President Portes Gil took up his routine work at the executive office this morning apparently unperturbed by the dynamiting of his train yesterday in which a fireman was killed and two coaches and the locomotive left the rails. He was greatly pleased at receiving a personal message of congratulations from President Coolidge this morning and other messages from American well-wishers.

All resources of the government were searching for the authors of the attack today. They also sought clues to the persons who left the unexploded bomb in the Saenz office. The authorities are proceeding on the theory that both crimes were in revenge for the execution of Toral or were inspired by religious feeling.

Abraham Lincoln.

We need him now—his rugged faith that held
Fast to the rock of Truth through all the days
Of moil and strife, the sleepless nights; upheld
By very God was he—that God who stays
All hero-souls who will but trust in Him,
And trusting, labor as if God were not.
His eyes beheld the stars, clouds could not dim
Their glory; but his task was not forgot:
To keep his people one; to hold them true
To that fair dream their fathers willed to them—
Freedom for all; to spur them; to renew
Their hopes in bitter days; strife to condemn,
Such was his task, and well his work was done—
Who willed us greater tasks, when set his sun.

THREE GERMANS TOOK WILD BALLOON VOYAGE

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Feb. 11—(AP)—Three Germans in a balloon in which they ascended near Leipzig yesterday morning descended abruptly near here today, after a wild unchartered voyage across Holland and the North sea. Soon after they took the air they found that the apparatus for releasing gas from the bag failed to work and thereafter they were at the mercy of the elements.

The men were Doctor Paul Rohr, Paul Thielecke, a dentist, and G. Rexhausen, a farmer. They had resigned themselves to a tragic end when the wind carried the balloon out over the sea during the night. Driven northward along the English coast they sighted a light about 3 o'clock this morning when proved to be Aberdeen but the gale increased in fury, and their ungovernabe craft was hurled along toward the snow-covered Cairngorm mountains. Several times they bumped on hilltops and when the balloon caught in a tre they half fell, half jumped out of the basket. One of them hurt his ankle and another an eye and a hand.

The German consul here will provide for their return home.

LINDBERGH 24 HOURS AHEAD OF HIS SCHEDULE

BELIZE, British Honduras, Feb. 11—(AP)—Dropping in on Belize 24 hours earlier than his schedule called for, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, on his returned flight from Panama to Miami, with the Pan-American Airways mail, put in the afternoon here inspecting sites for a permanent airport. He brought with him Col. John Hambledon, vice president of the Pan-American Airways, and Lieut. Christian Schilt, who has been given leave of absence from the marine corps in order to become Miami superintendent of the air corps.

The colonel flew here direct from Managua, making the trip in six hours, and 57 minutes. An escort plane, piloted by Raymond J. Merritt, stopped en route at Tela, Honduras.

The planes are to leave here tomorrow soon after daybreak en route for Havana and Miami.

HOOVER ON TARPON FISHING EXPEDITION

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 11—(AP)—President-elect Hoover was aboard the yacht Sauntterer again cruising down the Caliosahatchee river on a tarpon fishing expedition after passing six hours here today with Thomas A. Edison, on the electrical wizard's 82nd birthday.

The president-elect and Mrs. Hoover and their party, which includes Mr. and Mrs. Edgard Ricard of New York and Jeremiah Milbank, eastern treasurer of the republican national committee and owner of the Sauntterer, plan to spend several days fishing for tarpon south of Fort Myers. Mr. Hoover will maintain communication with his temporary headquarters here, using a department of commerce speed boat.

FORTY STUDENTS DRIVEN FROM "FRAT" HOUSE BY FIRE

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 11—(AP)—Forty students living at the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity house here, were driven out tonight when fire destroyed the building and threatened the entire "hill" rooming house district. The loss was estimated at $200,000.

One student confined to bed with a broken leg was rescued by companions and carried to the street before the flames reached his room. The fire is believed to have been caused by defective wiring.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

STOCK EXCHANGE ASSAILED AS GAMBLING INSTITUTION

Senator Glass, Former Democratic Secretary of the Treasury, Declared the Exchange Was a Menace to the Entire Commercial Structure—Federal Reserve Board Has Been Called Upon by the Senate to Suggest Legislation to Check the Increase in Brokers' Loans—Senator Barkley Asserted Nothing Would be More Damaging to the Nation Than for Congress to Undertake to Determine What Is and What Is Not Speculation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP)—The federal reserve board was called upon today by the senate to suggest legislation to check the increase in brokers' loans from reserve funds of which it complained in a letter last week to member banks.

Expressing the view that little good but no harm could come from this course, Senator Glass, of Virginia, a former democratic secretary of the treasury, assailed the stock exchange as a gambling institution menacing the entire commercial structure.

Glass declared the board should have issued its warning a year ago before the "startling peak" of almost $6,000,000,000 in brokers' loans had been reached. He said it was difficult to get at the problem of restricting brokers' loans by legislation until some way could be found of distinguishing between loans to brokers which went into investments and those which were for speculation.

Senator Heflin, democrat, of Alabama, brought the brokers' loans situation before the senate with his resolution asking the board to submit a legislative remedy. It stirred up an outburst against stock market speculations, but no voice was raised against the reserve board for its warning letter last week which played a part in the break of the stock market. The resolution was adopted without a dissenting vote.

The Heflin resolution read:

"In dispatches, recently, the federal reserve board has complained that money is being drawn from the channels of business and used for speculation and that said speculation is illegitimate and harmful. Therefore, be it resolved that the federal reserve board is hereby requested to give to the senate any information and suggestions that it feels would be helpful in securing legislation necessary to correct the evil complained of and prevent illegitimate and harmful speculation."

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, a democratic member of the banking committee, warned against any tinkering by congress with the nation's credit system. He expressed the view that no harm could be done in asking the board for its view on legislation, but he thought that nothing would be more damaging to the nation than for congress to undertake to determine what is and what is not speculation.

However, Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, urged that congress prohibit member banks of the federal reserve system from issuing any loans whatever to brokers. He declared this situation is "the menace of our times."

Meanwhile, the house received another resolution for an investigation of the board today. Representative Brand, democrat, Georgia, proposed an investigation by the house banking committee of the loans issued by the federal reserve banks of New York, Chicago and New Orleans since Jan. 1, 1925, to brokers "for the purpose of speculating in cotton, tobacco, corn, wheat, swine and cattle."

This resolution along with those of Representative Black, democrat, New York, asking investigation of the warning issued by the board against brokers' loans was referred to committee without discussion.

Senator Glass reminded the senate that the federal reserve board is not charged by law with the supervision of stock exchange activities. He recalled also that he has pending a bill whereby he proposed to withhold more of the reserve funds from fields of speculation.

Assailing stock market dealings, Senator Glass declared that these manipulations were "gambling just the same as if a bunch of senators sat around a roulette wheel."

Senator King, democrat, of Utah, said investigation had shown that more than 85 per cent of the transactions on the New York stock exchange were on a marginal basis and that more than 80 per cent of the marginal dealers were wiped out.

Representative Black in a statement later today said the public demanded a full explanation of the board's action—and congress should ascertain the circumstances involved. He argued the American people were entitled to know if there have been any co-operative efforts between the Bank of England and the federal reserve board concerning discount rates.

"American investors should not be forced by government action," he added, "to suffer a depreciation in their securities to build up the gold reserve of the Bank of England."

WOULD STOP TRADING IN COTTON AND GRAIN FUTURES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11— (AP) — Speculation in cotton engaged the senate today as discussion opened on the bill of Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, to prevent the sale of cotton and grain in future markets.

The measure was described by its author as one which would benefit the cotton and grain growers and in turn by Senator Ransdell, democrat, Louisiana, as one which would be bound to have a very adverse effect upon prices.

Denouncing at the outset the "propaganda" which he charged to opponents of the bill, Senator Caraway declared that only gamblers were profiting by the ability to speculate in future markets. Senator Ransdell contended that a large portion of the dealings in futures was legitimate and asserted that there is no other method of handling sales of cotton and grain except by future markets.

"This bill," Ransdell said, "would completely destroy those markets and would offer nothing in lieu thereof.

"If there be evils in the present method," he asked, "won'd it not be wise to suggest methods of relief? Why disrupt business?"

The farmer, he said, has "no other assurance" of sales except on future contracts.

The Caraway bill specifically would make it unlawful for any persons, corporation, partnership, joint stock company, society, or association to send any message, either by telephone, telegraph, mail or otherwise offering to make a contract for the purchase or sale for future delivery of cotton or grain without intending that it should be actually delivered or received.

The measure would impose a fine of not more than $10,000, nor less than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than six months nor less than one month for violations.

VATICAN AT PEACE WITH GOVERNMENT OF ITALY

ROME, Feb. 11—(AP)—The Roman question tonight was a thing of the past and the Vatican was at peace with Italy. The formal accomplishment of this today was the exchange of signatures in the historic palace of St. John Lateran by two noteworthy plenipotentiaries, Cardinal Gasparri for Pope Pius XI and Premier Mussolini for King Victor Emmanuel III.

In affixing the autographs to the memorable document which heals the wound which has festered since 1870 extreme cordiality was displayed on both sides. The cardinal secretary of state warmly welcomed the premier to the old papal residence while Mussolini showed particular attention to the venerable prelate by bidding him sit while the text of the accord was read.

Cardinal Gasparri left his bed where he had been confined by grippe since Saturday and braved the chilly and sunless weather in order that he might attend the ceremony which was the crowning act of his entire diplomatic career.

Premier Mussolini did all he could to soften the rigors of the physical ordeal.

Just as the signatories were wielding the gold quill pen, the chimes of St. John Lateran peeled out as though for Christmas midnight and a throng of theological students grouped in the courtyard below broke into the strains of a Te Deum, "We thank Thee, oh God, make safe Thy people, oh Lord, and bless Thy heirs and rule over them and extol them forever."

To this the fascist blackshirt militia, personal body guard of the premier, responded with a rousing Eja, Eja, Eja, Alala. "For the pope, the premier and the king."

HEROIC RESCUE ATTEMPT RECALLED ON ANNIVERSARY

Thirty years ago today, Feb. 12th, Charles Whalen, 14, and Alfred Hoering, 12, were drowned in Ashland mill pond. Hoering lost his life in trying to assist his companion, who was unable to do anything toward saving himself. The Bulletin, under the caption of Jewett City printed the following: Heroic Colored Man—There is a chapter of the most heroic work connected with an attempt made by Daniel Geer and George Comager, two colored men, to rescue them and toward the recovery of the bodies of the two boys who were drowned Sunday. These two men, perfect giants in strength, first were collared to run a mile and a half around the head of the pond to come at the location of the tragedy. When they arrived, one boy still clung to the ice, in the hole, over 200 feet from the east shore. The men made every conceivable attempt to save him, but could in no way reach him. The ice, though quite thick, was honeycombed and rotten. They brought a heavy boat over a quarter of a mile and secured an axe. Daniel Geer lay on his breast in the bow of the boat, and holding on with one hand, he leaned far out over the ice and with his right hand started chopping a channel for the boat. Meantime, George Comager kept the boat pushed against the ice by means of a long white birch pole. They had to stop repeatedly and bale the boat out with their hats to keep it from sinking. Long before they could reach him, the boy sank. Those who saw the work of Geer and Comager say they never saw such a mighty exhibition of strength, endurance and indomitable pluck. A great crowd surrounded the edge of the pond. Many are alive in Jewett City who were witnesses to this most courageous attempt to save human life against heavy odds.

Daniel Geer has been dead some years but George Comager lives to tell about it today.

THE STORY OF AN ORGAN AND A NORWICH BULLETIN

Over a quarter of a century ago, a philanthropic couple of Lisbon gave to a young bride who was without even an harmonica or Jews' harp, their organ in appreciation of many happy hours this to be bride had spent in their home playing and singing the old hymns—and incidentally making omelets, etc. etc.

In recent years, through a legacy, a piano came to the recipient of said organ. Being of a generous turn of mind, she thought of a family where there was no musical instrument and gave them the organ.

With never a twinge of regret, the giver felt, however, that the home was not complete without an organ (giving harmony and exercise as well). She advertised in the Norwich Bulletin: Wanted—An organ.

She received in a week's time twenty-four letters, which meant twenty-five organs, including melodeons, as one party had a two fer selling.

Most of the replies read: Dear Sir, I have an organ to sell, and I've been told it is a good one, etc. So many "Dear Sirs" in letter form tempted the-to-be-purchaser to don her husband's clothes (which are a near fit) and call on every would-be seller, thinking perhaps each supposed it was a boy's desire to own and vivisect said organ. However, she concluded she needed able assistance and decided to have her husband, who knows every tune but acknowledged that he can not carry them well) to accompany her.

They started on their journey, visiting as many as sixteen homes. Talk about harmonious visitation! In one home they found an organ with broken bellows straps, and the mother and daughter in said home got on their knees, reached up till they could reach the abbreviated straps, to enable the prospective buyer to produce the music—when lo! she found she was playing The Last Rose of Summer, unconscious of the association! The tone was rich but as there was no repair man handy, it was decided to look further. Every mile has its compensation, whether guest of flowers or organs.

Finally the prospective buyer found a small Mason and Hamlin organ, just running board size, as it was brought home by the beaming beard of their husband. Now it is in their house and there's music in the air.

An interesting part of the story is—a seven-year-old in the home where the old organ (without spot or blemish) is, can play "America"—and with both hands!

Westerly chapter, Order of DeMolay, will be instituted Saturday evening, March 2, the installation work to be conducted by Providence chapter, Order of DeMolay. This latter chapter first visited Westerly Friday evening, June 8, 1928, upon invitation of Franklin lodge, of Westerly, and Pawcatuck lodge, of Pawcatuck.

A petition has been received by the police committee of Westerly town council, from residents in the Oak and Tower street sections, signed by Francesco Terranova and 19 others, asking that a patrolman be assigned to that section. Immediate action was taken by the committee and Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown assigned a patrolman to part time duty in that district. When the Rhode Island troopers were on Westerly police force last summer, patrol service was provided there. Since their departure from Westerly to return to state duty, the Westerly force has been crippled by illness. At one time three and even four, including Chief Brown, were laid up by illness and the streets in that part of the town were without policemen.

PROOF OF DYES is in the dyeing!

Words won't dye a dress, or coat, or sweater. It takes real anilines to do that. That's why Diamond Dyes contain from three to five times more anilines than any other dye—by actual test.

It's the anilines in Diamond Dyes that do the work; that give the colors such brilliance; such depth and permanence. It's real aniline that keeps them from giving things that re-dyed look; from spotting or streaking.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. Then compare results. See how soft, bright, new-looking the colors are. Observe how they keep their brilliance. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

DANIELSON

NASON (DOC.) OATLEY DIES FROM ATTACK OF FLU

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 11—Nason (Doc) Oatley, 77, died today at Dayville following an illness with influenza and pneumonia. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker A. F. Wood and is at his funeral home here. Mr. Oatley became ill while living alone in an abode in the Sparks district of the town. He had been failing in health and strength since last fall. Meanwhile, residents of the neighborhood where he was living did many kindly acts to make him as comfortable as possible. Recently he became so ill that his removal to Dayville became necessary. For several days past there had been practically no hope for his recovery.

Mr. Oatley was born in Norwich, No. 4, 1851, a son of Stephen and Maria Wood Oatley, the family coming to East Killingly when he was very young. His father, while Nason was still a boy, lost his life fighting with the Union army in the Civil war.

After attending school, Mr. Oatley went into a mill at East Killingly to work and eventually became overseer of the spinning department of one of the mills at that place. He possessed unusual mechanical ability, and it was indicated he would have become a prominent figure in textile mechanics had he elected to continue in the line of work.

To hunters and fishermen, far and near, Mr. Oatley was known as "Doc". How he came by that appelation no one could recall today. His skill with rod and line was only equalled by his cleverness with a gun, and as a fox hunter he apeared possesses with almost uncanny ability. Few men in New England have brought down more foxes than "Doc" Oatley is credited with, and it is believed that his catch of a brook trout weighing in excess of four pounds in a stream not distant from Danielson still stands as a record, as it has stood for about a quarter of a century. "Doc" knew every worthwhile pool, and everything pertaining to it, in every brook for many miles about. He was equally familiar with the fox runs. For years he was sought as a guide who knew when and where to go if fish or game was to be found. He was an expert woodsman and was in his element when afield on fishing or hunting expeditions. It is related of him that he would stay, as quiet as the rocks about him, for as long as eight hours at a single pool in some stream waiting for the big trout he knew was there to come up and take his lure. This patience was rewarded with the remarkable catches he so frequently exhibited.

Mr. Oatley worked in various mills about town in the past 30 years. He never married. He leaves no relatives nearer than cousins.

DANIELSON, Feb. 11—Coroner Arthur G. Bill said this afternoon that he will begin his inquest in the case of County Investigator W. E. Jackson at Willimantic on Wednesday. The reaction of the public to the report of the certified public accountants who recently audited books of the town of Killingsly has been generally satisfactory, it would appear, too, from listening to many conversations on the subject, that the suggestions of the auditors relative to some improvements in the accounting system will receive favorable consideration. It is believed that these suggestions likely will be subjects of dicussion when the auditors' report is officially presented to the town at a special meeting in March.

A land mark—the old Dean slipper shop on Cattage street, near the underpass of the New Haven road, is about to disappear. It is being torn down. Influenza or grip continues to afflict a number of the inmates of the Killingly town farm at Dayville, where two deaths have occurred within the past two days. About half the number living there are ill. Supt. and Mrs. Oliver Bassett are giving the patients every possible attention, but the fact that the patients are aged and not too strong normally makes the situation more trying than ordinarily would be the case.

The All-Irish, Noank's greatest rival started off like a whirlwind making 12 points before Noank even scored. Giant Sweet was then put in the game and the team played like a new team. The score at the half was 26-14 in favor of Noank. Sweet continued his good work and dropped in baskets from every angle. Sweet, Robertson and Chesebro accounted for all Noank's points but two. Sweet made 34 points, Robertson 16 and Chesebro 14. Trant was high scorer for Mystic with 10 points. The game was played at the town hall before a good sized crowd. SENATOR CAPPER'S IDEA.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas would make the Kellogg peace pact something more than a gesture. He is confident that the people of this country want it to be, that they are desirous that it will actually prevent war and in order to give greater assurance of such an accomplishment he would have it backed up by some kind of a penalty for those nations which disregarded it.

He doesn't undertake to say when a nation would be violating the pact, or to draw a fine line between self defense and actually entering into war, but he has introduced in congress a resolution calling upon the president to proclaim when a nation has violated the peace pact and with such a proclamation being made it would be unlawful for this country to furnish arms or ammunition to such a country until that declaration was withdrawn. The idea is that if such a nation could not obtain war material from outside sources it would be handicapped in the carrying on of war, similarly as one who was found to have given such assistance to a treaty breaking nation would be denied the rights of protection given by this country.

For this country alone to take such action would mean little. It would stand as an example but for real effectiveness it should be participated in by the rest of the nations. That would mean that such a penalty could be really applied, that a treaty breaker would experience difficulty in getting needed supplies and unless it should be large enough to be able to supply all it needed it would be forced to yield to the handicaps it would experience. Thus while this country is the first to get such an appeal the resolution if adopted would call upon the president to seek similar action by the rest.

Senator Capper has advanced this subject for the discussion that it will arouse. Certainly one of the weaknesses of the peace treaty is the lack of enforcement. If that can be effectively overcome by the action which he proposes it is a move in the right direction and is set in motion none too soon to accomplish the benefit desired. For real war prevention that or something similar is desirable.

LITTERED STREETS.

Usually it is a bit later in the year, about the time that the housecleaning campaign opens, that complaints are made about the untidy streets because of the litter and rubbish that is allowed to gather therein.

In New York city at the present time the Merchants' association has had an investigation made as to the causes for the accumulation of papers and litter in the street and it finds that there are 28 causes for it, but the real significant part of it all is that ordinances and rules are already in existence covering all of them. "Furthermore the report sets forth that an increased public interest is the only means of improving the condition of the streets in this respect."

The street has long been regarded as the big public ash can. Those who have something to discard immediately heave it into the street. Those who have a paper, a bag, a tobacco can or an empty carton to throw away always do the easiest thing and toss it into the gutter. Some seem to think that the way to destroy a letter is to tear it into bits and contribute it to the street. There isn't any question but what it is the handiest method, but it never beautifies the street. It means that someone has got to do a lot of work to clean it up which could be easily eliminated, and if it were eliminated it would do much in improving the appearance of the highway.

In addition to these causes of street litter the survey in New York showed that it came from "materials swept into the street from stores, waste paper and junk dealers and sidewalk stands, children playing with trash in the streets, push carts and litter from uncovered carts."

In Philadelphia there is a demand for cleaner streets and there householders are urged to tie up papers and cover receptacles containing rubbish and the city is advised to show greater efficiency in the collection of ashes.

Dirty streets is an old complaint and there is little doubt but what there would be appreciable improvement if the public would refrain from contributing thereto and help the situation by refusing to create it.

BOY SCOUTS.

When Boy Scout week rolls around again it is inevitable that everyone should be interested, that is everyone who is interested in the coming young manhood and the efforts that are being put forward to see that it is guided in the right direction.

When we stop to realize that this organization has been in existence in this country for a period of 19 years we can expect that it will be showing results, and it is. We see the activity of the various troops and we note with interest those who have graduated from its ranks and taken their place in the every day affairs of life. They make it evident that they have benefitted by the training which they received from the organization, and what has been done in their cases is sure to follow in regard to others.

With a membership of 800,000 in this country it is apparent that large numbers are each year being taught many of the essentials of good citizenship, that they are coming under the influences of sound principles and thoughtful teachers and that they are getting an insight into practical things instead of devoting their time to mischief.

The constant addition to the membership and the age of the organization demonstrate the appeal which it has for the boys. It answers their desire for something to do, something to accomplish. It provides them with a vast amount of information which is bound to be of lasting benefit and it teaches them responsibility. The organization has been on trial long enough to prove its worth, its influence for good and the need of having it developed to its limit.

In this connection it is of much importance that it be able to command the services of the necessary number of troop leaders. Much importance rests there. Upon the leadership depends the results and it is unfortunate that it is not possible to obtain as many to head the troops as the interest of the boys in such an organization calls for. This need has been emphasized for the past few years and the call is one that should make itself heard for the large benefits that are involved for the future citizens of every community.

MEXICO'S MENACE.

President Portes Gil of Mexico has received a warning, if he did not know it before, that his administration is not going to be a bed of roses. Happily he escaped the cowardly but determined plan of the dynamiters who had penetrated the scheme to send a special engine ahead of the president's train and reserved their explosives for the president's party.

It is to be hoped that it will be possible to arrest and convict those who were responsible, but the attempt upon the president's life indicates the inclination that prevails in certain quarters and makes it apparent that more than casual attention needs to be given it in the immediate future.

Under its new president Mexico has reason to look forward with much promise for better things. It was a serious blow when former President Obregon was assassinated but it would be even greater should that be followed by the killing of his successor at a time when Mexico has an opportunity to get away from some of the conditions which have prevailed in the republic to the south altogether too long.

It is inevitable that the execution of Toral should be regarded as the cause for the attack upon the president. Such will be the view until developments prove otherwise but the right minded people of Mexico have cause for thanksgiving in the fact that the life of their president was spared, although there is cause for regret, as is too often the case under such circumstances, that the lives of others were needlessly taken in the blowing up of the train. It is most unfortunate when any country has such a menace.

AUTO STEALING.

Three young men, the oldest 20, have been arrested in Holyoke for the unlawful appropriation of an automobile. Cars had been stolen in that city at the rate of almost two a day up to the time of the arrest and it is apparent that the residents there are much concerned in the developments.

Just what reason a group of young men have for thinking that they can appropriate the property of another, either for the purpose of driving it about and abandoning it, or for the purpose of selling it whenever a purchaser can be located, without paying the penalty is difficult to understand. There are many times when it is an easy thing to step into a machine and drive away, particularly if the driver has a knowledge of several kinds of cars and is able to find the machine unlocked. But there can be no idea that such a practice is going to be tolerated even though the automobile may be insured against theft.

Holyoke has been suffering from an epidemic of lost cars but if we can judge from indications the pitcher went to the well once too often. It is bad business in which to be involved whether those concerned are amateurs or confirmed criminals. The idea of stealing a car for any one of many reasons apparently makes its appeal to a certain number and the question arises as to whether the reason for this is the leniency with which those who are caught are treated. Certainly those who draw a lecture and a discharge do not furnish a very strong lesson for any others who may be contemplating just such a thing. Too often it is the case that others are encouraged to bad practices because of the treatment accorded those who furnished them the idea. Automobile thefts involve too much to be treated lightly.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Of course, you are not unmindful that it is Lincoln day.

A week of unusual weather shows that the groundhog is one sixth wrong anyway.

The man on the corner says: Spring seems to be lurking around this or some other corner.

According to Ruth's demands for a salary of $100,000, the older he gets the higher he comes.

Impassable roads, heavy snowslides and sub zero weather in Colorado probably make the groundhog smile.

It is most unusual when February produces that tired feeling which is so closely associated with spring.

It will probably be a great surprise to Mr. Hoover if he finds that he is allowed to fill a few of the cabinet places according to his own ideas.

The simplicity of the device for escaping from a submarine is such that we wonder it wasn't provided before and yet but for the S-51 and S-4 accidents it would probably not have been heard of yet.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—This week has brought much activity to the Connecticut delegation, especially to Floor Leader Tilson, on whose shoulders rests the outlining of the legislative program for the short remaining time of the session. The steering committee, the rules committee and committee chairmen all call on Tilson to decide or advise on momentous questions of legislation; how they can be completed before adjournment; how to hush the remonstrance of members who cannot seem to understand that their bills are not of more immediate importance than those of other representatives; who urge Tilson to "use his influence" with President-elect Hoover to get consideration on such and such measures. The private office of the majority floor leader is just off the speaker's lobby, and except when Colonel Tilson is on the floor, or presiding over the house, there are but few minutes of the day when there isn't a "waiting list" to get his attention.

Regarding the date and work of the extra session to be called in April, Colonel Tilson said today: "Of course no one can predict exactly when it will be called. Mr. Hoover will not name a date that will see congress again in session and the measures for which it was specifically called are not ready for consideration. The date rests with Mr. Hoover and will unquestionably be determined by the date the farm and tariff bills can be brought before congress. Personally I believe the date of the session will be either the 8th or 15th of April, but something might intervene to advance or postpone it. For that reason, and because it rests with Mr. Hoover, I do not feel any specific prediction can safely be made."

Senator Bingham was confined to his home by a severe cold a few days last week, but recovered quickly and was in the senate urging better provision for airplane service and carriers under the appropriation bill then pending. The senator's duties as chairman of the sub-committee on appropriations for the District of Columbia have also kept him on duty long hours, but he found time to fill his engagement as principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Washington chamber of commerce Saturday night, when he discussed the problems of the city and district.

The Fenn census bill has not yet seen the light of day over in the senate, beyond having received a favorable report from the committee on commerce to which it was referred. But its passage is expected before the curtain falls on March 4.

The official counting and formal announcement of the official vote last month, by presidential electors, will be made in a joint session of congress on Wednesday of this week. It always attracts a big gallery crowd, and this year will be especially notable as the clerk will announce for the first time, the election by Virginia, Florida, North Carolina and Texas of a republican president and vice-president. It is safe to predict the house will be in an uproar when those returns are read.

Following a red hot controversy in congress, led by Senator Heflin of Alabama, the navy department, through its chief chaplain, has made clear the exact status and significance of the church flag, or rather church pennant, that flies over ships of the United States navy whenever a religious service is being conducted aboard that vessel.

Instead of being "the flag of the pope of Rome," as Mr. Heflin had asserted, the pennant is distinctively a flag of the U. S. navy, and not of any specific church or denomination.

In an exclusive interview given this week by Chief Chaplain of the Navy Dickins, to the Washington correspondent of The Bulletin, it was shown by naval orders, by facts and figures, that the church pennant is in no way associated with any specific denomination. The chief chaplain, speaking as the naval authority on the matter, said: "The church pennant of the navy is strictly a flag of the navy and not the flag or pennant of any church organization or denomination. It is absolutely non-sectarian and undenominational. It flies only during divine service and indicates to nearby ships that religious service is being conducted on board, and that all persons should conduct themselves accordingly in order that the service may not be interrupted. Thus it serves a practical purpose as well as being a tribute to religion. It flies alike whether the service is being conducted by priest, minister or rabbi.

"It is flown at peak by naval orders running back to 1844 and the custom was followed long before that. The pennant is a simple, small white triangular one bearing a dark blue Latin cross. Nothing else. The American flag is not lowered to the ground when the pennant is raised; the two are on separate halyards, and the ship's flag is lowered only a couple of feet, in order that it does not obscure the small pennant, which is run up on a separate halyard by side of the ship flag. When the pennant is removed at the close of the service, the American flag is not lowered, being on a separate halyard, but is then raised to the peak.

"Two men attend to this, so the American flag is never 'hauled down' as Mr. Heflin stated." In answer to direct questions Chaplain Dickins explained that the cross on the pennant is not of any creed or type of churchmanship; that it is used as the symbol that the United States is a Christian nation and is simply an admission that God is supreme. "The navy has too many men who pay the great sacrifice in protection of the flag of its country not to feel that its value has been heightened by our acknowledgement of the supremacy of God in the affairs of men."

In further proof that the church flag is in no sense sectarian, the chaplain stated that there are 80 chaplains in the chaplains' corps of the navy. Of these 69 are Protestants and 11 Roman Catholics. They are divided as follows: Presbyterians, 18; Methodists, 15; Baptist, 12; Roman Catholic, 11; Episcopal, 10; Disciples of Christ, 4; Christian, 2; Congregationalist, 2; Lutheran, 2; Reform, 1; Rabbi, 3. All battleships and some cruisers carry chaplains, who perform all the duties of on-shore clergy; battleships carry a crew of 1,200 or 1,500 men. Chaplains are also serving at all foreign stations, like Japan, Honolulu and others. Each carries out his customary form of divine service, but whether it is a Roman priest in robes, a plainly garbed Protestant minister, or a Jewish rabbi, the same pennant of the church is flown at peak during that service.

"The flag of the country bows in submission only to God," said Chaplain Dickins.

There is a strong sentiment here for continuance of the existing custom. We open congress with prayer; we inscribe "In God we trust" on our coins; it has been the custom of centuries, both abroad and in our navy to fly at top mast a pennant during a religious service. That pennant knows no creed, it is Christian acknowledgement of a supreme power offered by a Christian nation, and a custom that should not be abandoned, is the consensus of opinion.

Youthful enthusiasm causes a boy to imagine that he knows more than his father.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Her mother had called her "Vera," and from her father she had received the name of "Tweet." Vera-Tweet. The name could not be spoken without a simper or the shadow of a lisp, and how she detested it. Ever since she could remember, it had made her the helpless target for foolish jibes and banal puns. "Miss Vera Tweet, you say? Oh, yes, verra sweet. Very!"

More than once Vera had tearfully reproached her mother for choosing a husband with such a name. But Mrs. Tweet had only smiled and replied: "Wait until you find the right man, dear. What does a name matter?"

"It will matter with me," Vera had assured her. "After what I've been through, it will matter more than anything!" For Vera was a tall and willowy blond with an English-lady complex; a complex that demanded such a name as the Hon. Diana Waterstone or Gwendolyn de Peyster Vanderweather.

She loved to imagine herself sweeping into a drawing room and drawling: "James, serve tea in here, please," or embarking for the opera in a costume of black velvet and pearls. Instead, she was a desk clerk in the National Trust company, where the only time she dared exercise her broad "a-s" was over the telephone.

When spring came with its entrancing invitation to day-dream and invest in a new wardrobe, Vera withdrew her money from the savings account and bought an ensemble of silver gray and blue that would have done justice to an England grand dame. The first morning she wore it her mirror told her such a satisfying story that she entered the office in the best of moods until, as usual, her comic name had to spoil everything.

The office boy took one look at her new clothes and began a clumsy capering up and down the office, "Spring has come," he shrilled in a high falsetto. "Spring has came. Tweet—tweet-tweet!" The other clerks giggled. Vera felt the blood rush to her face, and in a flood of anger and embarrassment she made an excuse to go to the filing department and bolted for the elevator.

"Ugh—beg pardon."

"I beg your pardon." In her hurry she had plunged blindly into a tall red-headed young man. Now he stood smiling amicably down upon her. "What do you ride, a cyclone?" he asked.

"I'm sorry. I was in such a hurry," gasped Vera. As the stranger strode down the corridor, her eyes followed his broad back admiringly.

"Who was that?" she inquired of the elevator man. Old John shook his head.

"New feller in the bookkeeping department on the second floor," he told her. "Never heard his name."

Oh, what courtly grace; with what an air had he bent over her! Vera did not know his name, but she could guess. She could picture him standing before her in armor, like Sir Galahad, or bending over her hand clad in silken doublet and hose, a graceful and elegant Raleigh. Perhaps his name was—Mortimer? What ever it was, she felt sure his wife would never have to blush every time she produced her calling card.

The next day the new bookkeeper wandered into Vera's department and lingered at her desk for a few moments.

"I don't believe I know your name," he began. But Vera interrupted him nervously. She could not let him know that name—not yet.

"Let's go incognito for a while," she pleaded. "You mustn't ask what my name is and I won't ask yours. Don't you think that would be—sort of fun?" The man grinned.

"Sure, just as you say," he agreed. "You can call me 'Red'; everybody else does."

At the end of two weeks Vera knew that she had met the knight of her dreams, and Red knew it, too. One evening as they returned from the movies he ventured to tell her so.

"Darling," he pleaded, "it's about time we cut out this incognito business. I've got to confess that I found out your name the very first day."

He knew it and he hadn't guyed her about it! Vera's heart felt an exultant glow. Her generous lover!

"And, Red, what is your name?" she asked. Red hesitated.

"Get ready for a good laugh," he grinned. "You're going to be Mrs. Percival Pretty." But Vera did not laugh. Instead she was beaming happily up into his face.

"I love it!" she whispered. "After all, when you've found the right man, what does the name matter?"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—The senate has had plenty of millionaires in its membership, but quite possibly it never had cloak room acquaintance with a "fifty-millionaire" before Jim Couzens of Michigan took to politics.

That's the general estimate of the Couzens fortune and the senator himself seems to think it about right. And he is by way of being an exceedingly frank man.

There's another title the Michigander has earned since he came to the senate. He might well be styled the bulldog of that body. When he gets set on an idea, he stays set.

His outstanding idea for years has been that Andrew Mellon is not so good as a treasury secretary. And the fact that so many other folks seem to take an opposite view of the Mellon capabilities and performance, very characteristically makes no difference at all to Jim Couzens.

Could Have Cut Tax.

During prolonged debate over tax refund aspects of the treasury appropriation bill, Couzens had occasion to talk about a time in 1922 when proposals were made to him that he could obtain a million-dollar reduction in income tax on his Ford stock, due to an unpublished internal revenue bureau ruling.

"Of course, I turned the proposition down and let the matter stay in the year the bureau had put it, as I thought the bureau was right," Couzens told the senate.

Nobody said anything, but probably most senators thought a lot about this brother senator's personal financial transactions on a scale that made a million shape up to about the size of a $5 bill for most men.

Aids Children.

Out of office hours, the serious minded and seldom smiling Michigan senator seems to have one hobby. He does a great deal for the relief of crippled children.

There is a hospital in Michigan where some 300 of these unfortunate youngsters are cared for, built on funds provided very largely by Jim Couzens.

He has a definite theory about that as about most things he does. He is very fearful of pauperizing unlucky folk through unwise charitable ventures; but he feels that in dealing with stricken youngsters who come into the world handicapped with crippled limbs or who are victims of such mischance after birth there is no such danger.

Last year Couzens sent more than a score of young sufferers from infantile paralysis to the Georgia spa, where Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York believes much of his recovery from that disease was accomplished. The youngsters romped in the warm water of the open air pools for weeks, all at Couzen's expense.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The 120th Anniversary of the Birthday of Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Editor: Today, February 12th will mark the 120th anniversary of one of the greatest Americans of all time—the immortal Lincoln—a man whose early life was spent in the most primitive surroundings, and whose education was acquired under the most discouraging conditions, self taught and with very meagre chances for an education. I personally have always thought that Lincoln was a messenger sent from God to handle a situation that was beyond the ability of an ordinary human and to me he seemed to have been inspired by the Almighty to carry on His work to free His children, who were held in bondage and were crying in their anguish for freedom.

Lincoln's parents were born in Virginia, and like many others followed the trail which led toward the setting sun, across the Alleghenies and onward into Kentucky, where Abraham Lincoln was born in Harden county on Feb. 12, 1809 and from there they went to Indiana. This western country in those days was almost a wilderness and was filled with wild animals, Indians and white men who were as rought as the times they lived in—amid these surroundings Lincoln grew up to manhood, and when he was 19 he was a flat boat man on the Mississippi going down to New Orleans. All these wild times did not dwarf the nobility of his soul. All his utterances were couched in the most beautiful words and it seems as we read his whole life through that it is almost beyond the power of man to conceive or understand how or where he acquired the command of such wonderful expressive words to convey his thoughts. Consider his address at the battlefield of Gettysburg not the principal ovation of the day. At the time hardly noticed, but today as we read it the beauty of the words strike a responsive chord in the charm and harmony that are so wonderfully expressed.

It is doubtful if in all history or in fact in all literature there can be found a tribute, at once so touching as his letter to a Mrs. Bixby of Boston. Its brevity, its poetic beauty, its complete mastery of the whole situation, make Lincoln one of the master writers of all time. Here I will give you the letter to read and let you, his countrymen, judge for yourselves:

"Dear Madam: I have been shown in the files of the war department a statement of the adjutant-general of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle.

"I feel how weak and fruitless must be any words of mine which should attempt to beguile you from a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom."

As I read those words they to me see almost of divine origin, and they show the nobility of the soul of the man Lincoln.

How he did love his children, and this is told in a graphic way by Vachel Lindsay in the beautiful poem, Abraham Lincoln Walks at Midnight, a short quotation of which follows:

He lingers where his children used to play
Or through the market on the well-worn stones
He stalks until the dawn-stars burn away
A bronzed lank man, his suit of ancient black
A famous high-top hat and plain worn shawl
Make him the quaint great figure men love

The prairie, lawyer-master of us all.

Lincoln, although the head of the greatest and most glorious country in this world did not look upon himself as the ruler but rather as their servant, ever ready to help to remedy any wrong that was within human powers, always ready to temper justice with mercy.

Lincoln's love for everything was out of the ordinary and I want to tell this story as an illustration:

In the spring of 1862, the president spent several days at Fortress Monroe. A portion of his cabinet were with him. During some hours that he had to himself he would read Shakespeare. The day before the taking of Norfolk as he sat reading alone, he called his aide from the adjoining room and said: "You have been writing long enough. I want to read to you a passage from Hamlet, and he read the discussion on ambition between Hamlet and his courtiers, the soliloquy regarding another life, a future state and then read King John, third act where Constance bewails her lost boy. Here closing the book he quoted from memory: "And Father Cardinal I have heard you say that we shall see and know our friends in Heaven, and if this be true I shall see my boy again." Lincoln then said to his aide, "Did you ever dream of a lost friend and feel as though you were talking to him once again and then waken and find it was only a dream?" And he continued, "Just so I dream of my boy Willie, who is only at rest out in the western country."

This story is only told to show the intensity of his great love. Not alone for his own but for all the people, irrespective of race, creed or color and as he told the story of his boy he bowed his head on the table and sobbed aloud.

To you who would like to know or see the real man that he was in every day life I would ask you to read the book, The Soul of Ann Rutledge. Lincoln's first and greatest love. This is perhaps one of the greatest love stories of modern times, and it is true, and as this great man sat beside the bed where she was slowly but surely going to sleep, she sang for him, "I'm a Pilgrim and I'm a stranger, I can tarry, I can tarry but a night," and then she softly went to sleep.

For weeks Lincoln grieved but his great heart and great mind asserted itself and he gradually returned to normal. But I mustn't tell you too much for I want you to read the story of the anguish of one of the greatest men that ever lived—Abraham Lincoln. For in this story both the love and faith of one of earth's noblest souls is told. Although he will have been dead 54 years, April 15, 1929, his great and honored name still lives and while men live will never be forgotten.

There was another side to Lincoln, for he at times loved to tell a story to tell one to bring out a point, or maybe to create a healthy, hearty laugh. I will tell you one or two to show the other side of the man Lincoln. He said, he was reminded of two farmers who were bragging about their big crops. One was telling how much hay he had, and said I have so much hay I don't know what to do with it so I have piled all I can outdoors and the rest I am going to put in the barn.

At the time General Sherman's expedition, which captured Port Royal, went out there was great curiosity to know where they had gone. One man asked Lincoln and he replied, if you will keep a secret I will tell you and the man agreed. Then Lincoln said in a stage whisper, it is a great secret but I will tell you, they have gone to sea.

YOUR INCOME TAX

A taxpayer engaged in a trade or business in which both capital and personal services are material income-producing factors also is given consideration in computing the tax on earned income.

The revenue act of 1928 provides in such cases that a "reasonable allowance as compensation for personal services" shall be considered as earned income. Such allowance is not to exceed 20 per cent of the taxpayer's share of the net profits of such trade or business. For example, a taxpayer received in 1928, from a business in which both personal services and capital are material income-producing factors, a net profit of $30,000. The 23 per cent credit is computed on 20 per cent of $30,000, or $6,000. The amount payable is the tax on $30,000, less 23 per cent of the tax on $6,000.

Little Talks on Thrift

Most Great Fortunes Developed as Result of Slow, Steady Saving

There are a great many substantial business men in America today who could tell you interesting stories about how they spent their early years in the accumulation of a few dollars.

Had they continued all their lives to save only the small amounts they were able to lay by at first, they never would have become well-to-do men. But their small savings and the discipline which was necessary to build up these sums put them in a position to earn more money and occupy more important positions as the years went by.

"I don't think I could live long enough ever to be rich at the rate I would be able to save money."

This sentence in a letter received recently is typical of the viewpoint of many who lack the patience to build up their personal resources through the painstaking methods of thrift. Now and then someone does strike it rich so to speak, but where one person may gain sudden wealth a million others, trying the same thing, may lose their last penny.

Look up the histories of most of the large fortunes in America and you will find that the vast majority were started with small sums of money and grew to fabulous accumulations of wealth through the normal processes of sound business and investment. The possession even of a small sum of money was necessary before the larger amounts could be built up.

It is always to be remembered that one of the great elements in thrift is patience. It is hard for an ambitious, vigorous person to exercise this rare quality. The temptation always is strong with such persons to take chances and plunge. But patient saving and the slow, steady accumulation of funds will win out in the long run. The great book of human experience is eloquent in its assertions of this fact.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Seeing Italy

Fondness for eloquence and the use of big words led to a statement by one who was planning his future should he become wealthy:

"Well, if I were rich I would like to go to Europe like Mr. X and see Mt. Voracious and saliva run down its sides."

Regardless

The audience at a recent lecture was completely convulsed and put in a receptive mood when a well known resident, introducing the lecturer, and intending to say "none," concluded his remarks with: "The speaker this afternoon, I am sure, needs no introduction, and will get one."

Adams, Mrs. Lillian Young, Mrs. Erma Wetherbee, Mrs. Ella Lathrop, Mrs. Robert Breckenridge, Mrs. John Tefft, Mrs. George Anderson and Mrs. Fred Krohn.

The president, Harold Robbins, presented Rev. Mr. Cooper, as the speaker.

Rev. Mr. Cooper in part said: "It is almost impossible for anyone to say anything new about Abraham Lincoln. A professor has said that there are 57,000 books and pamphlets on him. Biographies and poem after poem are being created in every part of the world oin Lincoln. Men are erecting statues and memorials to Lincoln. We ought not to forget him, because he has filled such a large place in this nation. Who could have thought were you to go back to the earliest days that Lincoln could have sprung from his surroundings. Those were crude pioneer surroundings.

Think of Lincoln when he was 17 years old, standing 6 feet, 4 inches, in jean trousers coming down within four inches of his cowhide boots, a colored shirt on his shoulders and a coon cap on his head from which the tousled hair could be seen pushing down his lean and scraggy neck. Ungainly, awkward with every part of him spreading over a larger surface than seemed his right. Going to school only a part of the year, working with his large sinewy hands from the time he could handle anything at all, fighting his way to responsibility and respect by the sheer force of will backed by iron strength of body. He was never content to be a stolid animal, but struggled like a young Titan for every worthy aim.

As a boy he was obedient at home. His father was rather careless; his mother and his stepmother were good women. The memories of these good women were cut deep in the heart of Abraham. Sally Bush, his stepmother, said "I can say what scarcely one mother in a thousand can say. Abe never gave me a cross word or look and never refused in fact or appearance to do anything I asked him." Lincoln deeply appreciated and loved these women for he said "I owe all I am to a good mother."

Abraham son showed a strong desire for knowing things. Here was this poor, rough, frontier boy with scarcely a vestige of refinement in his own home or in his surroundings. Yet he had an enormous appetite for reading everything he could lay his hands on. He read every book for 60 miles around him. When he did get a chance to go to school he grasped the opportunity. His schoolmaster's name was Gingsby who said of him, "He was always at school and attentive to his lessons. He was always at the head of his class. He lost no time at home for when he was not at work be was always at his lessons." He not only sought knowledge, but he found himself with a great desire to tell it to someone else. He longed for expression.

The Almanac said, "And still they gazed, etc. There was more native genius in his makeup than found in book knowledge. His learning was always obedient to this genius. He saw the truth so clearly because he tried to get a picture of it for himself and was never satisfied until he had brought it within the compass of his mind. He saw the truth for himself and found it easy to make other people see it in the same way. His language was terse, strong, colloquial; the language of the store, the street, the fields, although heightened and enriched by a spiritual quality that pervaded the whole. Many sentences are like the strains of organ music floating down from lofty Gothic arches. He sang the songs of hope and faith amid the darkest days of our country's history, when despair grinned like a mocking devil from the face of events. He struck the lyre of memory that pride might awaken patriotic impulse.

This clearness of mental vision and fine facility of expression came from the rugged honesty of his nature. What he said was reinforced by what he was, in the essential qualities of his mind and heart. He could not lie either in speech or life. He was never anything but himself. In his first speech as a candidate for political office he said, "I am humble Abraham Lincoln" and up to the last moment of his life he never tried to deny the fact. He never imposed upon others, because he never imposed upon himself.

He found himself with a great love for country burning in his heart. In that great western pioneer life, men lived very near to Nature's heart. The rolling rivers, the wide prairies, the mountain ranges, the awful mystery and majesty of natural forces taught the boy that the world must be mastered and while he was mastering it he learned to love it. When a study of his country's history taught him what it had suffered in order to be free there was patriotism born in his heart. Some one has said, "Love of country is love of countrymen." Put as you will, Lincoln loved his countrymen. Black, red, white he cared not; they all met from him equal treatment. He was intensely human and loved folks.

Congressman Rollins while walking with him one day told him of a plot to assassinate him. Lincoln replied "Rollins, I don't see what on God's earth any man would want to kill men for. There is not a human being to whom I would not extend a favor and make him happy if it was in my power to do so."

He had a deep interest in everything that concerned the good of the community. He soon showed in his conduct, what we have come to call," a public spirit." He was willing to help the community to do better things, not for self exploitation but for social betterment. Our citizenship should always mean that we should not ask, "What can I get out of this for myself?" but "What I can put into this for others?" The rights of citizenship are conferred rights and responsibility and duty should go with them. Public office is a public trust.

Lincoln lived near the heart of the people and they believed in him. He felt that if the people could see the truth they would act upon it without fail. To do the right, as it was given him to see, the right was the sincere impulse of his mind. There was no harboring of selfish motives over against public and patriotic duty. He could thrash a bully for the sake of upholding the honor of an obscure country village and he wrestled with half the world that his own country might be free and united. He never fought for his own sake, but when it was necessary to hold some God-given right, then no man fought harder than he. He formed three simple axioms of duty when he became president. "Enforce the law," "Save the Union" and "Free the Slaves."

Law enforcement is essential to the permanence of our government. Lincoln always thought more of country than himself and showed this love in every act and word. He chose his cabinet from his competitors and opponents.

Lincoln's religion is a little obscure, but we can with truthfulness say that he believed in and loved the Bible. His speeches show how he had absorbed the Bible with its splendid imagery. It was one of the small number of books he read in his boyhood. Secondly, he believed in God and felt that he wanted to have His approval of his conduct. A member of a church tried to cheer him one day by telling him, "The Lord is on our side." Lincoln replied, "I am not concerned about that. But I am concerned and it is my constant anxiety and prayer that I, and this nation, should be on the Lord's side. Thirdly, he believed in practice prayer. Great leaders of the church used to visit him and he invariably asked for their prayers.

Rev. Mr. Cooper was given a rising vote of thanks for his splendid address, after which adjournment was taken. Preceding the talk a short business meeting was held with the president, Harold Robbins, presiding. It was announced that an address on the Holy Land would be given by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London at the next meeting.

OBITUARY

Charles E. Hazelhurst

Charles E. Hazelhurst, 61, prominent for many years as a detective in police circles throughout Connecticut and New England, died Monday morning in Preston, after a long illness. Mr. Hazelhurst, who resided in Norwich for many years, had of late years been a resident of Waterbury, Conn., where he was head detective for the Scoville Manufacturing company.

Mr. Hazelhurst started his career as a detective in Norwich 35 years ago. He served as a constable and a supernumerary policeman for the city. Through his creditable service in Norwich police circles he gained a position on the state police force, retaining that position until 1904, when he became a special detective for the New Haven road. Severing his connection with the New Haven road he went to the Erie railroad in the same capacity. After two two years with that railroad he was then made head detective for the Scoville Manufacturing company at Waterbury, a position he held until Jan. 28, 1921, when he resigned because of ill health.

During his long career as a criminal investigator Mr. Hazelhurst had figured in many prominent cases in the east. He was instrumental in securing evidence against Benjamin Lowenstein, the New York junkman. Lowenstein, at that time, reputed to be worth a million, was implicated with other junk dealers, in the disposal of stolen metal from the Scoville company. He also made the arrests in connection with the Jeremiah Shumway murder case at Trading Cove.

Mr. Hazelhurst, who was known as "Chilly" in police circles, was a fearless officer and no case was too difficult for him to tackle. As the result of his travels throughout the east in his work as a detective Mr. Hazelhurst made numerous acquaintances and friends. They will be grieved to learn of his passing from earthly life and their sympathy is extended to the surviving members of the family.

Mr. Hazelhurst is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emma E. Hazelhurst, two daughters, Mrs. Jennie M. Moullett of Waterbury, and Mrs. John Dartland of Long Island City, N. Y., and a brother, William Hazelhurst of Waterbury.

The regular monthly meeting of the parliamentary law class was held Monday afternoon in the Women's City club room at the Wauregan hotel. It was called to order by the chairman and the roll call read.

WEBBER SUCCEEDS JACKSON AS COUNCIL PRESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 11—Alderman William E. Webber, senior member of the council, was elected president of the common council at the February meeting, succeeding the late Alderman W. E. Jackson. The election was by a unanimous standing vote.

The election of Alderman Webber followed a declaration of a vacancy in the position of first ward alderman and president of the council. Resolutions on the death of Alderman Jackson, presented by Corporation Counsel W. A. King, were adopted. The resolutions paid tribute to Alderman Jackson stating that "as an alderman he never lost the opportunity to advance the city's interest, and there was no progressive action on the part of the city that he did not support; and it may be truly said that often time he inspired and took the initiative in such progressive movements." It mentioned his work on the street improvement and his unremitting attention of the needs of the police department which he had brought to a high degree of efficiency.

The suspension of Superhumerary Police Officer John Shea was announced in a written report by Mayor Charles A. Gates, charging intoxication and conduct unbecoming an officer on Feb. 2 last. The suspension was referred to the police commission for investigation and report. This suspension and that of Capt. of Police McLean which has been in fact for some weeks are expected to be taken up for action at the adjourned council meeting called for next Monday night. This adjourned meeting is also to be held for the election of an alderman to fill the vacancy now existing in the first ward.

The council after considering a petition presented by James J. Lee voted to allow the use of the Montgomery Hose house on Jackson street to the James J. Shea post, American Legion, and all other veterans' organizations. It was also voted to repair the building for such use.

STOCK MARKET DISPLAYED STRENGTH, BUT PACE OF TRADING SLOWED UP

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—The stock market displayed unexpected buoyancy today, after last week's unsettling developments in the credit situation. The only effects of the announcement of a special meeting of the directors of the New York Federal Reserve bank after the close, and of the holiday tomorrow, seemed to be a slowing up of the pace of trading, total sales dropping below 4,000,000 shares for the first full session in weeks.

Reports that Secretary Mellon would issue an encouraging statement on the stock market after the close were circulated about Wall street during the session, and restored confidence to a marked degree. However, nothing whatever was forthcoming from the secretary, who declined to discuss credit or the federal reserve board in any way. The meeting of the New York Reserve bank directors after the close brought no change in the rediscount rate, and nothing was revealed as to its purpose, leaving Wall street rather mystified.

Call money opened at 8 per cent, the highest renewal rate since early January, but dropped to 7 as funds were attracted by this rate. The federal reserve boards condition statement of weekly reporting member banks disclosed a further increase in borrowings at the reserve institutions, amounting to $39,000,000, and an increase of $133,000,000 in loans. Further attention to the brokerage loan situation by congressmen in Washington was met with some misgivings in speculative circles.

The weekly trade reviews continued favorable. The non-ferrous metal shares improved with rumors of still higher prices for copper, and announcement of a $2-a-ton increase in lead prices. A few good earnings statements made their appearance.

U. S. Rubber and Goodyear Tire and Rubber prices early in the year. Continental Can reported a jump of 51 per cent in 1928 earnings.

Copper, rubber, chemical and utility shares were in the forefront of the advance. Peoples Gas, Radio and Otis Elevator mounted 14 points each, while American and Foreign Power jumped 11 to a new peak. Calle and Greene Cananea led the coppers with gains of about 7 and 9 points, the former breaking into new high ground.

Goodyear Rubber mounted 10 points to a new peak. Calle and Greene Cananea led the coppers with gains of Goodyear Rubber mounted 10 points, and Columbia Carbon 12. Union Carbide, Electric Auto Lite, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, National Cash Register, and American Telephone were among issues mounting 6 to 8 points. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem gained about 4 points each. Some of the rails made good headway, Canadian Pacific and Pere Marquette climbing about 6 points.

Chrysler was under heavy pressure during the forenoon, falling below the 100-mark, but the issue rallied to 104 1-2 at the close, up over 2 points. Abraham and Straus was a weak spot, losing more than 10 points in a small turnover. Burroughs Adding, McCrory Stores preferred, National Surety, Nickel Plate, and Pittsburgh and West Virginia were among the handful of issues closing off 2 to 5 points.

The commodity markets were quiet and generally steady, transactions representing largely an evening up of accounts before the holiday. Cotton closed about 50 cents a bale higher.

Foreign exchanges were also quiet. The sterling demand rate sagged under $4.85, but the cable rate held steady at 4.85 3-8. The peseta again slumped.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—(AP)—Crop damage threatening Europe as well as this country, with wheat supplies in North America depleted rapidly, tended today to carry wheat prices upgrade. Berlin reported temperatures 15 below zero. Wheat in eastern Germany and in Poland was said to be minus sufficient snow covering, and wheat futures at Rotterdam jumped 5c to 7c.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were firm, 5-8c to 1c net higher. Corn finished at 1-4c decline to 3-8c advance, oats 1-4c down to a shade up, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5 and 7c.

From the outset, the Chicago wheat market today showed an advancing trend. In addition to unfavorable crop reports from Europe, talk persisted about likelihood of injury having been done to domestic winter wheat, especially in sections tributary to St. Louis where late sown wheat was described as apparently a failure, just as was the actual case a year ago. Moreover, notwithstanding record world-shipments for the week, 23,312,000 bushels the amount of wheat on ocean passage remained about 1,000,000 bushels short of last year's total at this time.

Meanwhile announcement was made that the United States wheat visible supply had been diminished 2,301,000 bushels in the last week, and that the Canadian stock had decreased 4,022,000 bushels. A year ago, the falling-off in domestic supply for the week was only 809,000 bushels whereas this year the shrinkage since Jan. 1 has been about 14,000,000 bushels. Contributing to the upward swing of the wheat market was the fact that there was a good deal of buying of wheat today on the part of spread traders who simultaneously were selling corn.

Corn was under selling pressure on account of evidence of a heavier country movement of corn to terminal markets. Arrivals of corn in Chicago today were 672 cars, compared with 526 cars at this time last week. The corn visible supply increased 1,921,000 bushels for the week. Less was heard of corn export demand. Oats were influenced mainly by corn action.

Provisions averaged lower as a result of scattered selling which more than offset an advance in the value of hogs.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Anaconda Copper 7s, with a 10-point advance, carried the convertible issues and some of the secondary rails upward in today's irregular bond market. A few rails and some of the sugars, however, sagged to new lows for the year. The improvement in the convertibles reflected the stock market's strength in the face of higher money. Sales for the third time this year exceeded $12,000,000.

Active buying carried Alleghany corporation 5s up a point to 104 and American International 5 1-2s nearly 2 points to 107 1-4. Both issues, however, were several points under their high figures established nearly two weeks ago. International Telephone convertible 4 1-2s were another strong spot, climbing 1 5-8 points, and Porto Rican-American Tobacco 6s rallied from a low of 102 3-4 to close at 103 1-2, up 3 3-4 points on the day.

The high grade rails were generally soft. Baltimore & Ohio first 5s slipping back a point and Southern Pacific 4s of 1949 nearly 3 points. Trading in the short line rails was featured by a 4 1-2 point jump in refunding 4s of Ulster & Delaware, one of the roads involved in the New York Central's unification plans. Boston & Maine 5s sagged to a new low at 86 1-4 on reports stockholders would be asked to subscribe to new bonds under a plan for payment of accrued dividends.

Industrials worked irregularly lower. Bethlehem Steel convertible 5 1-2s dropped a point on profit-taking, but Inland Steel 4 1-2s improved. International Cement 5s recovered part of their last week's loss.

Camaguey Sugar 7s dropped to a new low for 1929 at 92 1-2.

Utilities improved with the advance in the stocks. Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s dropped to 187 and rallied in the late trading to 195 for a net gain of 2 points on the day.

Selling was fairly general in the foreign list. Bulgarian Kingdom 7 1-2s lost 2 points.

Curb bonds were irregular. Associated Gas 4 1-2s advancing 10 points with the stock.

U. S. government obligations were heavy.

Norcotte went to the New York Coffee Pot, State street, Saturday and created such a disturbance that he was arrested by Sergeant Samuel Hick. He posted a cash bond for his court appearance today, but rather than allow his boat, the "Wild Goose" to depart from port without him, he boarded the steamer Sunday afternoon. NERVY MESSENGER STOLE RIGHT IN POLICE STATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 11—The number of theft cases to occur in this city, and there has been many within a few months, has been greatly lessened, but none of those to claim the attention of the police has ever eclipsed one which took place tonight for boldness, since the robbery was perpetrated right in the police station.

Charles Jones, colored, a member of the crew of U. S. destroyer Monaghan, was arrested this afternoon charged with assault, and was locked up to await presentation in the police court tomorrow. About 6.30 o'clock Jones desired food and had money to pay for it. A restaurant proprietor sent a frequenter of the place to headquarters to take the prisoner's order and a meal, equivalent to 45 cents was ordered. When it was delivered to Jones, the carrier was given a $5 bill to pay for the meal and instead of tendering Jones the latter's change and Jones being where he could not hold the fellow, the restaurant hanger-on, left the cell room and went to the street. Going to the restaurant he paid for the meal and then, with a companion, started to spend the Negro's money. Jones made known his loss as soon as possible. A short time later, Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Frank Philopena noticed two fellows standing on a North Bank street corner, one of whom answered the description of the fellow who took Jones' money. Both were under the influence of liquor and were arrested. The restaurant proprietor and Jones both identified one of the drunks as the fellow who had handled the money. In his possession was found a soda bottle containing diluted alcohol, several packages of cigarettes and 45 cents. The pair will be in court tomorrow. So will Jones for he was arrested by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith charged with assault upon Leroy Vanderhorst, also colored, a sailor on the Monaghan. The two Negroes were in a Pearl street house Saturday night and quarrelled when Jones, it is claimed attempted to defraud a woman occupant of the house of $20. When the argument became hot, Vanderhorst ran to the yard followed by Jones with a poker. Overtaking Vanderhorst, Jones, laid the former's scalp open with a blow over the left temple. Jones, also, will be charged with the theft of foodstuffs from a grocery store located near the Pearl street house.

He did not procure a surety on his bond and was locked up. Maynard will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow. Maynard has been sought by the police since Jan. 10, but he succeeded in remaining under cover until today.

Cheerful About Loss

Peter Kazakis, 21 Tilley street, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Dennis Cavanaugh charged with violation of the city's laws in parking away from the curb. Kazakis will not defend the charge in court tomorrow for he made it known in depositing a cash bond that he would forfeit the bond.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Danny and Nanny Decide to Move

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Dissatisfaction leads to change
And thus for progress doth arrange.
—Old Mother Nature.

Nanny Meadow Mouse was no longer satisfied with the home she and Danny had under the snow. She had been satisfied with it. Yes, indeed, she had been entirely satisfied with it until Danny became heedless and gave their secret away. He gave their secret away by climbing up to the surface of the snow too often and growing so careless that Blacky the Crow caught him by the end of his tail and when he escaped from him, Roughleg the Hawk very nearly caught him. Also, Reddy Fox had discovered where to dig for him.

"But that is such a lot of work," protested Danny

"It's your fault, Danny Meadow Mouse," declared Nanny, and her squeaky little voice was very cross, indeed. "Had you listened to me, we could have gone right on living here with nothing in the world to worry us. Everything was perfect. None of our enemies knew where we were and there was no way for them to find out. But now they know. Reddy and Mrs. Fox will be digging down all around here. I'm tired of being frightened. The thing for us to do is to move."

"But that is such a lot of work," protested Danny. "It means we'll have to dig a tunnel to wherever we want to go."

"Isn't it better to do a little work than to satisfy somebody's appetite?" demanded Nanny.

Danny had to admit that it was. "Still, I think you are foolishly scared," protested Danny. "I think you are making matters a lot worse than they are. What if Blacky the Crow and Roughleg the Hawk and Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy Fox do know that we are living down here, as long as we don't go up to the surface, how can they get us? And I promise you, Nanny, that I'll stay down here as long as the snow lasts."

"Pooh!" exclaimed Nanny. "You would remember that until about the time you get real hungry for certain seeds. Then you'd forget all about it. You would go climbing up to the surface to get those seeds from the weed tops."

"No, I wouldn't, Nanny," protested Danny, "but really I don't see any sense in moving. We are perfectly comfortable here. Nobody is going to disturb us."

The words were hardly out of Danny's mouth when two black paws came plunging down through the snow. They just missed Danny. With a squeak of fright he fled along one tunnel, while Nanny fled along another. Those two black paws threw the snow out very fast and a moment later a nose sniffed right where Danny and Nanny had been sitting. Reddy Fox had somehow heard them down there and had dug down through the snow on the chance of getting them.

When Reddy had finally gone on about other business, Danny and Nanny met at the entrance to their little home. "Well, what have you to say now?" demanded Nanny, and her squeaky voice was very sharp, indeed.

"Only this," replied Danny, very meekly. "That, as usual, you are right, my dear. As usual, you are right. We'll move. And the sooner we move, the better. The question is, where shall we move to?"

"I don't care, so long as we get away from here," replied Nanny, nervously. "Anywhere is better than this."

"I know where we'll go," replied Danny. "You follow me." He started off at once along one of their little tunnels. When he came to the end of it he began to dig. Nanny was right at his heels.

JURY INDICTS RICE FOR JACKSON MURDER

at which Foreman Russell and Clerk Oscar F. Atwood of Brooklyn were seated.

As Rice left the courthouse for his return to the jail he was smoking a cigar and apparently resigned to the finding of the jury. He spoke cheerfully to his Willimantic acquaintances as he passed to the car that bore him back to Brooklyn to await trial.

POLICE OFFICERS STILL AT JACKSON HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 11—Although Trenor A. Rice was indicted today for first degree murder in connection with the slaying of County Detective William E. Jackson on January 29th, the two police officers stationed at the Jackson home have not been removed. The officers were placed at the Jackson home for the purpose of keeping away curious persons. The police said tonight that they did not know when they would be removed.

It was learned today that the three cows belonging to the slain detective had been sold to a Mansfield milk dealer.

PREDICTS GREAT YEAR FOR JEWS OF AMERICA

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 11—(AP)—The Jews of America are on the threshold of a great year through unification, aided by the work of the present convention, declared Ludwig Vogelstein of Cincinnati, who delivered the convention address of the 31st council of the Union of American Hebrew congregation, meeting here today.

The council opened with selection of Judge M. C. Sloss of San Francisco as permanent chairman. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Mr. Sloss and Samuel Dinkelspiel, chairman of the San Francisco committee in charge of the convention.

Addresses will be made tomorrow by Adolph S. Ochs, owner and publisher of the New York Times, and Henry Morgenthau of New York, international banker and former United States ambassador to Turkey.

Mr. Ochs is at the head of the national drive for a $5,000,000 endowment for the Hebrew Union college of Cincinnati. He is expected to report to the council the subscription to date of four-fifths of this sum.

ACADEMY BASEBALL TEAM HAS FIRST INDOOR PRACTICE SESSION

EARLE E. BRIGHAM
N. F. A. Baseball Coach

Baseball activities for the coming season at the Academy opened Monday afternoon at the State Armory on McKinley avenue when Coach Earle E. Brigham of the twice state champions, sounded the first call for batterymen. Fourteen pitchers and four catchers reported and went through a workout that lasted about an hour.

Those reporting were: Pitchers, J. Grene, Fagan, Reardon, G. McGuinness, M. Abugle, C. Geer, A. Arico, T. Lyons, B. Weisgraber, Lavarge, Whitmarsh, Cotter, Buckley, Fitzgerald. Catchers—Fontaine, Pepin, Crowell, W. McGuinness.

The sessions will be continued right up until outdoor work starts, which will probably be in about a month. The first game will be played April 17 with Killingly High at home.

Infielders to Get Call Soon.

Infielders will be called out in about two weeks and after the basketball season closes March 9, other candidates are expected, including probably batterymen.

The Wildcats are making an early start this year. A difficult problem faces the local mentor this season in filling the battery positions. Mace Goldblatt, catcher and Lloyd Jarvis and Johnny Greene, pitchers, were lost by graduation and the absence of these veterans will no doubt be felt. However, in the two months remaining before the initial contest, Coach Brigham will have ample time to try out the large list of candidates.

Crowell, Fontain Head Catchers.

For catchers the Academy seems to be well supplied. Bud Fontaine, members of the suad for two years, during which time he was chief understudy to Goldblatt and Lester Crowell, last year's varsity receiver at Goddard Seminary, Vermont, will probably be the chief asprants for the position although Pepin, a stocky youngster, who has the reputation of being a hard hitter, will give them a run. Pepin was on the squad last year. Billy McGuinness is a new comer who played considerably on the playgrounds teams.

Joe (Boots) Greene, brother of Johnny, probably is the best known of the pitching candidates. Greene has seen some service with Academy teams and is looked upon by many as the ace of this year's staff. Boots is a temperamental chap, when right, can pitch with the best of them. He has a world of stuff and should have a big year. Red Fagan, who was on the squad last year and in the summer gained fame in the Industrial league is another candidate who will make a strong bid.

Alex Arico, stellar first sacker last year, is one of the few southpaws to try out this year. With Arico pitching, Chet Berghinzo will probably take care of the first base. Butsy Weisgraber, Cotter, a left-hander, Mike Abugle, Whitmarsh, Reardon and Buckley are other boys on the team last year, the first two as pitchers.

A boy that comes highly recommended is Lavarge, son of the old-time umpire. Lavarge is from Norwich Town and is looked upon for great things.

The workouts will gradually become stiffer and by the time the ground softens up, the team is expected to be in the best early-season shape that has been noted in years.

PILKINGTON OUTPOINTS DAY IN FAST TEN ROUNDS

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 11—(AP)—Jackie Pilkington, New York lightweight, outpointed Georgie Day, New Haven, in a ten round feature bout here tonight. It was their second meeting here this year and Pilkington's second triumph. Day displayed the game fighting spirit he is known to possess, but his relentless attack most always fell short as Pilkington used his better boxing ability to good advantage.

No knockdowns were recorded and although the former Meriden youth had a decided margin of victory, Day made his opponent step the distance to earn the award. About 4,000 were in attendance at the arena, where the show was held. Pilkington weighed 134 1-2, Day 134 3-4.

Eddie Elkins, of New York, sent the fans gasping by the decisive manner in which he disposed of Willie Hussey, of Bridgeport, in the semi-final bout. The boxers were hardly more than announced when Elkins got busy and slugged his way to a sensational knockout victory in two minutes and 10 seconds. Hussey, who weighed 140 3-4 pounds, had more than a five pound advantage.

In the preliminaries Joe Currie, New Haven, defeated Hymie Folens, New York in eight rounds; Johnny Mack, New Haven, scored a technical knockout in the third round over Red DeRosa. Derby, and Red Garren, Waterbury, whipped Young Peppe, New Haven, in the four round opener.

SCHAAF AND BURLAP WIN AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Feb. 11—(AP)—Ernie Schaaf, young heavyweight, outpointed Al Friedman, another Boston boy, in a ten round boxing match at the arena, here tonight. Schaaf was the favorite in the fight which capped a heavyweight programme featured by knockouts in the preliminaries.

The fight between Schaaf and Friedman was a close one. Both swung hard and conected often. Schaaf opened up a cut over Friedman's eye early in the fight and this handicapped the loser. In the semi-final, Big Boy Rawson of Boston pleased the crowd by sending Eddie Callahan, Arlington, to the mat for the count of ten in the fifth round of a scheduled eight round battle.

In a six-rounder "Big Boy" Burlap of Westerly, R. I., won the decision from Joe Cabana, substituting for "Hambone" Kelly. Two knockouts marked the progress of the four four-round preliminaries. Tom McNeeley, Cambridge, holder of the Massachusetts and New England amateur heavyweight championships, marked his professional debut by felling Jack O'Dowd, Boston, for the count in the second round.

The other knockout was scored by Joe Stockman, Boston, who defeated Ray Thompson, Natick, in the second round.

Johnny Glover and Mike Malaney, both of Boston, earned decisions over Jimmy Madden and Joe Conifrey, both local fighters.

SHEA LEADS SKATERS FOR DIAMOND TROPHY

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 11—(AP)—Jack Shea, the 19-year old Lake Placid youth who last week won the North American amateur outdoor speed skating championship, today took the lead in the race for the diamond trophy championship being held on Mirror lake by winning the 440 yard dash and taking second place in the mile, both senior.

Lloyd Gunther, of Detroit and Ross Robinson, of Toronto, were tied. Gunther winning the mile and Robinson second place in the 440 and third place in the mile.

Allan Potts, of New York, took third in the 440.

Six skaters, Shea of Lake Placid, Potts and Darnstadt, of New York, Robinson of Toronto, Gunther of Detroit and Symthe of Moncton, N. B., lined up before Starter Frank Frisch in the 440 yard final. Potts held a good lead for the first half lap. With nearly half of a lap to go Shea took the lead which he held to the end. Robinson then nosed out Potts for second place. Time 37 1-5 seconds.

Nine skaters, Shea, Bialis, of Utica, Darnstadt, Eddie Searle, New York, Hurd and Robinson of Toronto, Gunther, Mitchell of Chicago, and John of St. Paul, qualified for the mile final. Bialis led the first three of six laps. With three laps to go, all nine of the skaters were bunched, with Robinson leading up to the final turn of the last lap. Shea and Gunther, followed by the others then made their spurt. Shea beat out Robinson, and Gunther beat out both Shea and Robinson in a blanket finish. The time was 2 minutes 50 2-5 seconds.

The point score at the end of the first day was as follows:

Jack Shea, Lake Placid 50; Lloyd Gunther, Detroit, 30; Ross Robinson Toronto 30; Allan Potts, New York 10.

The half mile and five mile events will be skated Wednesday and the 220 and the two mile on Thursday. A special three mile race for the Frankie Frisch trophy will be skated also on Thursday.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 11—Plainfield and Killingly High basketball teams divided in games played here today. In the afternoon at the High school gym Plainfield girls beat Killingly 37 to 24 while at the Community house in the evening the Killingly boys beat the Plainfield boys, 33 to 26. Both games were well-played and plenty of interest was indicated as these two schools are bitter rivals.

Withey led the Killingly boys to victory with 15 points while Bakanowsky was high scorer for Plainfield. Miss Deboe of Plainfield was high scorer in the girls game. Summaries:

BASEBALL CHATTER

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Baseball's big parade is all ready to take up the march to the south as well as to a few outposts in the far west.

By the end of this week, most of the sixteen major league squads, or at least their advance guards, will be on the way to the training camps scattered from St. Augustine to Catalina Island. By the end of February or not later than the first week of March the battle between regulars and rookies wil be on in full blast.

Smaller squads, with a marked increase in college talent ambitious for big league action, feature most of the big league rosters. Shake-ups in the organization or personnel of a number of clubs, notably the Detroit Tigers, Washington Senators, St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs, will cause unusual attention to be directed toward the workouts of these outfits.

All along the line, in the American league, they are strengthening to give battle to the world's champion Yankees, whose advance guard does not leave for the St. Petersburg camp for another ten days. In the National league there is every prospect of another hot fight for the pennant.

Most of the clubs are traveling "light", so far as the quantity of extra talent is concerned. The spring squads appear reduced to a point where only the likeliest rookies are having their expenses paid for tryouts.

The Athletics and Cardinals, according to their rosters, will each have less than 30 players in camp so that neither will have any trouble getting down to the limit of 25 by June 15.

Here are the sizes of the squads to the marshalled in the camps, according to the club rosters:

American league—Athletics, 27; Chicago, 31; Washington, 32; New York, 34; Boston and Cleveland, 35 each; St. Louis, 36; Detroit, 37.

National league—St. Louis, 26; Brooklyn, 30; Chicago, 31; Philadelphia, 34; New York and Boston, 37 each; Pittsburgh, 38; Cincinnati, 39.

The pathfinders for the Giants start the jaunt to San Antonio tomorrow, led by Secretary Jim Tierney. The players departing will include Warren Ogden, and Floyd Johnson, pitchers; and Jack Cummings, catcher, whose signed contract was received today. At St. Louis the party will be joined by Joe Genewich, Larry Benton and Bill Walker, pitchers; as well as Ray Schalk, assistant manager and catcher; and Joe Witry, another backstop.

The first workout for the batterymen at San Antonio is slated for Feb. 15 and the roll call for the regulars is scheduled for March 1.

According to Tierney, only three players remained to be signed for 1929—Garland Buckeye, Giant southpaw; Jimmy Welsh and Fred Leach, outfielders.

Wiley Moore, minus his tonsils, is ready for a big comeback on the mound for the Yankees this year. Just what effect the throat operation will have on his effectiveness remains to be seen but the Oklahoma right hander today notified Secretary Ed Barrow it had been performed and that he was on the way to Hot Springs, Ark., for workouts preliminary to joining the champions in Florida Feb. 25, the date on which the Yankee assembly will be sounded.

BROS. OF JOSEPH TAKE LEAD IN CHURCH LEAGUE

The Brothers of Joseph won from the C. B. C. five, 15 to 11, the Goal club beat the Kappa club, 18 to 12, and the Gamma club easily took a decision over the Trinity Methodist five, 23 to 11, in Northern New London County Church league games Monday evening at the Y gym. The first two games were well played. The Brothers of Joseph took the league leadership by winning.

MASSIE MILLER OPENS GOLF SCHOOL AT WAUREGAN HOTEL

Massie B. Miller, pro at the local golf club, has opened a winter golf school at the Wauregan hotel and is giving lessons to those who wish to improve their game for the coming season. Miller is just back from a successful tour of the southern golf courses where he met and defeated in tournament and special matches such stars as Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen.

The instruction given by Miller at the indoor school will include work with all iron clubs as well as with the woods. The school has been fitted so that an accurate estimate of the distance can be made of all shots. Already a number of the members of the local club have signed up for lessons.

FAST GAME EXPECTED AT PLAINFIELD WEDNESDAY NIGHT

A real fast basketball game is expected at Plainfield on Wednesday evening when the Parkwood Pros of Springfield furnish the opposition. As will be remembered the Parkwood team was beaten in the last half of the game played early in the season, Parkwood having led at half time 16 to 11. The Plainfield Pros is the only team that has beaten Springfield this year, the Parkwoods having won from 23 other clubs.

In the preliminary the Buddies clash with the Five Aces of Putnam which is expected to be a fast encounter.

DOUBLE BASKETBALL ATTRACTION AT Y. M. C. A. COURT THIS EVENING

Two feature basketball games will be served up to Norwich fans tonight at the Y gym when, at 8 o'clock the Y Seniors, local hopes in the state Y championships, tackle the Elmwood Endees or New Departures of Hartford, and, at 9 o'clock, the Academy and Windham high tangle in an Eastern Connecticut conference game, that is one of the features of the Academy court season.

These games are due to attract a large gallery, in fact, the biggest crowd of the season is expected. At 7 o'clock a fast Church league game between the Brothers of Joseph and Kappas will be played.

The Y Seniors are getting a tough opponent in the Hartford team. This will be the last game for the locals before their clash with the New London Whalers in the second and final game of their series in the Y journey for the state title. Coach Demarest is planning on starting his strongest lineup which will probably be Holland Harris at center, Les Pingree, recently recovered from a bad cut over the eye, and Aubrey Brown, at forwards and Jim Kelly and Enos Eccleston at guards.

The Endees will have such familiar faces as McKernan, Jimmy Alexander and Tommy Sipples. These boys are probably better known for their baseball abilities but they also play a mean game of basketball. This team is the champion of the Hartford Industrial league.

The Academy will be attempting to break an eight game losing streak in meeting Windham, one of its greatest rivals. Windham at present, stands a good chance of overhauling Chapman Tech in the Conference race and must win tonight to stay in the pennant chase. However, since losing its captain, Walter Monast, by withdrawal from school last week the Thread Cityites have not been so good and last Friday lost to Bulkeley of Hartford, a rather weak team.

The Academy stands a chance of beating the visitors tonight and they will have a large gallery to cheer them on. The probable Academy lineup will be Henschel and Stevens at forwards, Berghinzo at center and Capt. Buck LaCroix and Barber at guards.

By his victory, Van Ryn won the right to meet Bill Tilden, recently restored to the good graces of amateur tennis. Big Bill did not play today.

WEST WILLINGTON PEN LEADING STORRS CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Feb. 11—As the first quarter of the eighteenth Storrs egg laying contest drew to a close on January 31, a study of the records to date reveals that the hens have outlaved any other group of birds since the contests were started in 1911. These birds have shelled out 51,296 eggs during the past three months. This is 8,555 more eggs per thousand birds when compared with last year's record. The following table shows a comparison of the per cent production of the 17th and 18th contests for the first three months:

	1927-1928	1928-29
Nov.	42.8	51.0
Dec.	43.1	56.4
Jan.	51.9	59.7

During January the contest flock laid 18,509 eggs or an increase of 8.3 per cent over last month and 7.8 per cent over the corresponding month last year. To date the birds have averaged 51.3 eggs. If they continue at the present rate throughout the remainder of the year, the average yearly total will be over 200 eggs.

January Winners

With a lay of 282 eggs out of a possible 310 George Lowry's White Leghorns from West Willington, Conn., heads the field. This is a yield of 94.2 per cent. Lowry's bird started the contest with 273 eggs out of a possible 300; in December they laid 288 eggs, and in January they bettered this score by four eggs. This seems almost incredible, and no doubt is the highest winter production ever made in any contest.

The second best pen is a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Charlescote Farm, Sherborn, ass. These birds laid 287 eggs or five less than the leading pen, and are entitled to the blue ribbon in the red class. Third honors for the month and the red ribbon in the Leghorn class go to the Granite Springs entry from Granite Springs, N. Y., whose production was 283 eggs.

In the White Wyandotte division Fisher Poultry Farm, Ayton, Ont., won the blue ribbon with a lay of 228 eggs. E. A. Hirt's White Rocks from South Weymouth, Mass., were first in their class with a net of 242 eggs. R. C. Cobb's pen from Littleton, Mass., captured the blue ribbon in the Barred Rock class with a yield of 232 eggs. Clarence E. Lee's Reds from Auburn, N. Y., were second in their class with a lay of 244 eggs. 273 eggs gave Hanson's Leghorns of Corvallis, Ore., third place and the green ribbon.

Changes in the Breeds

In the White Wyandotte class Fisher Poultry Farm, Ayton, Ont., jumped into second place ahead of the Locusts. In the Rhode Island Red division Charlescote's birds appear for the first time in second place, Zephirin LaBelle's pen from Ballouville, Conn., reappears in fourth place.

Leading Individuals

No. 668 owned by Granite Springs Farm, Granite Springs, N. Y., is the leading bird in the contest with a total of 90 eggs out of a possible 92. For consecutive laying, however, a Barred Rock, No. 149, owned by R. C. Cobb of Littleton, Mass., holds the field. On entering the contest November 1st, she skipped two days, laid one egg, skipped one day, and has laid ever since. This gives her 88 eggs in succession. From the looks of the following record, there should be quite a scramble for supremacy in the months to come.

The 12 highest individuals at the close of the third month follow:

Breed	Owner	Hen No.	Eggs
W. Leg.	Granite Springs Farm	663	90
W. Leg.	George Lowry	650	89
Barred Rock	R. C. Cobb	149	89
W. Leg.	George Lowry	659	87
W. Leg.	Wm. L. Gilbert Home	901	86
R. I. Red	W. Otis Day	334	84
R. I. Red	John Z. LaBelle	479	84
W. Leg.	George Lowry	654	84
W. Leg.	George Lowry	655	84
W. Leg.	George Lowry	656	84
W. Leg.	Tolvonen Leghorn Farm	851	84
W. Leg.	Westfield Poultry Farm	937	84

The accompany table shows the total number of pens in each breed and the average feed consumption and egg production.

PLAN LOCAL SURVEY OF DISABLED WAR VETERANS

R. E. Houlihan post, No. 594, V. F. W. of this city, will in common with Foreign War Veterans' posts throughout the country, be asked to investigate circumstances and conditions facing totally disabled comrades in the community. Reports are to be forwarded to national headquarters where they will be reviewed and condensed for the information of the national legislative committee and congressional committees on veteran affairs.

This is in connection with the survey of conditions affecting World war veterans classed as totally and permanently disabled, with the purpose of rallying support to the fight designed to give these men immediate payment of their World war adjusted compensation certificates, ordered by Eugene P. Carver, Jr., national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., according to an announcement made by national headquarters.

"Under present legislation," Carver points out, "the totally disabled veteran is struggling to exist on the $100 monthly compensation he draws from the veterans' bureau. On the basis of our present standards of living it is self-evident that these men, in addition to bearing their physical burdens, should not be forced to contend with economic problems any more than absolutely necessary. The paltry $100 they receive, which in many cases must also support dependents, is far from adequate in providing a decent livelihood for a healthy person, to say nothing of a bed-ridden patient with a wife and perhaps a child or two.

"Veteran bureau statistics as of June 30, 1928, show there are 17,020 World war veterans totally and permanently disabled. Of this number 11,761 are drawing war risk insurance benefits of $57.50 in addition to their $100 per month disability compensation. In other words, approximately 5,000 World war heroes, unable to earn one penny income, are living on $100 per month, with the added burden of possible dependents. The balance are drawing $157.50 per month, hardly a princely income and in many instances barely enough to provide the necessities of life.

"Immediate payment of adjusted compensation certificates, instead of making these men wait until they are 62, if they can possibly survive that long, would constitute a great humanitarian move on the part of the government," Commander-in-Chief Carver declares.

"These disabled veterans are entitled to every consideration this country can give them. The appropriation such legislation would demand will hardly be felt in the present prosperous condition of the country.

"We apparently have ample funds for the construction of battleships, the building of dams, development of harbors and other projects, all looking forward to the future welfare of our nation. We cannot afford to ignore the past by depriving our disabled defenders, crippled in mind and body, the mental peace and physical comforts immediate payment of their adjusted compensation certificates would assure, at least temporarily."

Nearly 300,000 persons in 1928 paid pennies to view the "great king" in Hampton Court palace, London, which has produced groups since before the American Revolution.

The Penalty of Leadership

IN EVERY field of human endeavor, he that is first must perpetually live in the white light of publicity. Whether the leadership be vested in a man or in a manufactured product, emulation and envy are ever at work.

In art, in literature, in music, in industry, the reward and the punishment are always the same.

The reward is widespread recognition; the punishment, fierce denial and detraction.

When a man's work becomes a standard for the whole world, it also becomes a target for the shafts of the envious few. If his work be merely mediocre, he will be left severely alone—if he achieve a masterpiece, it will set a million tongues a-wagging.

Jealousy does not protrude its forked tongue at the artist who produces a commonplace painting.

Whatsoever you write, or paint, or play, or sing, or build, no one will strive to surpass or to slander you, unless your work be stamped with the seal of genius.

Long, long after a great work or a good work has been done, those who are disappointed or envious continue to cry out that it cannot be done.

Spiteful little voices in the domain of art were raised against our own Whistler as a mountebank, long after the big world had acclaimed him its greatest artistic genius.

Multitudes flocked to Bayreuth to worship at the musical shrine of Wagner, while the little group of those whom he had dethroned and displaced argued angrily that he was no musician at all.

The little world continued to protest that Fulton could never build a steamboat, while the big world flocked to the river banks to see his boat steam by.

The leader is assailed because he is a leader, and the effort to equal him is merely added proof of that leadership.

Failing to equal or to excel, the follower seeks to depreciate and to destroy—but only confirms once more the superiority of that which he strives to supplant.

There is nothing new in this. It is as old as the world and as old as the human passions—envy, fear, greed, ambition, and the desire to surpass.

And it all avails nothing.

If the leader truly leads, he remains—the leader.

Master-poet, master-painter, master-workman, each in his turn is assailed, and each holds his laurels through the ages.

That which is good or great makes itself known, no matter how loud the clamor of denial.

That which deserves to live—lives.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

A show that bubbles over with class, talent and comedy, every act a smash, opened at the Palace yesterday and is headed by Princess Watawaso and her all-American Indian company in "An Indian Revue," with Little Bird, Old Wolf and Young Chief Poolaw. The Four Rathburns, featuring Master Vernon, world's greatest triple-tongued saxophonist, gave a sensational performance in the opening spot. Nina Caponi, the girl with the golden voice, landed solidly in the number two spot. Great Lovers, a miniature musical comedy, went over great in a routine that is very pleasing. McGill & Bigelow had the audience in convulsions of laughter with their comedy.

"The Gun Runner," Tiffany-Stahl's production starring Ricardo Cortez, which is the feature beginning yesterday at the Palace theatre, gives that handsome individual a chance to play one of the romantic roles which suit him so wonderfully. The story is all about a little republic, a revolution and the leader of the revolution, whom Julio, the hero, must capture in order to escape a prison sentence of 20 years, turns out later—much later—to be the brother of Julio's sweetheart.

Cortez romps through the role as if he were actually the dashing daredevil who defied alike army regulations and the intricacies of revolutionary intrigue in the Republic of Porto. He can stunt magnificently, and does, and the picture is crammed with exciting episodes. There are inn brawls, palace intrigues, breath-taking feats of horsemanship, and the charming romance of the pretty mistress of the inn and the mysterious cavalier whose mission is revealed, all too late.

Nora Lane plays the heroine, looking pretty as a picture heroine ought to look, and Gino Corrado has the role of Garcia, the revolutionary leader, whom Julio must outwit and capture. John St. Polis appears as the president of the republic with his usual distinction.

Romantic settings, capable cast and a dashing star make "The Gun Runner" a more than ordinarily entertaining production. The novel by Arthur Stringer furnished the basis for the picture, and John Francis Natteford made the story and continuity it suggested. Edgar Lewis, who can be depended on for more than adequate direction, handled the megaphone.

Connecticut College Concert

The Cleveland orchestra which plays at the New London Armory next Thursday evening under the auspices of Connecticut college celebrated its tenth birthday Dec. 11, 1928. It is old in its record of achievement—a record which has given it a high place among the symphony orchestras of America. It is young in the spirit which makes it a real pioneer in the field of musical advancement. It is never afraid to try the new, whether that new material is an unknown composition of a master, buried in the dust of ages, or an untried work of a modern composer. The Cleveland orchestra has the courage, the virility, the fire of youth, balanced by the experience, the sagacity, the polish of age, an invincible combination.

During its ten years, the Cleveland orchestra has given 1,049 concerts. This record comprises tours of 23 states, Canada and Cuba, and represents beside the home city concerts, 234 engagements in 126 different cities.

Almost without exception every new engagement of the Cleveland orchestra means a return visit the following year, for everywhere the orchestra and its able conductor, Nikolai Sokoloff, go new friends are made.

Breed Theatre

Perfervid love scenes, the height of emotional acting, are features of "Adoration," in which Billie Dove is star and which will be shown for the last times today at the Breed theatre.

Antonio Moreno plays opposite Miss Dove in this picture, which is laid in Petrograd and Paris, and is romantic in the extreme. There are moments when the acting raises to sublime heights of impassioned love, and carries the spectators away in a storm of dramatic power.

Antonio Moreno, Lucy Doraine, Nicholas Soussanin, Winifred Bryson, Nicholas Bela, Emile Chautard, Lucien Prival and others are in the admirable cast of this exotic love drama.

"Five and Ten Cent Annie," a Warner Bros. production featuring Louise Fazenda, Clyde Cook and William Demarest, and including Gertrude Astor, Douglas Gerrard, Tom Ricketts and Eddie Haffner, will be the attraction for Wednesday and Thursday. This love story of a clerk at the five-and-ten and a timorous but lovin' street cleaner is one of the funniest photoplays of the year. It was adapted from a Leon Zurada story by Charles Condon. Roy Del Ruth directed. Bring the whole family and give them the laughing jamboree of their lives.

Broadway Theatre

It is the consensus of opinion that Warner Bros.' all-talking "On Trial" is the most thrilling melodrama seen here in many seasons.

The scenes take place in a courtroom where a murder trial is in progress. All details of the grim proceedings are carefully included. The judge, the lawyers for the prosecution and the defense, court attendants, witnesses, the wife of the murdered man, the man accused, with his wife and small daughter, the doctor, the servants, and several hundred onlookers, make the scene the most startlingly realistic ever screened.

The play "On Trial" was one of the really big hits of several years ago, and with Vitaphone, which makes all the actors heard, giving also musical accompaniment, strident or tender, according to the changing moods of the piece, last night's audience was held as if by magic.

All the cast have had stage experience, hence the perfect registration of voices and the subtlety with which the emotional scenes are interpreted. Pauline Frederick is superb as the wife of the murdered man. Lois Wilson as the young wife and mother, whose husband is accused of the deed, gives a performance of great beauty and simplicity.

Flaxen-haired, blue-eyed Vondell Darr, who takes the stand to testify in her father's behalf, is tremendously moving. She is, if the reviewer is not mistaken, the first little girl in talking pictures. Vondell Darr has made a safe place for herself in the hearts of the millions by this, her first Vitaphone venture.

"On Trial" is a picture no lover of great drama should fail to see and hear. At the Broadway theatre now.

POETRY

A Cape Cod Antique Shop

Windows out of fairy tales
In a loft where men made sails,
When the sailing ships did fare—
And a crooked, time-worn stair
Leading to a spacious room
Steeped in fascinating gloom.
Relics from a Pharaoh's bier
Lie beside the coral gear
Of a South Sea Island chief,
On a table come to grief
From a European court,
Ancient totems of every sort
Slumber in the window nooks.
No one cares about their looks.
Mild between them are the treats
Penned by Shelley, Burns and Keats.
On a mantel is a ship
Riding full rigged tip to tip,
In a sea of liquid grace
Pinned in a bottle's space.
Gleaming teeth of whale and shark
Rest beside the prisoned bark.
Bits of painted chinaware
Risk annihilation there,
Grouped with sundry souvenirs
Of a thousand dusty years.
Portraits of another age
When quaint costumes were the rage
Smile down on the gloomy place,
Wisdom in each fading face.
There's an air of secret bliss
That the ignorant can't miss
In that antique-laden room
Steeped in fascinating gloom,
With its panes from fairy tales
In a loft where men made sails
And where sailing men did go
Many, many years ago.

—Pat Costello, in New Bedford Standard.

I Want to Go

I want to go—you cannot guess—
I dream a fairy spot
Where everything conspires to bless
And sorrow is forgot—
Where smiling sunlight turns the gray
Locks brown, or gold, or black,
And smooths the wrinkles all away
And brings the dimples back.

I want to go where no one weeps—
Unless by laughter made;
Where weary Care forever sleeps—
And roses never fade;
Or if they shatter—ere they fall—
To dewy buds return—
Where happiness enough for all,
No soul is left to yearn.

I want to—oh, I long to go
Where skies are always blue,
And no smart aches, and no heart breaks—
For all the hearts are true;
I want to go—I long to go
Where Life's wakeless dream,
Eternity untouched by woe,
And joy no fitful gleam.

—Samuel Minturn Peck, in Boston Transcript.

COMMON PLEAS COURT GRANTS JUDGMENT AGAINST LOCAL MAN

At a motion list session of the court of common pleas in this city Monday morning Judge C. B. Waller granted judgment in favor of the Phoenix Finance Corp., of Montreal to recover $211.61 from John C. Peckham of this city. The judgment was granted on two trade acceptances given by Mr. Peckham.

The court also granted John Schuentrun of New London judgment for $70.25 against the Coast Guard Canteen of New London, and Jessie Snyder, alleged proprietor of the canteen conducted at the Coast Guard Destroyer base, No. 4, state pier, New London. Schuentrun claims that five months pay was due him for conducting the canteen, for which he asked $12 per month, and that $500 was due him on a note for money loaned to Snyder.

The court reserved decision on the demurrer entered by Attorney Edwin W. Higgins in the case of Nathan Weisler of Montville against Wladstain Potoszaj and others of Salem. The suit is one where Weisler, a real estate agent is seeking a commission of $600 for procuring a customer, one Vincenzo Rinaldi for the purchase of the defendant's farm, located in Salem, for $10,000.

It was claimed by Attorney Higgins that as the agreement of sale was drafted and signed on Sunday, it was illegal and therefore the plaintiff was not entitled to any commission. He also demurred to the complaint on the grounds that seven days had elapsed after the date of the agreement had expired.

Counsel for Mr. Weisler, Attorney Joslah H. Greenstein, cited several cases at law to offset the claims made by Attorney Higgins, and that he could prove during the course of the trial that the date of agreement of sale was made June 8, instead of on Sunday, July 8, as set out in the complaint, which he said, was an error.

Disclosure of defense or judgment within ten days was ordered in the case of Edwin Hellyar against Walter Petke, both parties being of this city.

A statutory continuance of three months was granted in the case of Esther Metzendorf against Carl Thies and others.

In the case of Truman Clark against Moses Thalheimer and others, the court ordered that commission be appointed to take deposition in the case.

Hearing on plaintiff's demurrer to defendant's special defense in the case of Eva Andrews against Frank C. Tillinghast, deputy sheriff for Windham county, was postponed until Feb. 13 for hearing.

Hearing on defendant's motion to erase in the case of Arcelia Dayon Brown against Lionel Marion of Voluntown went over for hearing until Feb. 18.

Motion for judgment of foreclosure was postponed in the case of John D. Chittenden against Curtis O. Miner.

The motion for damages and judgment went off in the case of James Finnegan against Edward J. Shanahan and others.

Judgment for want of answer went off the list in the case of the Artwell Mfg. Co., Inc., against the Shetucket Coal and Lumber Co.

WILL LECTURE ON YOUTH AT COMMUNITY HOUSE

At the Community house, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott will give a lecture on The Problem of the Unadjusted Youth, under the auspices of the Woman's guild of the United Congregational church.

Mrs. Abbott in presenting her lectures on the problems of parents in relation to their children, comes with a double credential. She is a clinical psychologist at the Judge Baker Foundation for the Study of Child Problems, Boston, and she is also the mother of five children. She has not only seen the child problems as presented in a children's clinic, but she also knows it from the very practical side of having a family of her own.

The lectures which Mrs. Abbott presents deal with the modern methods employed in the study of behavior and personality problems of the young children and adolescents. They contain practical suggestions to parents and teachers as to their treatment and handling of difficult cases. Educational and vocational problems are discussed and many helpful suggestions given in the recognition of symptoms having a latent import.

Mrs. Abbott outside of her fascinating work at the Judge Baker foundation is also in private practice with a psychiatrist. She is a graduate of Smith college and has recently received her master's degree in psychology from Radcliffe college where she was the first person to obtain credit for research work done at the foundation under both the department of social ethics and the department of philosophy.

Mrs. Abbott is at present president of the Boston branch of the Association of University Women and past president of obth the Boston and Winchester Smith College clubs. She served three years as chairman of the Case committee of the Florence Crittenton League of Boston.

During the summer of 1928 Mrs. Abbott visited Europe to study the methods of dealing with "Problems Children" in vogue in well known clinics abroad.

WILL MOVE INTO NEW BUILDING THIS WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Feb. 11—Friday and Saturday, February 15 and 16, have been designated as moving day for the first group of offices to leave the old Main building, and resume operations in the new Charles Lewis Beach building at Connecticut Agricultural college. On these days the offices of the president, dean, registrar, comptroller and the extension and business offices will be transferred. If possible the post office and mailing room will vacate at this time. Other offices and departments will move as soon as conditions permit.

The contractor, Charles Smith and Sons of Derby, expects to end his work by Wednesday. Following his departure, the firms under contract by the state will push the finishing work to the limit. The electric fixtures are being installed by the college buildings department.

BRIGHTER PROSPECT FOR EASTERN CONN. FARMERS

STORRS, Feb. 11—The New England outlook report prepared under the auspices of the New England Research council on marketing and food supply by representatives of the New England Agricultural colleges, departments of agricultural and farmers' organizations, the New England crop reporting service, and the United States department of agriculture, indicates that agriculture in this section faces a period that is in a slightly more prosperous position than in the past. This report is based on information gathered at a conference in Boston last week, attended by representatives active in agricultural work in every state in New England. The representatives from Connecticut who attended this meeting included, S. McClean Buckingham, state commissioner of agriculture; Sidney A. Edwards, state director of the bureau of markets; Professor Irving G. Davis, agricultural economist of the Connecticut Agricultural college; Allan W. Manchester, farm management specialist at the state college; Dr. Edmond A. Perregaux, extension economist; Clarence I. Hendrickson, assistant agricultural economist of the state college; Paul L. Putnam, assistant farm anagement specialist; J. A. Simms, dairy specialist of the extension service; R. E. Jones, extension poultry specialist; and W. A. Darrow, extension fruit specialist of the onnecticut extension service. As a basis for the New England Agricultural Outlook, the New England specialists used the naitonal outlook issued by the United States department of agricultural recently.

The New England outlook is based on the best available information as to the production and market conditions which are likely to prevail during the year 1929, and is designed to give New England farmers more facts upon which to base their plans for the coming season.

Present indications, according to the outlook report, are that the total gross income of New England farmers as a whole will be slightly higher during 1929 tnan in 1928. There is nothing in the situation, however, to warrant expansion of the production of any commodity except under the most favorable local conditions.

The demand in New England markets for fresh vegetables and high grade eggs is increasing rapidly. The per capita consumption of fluid milk continues to increase though at a diminished rate. The demand for cigar leaf tobacco is not increasing. No significant change in the demand situation is apparent for the rest of the important New England farm products. The purchasing power of consumers of New England should continue at a high level during most of the coming year, with possibly some decline due to a recession in business activity during the latter part of 1929 and the early part of 1930.

Except for a decrease of 8 per cent in the expected planting of Maine potatoes, the outlook is for a continuation or a very slight increase in the present volume of production of New England's more important agricultural commodities. Mid-western cream, central-western eggs, and fresh vegetables from the south and west are coming more and more into competition with the local supplies of commodities.

AURORA LIKES ITS ART IN GENEROUS SHARES

AURORA, Ill., (AP)—Aurora presents its Main street as the nation's greatest per capita canter of art appreciation.

It was so designated by the Grand Central Art galleries of New York after a survey of the country's art centrs. The purchase of 150 original oil paintings a year by residents of this city of 45,000 set the nation's art capital on Aurora's Main street.

There the movement began. It was led by James Cowan, whose art collection began 40 years afo with 50 cent prints. Now his home, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally famous architect, is a miniature art institute. Original murals in dozens of Aurora homes prove that Cowan's enthusiasm has spread.

One Aurora hotel has 30 paintings on its walls. Second to Cowan among Aurora's connoisseurs of art treasures is Capt. J. Frank Harrell, a Civil war veteran, whose early days of art collecting belong to the red plush period.

MOTHERS ARE LEARNING USES OF MAGNESIA

From the beginning of expectancy until baby is weaned. That's the time Phillips Milk of Magnesia performs the greatest service for many women.

It relieves the expectant mother's nausea, heartburn, "morning sickness," inclination to vomit; helps her digestion. Its mild but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia is better than lime water for neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding. A teaspoonful of it does the work of a half pint of lime water. It is a mild laxative; harmless, almost tasteless.

All drug stores have Phillips Milk of Magnesia in generous 25c and 50c bottles. Always insist on the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

DEVOTIONAL ARTICLES ON THE CHRISTIAN HERITAGE

The devotional articles of "The Felowship of Prayer for 1929" will be published by The Bulletin throughout the lenten season beginning Ash Wednesday, February 13, and concluding Easter Sunday, March 31.

"The Fellowship of Prayer" is issued annually by the commission on evangelism and life service of the Federation Council of the Churches of Christ in America. The author

REV. CLARENCE H. WILSON D.D.
Author of the Fellowship of Prayer for 1929

this year is Rev. Clarence H. Wilson, D. D., New York, N. Y., chairman of the executive committee of the National Council of the Congregational church at Glen Ridge, N. J.

The purpose of the "Fellowship of Prayer" according to Rev. Charles L. Goodell, D. D., New York, N. Y., executive secretary of the Federal Council's commission on evangelism and life service, is to further the observance of the lenten or pre-Easter season as a period for deepening spiritual life and increasing the consciousness of unity in worship among people of all the churches.

The theme of "The Fellowship of Prayer for 1929" is "The Christian Heritage."

"The Christian Heritage," Dr. Wilson states, "has these various elements: my relationship to myself, then to my work, my home, myh church and finally to my God and Father and to my Master and Brother. These relationships have furnished the six topics of the devotions.

"The 'I' which appears in the meditations and prayers of the devotions is not the author but the reader. The use of the first person singular brings the thought home with an intimacy not to be secured by more general terms. It is believed that the experiences recorded are those which are common to all Christians."

WOULD LIMIT THE POWER OF THE TARIFF COMMISSION

Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. Advocates Removal of Commission's Power to Recommend to the President the Lowering or Raising of Import Duties—Would Have Such Authority Placed in a Separate Non-Political Board—Suggestion Made to the House Ways and Means Committee Now Holding Tariff Revision Hearings.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—The removal from the tariff commission of its power to recommend to the president of the lowering or raising of import duties under the flexible provisions of the existing tariff law and the investing of such authority in a separate non-political board was proposed today by the chamber of commerce of the United States.

The suggestion was contained in a report to the house ways and means committee now holding tariff revision hearings, the republican members of which today set March 2 for a meeting to map out a program of action for the 15 subcommittees which will formulate the rates to be carried in the new tariff bill.

Under the proposal, transmitted by William Butterworth, president of the chamber, and agreed to by the organization's membership, the tariff commission would confine its activities to ascertaining statistical information bearing on the tariff and would not make recommendations unless requested to do so by the house, where all tariff legislation must originate.

The separate board would have no other function than that of adjusting rates within limits fixed by congress. The president, as at present, would have final authority to pass on the changes suggested. The flexible provisions as they now stand permit the executive to raise or lower duties as much as 50 per cent. upon recommendation of the tariff commission.

Officials of the chamber explained their proposal was based on the theory that the duty of adjusting rates under the flexible provisions should be placed in a board composed of men of the executive type of mind as distinguished from the statistical type.

Other proposals made by the chamber follow:

"Reasonable protection should be afforded American industries which are of benefit to any considerable section of the country and are subject to destructive competition from abroad, including agriculture.

"So far as consistent with the first recommendation, there should be recognition of the desirability of maintaining and developing our export trade, by keeping a friendly reception for our goods in foreign markets.

"Anti-dumping legislation should be maintained.

"Means should be afforded for meeting foreign export and import restrictions.

"Establishment of foreign trade zones in American ports should be authorized."

"Into these zones, the report declared, foreign goods intended for export could be entered for manufacture, repacking or other necessary handling without the expense and delay incident to passage through the customs."

"The establishment of such zones by local bodies at their own expense, under approval regulation," the report added, "would provide part of the equipment needed by a country such as our own doing a diversified international trading business. The establishment of such zones would, we believe, inure to the benefit of American industry, American commerce, and American merchant shipping."

COOLIDGES WILL BE BACK IN HOME TOWN MARCH 5

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge expect to be back at their old home town of Northampton, Mass., on the morning of March 5.

The president plans to leave the national capital as early as possible on the afternoon of the inauguration day of Herbert Hoover, for the Massachusetts city where he started his political career as councilman and city solicitor.

Mrs. Coolidge, it was disclosed today, is anxious to be at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, who has been seriously ill at a Northampton hospital for some time.

As yet, however, there can be only speculation as to what activities the president will undertake upon his retirement from office. He is said to be deferring until after March 4 consideration of his future connections.

BOGNOR, Sussex, England, Feb. 12—(AP)—Members of the royal household tonight described the condition of King George as "very good." There was an air of satisfaction about the establishment at Craigwell House which denoted that his majesty was beginning to benefit from the change of air and sea.

NEW ALTITUDE FOR PLANE WITH TWO PASSENGERS

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 12—(AP)—Lieut. Harry Johnson, air corps pilot, accompanied by Capt. A. W. Stevens, who hopped off at Wright field, Dayton, at 2:26 p. m., today to establish a new altitude record for planes carrying two passengers, reported that the record had been broken unofficially when they were forced down at Norton field here late today by lack of fuel.

The men reached an altitude of more than 37,000 feet, their altimeter showed. Temperature was 57 below zero at that height. The altitude record for a single passenger plane, established last year, was but little more than 1,000 better than the altitude estimated by Johnson and Stevens.

COMPLAINT AGAINST SO-CALLED SUB-BLOCK RATES

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—(AP)—Five organizations have entered a joint complaint with the interstate commerce commission protesting against so called sub-block rates charged by the American Railway Express company and the Southeastern Express company, the Merchants' association of New York today disclosed.

TO REPORT ON REFUND TO STATE OF CONNECTICUT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—The subcommittee of the judiciary committee will on Thursday make a report to the full committee regarding the refund to the state of Connecticut money advanced or expended by that state during the war of 1812. No official statement can be given but it is understood on high authority that there is a division in the committee and that two reports will be placed before the full committee Thursday. One will oppose the refund on the ground that similar refunds to other states in the past were not justifiable and the practice should be stopped and the other, will sustain the claim o nthe ground that whether or not the practice of refunding was correct, it should not be stopped to the disadvantage of one of the few states whose claims have not been recognized and refunds made. The proposal seems to be that the two opinions are not precisely in the form of a minority and majority reports but are expressions of opinion, and the full committee will be left to decide the matter without prejudice.

The Connecticut claim amounts to $559,373.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Feb. 12—(AP)—Spyridion Polychroniades, minister of Greece to this capital, bathed today amid the ice cakes in the Sava river. Pedestrians, believing that he had fallen into the freezing water, made frantic efforts to rescue him but he drove them away saying:

"I have done this for the last forty years. Let me alone."

Lindbergh Engaged To Miss Anne Morrow

Announcement Made in Mexico City by U. S. Ambassador Dwight [illegible] Morrow.

MEXICO [illegible] Feb. 12—(AP)—United Stat[illegible]dor Dwight W. Morrow i[illegible]nced the engagement of [illegible]ter, Anne, to Col. Charle[illegible]rgh.

Miss [illegible]pencer Morrow is now at the A[illegible]can embassy here with her parent[illegible] The young couple first met when Colonel Lindbergh made his famous non-stop flight from Washington to Mexico City, a little more than a year ago.

Since that time, Colonel Lindbergh has been the guest of the Morrow family in Mexico City and at their country home at Cuernavaca.

Miss Morrow is 22, a brunette, and a favorite in the diplomatic social circles here. She won two prizes for proficiency in scholarship at Smith college, from which she graduated last year.

The Mexican capital suspected that a romance was in the offing for the colonel, who has been the idol of feminine hearts since he flew to Paris, and Miss Morrow. Rumors to that effect had been printed in local papers last November but at that time were denied.

When Lindbergh took off from Valbuena field here last November for the United States, he gave a beautiful aerial salute to Anne. She was at the field with her family to watch him start. As soon as he had climbed to a little height he circled over the field and then dipped low over the head of Anne.

Persons who witnessed this recalled it today as a significant farewell message from the aviator to his fiance, although only the principals suspected it at the time.

Anne is described by her friends as a quiet and attractive girl, studious but at the same time domestic. She is said to be interested in modern artistic and literary movements and in world affairs.

LINDBERGH ARRIVED AT HAVANA AT 7:48 P. M.

HAVANA, Feb. 12—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Camp Columbia field here at 7:48 p. m. The colonel brought his Sikorsky amphibian plane down on the field where officials of the Pan-American Airways had been anxiously waiting since early afternoon. A survey which he made of the British Honduras and Yucatan coasts had delayed him nearly six hours, after the time when he had been expected to reach Havana.

Lindbergh left Belize at 6:12 a. m., in company with another plane, and had been expected to reach Miami, Fla., the starting point on his air mail tour, late today. It was not until early evening that word was received that he had landed safely at La Fe, an isolated port 100 miles west of Havana. He refueled there before continuing on to this city.

Colonel Lindbergh will remain here over night as the guest of the ambassador, whom he visited last year when nearing completion of his good-will tour of the Caribbean countries. He said that he hoped to take off for Miami at daybreak tomorrow if customs clearance can be arranged.

The Lindbergh plane was preceded into La Fe, also Havana, by a similar ship piloted by Raymond J. Merritt. Occupants of this plane dispelled whatever uneasiness remained over the safety of the colonel. They reported that the delay had been due entirely to inspection of the country along the route.

HOW LINCOLN DAY WAS OBSERVED IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—The 120th anniversary of the birth of Lincoln was observed in Washington today both at the capitol and at his memorial overlooking the Potomac river.

In the house the Gettysburg address was read by Representative Moore of Ohio, and in the senate tribute was paid by Senator Smoot of Utah. At the massive memorial building, numerous patriotic societies gathered and heard Senator Shortridge of California eulogize the martyred president.

The capitol was decorated with American flags, while Pennsylvania avenue, a long stretch of mud and water when Lincoln was born, also was bedecked with the national emblem. At the east front of the capitol, where in a few weeks a new president will take the oath on the same spot where Lincoln twice stood, more flags were displayed.

The day, however, was not a holiday in the city and all government departments were at work as usual and neither senate nor house interrupted its program, except for the brief commemorating speeches.

German View Point Of Reparation Plan

Delegates Not Convinced by Dr. Schacht's Version of Germany's Economic Condition.

PARIS, Feb. 12—(AP)—The chief bone of contention in the reparation question, whether the Dawes plan requires completion or revision and how, was reached in today's session of the "Young committee."

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, who had the floor all day presenting his version of Germany's economic strength, provoked questions from the other delegates as to the rate of taxation in Germany compared with other countries and as to the scale of wages while it prompted the remark by Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee, that the working of the Dawes plan seemed to show up so satisfactorily that the question might be posed: "Why is the new committee here?"

The Reichsbank president retorted that it must not be supposed from his presentation of the situation that the Dawes plan was all that could be desired and that he would produce evidence to show why it was not. This evidence, which it is expected will be produced at least in part tomorrow, will doubtless furnish material for one or two immediately succeeding sessions.

Dr. Schacht, in a three-hour talk, explained his view why Germany could not continue paying the yearly amounts that it has hitherto paid. In the course of a ten-minute address Mr. Young is reported as having answered Dr. Schacht, "Thanks for the applied appreciation of the Dawes plan payments."

The question thus raised was felt to show that Mr. Young, although speaking in the most diplomatic terms, appeared prepared to defend the work of the first Dawes committee on which he played so prominent a part, and the manner in which it has been carried out by S. Parker Gilbert, agent-general for reparations.

The impression of several of the delegations was that the United States would oppose any radical change in the letter and spirit of the Dawes plan.

It is understood that when Dr. Schacht resumes his exposition of Germany's viewpoint, he will take occasion to reply to some of Mr. Young's financial arguments.

Dr. Schacht, in today's talk, began with the declaration that Germany cannot continue to pay the maximum reparations annuity of $2,500,000,000 marks annually (approximately $600,000,000) and then set out to explain his reasons for this statement. The German delegate refrained from mentioning Mr. Gilbert's recent report, but what he said was interpreted by some as sounding like a studied reply to the findings of the reparations agent.

The questions asked across the table by the different delegates showed that they were not convinced by Dr. Schacht's argument. Some wanted to know why Germany's tax rates were lower than in the allied countries while others wanted light on the comparative wage scale before accepting the theory that Germany was in an inferior economic position.

The impression of today's session was particularly favorable in French circles where Mr. Young's remarks were commented upon significantly. The French delegates were most careful to take no part in the discussion leaving expression of the open difference of opinion to Mr. Young and Dr. Schacht on the working of the Dawes plan.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR DEFICIENCIES WERE PASSED BY HOUSE YESTERDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, Feb. 12—The bill making appropriations to supply deficiencies in the two years ending June 30, 1929, was taken from the table in the house today.

Chairman Clark of the appropriations made a detailed explanation of the several items. The committee had scrutinized every item, seeking some way to reduce the amounts asked for by the different departments. The committee had found that nearly all of the expenditures were mandatory by statute. He called attention to the large increase over allotments made two years ago in the state board of education, teachers retirement fund tuberculin test, courts, state prison and coroners. Aside from the mandatory expenditures, the deficiency would be less than $200,000. The teachers' retirement board asks for $110,000; state board of educa-

SHIPPING BOARD CALLS FOR BIDS FOR 253 SHIPS

All of the Government's Laid Up Fleet Except Vessels Required as a Reserve for Shipping Board Operations—The Vessels Are Largely of Oil Burning, Steel Cargo Type, Suitable After Overhauling for Ocean Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—The shipping board today authorized a call for bids on 253 vessels, all of the government's laid-up fleet except ships required as a reserve for shipping board operations.

The vessels offered for sale are largely of the oil-burning steel cargo type, suitable after overhauling for ocean service. The "lacker" type ships are not included.

The board in authorizing the sale revised its previously recommended sales prices to conform with reduction in value of the ships as shown by recent surveys of the idd-up fleet. Under this revision the sales prices range approximately 15 per cent under those at which the vessels have been held.

The revision in the price range was made as a result of the discovery that the actual cost of repairing ships taken out of the lay-up exceeded estimates.

There are approximately 800 ships in the government's laid-up fleet, including about 40 of the "lacker" type. About 100 vessels are being retained by the board.

TO SELL NORTH ATLANTIC FLEET TO PAUL W. CHAPMAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—The shipping board today advised the senate commerce committee of its intention to sell the government's North Atlantic passenger fleet to Paul W. Chapman, Inc., of New York, who has offered $16,082,000 for the 11 ships of the United States and American Merchant lines.

After hearing of the board's intention the committee began an examination of Joseph Sheedy, veteran ship operator and the man behind the Chapman bid. It hopes to conclude th questioning of Sheedy tomorrow and Chairman Jones of the committee is in favor of an early decision by the committee members.

The committee is without legal authority to stop the sale but can suggest a course of procedure to the board.

SUFFERING CAUSED BY COLD WEATHER IN EUROPE

LONDON, Feb. 12—(AP)—Except in Turkey, where a sudden rise in temperature today brought welcome relief to the suffering population there, there was no indication tonight of a yielding of an iron grip of extreme cold which holds all Europe with the exception of Spain, Portugal and Italy.

Untold miseries have resulted from Arctic temperatures of a severity hardly equalled by any records that the modern civilized world has kept, a cold so intense, as to crack steel bridges and railroad lines and to bring troops of hungry wolves and wild boars to attack villagers as was reported today in the Balkans and in Belgium.

Already many human activities have been brought to a standstill. Navigation along the whole coast from Holland clear into the frozen Baltic has become next to impossible. The strongest ice breakers are powerless to make their way through the daily thickening ice. Ships and ferries are ice bound and are being provisioned by airplanes. The same state of things obtains in all central European waterways.

Railroad communications in Europe were carried on only with the greatest difficulty today. Four serious wrecks have been reported within 24 hours, two of them involving loss of human life. The service suffers endless delays and in many cases the snow ploughs are quite unable to extricate trains which have been embedded in snow drifts for days.

$9,210,500 RECOMMENDED FOR NEW PUBLIC BUILDINGS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—Expenditure of $9,210,500 for the construction of new public buildings in 97 cities scattered throughout the country was recommended to congress today by President Coolidge.

The proposed appropriation would represent the amount needed to meet the construction costs during the first year. The projects when completed would represent an outlay of $46,760,500.

Under the public buildings act of 1926 congress authorized the expenditure of $215,000,000 for new public buildings for various cities other than the District of Columbia. Including the expenditure recommended today, $162,562,635 of the total has been allocated for specific buildings.

The treasury-post office department officials still have $32,436,365 to allocate for new construction in cities. They, as yet, have not announced where this remaining money is to be spent.

FOR RESTRICTION OF IMMIGRATION FROM MEXICO

CINCINNATI, Feb. 12—(AP)—Strengthening of present immigration laws and provisions for a quota restriction to immigration from Mexico and South American countries are important matters in the legislative program of the American Federation of Labor, William A. Greene, labor leader, said here tonight.

Mr. Greene, president of the American Federation of Labor, addressed the Cincinnati Traffic club's banquet.

Mr. Greene said congress would be asked immediately to enact immigration laws which will protect the American laborer.

"There are too many Mexicans coming into the United States and restrictions must be placed on them to protect American workers from competition just as they are protected from similar competition from other countries," he said.

LONDON REMINISCENT ABOUT LILY LANGTRY

LONDON, Feb. 12—(AP)—London society, dramatic and art circles were full today of reminiscences of Lily Langtry, the noted beauty, wit and actress of the late Victorian era who died today at Monte Carlo. The stories emphasized the wide popularity of the "loveliest woman of her day."

Scions of royalty worshipped with poets, painters and social aristocrats before the shrine of Lady DeBathe when she was in the heydey of her fame as "the Jersey lily." It was related that two of Queen Victoria's sons were among these ardent admirers of the American actress.

Prince Leopold, the youngest son of the queen, signalized his adoration by hanging a portrait of the beautiful Langtry over his bed. It was related today that his indignant mother who had her own ideas as to the proper place of stage beauties in society, mounted a chair and snatched the picture from the wall.

The prince of Wales, who later became Edward VII, often rode with Mrs. Langtry in Rotten Row, and sought her company at social functions. Some remarkable legends grew from her friendship with King Edward.

Artists who painted the Lily included Millais, Poynter, Watts, Burne-Jones and Whistler. Oscar Wilde dedicated to the reigning queen of beauty a long poem entitled: "To Helen, formerly of Troy, Now of London," and he composed for her his play, "Lady Windemere's Fan". The long list of her distinguished friends also included Ruskin and Gladstone.

Besides her wonderful beauty, Mrs. Langtry was gifted with sparkling wit and conversational charms. She had also a sound business judgment.

HOLDING INQUEST AFTER INDICTMENT IS UNUSUAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 12—An unusual legal procedure for Windham county is seen in the announcement of County Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson that an inquest would be held by him at local police headquarters Wednesday on the death of County Detective William E. Jackson. The established custom, at least in alleged murder cases, has been to hold the coroner's inquest prior to the presentation of an accused before a grand jury. In this instance notice was given several days ago that an inquest would be held. Some hours after this notice announcement was made of a court order to convene a grand jury at Putnam last Monday, the statement, issued through the office of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, embodying a sub-announcement to the effect that the coroner's inquest would not be held as scheduled.

When acquainted of this move on the part of the state, Coroner Bill at once said that he would hold an inquest regardless of other procedures. The coroner now stands in a position to find for or against any criminal responsibility on the part of Trenor A. Rice who stands indicted by a grand jury on a charge of first degree murder.

There was nothing in the summoning of witnesses for the inquest today to indicate that any of the three investigating officers, County Detective Edward J. Hickey and Police Officers Arthur Hurley of this city and Rowe H. Wheeler of Monson, Mass., are to appear at the inquest. The majority of the other witnesses who testified before the grand jury at Putnam Monday were being summoned today, however. Added to the list were Mrs. George Despathy, her nine year old daughter Medora and Irene Magnick, 16, of Trapello road. Previous statements made to newspapermen by these three persons were in relation to the presence of a car, alleged to be that used by Mrs. Jackson and her daughter Juanita, at the Rice home on Brown avenue, on various occasions. Among those who have been called are Mrs. Jackson and her daughter. It was quite positively stated today that Rice would not be taken here from Brooklyn jail to testify at the inquest.

An excellent response has been received as a result of a manifesto issued by the common council at its January meeting, announcing that city water would be shut off at properties where the payment of the water rents was in arrears. City Clerk Arthur L. Clark states that over three-quarters of the number on the list of delinquents had settled. In view of this response the council had voted an extension for payment of one month, or until March 11.

The building, a substantial brick structure, has now been allowed for use by the American Legion post and all other veteran organizations. The repairs are to suitably maintain the property and at the same time put it into proper condition for use by the veterans. In line with this municipal improvement program will be the erection of a fence and the landscaping of the grounds at the new quarters of the city street department on West Main street. The new quarters are located in the former Connecticut company trolley barn. INSTEAD of exercise

Millions of busy men and women are learning the secret of the exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime!

Cascarets give your bowels as much real exercise as they get from an hour with the boxing gloves! Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things produce only mechanical or chemical action. They weaken your bowels.

Every time you use Cascarets your bowels become stronger. They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this! That's why Cascarets are selling at the rate of 20 million boxes a year, and people everywhere depend on them to relieve headaches, biliousness, dizziness, bloating, indigestion, constipation, etc.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

DANIELSON

FUNERAL W. CLARENCE BACON IS LARGELY ATTENDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 12—A congregation that filled St. Alban's church to capacity and that was representative of Danielson's business and professional life and of the various nationalities and creeds of the borough attended the funeral services for W. Clarence Bacon at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Business was suspended during the hour of the funeral, the stores closing.

A prayer service at the home, at 1.30 was conducted by Rev. George A. Alcott, retired, of Voluntown, formerly rector of St. Alban's and a personal friend of Mr. Bacon's. The service at the church was conducted by Rev. Leonard R. Richards of Christ church, Pomfret, formerly rector here, assisted by the present rector, Rev. J. Rees Jones and Rev. Mr. Alcott. The choir assisted at the service. Numbered among the many attending from all walks of life was a delegation of members of Colonel William H. Hamilton camp, United Spanish War Veterans, with whom Mr. Bacon had participated in a meeting less than two hours before his death, and a delegation from Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion.

Burial was in Westfield cemetery, a firing squad sending volleys and a bugler sounding taps in military tribute to one who had served his country under arms. The floral tributes were in number and very beautiful. The bearers were Carl Anderson, Charles S. Francis, Frank E. Young, United Spanish War Veterans, Arthur W. Logee, Burdette C. Hopkins and Martin T. Burns. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements. The Danielson Rotary club was represented at the funeral by many of its members.

PATHETIC SCENE AT FUNERAL OF MRS. WILCOX

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 12—Even a heart of ice would have melted in profound sympathy this morning as a tragic page of life and death was being written at the funeral home of L. E. Kennedy at the services for Mrs. Malvina Wilcox, who died early Sunday morning after an illness with influenza and pneumonia. Men and women long inured to life's tragedies and whose emotions are not easily swayed went unashamed at a heart-breaking family reunion—the mother in her casket, three of her five sweet-faced children crying piteously near her as the father, Otis Wilcox, appeared in charge of a keeper from Brooklyn jail, where he is confined for intoxication and non-support, to face as dark and bitter an hour as few men experience, or could endure.

Strong men turned aside, and likewise stout-hearted women, in an effort to control their feelings as the weeping children clustered about the weeping father in search of parental comfort and consolation. Only the silent figure in the casket was unmoved. "What are they going to do with you?" the stricken father asked beseechingly and all the answer the pitiable little tots could whimper was "We don't know," nor did they. It was a scene that no one in it will ever forget.

The prayer service for the dead was read by Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S. The body was entombed at the Sacred Heart cemetery in Wauregan. Friends acted as bearers.

It was understood this afternoon that sisters of Mrs. Wilcox, resident in New Bedford, are anxious to have one or more of the children to care for and were trying to arrange for this. First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast will arrange for the care of the other three, probably at the county home. Meanwhile they will be given the best of care. They range in age from 2 to 10 years.

John Monteiro of 6 Wheaton street, Providence, came here today to adjust with John F. Lewis a matter involving damage to one of the Lewis taxi cars last Sunday night. Monteiro, operating a large sedan, did not stop to see just what had happened when his car sideswiped a taxi driven by Fred Boiselle. The accident happened on Dyer street, on the grade near the Cold Spring. The car Boiselle was operating had the left rear fender badly damaged. When Monteiro did not stop Boiselle turned his car about and chased the Providence machine until he obtained the number. This immediately was transmitted to the state police barracks here, the police at once getting in touch with Providence officers, who sought out Monteiro and gained an admission from him that his car, which showed damage, had been in an accident. Boiselle said that his car, heading south, was forced off the highway and over onto the trolley tracks before it was struck by the Rhode Island machine.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department revealed today that an agent of Henry Ford has been in communication with him relative to purchasing for Ford's antique village at Dearborn two ancient pieces of fire apparatus owned by the borough of Danielson. One of these pieces is the old Minnitexit hand-worked "tub," out of service for many years, but well toward 75 years old and long in use in the early days of Danielson's fire department. The other piece of apparatus that interests the Ford agent is the General Putnam steamer, housed at the central fire station. This has been used very little in the past 20 years, and has not been given a test for the past two years. It is a half century since it was built, yet its nickel shell still gleams and it is typical of all the picturesqueness associated with fire-fighting machines of long ago. Whether the two pieces of apparatus mentioned will be sold rests with borough officials to decide. It is held in some quarters that they are of value chiefly as relics of the past, and that if sold the revenue derived from the sale could be applied toward the purchase price of another small modern pumper, which the borough could use to advantage, especially if it were equipped with salvage tarpaulins to serve in protecting the contents of buildings being damaged by water while firemen are fighting fires within them.

This afternoon at 1.30 at the home in Dayville funeral services for Mrs. Mary D. Stokes were conducted by Rev. William Swainson of the Dayville Congregational church. Burial was in the High street cemetery at Dayville. The bearers were W. Dyke Cogswell, Benjamin Cogswell, Francis Bailey of Worcester and Philip Bailey of Watertown, Mass., all relatives of Mrs. Stokes'. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

At the home of her son, Everett Hall, in Dayville this afternoon a funeral service for Mrs. Lucinda Tripp who died in Pomfret, was conducted by Rev. William Swainson. The body was entombed at Westfield cemetery, Danielson. The bearers were George Hall, Frank Brodie, George Cheney and Silas Baker. Louis E. eKnnedy was in charge of the arrangements.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock at the funeral home of L. E. Kennedy services for Judson Miller of Dayville, who died Sunday, were conducted by Rev. William Swainson. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Henry Miller, Fred Miller, Erwin Miller, brothers of the deceased, and Ellery Crandall.

DOG KILLED AT GOODYEAR WAS CASE OF RABIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Conn., Feb. 12—The dog shot at Goodyear last Saturday was a mad dog. This was definitely established today when tests for rabies had been completed for the state bureau of domestic animals. Dog Warden Charles E. Ayer of Dayville received the report on the head this afternoon, that report indicating that the tests for rabies were positive.

Today Special Deputy Chauncey Genung of the bureau of domestic animals was here investigating relative to the dog and its activities. Warden Ayer said that it has been ascertained that the mad dog bit at least 12 dogs and three people. The persons bitten will take the Pasteur treatment and the dogs that figure in the affair will be confined at once. Whether a general quarantine of all dogs in Killingly will be ordered had not been determined up to this evening. The rabid dog was a mongrel of good size. He had neither collar nor tag. Nothing is known about who owned him or whence he came. It is known that he roamed about Attawaugan, Dayville and Goodyear during the past week, and was shot only after it was established he had bitten two children in Goodyear. This is the first instance of a rabid dog being killed in Killingly in years.

A regular meeting of the New London archdeaconry of the Episcopal church was held here today, with thirteen clerics and a dozen laymen in attendance, and representative of various eastern Connecticut parishes. The day opened with a communion service at St. Alban's church. Rev. J. Rees Jones, rector, at 11 o'clock. Shortly after noon a luncheon was served in St. Alban's parish house by ladies of the parish. The business session of the day opened at 1.30. The clergymen in attendance in addition to Rev. Mr. Jones, were Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown of Norwich, Rev. Leonard R. Richards of Pomfret, Rev. E. P. Wright of Putnam, Rev. G. H. Drowne of Plainfield, Rev. George A. Alcott of Voluntown, Rev. F. C. Williams of Willimantic, Rev. W. S. Williams of Mystic, Rev. R. H. Parkes of Yantic, Rev. E. P. PUTNAM

ANNUAL FIREMEN'S BALL IS BRILLIANT AFFAIR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 12—The members of the Putnam fire department gave up the art of fire fighting Monday evening to become the hosts of nearly 600 friends who jammed into the state armory on Harris street for the 29th annual ball of the department. The patrons of the annual pre-Lenten social event found their way to the military drill shed through a lane of beautifully illuminated colored lights which were strung from poles from the Putnam Inn to the armory at the foot of Harris street.

While the guests were arriving, Sharp's orchestra furnished a concert programme which lasted for one hour. At 9 o'clock the dancing began and continued until early in the morning.

The grand march, a feature of other balls, because of a steadily growing wave of unpopularity in recent years, was discontinued last night, yet every ounce of color and gaiety of the past events was present.

When the ball became two hours old, the firemen distributed scores of caps, streamers and other fun-making novelties which greatly added to the joy of the dancers and increased the spirit of the frolic.

Nearly every member of the fire department was on hand, attired in their blue uniforms and shining silver insignia. The committee in charge of the ball are grateful to the residents of the city, members of visiting fire departments, and merchants of Putnam, all of whom contributed to the success of the annual social enterprise in one way or another.

Tuesday was observed in the schools of the city as Lincoln's birthday. Fitting exercises in memory of the 120th birthday anniversary of the Great Emancipator were held this morning before the opening of classes in every school in the educational department. At Putnam high school, Principal E. L. Robinson read the second inaugural address of President Lincoln, which was followed by the singing of a number of war songs of the Civil war by the student body. The custom of past years, when the surviving veterans of the Civil war were present to speak to the students, was discontinued because of the feeble condition of the "Boys of '61." Similar exercises were held in the other schools.

The Yale university extension course in which 40 teachers of Putnam and vicinity were enrolled has been concluded. The extension course students have taken their examinations and are now anxiously awaiting the outcome of the series of college lectures, given by professors of Yale university. The course was arranged by Supt. of Schools Leon M. Farrin and if the student was successful, he or she will receive credits towards a college degree. Mr. Farrin said today that the course proved highly successful and was of much benefit to every teacher participating.

Proclamations have been received in Putnam from Gov. John H. Trumbull, commemorating Feb. 15 as Maine Memorial day. In the letter of the chief executive of the state it is ordered that this day be set aside in all of the schools and suitable exercises are to be held in memory of the 166 officers and men of the battleship Maine, who lost their lives in Havana harbor.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Evelyn M. Barney

Mrs. Evelyn M. Barney, widow of Edgar M. Barney, died early Monday evening at the Day Kimball hospital where she was taken following a stroke of heart disease earlier in the afternoon. Mrs. Barney had been in failing health for the past year. Early yesterday she paid a visit to the store of Mrs. Agna Larose, Main street seamstress. Suddenly she collapsed, following a stroke of apoplexy. A physician was summoned and the woman was removed to the hospital where she died a few hours later.

Mrs. Barney was a native of Maine. She was 69 years old and has spent the greater part of her life in this city where she and her late husband conducted a tailor shop on Main street. Mrs. Barney made her home at 86 South Main street after the death of her husband.

Nearly every available member of the local police force, both regulars and supernumerary officers, were on duty Monday at court house block, while the grand jury was in session. Every possible outlet of the building was carefully watched by police for fear of a repetition of a feat which happened a quarter of a century ago when a prisoner awaiting his arraignment before the court, escaped through an open window to freedom. This morning scores stormed the local news stands and scanned the pages of every morning paper in hope of seeing themselves in the group photos taken during the day by the newspapermen representing the press of several New England cities.

About 7 o'clock Monday night, when Judge Newell Jennings indefinitely adjourned the session of court, hundreds gathered about the entrance to court house block in hopes of obtaining a glimpse of Mrs. W. E. Jackson, Miss Juanita Jackson, wife and daughter of the slain detective, who successfully eluded the barricade of newspaper cameramen, and for a view of Deputy Sheriff Trenor A. Rice, indicted for the murder of Detective Jackson. Rice was escorted to a waiting automobile by Jailer Walter S. Tripp and Sheriffs Blish and Ayer and whisked away to the county jail at Brooklyn, before the assembled group with craning necks, could recognize him.

At a session of police court this morning at which Judge M. H. Geissler presided, one of the oldest offenders was again before the court on a charge of intoxication. As usual he pleaded not guilty to the charge but his supply of alibis became exhausted and when no valid explanation could be furnished the prisoner at the bar was forced to pay a fine of $20 and costs of court besides receiving a jail sentence of six months, suspended for a year.

Following a regular meeting of the Putnam grange last evening, a social session was enjoyed with a programme chiefly centered about the anniversary of the 120th birthday of Abraham Lincoln. Leon Andrews of Senexit grange delivered a very interesting address on the life of the 16th president, comparing his trials and tribulations as a child to those of the modern youth. Mrs. Appley and Mrs. John Sager of Canterbury grange rendered a vocal duet, which was well received by the audience. A short talk of original papers on Lincoln was delivered by Mrs. William Harves of Canterbury, which proved of interest to all. A pantomime, "My Country 'Tis of Thee," was presented by Mrs. Henry Bushnell of Canterbury. Following the close of the programme a buffet lunch was served by the grill committee.

Champlin of Grove street was high scorer for the evening and carried off the first honors in the bridge contest, while Mrs. Omer J. Millet of Fremont street was awarded the consolation prize.

The weekly report of City Health Officer Peter A. Gardner, compiled today for the week ending Monday, Feb. 11, showed there are now but four cases of influenza existing in the city. Each week for the past month the health reports have indicated this disease to be receding from its high mark of December and January. The report also contained one case of diphtheria and one of chicken pox. Mr. Gardner said there is no cause for alarm regarding the spread of latter two communicable diseases, since both are of a mild nature.
